PLAN A MISSION CAMPAIGN HERE

Pastors Join in Arranging for United Effort in Plainfield October 30 and 31.

NATIONAL MOVEMENT

Dr. James R. Joy Outlines the Scheme to Local Clergy—Executive Committee Named to Take Charge of Undertaking.

Upon the invitation of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, several pastors of the city and borough churches met at the Y. M. C. A., yesterday afternoon, to discuss plans for a two-day missionary campaign in this city, the tentative dates of which being Thursday and Friday, October 30-31. It was decided to go ahead with the plans which are a part of the country-wide missionary movement of "every member canvas" scheduled for not later than March, 1914. It is called the United Missionary Campaign to be conducted under the auspices of the home and foreign missionary boards of North America. Forty denominations are interested in the movement.

This campaign will be carried on in every State in the Union and already New Jersey has taken steps to hold meetings in every city. During the union meetings to be held here there will be several prominent speakers who are leaders in the movement. The campaign really began in September.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, presided at yesterday's meeting, and Rev. Evarts C. Conover, of the Temple Baptist church, was the secretary. Those present were Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church; Rev. J. Y. Brock, of Trinity Reformed church; Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church; Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church; Rev. William S. McCoy, of Holy Cross church; Rev. Evarts C. Conover, of the Temple Baptist church, and Dr. James R. Joy, representing the First M. E. church.

In addition to a general discussion of the subject, Dr. Joy addressed the meeting, giving something more in detail about the country-wide movement.

Dr. Herring, acting upon the suggestions of the others present, named an executive committee to take charge of the plans for the union meetings to be held in this city. That committee is composed of the following: Arthur M. Harris, William D. Murray, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. They will report later

DIES FROM INJURIES HE RECEIVED WHILE BOXING

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 1.—William Hulley, a plumber, of this place died of a fractured skull, which he sustained several days ago while skylarking with an apprentice in the shop where he was employed. In attempting to dodge a pass made by the apprentice Hulley tripped over the leg of a chair and fell backward, striking his head on a concrete floor.

He staggered to his feet fatally injured, but insisted on walking to his home. He became unconscious a few hours after the accident, and surgeons' attempts to save his life were in vain.

WARREN CHAPEL SERVICES.

Preparatory services will be held at Warren Chapel tonight at 8 o'clock, and the Lord's Supper will be celebrated Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock. The Sunday-school will meet at 2.45 o'clock in the afternoon and the evening service will be at 7.45 o'clock. There will be the all-day sewing meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society tomorrow, commencing at 9.30 o'clock, and a hot dinner will be served at 1 o'clock.

REV. MAGUIRE TO LECTURE.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, has been invited to address the Boston Art Club, of Boston, on Friday, February 2, through the Redpath Lyecum Bureau, on whose program there appears Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, and Champ Clark. Mr. Maguire has also been invited to lecture before the Harvard University Church Brotherhood at Cambridge, on Thursday, February 19.

WIFE BEATER FINED.

Clifford Hill, colored, of Cottage place, was arrested this morning and fined $10 on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife. Mrs. Hill said her husband came home intoxicated last night and "beat her up."

OBSERVE 25TH YEAR OF PARISH SCHOOL

Reception and Dance Held by St. Mary's Parochial School Alumni Marks Event.

The alumni of St. Mary's Parochial School last night at the Columbus Club in West Front street held the first of a series of social events to take place within the next few weeks in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of that institution. The silver anniversary celebration was ushered in with a euchre and cotillion. Over thirty-eight tables, accommodating nearly 350 players, were set. Many more enjoyed the dancing that followed. The cotillion was led by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Couraine and the various figures introduced by the leaders formed a pleasing innovation for the lovers of terpsichore.

Souvenirs for the euchre were given to Mrs. M. McNamee, Mrs. Margaret Meaney, Mrs. E. B. Casey, Miss Margaret McCarthy, Thelephore Parent, Edward Rhodier, Edward Sullivan and Joseph Gallagher.

Those who arranged the pleasant affair are: Miss Josephine Murphy, head of women's committee; John J. Hines, chairman general committee; Mrs. Edward J. Feiring, head of refreshment committee; Mrs. Albert LaRock, the Misses Cartherine McCauley, Catherine Powers, May Birmingham, Marie Carty, Cathertne Roche, Mary Smith, Anna Daley, Elizabeth V. Casey, May Murray and Emma Sullivan.

NEW MEDICAL CORPS EXAMINED 69 BOYS

Work Being Done as a New Feature of the Y. M. C. A. Physical Department.

Sixty-nine members of the Y. M. C. A. Boys' Department were examined by five Plainfield physicians in the association room yesterday afternoon in connection with the new feature recently introduced into the department work by Physical Director E. C. Ostlin. Every boy or man using the gymnasium or its equipment during the coming season will be required to pass a medical examination prescribed by those who have made a careful study of this kind of work.

The members of the Boys' Department were tested regarding weight, height, trunk length, breadths, chest contraction, chest expansion, waist measurements, lung capacity, strength of forearm, back and legs, blood pressure, posture, circulation, respiration, nutrition, nervous system and a personal history was taken of each individual. If abnormal in any way the parents of the boy will be notified and Mr. Ostlin will prescribe a special system of training to remedy the defects.

A careful examination of the reports will be made by the physical department and only those boys who pass the tests will be allowed to indulge in the gymnasium program. The doctors who examined the first group yesterday are Norman H. Probasco, Harold D. Corbusier, Sidney S. Titsworth, Edward S. Krans, Charles B. Lufburrow, Thomas D. Blair. No date has as yet been set for the senior department tests but Mr. Ostlin will announce the schedule of examinations in the near future.

REMOVE TO NEWARK.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Douglass, of this city, will remove tomorrow to Newark. For the first nine years of their married life they lived in that city. Then they resided for nine years in Bayonne, nine years at Point Pleasant and the same number of years in Plainfield. Mr. Douglass has been in the employ of the New York postoffice for more than thirty-five years and expects to retire on January 1.

CLAIMS YOUTH STOLE PAPERS.

David Goldberg, of 319 Liberty street, will be arraigned before City Judge DeMeza tomorrow morning on a charge of stealing newspapers from the stand in front of the store at East Fourth street and Watchung avenue, owned by William H. Olmstead, who made the complaint.

FUNERAL OF J. L. LAIBLE.

The funeral of Joseph Leon Laible, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laible, of 18 Elm place, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the parents. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, will officiate and the burial will be in North Plainfield cemetery.

—Many varieties of fancy apples, including fall pippins, northern spies and pound sweets will be offered for tomorrow's trade at Neuman Brothers', Watchung avenue and Fifth street.—Adv. ***

THREE LOCAL MEN COUNTY CHAIRMEN

Smith, Republican; Stewart, Democrat, and Morrell, Progressive Chiefs.

ONLY ONE CONTEST

Friendly Rivalry in Bull Moose for Honor—Smith Accepts for Tenth Term—Other Officers Chosen for the Two Committees of Union.

Elizabeth, Oct. 1.—The Democratic, Republican and Progressive committees of Union county organized last night at their respective headquarters in this city. The meeting of the Democratic committee was enthusiastic. Several of those who attended the State convention in Trenton made addresses, in which they said that every indication now points to a sweeping Democratic victory. The new officers of the Democratic committee named last night were as follows: Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, chairman; Abram P. Morris, of Hillside, vice chairman; Fred Zior, Elizabeth, secretary; Anthony Sattler, Elizabeth, treasurer; John H. Corbett, Elizabeth, sergeant-at-arms. The committee decided to meet every Friday night from now until the end of the campaign.

The meeting of the County Republican Committee also was an enthusiastic one. There were several minor contests for office. The officers elected were as follows: Frank H. Smith, Plainfield, chairman; James C. Calvert, Elizabeth, vice chairman; Charles A. Otto, Jr., Elizabeth, secretary; Robert C. Plume, Cranford, treasurer. The books of the treasurer, which had been audited, were report to be O. K.

Major Martin made an address in which he told of the enthusiasm at the State convention. He said that this year the Republicans stand a good show of wresting the control of the State from the Democrats.

More than three hours were spent in deadlock by the Progressive committee in the choice of a chairman. On the fourteenth ballot Clarence P. Morrell defeated Charles Trimble for the position. Mayor Harwood Fish, of Roselle, who was also a candidate, withdrew after the third ballot. The others officers elected were:

C. Stacy Bender, Westfield, vice chairman; Edward A. Leach, Elizabeth, secretary; Harry F. Brewer, Elizabeth, treasurer.

The committee selected to draft a constitution consists of Frederick K. English, chairman, William Twombley, Elizabeth, and Mayor Fish, of Roselle.

Allthree chairmen are Plainfielders. Smith accepted the office for the tenth year.

GRACE M. E. SOCIAL A PLEASING AFFAIR

Event Planned by Ladies' Aid Society for the Church Workers.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, a rally social was held last night in Grace M. E. church, where members of the Sunday school and various organizations connected with the church gathered. A delightful musical program was rendered and the heads of the various departments made short addresses. The pulpit was decorated with golden rod, cornhusks and autumnal vegetation and foliage.

The rally opened with remarks by the pastor, Rev. Charles C. Cain, who urged them all to join in the work of making the fall and winter terms prosperous ones. Mrs. Edward Young sang several selections and a quartette composed of the Misses Edith and Marion Major; Miss Isabelle DeMott and Mrs. Young, rendered a pleasing vocal program. Miss Alice Carroll accompanied on the piano. The evening was concluded with the serving of refreshments.

Those who arranged the successful affair were Mrs. Joseph Darby, Mrs. J. W. Bauersachs, Mrs. W. J. Conroy, Mrs. George Nelson, Mrs. Charles Stahl, Mrs. Charles Force and Mrs. Harvey Apgar.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Osterman, of Berkeley avenue, leave tomorrow on the steamer Victoria, for Hamburg, Germany, where they will spend the winter.

Dr. Isaac S. Finkel, of West Front street, has purchased a lot on West Front street, of Jacob Sachar, and will build himself a home adjoining that of Dr. Bernard Levinson.

—Fancy Bartlett and Sheldon pears, quinces, Damson and Green Gage plums will be on sale tomorrow at Neuman Brothers', Watchung avenue and Fifth street.—Adv. ***

REQUISITES FOR NEWSPAPER WORK

George T. Hughes Says Reporters Must Have Natural Ability to Succeed.

CANNOT BE ACQUIRED

City Editor of the New York Globe Spoke to North Plainfield High School Students on "Journalism" This Morning.

Appearing before the student body of the North Plainfield High School this morning in conection with the course of public lectures arranged by Principal Earley, Justice George T. Hughes, city editor of the New York Globe, delivered an interesting talk on journalism. Mr. Hughes' daughter was graduated from the Borough High School last June.

Mr. Hughes described the newspaper "game," outlining the work of the numerous departments of a metropolitan daily and the system involved in gathering news. He said in part:

"When a reporter is taken on a big newspaper the first thing he is assigned to do is to 'cover' one of the police precincts. Here he come in touch with stories concerning accidents, criminal and civil cases and in fact, everything that is going on in the city's life. Every happening, big or small, is reported to the police and the young reporter thus obtains a thorough, all-around experience in story writing. By visiting and being responsible for a police precinct the reporter is not confined to one phase of the work but has to deal with stories of every nature."

The speaker here outlined the way in which the matter was collected for the detailed account of the Equitable fire in New York and the Slocum disaster, giving many interested "inside" facts concerning journalism.

"New York dailies divide the big city into districts such as City Hall and Wall street and an experienced man is assigned to cover each one of these divisions. He has to be able to make friends and a man who can gain acquaintances quickest is the one who is the most valuable to a newspaper. He must be able to talk fluently and interestingly so that his acquaintances will take an interest in him personally and he will then find that "tips" are thrown in his way. The qualities for a newspaper reporter are clear English, a thorough knowledge of his country's language, history and current events, and he must be genial."

"I have been in the newspaper 'game' for twenty years and never advised a young man or woman to enter the work. I do this, not to discourage a possible genius, but knowing that a man or woman who really wants to follow journalistic work will overlook my advice to the contrary and will persevere against anything that might be said against their ambitions. An individual having the makings of a newspaper reporter cannot be persuaded to the contrary and those who are persuaded by some big newspaper man's words are not qualified to enter the work. To make a success in newspaper work the individual must be thoroughly interested in his work and must be able to overcome all obstacles which are bound to present themselves before the pinnacle of fame is attained."

DR. JUSTIN H COOLEY IS HURT BY A FALL

While walking home Monday night from a meeting of the Board of Education, Dr. J. H. Cooley, the president, as he neared his home in Westervelt avenue, missed his footing and stumbling to the gutter, badly twisted and sprained his right leg below the knee. Ligiments binding the ankle were torn loose and it will be many weeks before the physician can use the injured member again.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS TO MEET AT WESTERLY

The annual session of the Seventh-day Baptist Eastern Association will be held October 9-12 with the Pawcatuck church at Westerly, R. I. Delegates will be present from Plainfield and New Market and some ten or twelve other eastern churches, and from the Southeastern, Central, Western, Northwestern and Southwestern Associations.

Messages will be received from the Missionary Board, Tract Board, Education Society, Sabbath-school Board, Woman's Board, Young People's Board and from delegates appointed last year to attend the other associations.

PROGRESSIVES AS ONE HAPPY PARTY

No Factional Strike at First State Convention of the Bull Moose.

FORT THE CHAIRMAN

Colby, the Gubernatorial Standard Bearer, Addresses Delegates—Mrs. Feickert and Former Mayor Moy Attend the Gathering.

Trenton, Oct. 1.—If there were any factional differences in the Progressive party they were to all appearances buried in a free and open discussion of principles on the floor of the State convention, which met in session here Monday. The chief topic of discussion was the platform. It took more than seven hours to put that document in shape. Former State Senator Everett Colby, the Gubernatorial candidate of the party, and George L. Record from Hudson county, bore the burden of the discussion, both expressing a desire to get together. The platform discussion was opened with the introduction of a draft of the same by Mr. Colby, who at the same time explained that the document represented his own personal ideas. He invited the convention to change part or all of it if it so determined.

Following the convention the State committee met and organized, unanimously electing Frank B. Jess as its chairman. The others officers elected were as follows: Vice-chairman Edgar A. Knapp, Union; secretary, Francis D. Potter, Cumberland; treasurer, William Fellows Morgan, Essex. G. W. V. Moy, of Plainfield, was a member of the Platform Committee.

The committee also appointed a woman's campaign committee as follows:

Mrs. Frank A. Pattison, of Middlesex; Mrs. Walter K. Wildes, of Passaic; Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Somerset.

Mr. Colby then expressed a wish that the State committee act as his managers for the campaign and the committee appointed the following as a campaign committee: Mr. Morgan, A. V. Robinson, J. A. H. Hopkins, Frank D. Driver, and as campaign manager, Axel V. Beeken.

Just prior to the adjournment of the convention Mr. Colby was forced to address the delegates.

The convention was opened shortly after 12 o'clock by former Governor J. Franklin Fort. Rev. Samuel S. Merryman, of this city, said the prayer. Mr. Jess was then chosen as chairman of the convention.

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort, State chairman until primary day, opened the convention and then turn-

GROSSCUP CHAIRMAN FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Party in State Convention Praises Wilson and Fielder Administrations.

Trenton, Oct. 1.—Following a lively battle in the State committee, in which Edward E. Grosscup, of Gloucester county, was re-elected chairman over Representative Eugene F. Kinkead, of Hudson county, Governor Fielder's personal candidate, the Democratic State convention opened its session shortly after noon yesterday in the Masonic Temple. J. Warren Davis, of Salem, a pronounced Wilson man, was temporary chairman, having been selected by the unanimous vote of the newly elected State committee.

Mr. Grosscup was elected by a vote of 16 to 3, those voting for Mr. Kinkead being General Dennis F. Collins, of Union, who placed his name in nomination; Joseph E. Nowrey, of Camden, and Willard W. Cutler, of Morris. Mr. Grosscup's name was placed in nomination by James R. Nugent, of Essex, and was seconded by former Senator J. Warren Davis, of Salem, in a speech eulogizing Mr. Grosscup's ability and past services to the party.

General Collins, of Union county, was a member of the resolution committee. A. A. Beekman was the Somerset county member.

The platform endorsed the Wilson administration and the executive and legislative career of Fielder.

MISS WOOLLEY BRIDE OF RAY F.-M. INGRAM

Ceremony at Noon Today at Her Parents—Dr. Herring Officiates.

Miss Helen Woolley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Woolley, of The Bristol, West Front street, and Ray Fitz-Maurice Ingram, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ingram, of Elizabeth, were married at noon today at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. There were about twenty-five guests, including the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple.

There were no attendants. The bride was gowned in a traveling dress, plum color, with hat to match, and she carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and orchids. She was given in marriage by her father. The ceremony was performed in the living room, beneath a bower of pink and white roses and chrysanthemums, which together with Southern smilax comprised the decorations throughout the room. The wedding march was played by Miss Cosette Bratten, of North Plainfield.

After the ceremony and congratulations a wedding breakfast was served and later in the afternoon the couple left on a two weeks' wedding trip. Upon their return they will live in Elizabeth for the present. The bride is well-known here and has a large number of friends. She was graduated with honors from the Plainfield High School class '12. She received a large collection of gifts. Mr. Ingram holds a position with the Singer Manufacturing Company. Later the couple expect to make their home in Boston.

JR. O. U. A. M. STATE CONVENTION IS SOON

The session will continue two days. Every council in the State has been requested to send delegates. The headquarters of the State Council will be at the Seaside House.

There will be a parade on the first day of the convention. A band will be furnished by State Council for each of the three divisions. The parade will be at 3 o'clock and will be down Atlantic avenue to California avenue, through California to Pacific avenue, up Pacific avenue, past grand stand, countermarch and dismissal.

MRS. ELSIE A. HEEGE DIED THIS MORNING

Mrs. Elsie Adelaide Heege, aged twenty-five years, wife of Alfred Heege, formerly of Elizabeth, died of pulmonary trouble this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Houston, 438 Orchard place, this city. She was taken ill a few months ago and then decided to make her home with her parents. While in Elizabeth she attended St. John's M. E. church.

There survives beside the parents and husband, two daughters, Helen and Dorothy Heege, and two brothers, Harvey N. and Stanley S. Houston, of this city. The funeral will be held at the late home Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. C. C. Cain, of Grace M. E. church, will officiate and the burial will be in Evergreen cemetery, Elizabeth.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Sanders, of Boston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marguerite Elizabeth Sanders, to John E. Douglass, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Douglass, of 732 Dixie Lane. Mr. Douglass has been in Manila for the past three years, where he is employed by the MacLeod Company, and is now at home on a six months' vacation. No date has been set for the wedding.

VISITS BOROUGH SCHOOLS.

Dr. H. C. Krebs, Somerset county superintendent of schools, visited the North Plainfield schools this morning. He spent considerable time with several new teachers and complimented Supervising Principal Arthur B. Vossler on securing the services of the new members of the faculty whom he said were unusually competent in their respective duties.

SUMMING UP AT DIVORCE TRIAL

Final Arguments Made in Suit Brought by Wife Against R. H. Hood.

COURT ROOM FILLED

Vice Chancellor Stevenson Frequently Interrupts Opposing Counsel at the Hearing in Court of Chancery at Newark.

Newark, Oct. 1 (Special).—Final argument was heard today by Vice Chancellor Stevens in the Court of Chancery in the action instituted by Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood to secure a divorce from her husband, Richard Haden Hood, of Plainfield. The court room was crowded with people interested in the case.

Conover English, of McCarter & English, who represent Mrs. Hood, opened for the complainant. In the course of his remarks he said that the inclination, opportunity and deceit practised by both Hood and Miss Hoyt together proved the truth of the charges of wrongdoing, and he emphasized the word "deceit." The Vice Chancellor interrupted Mr. English at this point, explaining that it was not necessary to dwell on that phase of the case.

The Vice Chancellor frequently interrupted counsel on both sides, taking opportunity to make comment. While Chauncey B. Parker, of counsel for Hood, was speaking of the fathering interest his client had in Miss Hoyt, the Vice Chancellor stopped him to remark that it was incredible that if Hood had had a proper regard for the young woman he could have allowed himself to compromise her in the way he did. He added that the testimony showed that Hood and Miss Hoyt were almost continuously together on the trip to Europe; that Hood in his testimony showed that he knew there were detectives on board ship watching him and that he must have been infatuated with Miss Hoyt to take such chances.

Vice Chancellor Stevens further commented on the apparent deception and what he termed "veiled" telegrams, sent by Miss Hoyt regarding the trip to Europe and to Montreal, showing that both trips were made by pre-arrangement on the part of Hood and Miss Hoyt.

Judge Gilbert Collins, who was speaking for the defendant when an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock, emphasized the statement that Hood was a man of the highest morality, that he only "liked the little girl" and that it was incredible that the relations between them could be anything but proper.

The argument was concluded about 3 o'clock and Vice Chancellor Stevens announced that he would reserve decision.

"WAR CORRESPONDENTS" A GREAT PHOTO PLAY

"The War Correspondents," a four reel Balkan War story by Itala-Danmark, will be the feature photo-play at The Plainfield Theatre, tomorrow. This production has the merit of being a good melodrama in an up-to-the-minute setting. It is thoroughly convincing. It tells a graphic story of modern warfare, with its high-power guns, its submarine mines, aeroplanes and wireless. The bleak mountain country of the Balkan States, the character of the people and of the Turks, are well presented.

The story is that of two war correspondents, representing rival newspapers. The one, Bretton, is characterized by his high sense of duty, the other, Clark, by his rascality. They appear in the war zone as friends, although Clark has by that time attempted to steal some valuable letters of introduction from his co-worker. Following an accident to Bretton, Clark rifles his knapsack. Then follows a pretty love story in which a Bulgarian peasant girl plays an important part. Clark tries to score a "beat" but is defeated by Bretton, who cuts the telegraph wires. The whole play is effective and is a good feature.

MINSTREL MISSES AT PROCTOR'S

The feature act at Proctor's for the last half of the week beginning tomorrow will include the famous Perry Minstrel Misses, an aggregation of seven girls featuring Miss Josie Flynn, vaudeville's cleverest black-face comedienne. The chorus is good and the songs and jokes are the latest. Allen & Burt, will appear in a clever comedy skit. Baker, Lynn & Co., will offer a farce sketch, "The Electric Boy"; Kraemer & Ross, "The Nimble-Footed Boys," are some dancers. The Two Harringtons, remarkable aerial marvels, with many thrillers, together with the latest photo-plays complete the fine bill.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The annual teachers' institute of the Somerset County Public Schools will be held at Somerville next Monday and Tuesday, October 6 and 7. The institute will begin at 9 o'clock Monday morning and close at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The borough schools will be closed these two days as all of the teachers will attend the institute.

Owing to the overcrowded condition of the school, the manual training department is also suffering from conjestion. There are only eighteen benches in the building and in some cases there are twenty odd pupils in a single class.

At the chapel exercises this morning the boys of the High School gave a rousing welcome yell in honor of Miss Estelle Merrill, the new teacher.

Miss Maude Casselle, teacher in the seventh grade of the Somerset School, was was called home suddenly because of the illness of her mother, has returned to her duties. In her absence Miss Agnes Boxold, librarian, took charge of her classes.

TO FACE TRIAL FOR MURDER OF WOMAN

College Dean and Undertaker to Answer for Death of Dr. Helene Knabe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 1.—Everything is said to be in readiness for the trial before the present term of the Criminal Court of Dr. William H. Craig, dean of the Indiana Veterinary College and Alonzo M. Ragsdale, a local undertaker, jointly indicted by the Marion county grand jury on the charge of having murdered Dr. Helene Knabe during the night of October 23, 1911. The case had originally been set for June 23, but went over because the lwayers for the defense had appealed to Judge Marker for more time to prepare the defense. The prosecution has been ready for a long time and it is not believed that the court will grant any further delays upon the request of the defense unless some good reason is shown.

The trial will, undoubtedly, attract a great deal of attention, partly on account of the social prominence of the two accused men, partly owing to the mysterious circumstances surrounding the crime. Both Dr. Craig and Mr. Ragsdale are wealthy men, have been well known and respected in social circles throughout the city for many years and are well connected. Their indictment on December 30, 1912, by the grand jury on the charge of murder created a tremendous sensation.

Dr. Helene Knabe, the victim of the murder, was a handsome woman of thirty-five years, highly respected as a woman and as a scientist of great promise. She was born in Germany, the daughter of an engineer in the German army and came to America when quite young. She graduated from the Indiana College of Medicine and, having specialized in bacteriology, became bacteriologist in the State laboratory of the Indiana Board of Health. A few years ago she resigned to devote herself to the study of hygiene and the pathology of child birth. She lived alone in an apartment on the ground floor of an apartment building not far from the business section of the city and devoted most of her time to study. Her private life was always believed to be above suspicion.

When Miss Katherine McPherson Dr. Knabe's assistant, entered the apartment of her employer on the morning of October 24, 1911, she found Dr. Knabe dead upon her bed with her head almost severed from the body. Her body was naked, her night robe rolled up under her arms and a pillow upon her breast. Miss McPherson called a physician, who decided that Dr. Knabe had been dead for at least six hours. The police authorities were notified, but were unable to solve the mystery of the case. No knife or any other sharp instrument was found in the bed room and most surprising of all with the exception of a few drops on the sheet no blood was found on the bed or anywhere in the apartment. There was no evidence of any struggle and the police authorities finally gave out the rather absurd statement that it was a case of suicide.

The Indianapolis Council of Women, composed of many prominent women, was not satisfied with the explanation given by the police and employed H. C. Webster, a private detective, to investigate the case. It was upon the information submitted by Webster that the grand jury took up the case and indicted Dr. Craig and Mr. Ragsdale. It was ascertained by the detective that Dr. Craig, a widower with several children, was an intimate friend of Dr. Knabe and a frequent visitor to her apartment. She also frequently visited him at his home. It is alleged that Dr. Knabe wished Dr. Craig to marry her, but that he did not want to do so. It was further ascertained that Dr. Knabe visited the Craig home on the evening before her death, under the pretext to return a book she had borrowed. It is not positively known where she place in Dr. Knabe's apartment on the night of the murder, but the prosecution is confident to be able to connect Dr. Craig with the crime. Mr. Ragsdale, it is believed, was only an accesory after the fact.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Isabelle d'Armond is going to remain in vaudeville.

Henry W. Savage may stage "The Shogun" in Paris this season.

Ethel Barrymore has begun rehearsals of "Tante" in New York.

A new play by George Broadhurst, entitled "Today," is shortly to be produced.

Mabel Wilbur is to be featured in the coming production of "The Moon Maiden."

Miss Henrietta Crosman is to act this season in a new play called "The Tongues of Men."

Owen Davis has written a play entitled "Beggars on Horseback." It will be produced by W. A. Brady.

Eugene Walter has finished a play called "A Plain Woman." Klaw & Erlanger expect to produce it this season.

May Robson has opened her starring tour in Canada in a comedy by James Forbes, entitled "Mrs. Matt Plummer."

Annie Russell is rehearsing "The School for Scandal," which will be added to the repertoire of her Old English Comedy Company.

Charles Meakins has an important role in a new musical piece to be produced by Henry W. Savage in New York at an early date.

Henrietta Wakefield, who has been singing grand opera roles, is in the cast of "Rob Roy," after refusing several grand opera offers.

John Drew is to appear in a double bill this season. One of the plays will be "The Tyranny of Tears," the other a play by Barrie, called "The Will," both of which Mr. Drew appeared in in this city recently.

Owen Johnson, the well-known writer, is working on an operatic version of "Rip Van Winkle," for which Puccini, it is said, will compose the music.

Alexandra Carlisle has been engaged by John Cort to play the leading feminine role in "The Marriage Game," a new play by Anne Crawford Flexner.

Efforts are being made to exploit in Chicago a play entitled "The Traffic." It is, from all accounts, of a piece with "The Lure" and "The Fight" and originated at Los Angeles.

The title of the ney play by Rachel Crothers, in which the Misses Mabel and Edith Taliaferro will be featured, has been definitely decided upon. It will be caled "The Wisdom of Youth."

New York is to have a "Harrigan night," for which there will be a big all-star program, reviving the old-time songs and dances of Harrigan and Hart, popular about twenty-five years ago.

Chrystal Herns, whom the Shuberts are featuring with Guy Standing in "At Bay," is a daughter of that grand old actor James A. Herne. Miss Herne's last notable apperance was with John Mason is "As a Man Thinks."

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold a meeting in Epworth House, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at which time the members will plan for the winter work.

TAKING INTEREST

The more interest a man takes in his business the more "interest" he's likely to take out.

This wise saying of Franklin's has always interested us.

We take interest in our business, we watch things closely, we know our clientele, we see that the stock that enters our store is the finest obtainable for the price; we see that it is BOUGHT "right" so that it can be SOLD "right."

And doing all these things we have been rewarded with success!

Isn't it a stroke of good judgment to deal with a store that protects you in the big things and little ones alike?

Store closed Thursday and Friday on account of holiday—but we shall be ready to serve you on Saturday.

Alert Officer Has Reserves Out When He Hears "Explosion" at Colonial Life Insurance Structure In Jersey City—Didn't Worry Concern's Head, and Police Follow His Example.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 1.—President Ernest Heppenheimer of the Colonial Life Insurance company was waked from his slumbers in his home in this city by the loud and insistent ringing of the telephone.

"This is the city hall police station," said an excited voice over the wire. "Patrolman Seeber reports that he was in front of the Union Trust company building at Washington and Montgomery streets just now when he heard a loud explosion. He at once called for the reserves. They discovered that the Colonial Life Insurance building was dark and have surrounded it. The quicker you get down there the better."

"Why?" asked Mr. Heppenheimer.

"You're the president of the Colonial Life, aren't you?" asked the lieutenant. "Well, we are giving you an opportunity to be there when they break in and get the thieves."

"Thanks," said Mr. Heppenheimer, to whom the loss of sleep still seemed to be the greatest casualty, "but there isn't anything there for them to steal. We do not keep cash balances in the safe overnight, but send them to the banks. Besides that, there's no news in the discovery that the building is dark at night. It's always dark. Good night."

A messenger was sent to the besieging force. They scouted through the financial district and found that the "terrific crash" was caused by the sliding to the pavement of the sheet iron cover of an asphalt mixing machine a block away from the bank. Then the reserves followed Mr. Heppenheimer's example and went to bed, after giving the alert Seeber an affectionate farewell blessing.

EVEN MONEY ON SERIES.

More Athletic Cash Appears, but Does Not Alter Situation.

New York, Oct. 1.—More Athletic money made its appearance in the world's series betting in the financial district. The basis of the betting, however, still remained at even, with a large floating supply of Giant money. Some freak bets were recorded, among which was one of $100 even that the scores of the first game of the series would be odd. There was an offer of $200 to $180 that the team winning the first game would win the series; another offer of $100 even that Philadelphia would have the largest total of runs.

$60,000 OIL FIRE IN CHICAGO.

Guests Flee From Hotel and Fire Fighters' Lives Are In Danger.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Successive explosions of oil tanks in a $60,000 fire that destroyed the Sullivan Oil company early sent 100 guests at the Hotel Northwestern to the street in their night clothes and endangered the lives of firemen.

Twenty persons were rescued from a three story tenement building adjoining. Half a dozen firemen lowered a cot on which lay a paralyzed woman from the third floor.

Plainfield, N. J., October 1, 1913.

HIGH SCHOOL HEATING.

From a local man who has shown marked civic pride, this paper has received a communication prefaced by this statement:

"The Plainfield Daily Press is the home paper and is always interested in whatever concerns the welfare of Plainfield homes and therefore I feel sure of your interest in action in a matter which you no doubt can remedy," our correspondent continuing:

"The High School pupils have been notified to dress warmly 'as there will be no heat in the building until the end of October or early in November.' This is because the old heating plant has been put out of commission on account of building operations and the new heating plant is not ready. It does not seem very certain when the new plant will be ready, and in the meantime, if the weather should be cold, as we have a right to expect in October and November it is little short of murder to shut a lot of children up in an ice box from day to day. Those in robust health may be able to stand it but none can work to advantage and it must result in much sickness. It was a mistake not to provide, when letting the contract for the new addition, that the proper heating of the old building should not be interfered with, but as this apparently was not done, a temporary heating plant, or stoves, should be provided until the new heating apparatus is ready.

"No one has more respect for our school board and school officials than I have. To my mind one of the chief attractions of Plainfield, as a home town, is its excellent school system and management, but, in this case, I think a serious mistake is being made. You will appreciate that my individual protest to the school board would not result in changing its plans—it certainly would not result in quick action. 'The Press' can reach all parties interested and at once, and can speak for all homes represented in the High School and therefore I would ask you to investigate in your own way and take whatever action you consider the circumstances warrant."

Without divulging the name of our correspondent, the Daily Press consulted Dr. Henry Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield Public Schools. Our purpose was to get at the real facts as the author of the communication would have us do.

Dr. Maxson cheerfully complied with our request for information as is his custom and for the benefit of all interested in our schools we append his reply:

"The new boilers are now in process of transportation to the High School. The connecting pipes from the present building to the new boiler house are nearly all laid. The foundations for the boilers are prepared, and there simply remains to move the boilers in, set them up, and make their connections. Within two weeks at the farthest there will be heat in the building if needed, but past experience shows that the heating system is not often put into commission before the first of November."

The Daily Press holds to the belief that it is not fulfilling its proper function when not a public forum and it takes this occasion to thank the correspondent for his communication. At all times, we want to be of service to the people generally and as in the past we invite letters from the people regarding matters of local concern.

Why is it that the Common Council's public affairs committee, letting the complaints of residents in the Netherwood section go unheeded, does not take some action to have the P. S. R. repair it rails on that line? The condition is a disgrace to the city as any man in the employ of the corporation on that route will confess and as any patron will declare.

If every commuter spent but three minutes out of the 1,440 in the day in saying a good word for his home town—and he would only have to tell the exact truth—Plainfield's population would increase by leaps and bounds. Did you, Mr. Commuter, ever think of this?

There will be some surprises when the returns from the general election are received on the councilmanic results. Now, won't there?

PRESIDENTIAL BOOM STARTED FOR STOKES

His Name Presented as Logical Candidate, Stirs G. O. P. State Convention.

Trenton, Oct. 1.—With the unanimous adoption of every plank in the Republican platform, the State convention of that party ended yesterday in perfect harmony.

The afternoon session was featured by an address by Joseph C. Manning, of Alabama, who proclaimed Edward C. Stokes, the Republican nominee for Governor, as the logical candidate for President in 1916. Mr. Manning was warm in his praise of Mr. Stokes' ability and said he is well fitted for the office of chief executive of the nation. The remarks of Mr. Manning brought a burst of applause from the convention.

Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Union, and Judge Robert Carey, of Hudson, rivals of Governor Stokes in the Republican gubernatorial primaries, also addressed the convention and assured the members of their party hearty indorsement of the party's nominee.

Mr. Carey was particularly enthusiastic in his remarks. "I believe Everett Colby is really a Republican," Mr. Carey said, "and will soon be found in the Republican ranks.

"The very things he is advocating can be accomplished through the medium of the Republican part," he added.

Sharp on the stroke of noon, Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, retiring chairman, called the convention to order. William T. Read, of Camden, was the choice of the delegates to succeed him and wield the gavel at the present session.

After an all-night session the resolutions committee was not prepared at once to announce the party's platform. The State committee met in the Republican Club and adjourned, without organizing, until later in the afternoon.

The "platform committee," which was unofficially selected at a conference of some of the convention members a week ago, consisted of Senator Read, Senator Walter A. Edge, of Atlantic; Senator George W. F. Gaunt, of Gloucester; Senator William W. Smalley, of Somerset, and Senator C. B. Pierce, of Union, one of the aspirants for the gubernatorial nomination who was outdistanced in the primaries by Mr. Stokes.

PATROLMEN'S ASSOCIATION MEETS IN BAYONNE

The annual two-day convention of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association opened today in Bayonne with delegates from this city and the borough in attendance. Reports from the various committees were read as the session opened, submitting resolutions for adoption, calling for numerous minor achievements in the purpose of the organization. Marshal Herman is representing the borough police who belong to the Plainfield branch.

A parade in which several thousand patrolmen, their superior officers and friends, will march, is scheduled to be held tomorrow, providing the weather permits. Chief Weiss of the borough, will be in the line-up in the section reserved for the chiefs of the departments of the various cities represented.

L. Beekman, of Arlington avenue, has removed to 35 Prospect place.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hand have removed from Elmwood place to Grove street, the borough.

MARTINE IS AMONG TARIFF INSURGENTS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—When the Senate Democrats assembled in caucus at 11 o'clock this morning, Senators Shafroth, Reed, Owen, Hollis, Pomerene, Salisbury, Myers, Hitchcock and Martine protested against various paragraphs in the conference report on the tariff. Steel, cotton, wire, wool, cottoncloth, brandy and other items caused discontent. It was then decide to take a recess until 3 o'clock this afternoon when the disgrauntled Senators will be heard. When the Senate body met Chairman Simmons requested that the report lie over until tomorrow, and this was agreed upon.

Early agreement on the tariff bill seems seriously threatened by this insurgency of the Democratic Senators who are also concerned over currency legislation. The situation is considered grave and foreshadowing delay on both propositions.

It is considered a coincidence here that six of the Democratic Senators disgruntled with the tariff conference report are members of the currency commission and three of them are openly opposed to the currency bill as it stands.

Mayor Steele, members of the Borough Council and past and present department officers will inspect.

NOT TO OBSERVE OCT. 15 AS HOLIDAY IN SCHOOLS

Trenton, Oct. 1.—In accordance with a recent decision of the attorney general, Commission Calvin N. Kendall, of the department of public instruction, has notified all county and city superintendents that Monday, October 13, will not be observed as a holiday in the public schools. Columbus Day, a legal holiday, falls this year on Sunday, but the law makes no provision for its observance on the following day, which is the case with other legal holidays.

PROGRESSIVES CONVENTION

ed the gavel over to Mr. Jess, the temporary chairman. It was then 12.15 o'clock.

In calling the delegates to order Mr. Fort reminded them that he held no membership in the convention, but begged their indulgence for a few minutes. He aroused applause when he said that the convention was a sure indication that the Progressives were in a fight to stay.

The former Governor referred to the primary fight in which Progressives were disfranchised. Thousands of Progressives who voted for Roosevelt, he said, last year and participated in Republican primaries, were robbed of their votes. Allowing for the handicap, Mr. Fort declared the Progressive vote in the recent primary to be a good showing rather than an indication that the party was showing signs of disintegration, as was "being shouted all over the State."

The speaker declared for the open primary and asserted that had the recent one been under such conditions the Progressive vote would have been overwhelming. Mr. Fort brought forth cheers when he referred to the rivalry between Mr. Colby and Edmund B. Osborne, and urged all hands to rally to the support of the Gubernatorial nominee. He concluded with a declaration that there was more to fight for this year than ever.

The speaker set the convention in an uproar when he attacked former Governor E. C. Stokes, the Republican candidates, as a "reactionary of the worst type." He charged Stokes with having opposed progressive measures that were submitted to the Legislature while he (Fort) was Governor. Mr. Fort referred to Mr. Stokes as "the man who was with us yesterday, and today has left us and claims he is the real Progressive."

Mr. Jess was unanimously selected permanent presiding officer. Frank E. Potter, of Cumberland, was named secretary. Joseph H. Marvel, of Atlantic, was selected sergeant-at-arms.

An effort of the Colby men to heal any wounds that may have grown out of the factional scrap before the primaries was indicated in the committees of the convention. The platform committee included a radical in the person of Mr. Record. The other members were Mr. Colby, former Judge Adrian Lyon, of Middlesex; Harry Wright, of Essex; George E. Hughes, of Somerset, and John A. Hopkins, of Morris.

The committee on credentials was made up of Edgar K. Knapp, of Union; A. C. Reeves, of Mercer; Henry C. Whitehead, of Passaic; Nathan H. Berger, of Essex, ad Eli H. Chandler, of Atlantic. On this committee the radicals were recognized in the selection of Mr. Whitehead.

PLAN FOR IMPROVEMENTS AT FANWOOD FIRE HOUSE

At a meeting of the Fanwood Fire Company, bids were received from P. Phillips and Anthony Alberts, contractors, for the erection of an addition to the present firehouse. The awarding of the contract, however, was deferred until the next meeting of the department on Tuesday night, Oct. 21.

A fund amounting to about $100, raised for the purpose of erecting bowling alleys, was placed to the account of the general treasury after Edward Meeker, of the entertainment committee, had advised that public sentiment in the borough was strongly opposed to the installation of the apparatus necessary for this game. Fred Fernell was authorized to determine the cost of removing the rear wall of the dance hall and adding to the structure a stage about twenty feet deep. Bills amounting to $12.40 were ordered paid.

George Babcock, Republican candidate for Assembly nomination, had no expenses whatever.

GOVERNOR DUE TO ATTEND PATROLMEN'S CONVENTION

Bayonne, Oct. 1.—The State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association will hold its annual convention here today and tomorrow. Governor Fielder is expected to be among those present tomorrow, when a parade will traverse the principal streets. The sesions will close with a ball tomorrow night in the opera house.

Officers will be elected and other business will be transacted today at police headquarters. At least 117 delegates are expected, and it is likely many bluecoats not delegates will attend. Patrolman Henry Weller, of Newark, president of the association, will guide the sessions. Mayor Cronin will deliver an address of welcome.

FUNERAL OF THE OLDEST PHYSICIAN IN HUNTERDON

Flemington, Oct. 1.—The funeral of Dr. William H. Schenk, who died Sunday, will be held from the late home in Broad street, this afternoon. Rev. Dr. A. W. Sonne will officiate and burial will be in Prospect Hill cemetery.

Dr. Schenk was born near Flemington eighty-seven years ago, and was the oldest physician in the city. He was a graduate of the University of New York, began the practice of medicine here in 1848, and was the oldest member of the Hunterdon County Medical Society. He had been suffering from heart disease for about five years, death following an illness of about a week.

Three sons and two daughters survive. They are John F. Schenk, Condit Schenk, Henry Schenk, Mrs. Lambert Humphrey and Mrs. J. H. Loller.

ACTOR, SUED BY WIFE, HAS TRAVEL LIMITS EXTENDED

Jersey City, Oct. 1.—Edward J. Mackay, an actor, is being sued for separate maintenance by his wife, Eloise Mackay, who charges him with desertion. Upon application of Mackay's counsel, Dougal Herr, before Vice Chancellor Griffin, Monday afternoon, a writ of ne exeat, issued some time ago to keep the actor within the boundaries of New Jersey until the case is decided, is modified, allowing him to travel about the country and fulfill his stage contracts. When the writ was first issued, Mackay was only allowed the liberty of visiting New York to attend rehearsals.

The extension of liberty was not opposed by Mrs. Mackay's counsel, John I. Weller. In her petition Mrs. Mackay names two New York women.

In his answer Mackay denies every charge made by his wife. He is living with his parents in Coytesville, not far distant from the place where Mrs. Mackay resides.

ONE BURGLAR IS CAUGHT, AND TWO MAKE ESCAPE

Hoboken, Oct. 1.—Patrolman Griffin, of the Second precinct, found three men in the grocery store of Ellis Jorgensin at Tenth street and Clinton avenue, yesterday. They had entered by breaking through a side door. He drew his gun and attempted to arrest them, but two escaped.

With the assistance of Detective Edward Hupp, who saw the fleeing men, a young man giving his name as David Norton, eighteen years old, of 622 West 175th street, New York, was caught. Hupp shot at Norton, who hid behind an ash can, and the detective ran to him expecting to find that he had hit him. Norton was untouched and gave himself up. A "jimmy" and $7 were found on him. Recorder McGovern held him without bail on the charge of breaking and entering.

Norton would not give the names of his accomplices. He claims that he is the younger brother of Captain Norton, of Engine Company 135, of the New York Fire Department.

THE OLD BRITISH

Convict Ship "SUCCESS"

The Oldest Ship Afloat (launched 1790 A. D.) and Only Survivor of England's Terrible Fleet of "Ocean Hells."

NOW IN NEWARK ON TOUR OF THE WORLD

THIS WONDERFUL VESSEL HAS MADE HISTORY

Through three centuries. She marked the beginning and the end of England's monstrous penal system.

She has held lurid horror and dreadful iniquities beside which even the terrible stories of the Black Hole of Calcutta and the Spanish Inquisition pale into insignificance.

She is the oldest ship in the world and the only convict ship left afloat out of that dreadful "Fleet of Hells" which sailed the Seven Seas in 1790 A. D.

She is unchanged after all these years, nothing being omitted but her human freight and their suffering from the cruelties and barbarities practised upon them.

Aboard her are now shown, in their original state, all the airless dungeons and condemned cells, the whipping posts, the manacles, the branding irons, the punishment balls, the leaden-tipped cat-o'-nine tails, the coffin bath and the other fiendish inventions of man's brutality to his fellow man.

From keel to topmast she cries aloud the greatest lesson the world has ever known in the history of human progress.

The Convict Ship "Success" is the Greatest and Most Extraordinary Exhibition That Ever Visited America. It is a Theme for the Pen of a Dante. When You Walk Her Decks, Grooved with the Chains of Her Miserable Victims, the Past Will Speak to You Its Sad and Mournful Lesson, But You Will Leave Feeling Better Because You Live in a Better Age.

The Convict Ship is lighted throughout with electricity so that her manifold wonders can be comfortably inspected. A corps of high-class guides and lecturers are always on duty, to conduct visitors over her three decks brimful of historic and educational interest.

Open to the public Daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

COMMERCIAL WHARF, NEAR PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD STATION, NEWARK

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 13.

I WAS reading the WANT ADS. The room was warm, the air a little stuffy and, still holding the printed sheet, I went off into a doze.

An old man broke his way, with some effort through the newspaper page and stood before me. In his left hand he held a crumpled mass of newspapers. Looking closely, I discovered that only the CLASSIFIED pages from various newspapers were represented in that mass.

"I am Old Man Opportunity," he said, in a voice that vibrated through the room. "I come to every one, not once, but many times. To those who keep an eye on me I offer frequent opportunities to secure good positions—to sell various things quickly and advantageously—to acquire whatever may be wished for—to find the lost and to supply the various needs that the activities of man are forever creating.

"Go to the people in your Little Talks, young man, and tell them that I shall never cease to exist. For years I have been striving for recognition. For years I have been ignored. But I am slowly coming into my own. Already I am recognized by the few, and there are some folks even who look for my coming. It shall always be so. For I am the WANT ADS."

He flourished the crumpled papers in my face. "See," he fairly shouted, "a million men and women have profited through me in these pages. Tell the people that. Tell them I was born to serve, and shall go on serving. Tell them"——

But just then the telephone on my library table clanged noisily for attention, and Old Man Opportunity made way for returning consciousness.

I do not know what else the old man wanted me to tell you, but it seems to me he had time to say some things that are worth consideration. Don't you think so?

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Last Year's Suit This Year.

There are many women who wear one-coat suit for at least two seasons and always look well in it. These are usually the women who choose a conservative style to begin with and then freshen it up the second season with small, fashionable touches.

The suit that is to wear for more than one season ought to be of simple cut—never loose and baggy, never tight-fitting, but semi-fitting. A belted norfolk, a half-fitted cutaway coat, a semi-fitting coat that reaches about to the hip—any of these would have looked well last year, would look well this year and presumably will look well next year. For no matter how many suits with bagging sleeves and lampshade tunics and huge, ballooning dances Paris may put forth, there will always be a good supply of simpler styles to choose from. This year a suit with a skirt that is full around the hips might be chosen, for next year, if hip fullness has gone by, the skirt can be easily remodeled to slimmer lines; and if the skirts then must be fuller around the ankles the material used this year about the hips may possibly be used then about the ankles.

New Touches.

There are several small accessories that the economical woman can buy to make last year's suit look up to date.

For one thing, there is the waistcoat. An old suit can be given a very different appearance if it is worn with one of the new and charming waistcoats. These are made of silk and satin and velvet and plush, in different styles, and may be chosen either in a harmonizing or a shade which contrasts with the suit. The coat can be slightly remodeled to accommodate the waistcoat. Perhaps the front edges look worn and shiny, anyway, and if so they can be cut away a little to show the waistcoat. It can be worn separately or else made to fasten into the coat.

Neckwear, too, changes the appearance of an old coat suit. Net and tulle are sure to be worn this winter. They are too becoming, too easy to handle, to lose their popularity for a long time. Some of the beautiful new fur and velvet suits are worn with white waists and with a band of wide black and white tulle frilling—one layer of black, one of white—fastened, not in the neck of the waist, but in the neck of the coat, and down almost to the waistline.

It is somewhat difficult to alter last year's skirts. If by chance there were pleats laid over the hips—and there probably were not—unstitch them, and let the fullness lie loosery. The ankle line of last year passes well for that of this year.

Some Cookery Suggestions

PUTTING UP PEACHES.

PEACHES make tempting winter desserts, and the housewife prizes them so highly that they usually occupy the chief place in her preserve pantry.

They should be firm and nicely formed for preserving. Fruit butter, jam, marmalade and jelly should all be made at one time, and thus fruit that will not serve for one purpose will do for another.

Select Freestone Peaches.

Preserved Peaches.—Take ripe freestone peaches; pare, stone and quarter them. To six pounds of the cut peaches allow three pounds of the best brown sugar. Strew the sugar among the peaches and set them away in a covered vessel. Next morning put the whole into a preserving kettle and boil slowly about an hour and three-quarters or two hours, skimming it well. Then put in jars and seal.

Like Fresh Peaches.

Canned Peaches.—Peaches which have been canned without cooking when opened are like fresh peaches, especially if served with cream. Allow one pint of water and one cupful of sugar for each jar and boil this mixture five minutes. Pare the peaches and pack in jars whole. Leaving the pits in gives a peach flavor. In each filled jar put one teaspoonful of pure alcohol; then pour the hot sirup over all till the cans are brimful and seal.

Peach Marmalade.—After peaches are peeled and stoned weigh and allow to every pound of fruit three-fourths of a pound of sugar. Put the peaches into the preserving kettle and heat slowly, dipping out the juice. Stew until the peaches are broken; then add the sugar and boil for ten minutes more. Stir in a tablespoonful of lemon juice for every pound of peaches and take the kettles at once from the fire. Fill heated jars to overflowing and seal.

With Plenty of Spice.

Spiced Peaches.—Take seven pounds of unstoned peaches to one pint of cider vinegar. Add three and one-half pounds of sugar, one tablespoonful of ground cinnamon, one of mace and one teaspoonful of cloves. Tie the spices in a bag. Cook the vinegar, spices and sugar for fifteen minutes; then add the peaches, a few at a time, and cook until tender. Pack in jars, pour over them the scalding sirup and cover closely. Let them stand twenty-four hours; then drain, cook the sirup ten minutes and again pour over the fruit. Put in jars, seal and keep in a cool place.

Anna Thompson.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Naughty Red Squirrels And the Nuts.

Carried Away the Luncheon.

CHESTNUTS taste twice as nice if you can gather them from the tree yourself, so Jack and Evelyn thought. Out in the woods was a beautiful big tree to which every year they went for nuts.

"This year there were hardly any nuts on it," the children complained after a trip to the tree in grandpa's company.

"The wood folks must have been before you. They no doubt feel that they need the nuts more than you do," daddy replied.

"What wood folks?" the children asked. "Nobody lives out there."

"Oh, indeed!" daddy laughed. "Well, you didn't look very closely. No doubt the neighbors were peeping at you and thinking how lucky it was that they had beaten you to the tree. The squirrels and the chipmunks put the nuts away in their storehouses for winter. When the days are cold and no other food can be had they will come back to get them out.

"The squirrels consider that all the nuts in the woods belong to them. When I was a boy we used to go nutting in some woods near my home.

"One Saturday I went out alone with a bag. Like you, I found the trees pretty well picked; but, as I was anxious for nuts, I worked hard to get what few I could find.

"I was surprised to see that my pile of nuts did not seem to grow, although I kept slowly adding to them. I had piled them on the ground near the nut trees.

"Presently I noticed little figures running down some of the other trees and after going to my pile of nuts hurrying up the trees again. They were red squirrels, and I knew they had been stealing my nuts.

"I got down and tried to chase them. There was one big fellow that kept jumping from tree to tree. I followed him for quite a way, and then as he whisked out of sight I gave up and came back to my nut tree.

"By this time I began to feel hungry and went to the log where I had left the luncheon. I stared, for the napkin was empty. The holes showed who had taken the food. Some of the red squirrels had carried off my luncheon.

"Most of my nuts were gone, too, and I started home. When I told how I had lost my luncheon father laughed.

"'The red squirrels are the greatest thieves in the woods,' said he. 'They rob every one. In the spring they steal the birds' eggs. They will steal corn if they live near a field of it; not only that, but they steal the other squirrels' winter stores. They are always on the lookout to see where their neighbors put away their nuts, and they will steal the other squirrels' nuts, though they may have plenty of their own. They seem to steal for fun as much as for a living.'"

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

THE SCHOOL FOR SUFFRAGE WORKERS.

Miss A. J. Vermilye, herself a member of the School for Suffrage Workers, has written the following account for the Plainfield Daily Press:

"The School for Suffrage Workers is exceeding in efficiency the hopes of the students, just as in numbers it has exceeded the expectation of its originator, Mrs. Chapman Catt. It so overwhelmed its quarters at 180 Madison avenue that arrangements were made to accept the hospitality of the Equal Franchise League at 8 East Thirty-seventh street.

"Mrs. Catt's masterly presentation of the constitution and political history was so interesting that one frequently saw the other instructors or speakers remaining to listen. Too much cannot be said of the school director's tact and statesmanlike conducting of the work.

"One great value of the school lies in the practical demonstrations. Miss Anna Rhode's class in parliamentary law held a spirited debate according to strict parliamentary usage. Miss Mary Garrett Hay's class in organization has been extremely helpful. Miss Hay laid great stress on the necessity of knowing the political leaders of the district, particularly your own Assemblymen, and on house-to-house canvassing and keeping in touch with each voter. Mrs. Clarkson's instructions in suffrage history have been very valuable with matter gathered far and wide.

"The classes in public speaking, under Miss Jenne Morrow Long, took short flights of oratory in the class room and then tried their wings in the New York parks.

"There are so many well-tried suffrage and social workers among the students that it is impossible to name them all. They come from eighteen of the United States, from France and from England.

"On one afternoon the class visited, by invitation, the National Headquarters, at 505 Fifth avenue, New York. They were warmly welcomed by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, who introduced them to her staff of co-workers, and each in turn—Mrs. Dennett, Mrs. Bjorkman and Miss Byrns, explained her special work. Among the leaflets and papers shown by Miss Byrns was one just gotten out, giving reproductions of actual notices and cartoons sent out by the Liquor Dealers' Association in opposition to suffrage. This pamphlet removes all doubt as to their attitude.

"The evening lectures at the Hotel McAlpin have been very well attended. Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer spoke on 'Women Social Workers'; Miss Frances Kellor was to follow, but as she was unable to come, Mrs. Spencer took her place and showed how changing conditions made it increasingly difficult for really effective philanthropic work to be done unless backed up by the vote.

"Mrs. Raymond Robins, president of the National Women's Trade Union League, spoke one evening and thrilled her audience with enthusiasm, as she spoke on 'American Women Wage Earners.' Also interesting was Mrs. V. G. Simkovitch, of Greenwich House, in her talk on 'Votes for Women Workers.'

"Time does not permit of mentioning all the speakers at these evening lectures.

"The closing lecture, on Saturday evening last, was by Jane Addams, on 'How Votes Could Help.' Out of her wide experience, Miss Addams spoke and her opinion seemed almost 'final.'"

PLANS OLD HOME WEEK.

Flemington, Oct. 1.—Beginning Friday afternoon, the congregation of the Flemington Baptist church will observe old home week. Two services will be held Friday. In the afternoon Rev. Edwin O. Wilson, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church, Newark, will speak. Rev. Dr. Homer J. Vosburgh, pastor of the North Baptist church, Camden, will make an adress in the evening. There will be a roll call of members at each service. Services appropriate to the occasion will be held Sunday, when the autumnal rally will be observed. At 10 o'clock the Sunday-school will hold special services and at 11 o'clock Rev. Howard H. Brown, pastor of the church, will deliver a sermon. In the evening the Young People's societies of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches will hold a union service in the lecture room. Tuesday, Mrs. G. A. Maguire, of Plainfield, will address a meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the church. The Men's Club will hold its fall banquet Thursday evening of next week.

PARLIAMENTARY ANNIVERSARY

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 1.—A royal salute of artillery from the Citadel of Halifax will be given tomorrow morning by the order of the Minister of Militia in honor of the 155th anniversary of the convening of the elective assembly of Canada. The first meeting of the Assembly of Nova Scotia, consisting wholly of elective representatives, was held on October 2, 1758. It was called under the authority and directions of the King's Government in Great Britain and constituted the first instance of the session of a parliamentary government outside of Great Britain.

THE SUSPENDER SKIRT A SMART NOVELTY

From conservative China, where dress is prescribed to its smallest detail comes a saying that fashion is the continuous yearning for something new. This season designs are novel in minor details rather than in general lines—sashes, collars, sleeves, etc., offer the woman of taste a chance to strike the individual note. In 7965 the new feature consists of the straps over the shoulders. They trim the plainest blouse effectively. The broad, folded sash to which they are attached, often with novelty buttons or buckles, is sufficient excuse for their being. In this model the suspenders and blouse are of the same material, but the effect of the straps would be heightened if the underblouse were of lace or a contrasting fabric. The plaid of the skirt offers effective contrast in this instance. The combination of plain and plaid stuffs is smart and new. Many separate skirts will be seen in these plaids the coming winter.

In size 18 this dress requires 4¾ yards of silk or novelty goods.

The other costume (7967-7956) brings about the new peg-top effect in the skirt by a crosswise tuck at flounce depth, and this also gives a slightly draped movement look that is pleasing.

The fichu adds a quaint look most becoming to young girls, especially when the dress is developed in one of the pleasing, old fashioned looking silks or crepes that are so modish just now. Two and three-quarters yards of 36 inch silk is required to make the blouse in size 36 with 2¾ yards of 36 inch material for the skirt. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Two Borders for Household Linens, Underwear and Dresses.

Cross-stitch borders are so easy to embroider and make such attractive trimmings for both dresses and household linens. If a heavy silk or mercerized cotton is used, the design is more effective than when developed in the fine threads. Flowered scalloped borders are always attractive for finishing household linens and underwear.

The design, in pattern number 12439, may be developed entirely in solid work or shadow-stitch, or the flowers and ribbon may be embroidered in outline and seeding and the leaves in eyelets.

This design is suitable for embroidering towels, pillow-cases, sheets and bureau-scarfs as well as petticoats, drawers and negligees.

The cross-stitch pattern number 14363, may be developed in one or more colors or shades of a color on towels, waists and dresses of linen and children's clothes.

Pattern number 14363 is a border 3 inches wide and 3 yards are given in the pattern for ten cents. Pattern number 12549 is 5 inches wide and the pattern contains 1½ yards for fifteen cents. These patterns will be supplied to readers on receipt of price.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

There will be a walk on Saturday afternoon to Hilltop, leaving the Association building at 2:30 o'clock.

On Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock the first vesper service of the year will be held. Miss Florence Smith will speak on "The Girl and the Church" and Miss Irene Miller will be the soloist.

There will be a meeting of the Board at 10 o'clock Monday morning and Tuesday evening is the general fall rally of all the classes at which Miss Louise Connelly, of Newark, will be the speaker. Miss Lena Farrar, of the National Board, in New York city, will also be present and speak on Tuesday night and will spend Wednesday and Thursday here looking over the work for the coming year.

On Thursday night there will be meetings of both the Owaissa and Kitchi Kimiwan Camp Fire Groups.

WILL HOLD A DIME SOCIAL.

Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star, will hold a dime social Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rugg, of Mercer avenue, the borough. The chapter will also hold a Hallowe'en celebration at the home of Mrs. L. E. Weaver, of East Second street.

MISS CARROLL NOW MRS. EDMUND KRAFT

Ceremony at Immaculate Conception Church, Somerville, This Morning.

Miss Mary F. Carroll, of Raritan, became the bride of Edmund G. Kraft, of Somerville, at 10 o'clock this morning. The ceremony took place at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Somerville. A high nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Ryan, of Somerville. The Rev. Father Dittrich, of Atlantic City, and formerly of Bound Brook, served as deacon, and the Rev. Thomas Rudden, of Bound Brook, as sub-deacon.

The bride entered the church to the strains of the wedding chorus from "Lohengrin," played by Miss Anna Torpey, of South Bethlehem, with orchestral accompaniment by the Kraft orchestra, of Somerville. Miss Mary Rayeur, of South Bethlehem, Pa., sang the wedding chorus. Miss Bulckley, of the Somerville theatre orchestra, played the bells during the ceremony.

The Rev. Father Ryan performed the marriage ceremony. Feltz's mass was rendered in fine voice by St. Bernard's choir, of Raritan, augmented by out-of-town singers.

The bride was handsomely attired in satin duchesse, cut en train, and wore a tulle veil arranged in cap fashion, and held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Gertrude McWilliams, of Raritan, as maid of honor. Miss Esther Clark, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Miss Dolores Torpey, niece of the bridegroom, was the flower girl. Miss McWilliams was gowned in flame silk crepe over cream charmeuse, combined with shadow lace. She wore a white picture hat and carried an armful of white chrysanthemums. Miss Clark wore yellow crepe de chene, trimmed with lace, with hat to match, and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Little Miss Torpey made a sweet appearance in white accordian pleated chiffon over pink silk, with a cute little lace cap, and carried a basket of sweet peas.

The bridegroom's attendant was John O'Hara, of New York city, a college classmate of the bridegroom. The ushers were J. J. Bourke, of Raritan, and John Gorman, of Somerville.

The church was handsomely decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. After the wedding ceremony the guests gathered at the newly-furnished home of the couple, on West Main street, Somerville, where a wedding breakfast was served. The bride received many beautiful presents, among them cut glass, silver, chinaware and furniture and several checks.

The bridegroom is an employe of the Public Service Corporation, and has a host of friends in this section. He is more popularly known among baseball fans, being a member of the Somerville team, and has often pitched his team to victory. The bride is one of Raritan's popular young women.

Mr. and Mrs. Kraft left for a brief honeymoon trip.

BULL KILLS FAST TROTTER.

Pottstown, Oct. 1.—Loudell, a bay trotter, with a mark of 2.16¼, owned by Benjamin Jones, a hotel man of Reading, was fatally gored Monday by a bull while grazing in the meadows near the Mill Park tract. Loudell received a gash under the front legs near the heart, which resulted in the death of the horse shortly after he was attacked by the bull. Loudell was valued at $2,500, and had won valuable purses.

JACK BREEN SAYS PARKER FIELD IS ONE OF THE FASTEST IN THE COUNTRY.

Jack Breen, second baseman for the Jersey City International League club, who played the keystone sack for Jack Martin's All-Star crew here last Saturday, remarked after the game that Parker Field was one of the fastest diamonds he had performed on since he broke into baseball. "If all the International League diamonds were as good as the Plainfield playing ground I would go through the season without an error," said the leaguer. Breen will play here again next Saturday, when "Martin Day" will be celebrated at the local recreation field.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Four men—A, B, C and D—engaged in a bowling contest. A and B were partners, playing against C and D. A and B won by 25 points. When the individual scores were added up it was found that A had made the top score. C, on the losing side, made a quarter less than A, B scored a quarter less than C, and D's score was one-fourth less than C's. What were the individual scores of A, B, C and D? G. L. H.

Answer—This saved you about two hours study on your home work or just about five days' wait for the "Fun" magazine to make its next appearance. Here they are: A's score was 100, B's was 56¼, C's was 75, and D's was 56¼. It's kind of a funny way to topple over ten pins but since your problem insisted on splitting the pins we had to give you the splits. Your query is more of a puzzle than anything else and is worked out in algebra. We might suggest that the next time you use a checker or chess game for your example as even the most inexperienced pinner can generally manage to bowl over a century mark unless the alleys are more than a mile long.

Although this answer can be proved if you take the trouble to do it, I have a faint suspicion that the problem itself is a puzzle and you may find a very different answer given to the puzzle.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Give me the names of the papers published in Franklin, Ind., and their circulation? F. R.

Answer—Four papers are published in Franklin as follows: The Democrat, which makes its appearance weekly on Fridays, with a circulation of 2,325; the People's Paper (weekly edition of the Star), published on Fridays with a circulation of 780; the Republican, published Tuesdays and Fridays with a circulation of 2,092; the Star, published every evening and Sundays with a circulation of 1,800.

PENN PLAYS MINUS CAPTAIN.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—The University of Pennsylvania football team will line up against Franklin and Marshall in the Quakers' only midweek game of the season on Franklin Field this afternoon minus the services of Captain "Lew" Young, the star half-back, who is in the university hospital suffering with a badly swollen foot.

WON'T BUCK COMMISSION.

Detroit, Oct. 1.—Hugh Jennings, manager of the Detroit Tigers, does not intend to antagonize the National Commission as regards writing on the world's series. Jennings yesterday declared that he would not fulfill his contract unless the Triumvirate approved.

SOME FREAK BETS.

Several bets of from $25 to $100 were made Monday at even money on the world's series, and supporters of the Athletics backed up their choice with real money for the first time. A number of freak wagers were made, including one of $100 even that the score of the first game will be odd. Schumm has $200 to place against $180 that the team winning the first game will win the series, and $100 even that the Athletics get more runs than the Giants.

K. O. BROWN COMES BACK.

Popular little Knockout Brown returned to the ring at the Atlantic Garden A. C., New York city, last night, after a rest of several months, and had to fight at top speed all the way to beat Danny Ridge in ten rounds teeming with action.

MILWAUKEE BASEBALL MAD.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—Milwaukee still is baseball mad despite the fact that the American Association season closed Monday. Several thousand "fans" crowded about the Union station here yesterday and with brass bands and other noise-producing instruments welcomed home the Milwaukee team, winners of the Association pennant, and, incidentally, the first pennant ever won by a Milwaukee team.

McGRAW DROPS TWO.

Manager McGraw, of the Giants, yesterday turned over to Mike Finn, manager of the Memphis team, two of his surplus pitchers. One of them is Theodore Goulait, who was purchased from Indianapolis last year and finished the season with the Giants. This spring Goulait was sent to Toronto. The other is Howard Merritt, a pitcher, who came to New York a few days ago by draft from Memphis.

NEWLYWEDS ON TOUR.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—A tour of the world with the Chicago Americans and New York Nationals next winter will be the honeymoon of Louis J. Comiskey, son of the owner of the local club, and Miss Grace Reidy, who were married here Monday night. The couple will join the baseball aggregation at Portland, Ore., in November.

AMERICAN INVADERS BEATEN.

FANS HAVE TO APPLY IN PERSON FOR TICKETS.

Fans desiring tickets for the world's series games in New York or Philadelphia will have to make personal application in each city. According to the announcement issued by the managements of the Giants and Athletics no mail or telephone orders will be received. The tickets will be put on sale in both cities at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

In New York the sale of reserved seat tickets will take place at the Polo Grounds. All of the boxes have been reserved by the National Commission and Clubs. The price of reserved seats in the upper stand will be $3 each and patrons will be allowed to buy tickets for one, two or three games. Not more than two tickets will be sold to one purchaser. The admission tickets to the lower stand, which will cost $2 each, and the bleacher tickets, at $1 each, will be put on sale the day of the game for that particular contest. There will be no advance sale of these tickets.

The sale of tickets for the Philadelphia games will be put on sale at Gimbel Brothers' ticket office, Ninth street, Philadelphia. The scale of prices will be: Box seats $5, serial price $15; seats in upper and lower grandstand $3, serial price $9; seats in left field and right field pavilions $2, serial price $6. Tickets will be issued for three games and can be purchased in that way only. Not more than two series tickets will be sold to any one purchaser.

"MAC" SAYS

Have you done your share to make "Martin Day" a success next Saturday afternoon? If not, get busy, it's a good thing, push it along.

Every loyal fan ought to take advantage of this opportunity to do something for Plainfield's best contribution to organized baseball. Don't pass up the chance, you will regret it Saturday.

North Plainfield High School maidens, in accordance with their annual custom, have again conspired to break the boy athletes' training regulations by conducting a cake and candy sale. The penalty is generally a severe one, look before you leap.

Jack Torpey, "the best all around man in Central New Jersey League baseball circles, has again established a precedent. This time he is promoting a benefit for those faithful Somerville players who have stuck to his club throughout the entire season without thought of where their compensation was coming from. Why wouldn't a bunch of athletes stick to a man like Jack?

Somerville will play Flemington in a benefit game next Saturday and the players will receive the entire proceeds.

This is a good afternoon for football practice. The coaches will probably take advantage of the opportunity to drill the warriors with a slippery ball in aquatic stunts.

The first echo of local basketball: Hope Chapel elects a manager and advertises for games in every town but Plainfield. The Hope contingent must be contemplating a world tour.

One year ago today three basketball teams were playing the indoor game but today the basket tossers are still hibernating. In Newark and other cities the sport has taken on a mid-winter aspect and regular competition is going on on every court. What not start it going somebody?

Breen's work around second base for the International Leaguers last Saturday was evidence enough of what he thought of the diamond. His statement classing Parker Field as one of the best diamonds in the country is some boost.

Wonder how much road work those athletes who are taking morning walks and runs did this morning? Outdoor training is not so pleasant when the sportsmen are trailed by Jupiter Fluvius.

GAME FOR BENEFIT OF SOMERVILLE MEN

Manager Jack Torpey Has Arranged a Contest to Be Played With Flemington.

Jack Torpey, manager of the Somerville baseball team, runners-up in the Central New Jersey League during the past season, is promoting a benefit game to be played on the Somerville field next Saturday afternoon with the Flemington aggregation as opponents. The entire proceeds of the big game will go to the players, which will be split on a miniature world's series basis.

Somerville and Flemington have always been the greatest of rivals and the tickets now on sale for the big show are finding ready buyers among the Somerset county fans. Baseball has not been what it should have been in Somerville during the past season for the calibre of team that was turned out and the players were not reimbursed for their efforts to serve the public on the diamond.

The Somerville team was one of the few aggregations in this vicinity that presented the same lineup at the close of the season that it did at the opening and the Somerset county fans did not support the combination as they should. Entnusiasm has been awakened over the Saturday benefit struggle, however, and many tickets have been disposed of by the players on the team.

PLAN TO REORGANIZE Y. M. C. A. AJAX FIVE

Four Veterans Remain and New Men Will Be Selected to Fill the Vacancies.

The four remaining members of the Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball team who have completed their school courses and will be free to play independently this winter on the basketball court, are contemplating the reorganization of the team that has played together for four consecutive seasons and a meeting will be called in the near future to start the 1913-14 season on its way. Albert Brynairski, last year's captain; James Buckle, Myrton Glover and James J. McNamee are the four remaining members of the squad and one and possibly two new men will be added.

This will make the fifth season that the Ajax team has been in existence and the combination which was started among Y. M. C. A. juniors has made an enviable record on the court during the time it has been in the game. Brynairski, Glover and McNamee are original members of the five and Buckle was added as a substitute last year. He demonstrated in the games in which he played, however, that he was capable of holding his own as a forward and will probably get a regular berth this fall. Peacock, the other forward, will play with Plainfield High School, as will also Andrew Hetfield, and James Nash is out of town. Practice will be called in the near future and a new man selected to fill the vacancy.

"MARTIN DAY" IDEA AROUSING INTEREST

Many Fans Are Working Hard to Make Saturday a Big Day for Jack.

A committee of baseball fans and admirers of Jack Martin, who are working for a "Jack Martin Day" at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon are receiving encouraging support from the ball player's friends and indications point to one of the biggest affairs of this kind ever held in this vicinity. Additional contributions have been made to the fund for the purchase of some suitable trophy of appreciation to Martin and a special program is being arranged for the occasion.

A number of local organizations are circulating among their members for contributions to the fund and when the final reports come in it is expected that the amount will be swelled four times its present proportions. The names of all contributors will go with the trophy and every loyal follower of the diamond game should get his name on the list to be enclosed. No contributions is too small to swell the fund. The following contributions were received by the committee this morning:

V. W. Nash, Jr.	$ 2.00
Harry Dreier	2.00
An Admirer	1.00
Francis Blatz	1.00
Previously acknowledged	10.00
Total	$16.00

HOPE CHAPEL ELECTS BASKETBALL MANAGER

Church Boys Plan a Busy Season of Work on the Court—Material Abundant.

George E. Leighs, who managed the strong Hope Chapel basketball team during the successful season of 1912-13, was re-elected last night to serve in a similar capacity this season and has already started to book games with fast junior quintets in this city, Elizabeth, Trenton and New Brunswick. James Doig was chosen temporary captain. Leighs will compile a complete schedule prior to the opening of the season and it behooves rival managers who are planning to line their forces up against the Hope contingent, to get in touch with him before it is too late. There are always a number of teams who try to book games with the chapelites after the season opens and the schedule is sometimes so crowded that the manager is unable to accommodate all-comers, thus causing some dissatisfaction.

It now seems probable that the new Hope Chapel court will not be ready for use this season and the games will be played in the old gymnasium as in former years. All of the veterans of last year's squad, including Allen Snyder; the Heron brothers, David Wardrop, Guy Snyder, George Leighs and James Doig are ready to tryout for the aggregation once more and they will be forced to show their best basketball in order to hold their old positions against the influx of new material. Among the new candidates will be a number from the boys' club, Nans Luthman, Arthur Thorn and Arthur Grisley and these new men will make the veterans hustle to keep in the running.

ROCHESTER SCOUT IS AFTER JOE HARTER, THE PETS' CENTERFIELDER.

Simmons, the leading hitter in the International League during the season just closed, who played here with the International League All-Stars last Saturday afternoon, came to Plainfield with another purpose besides the one of playing against the Pets, according to a statement made following the contest. He says he has an eye on Joe Harter, the Pets' star centerfielder, and is coming to Plainfield on "Martin's Day" for the express purpose of getting another look at the big fellow. Even if Simmons does present a contract to Joe next Saturday, which now seems likely, it is practically certain that it will be rejected, as many others have been by the Newarker. Joe holds a good position in Newark and will not let baseball interfere with his labors.

LYNCH'S RULINGS SET A PRECEDENT

Peculiar Circumstances Surrounding a Game to Be Played Tomorrow.

New York, Oct. 1.—Details of the manner in which New York and Philadelphia shall play off tomorrow the remainder of the disputed baseball game terminated by the umpire in Philadelphia on August 30 at the end of the eighth inning are contained in a letter addressed yesterday to the presidents of the two clubs by President Lynch, of the National League. The letter follows:

"By direction of the Board of Directors of the National League the teams representing the New York and Philadelphia ball clubs are ordered to take the field at the Polo Grounds, New York, at 1 o'clock p. m., Thursday, October 2, 1913, for the purpose of finishing the game illegally terminated by the umpire in Philadelphia on August 30 last.

"When play is called on the above mentioned day and hour the status of the game shall be as follows:

"The score shall stand 8 to 6 in favor of Philadelphia, with the New York club at bat for its first half of the ninth inning, and one man on the side at bat (McCormick) shall be out, one ball called on the second batsman (Murray) and no runners on bases. The regular batting order of the New York club shall be as follows: G. Burns, right field; Shafer, third base; Fletcher, shortstop; Doyle, second base; McCormick, (?); Murray, left field; Meyers, catcher; Snodgrass, centre field, Mathewson, pitcher.

"First Baseman Merkle cannot play, he having been replaced by McCormick.

"The batting order of the Philadelphia club shall be as follows: Bryne, third base, Knabe, second base; Packert, centre field; Magee, left field; Cravath, right field; Luderous, first base; Doolan, shortstop; E. Burns, catcher; Chalmers, pitcher. Burns' next turn at bat.

"Pitcher Alexander and Substitute Devore cannot play, they having been relieved. The suspension of Manager Dooin from the field on August 30 shall be continued during the period required to finish the game.

"After the umpire has called play the rules of the game shall apply the same as in all other championship contests, except that players who are to act as substitutes must be only players who were under contract to and in actual service of their respective clubs on August 30, 1913.

"In event of rain this game shall be completed on Friday, October 2, or, if further postponed, on Saturday, October 4."

LOCAL WOMEN GOLFERS IN ONE-DAY TOURNEY

Morristown, Oct. 1—The Women's Metropolitan Golf Association held a one-day's tournament over the course of the Morris County Golf Club yesterday. Two cups were offered, one for the best net score and the other for the best gross score. Mrs. E. Rogers, of this city, competing for Baltusrol, and Mrs. E. Rae, of Montclair, finishing at 92. Their tie will be played off Saturday morning. The gross prize was won by Mrs. Chilvers, of Mahopac.

The scores were as follows: Mrs. Rogers, 94—2, 92; Mrs. Hiller, 109—9, 100; Miss Kellogg, 136—4, 132; Mrs. Livingston Whitney, 127—16, 111; Mrs. Travis, 116—10, 106; Mrs. Johnston, 117—14, 103; Mrs. Chilvers, 94—6, 87; Miss B. Graham, 111—11, 100; Miss L. Graham, 110—10, 100; Miss Wellgross, 115—10, 105; Mrs. C. L. Greenhall, 108—11, 97; Miss Farrelly, 107—10, 97; Mrs. Ryan, 102—7, 95; Mrs. Stockton, of Plainfield, 98—5, 93; Mrs. Rae Gross, 100—8, 92.

N. P. H. S. WILL LOSE ATHLETE.

Hyman Abrams, a member of the North Plainfield High School baseball and basketball squad of last season and a likely candidate for a place as regular on both teams this season, will sail for Europe, Saturday, in company with his mother, Mrs. Morris Abrams, of Grove street. Abrams will therefore be unable to take part in Borough High School athletics this year.

DIAMOND FOR CORRIDON.

TARIFF MEASURE ADOPTED IN HOUSE

Senator Reed Plans Revolt In Upper Body.

MAY BE LAW BY SATURDAY

Vote In Lower Branch Is 254 to 103, With Only Four Democrats Opposed. Clark Predicts Prosperity Under New Order of Things.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The conference report on the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill was adopted in the house of representatives by a vote of 245 to 103. The measure has thus been advanced one step nearer the statute books. Only the concurrence of the senate and approval by the president remain now for the bill to become a law and effective at once.

The Democratic leaders believe the senate will conclude consideration of the bill within a day or two and that President Wilson will receive it in time to give it his approval by Saturday night.

The indications, though, were that trouble is brewing for the conference report in the senate. Senator Reed of Missouri, a Democrat, announced that he would not vote for the conference report in its present form unless he is bound to do so by caucus action.

Mr. Reed started the circulation of a petition calling for another caucus of Democratic senators to make changes in the bill. Other Democratic senators are disgruntled over certain features, but it is doubtful if the opposition will be able to put any serious obstacles in the way of the final adoption of the conference report.

Yesterday was a great Democratic day in the house. Speaker Clark made a speech in which he congratulated everybody in the Democratic party and predicted that the new tariff would bring fat times and plenty. His speech aroused a good deal of enthusiasm. In his address Chairman Underwood denied the charge made by Representative Payne of New York, Republican, that the new tariff would create a deficit, contending that calculations made by experts demonstrated beyond doubt that the new law in its first year would yield enough to keep the wheels of government in motion and at the same time supply a big surplus.

Discussion Very Bitter.

Four and a half hours' debate was allowed on the report, and the discussion at times was bitterly partisan. Progressive Leader Murdock scouted the thought frequently expressed by the Democrats that the new tariff would reduce the cost of living. He asserted that more important factors than mere customs laws entered into that equation.

Only four Democrats strayed off the party reservation. Representatives Lazaro, Morgan and Broussard of Louisiana, who are opposed to free sugar, and Representative Donohue of Pennsylvania, who wanted more protection on certain products turned out in his district and who was disappointed, were the only members of the president's party to vote against the conference report. Representatives Stafford and Cary of Wisconsin, Republicans, the first a regular and the other an insurgent; Representatives Kelly of Pennsylvania and McDonald of Michigan, bull moose, and Representative Kent of California, an independent, voted with the Democrats.

Underwood Praises Bill.

Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader of the house, in his speech in support of the bill said in part:

"The bill as it is now before the house is lower in its rates than either the bill that passed the house or the bill that passed the senate, for the house conferees accepted all but three or four of the reductions made by the senate, while the senate receded from over one-half of its increases.

"After three years of battle today the Democratic party is prepared to keep its pledges to the American people.

"I do not believe there is any danger of this tariff working an injury to the great producing interests of the United States. They have in the past been surrounded by artificial conditions. This bill will force them to modify and change these artificial conditions, to bring their business down to a sound and safe level.

"When this law is passed industry and finance in the United States will move onward. I believe an era of prosperity and progress is ahead of us. If it does come and my expectations are realized today will mark the end in this country of the principle of a protective tariff for personal greed."

FIREMEN'S "ANGEL" DIES.

Mrs. Thew Was Known as Their Friend From Coast to Coast.

Marion, O., Oct. 1.—Firemen in many cities are mourning the death of Mrs. Mathilda Thew, eighty-six years old, known as the "angel of the fire fighters" and as the firemen's "bread and butter missionary." Mrs. Thew died at her home here after a short illness.

She was an honorary member of fire departments in El Paso, Tex.; Los Angeles, Cal.; Columbus, O.; Delaware, O., and Marion, and was known by firemen from coast to coast. She devoted her life and fortune to the firemen's cause.

PALISADES BANDITS HOLD UP TWO AUTOS

Lawyer and Family Robbed of Cash and Jewels.

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 1.—Highwaymen, who have become bolder because of their recent successes in a series of crimes in the lonely stretches along the Palisades, went a step further and held up two automobiles at pistol point.

There is talk among the residents of Englewood of organizing a vigilance committee to guard the roads until the section is cleared of the bad men infesting it. There have been only two arrests recently for highway robbery, and both prisoners were inspected by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo, who with his brother Joseph was robbed in the same region last May.

The robberies yesterday occurred within ten minutes of each other in broad daylight and near the same spot on the Boulevard road between Tenafly and Englewood, but just within the borough limits of Tenafly.

Mrs. Dan Fellows Platt of Englewood was the victim of one holdup, but she had no valuables with her, and she was allowed to proceed home. In the other holdup John S. Mabon, a prominent lawyer, and his wife and daughter, Catherine, were the victims. This time the robbers got $50 in money, a gold watch and chain belonging to Mr. Mabon and two valuable diamond rings owned by Mrs. Mabon.

INDIANS RAISE BEEF.

Reservations Stocked and Tribesmen Encouraged to Breed Live Stock.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The latest effort of the government to check the present scarcity of beef consists in inlisting the aid of Indians to raise cattle for the market.

The commissioner of Indian affairs is stocking the big Indian reservations with herds of beef cattle and plans to improve and develop all of the live stock of the Indians. Some Indians have shown considerable aptitude for handling live stock.

Bids have been asked on 9,000 head of cattle for the Crow Indian reservation in Montana. The stock of sheep on the reservation in Arizona and New Mexico is also being increased.

GIRL SAYS SHE WAS KIDNAPED

Declares Automobilists Took Her In Motor—Tramped Seven Miles.

Egg Harbor, N. J., Oct. 1.—With a tale of how she had been "kidnaped" by two men and a woman in an automobile Ada McConnell, sixteen years old, missing since last Saturday, walked from Hammonton to her home at West Egg Harbor, footsore and weary from a seven mile tramp.

She said that on Saturday as she was returning home an automobile stopped and she was invited to jump in. When her home was reached the car did not stop. In it were two young men and a woman. The frightened girl says she begged the occupants to stop the machine and let her out, but her appeals were not heeded. When the car reached Hammonton the girl screamed for help, and a policeman stationed there stepped into the road. The chauffeur threw on the brakes, but before the car had stopped the girl had leaped out.

ITALIAN PEDDLER FINED; TO PAY DOCTOR'S BILL

Guiseppe Damuesti, of Elm place, an Italian peddler, in addition to being fined $10, was placed under bonds to insure the payment of a $10 doctor's bill contracted by Joseph Quinolo, of 28 Harmony street, whom he hit with a block of wood.

According to the story related in court, Damuesti was walking along Somerset street, carrying a basket of green peppers. He was met by a crowd of boys who asked for some peppers. He gave several boys a pepper each, which made their companions angry and they began to pelt the peddler with stones. Damuesti then picked up a block of wood and hurling it at the crowd it struck Quinolo and injured him to such an extent that physician's services were required.

ITALIAN WOMAN'S HOUSE IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

While Mrs. Joseph Oscerro, of Terrill road, beyond the city limits, was sitting with her two months' old baby in the kitchen of her home, last night, she heard the crackling of flames, and running to the yard, found her home afire. Neighbors summoned the fire department, but before the blaze was extinguished the structure had been reduced to ruins, causing $1,500 damage, part of which was covered by insurance.

All the furniture in the house was burned and a sum of money hid in a mattress was also consumed by flames. The family is living with relatives. The men of Fire House No. 4 responded to the call and Robert Woodhouse also appeared on the scene with the Knott auto apparatus.

RAIN DOWNPOUR WAS 3.45 INCHES

In Eleven Hours Fall Neared Average Normal Precipitation for an October.

NO SEVERE DAMAGE

Yesterday and This Morning the Total Was 3.59 Inches—Some Comparisons With the Past—Streams Much Swollen.

Plainfield in common with many other cities in the Eastern States suffered from the heavy downpour of rainfl yesterday, and although no severe damage has been reported, the streets and many cellars throughout the city and borough were flooded and in some sections of the East and West End sidewalks and crosswalks were impassable.

During the eleven hours of rain, 3.45 inches of water fell in this city. This is the heaviest rainfall on October 1 in the history of Plainfield, and only twice before has rain fallen here on October 1. In 1902, on that date the amount was 1.50 inches. On the same date in 1911 the amount was 1.30 inches. The heaviest twenty-four hour rainfall of two inches and over in the month of October is as follows:

1888, 2.30 inches on the 6th; 1893, 2.33 inches on the 23d; 1894, 2.14 inches on the 10th; 1900, 2.70 inches on the 8th, 1902, 2.11 inches on the 28th; 1903, which was the heaviest amount of all, was 6.32 inches on the 8th-9th; 1904, 2.61 inches on the 21st; 1907, 2.02 inches on the 27th-28th; 1908, 2.07 inches on the 26th, and in 1912 there were 2.04 inches on the 22d-23rd. The normal for this month is 3.65 inches. The amount of rainfall of yesterday and this morning is 3.59 inches. It will require only 0.06 inches to bring the amount up to the normal for the month.

The Main Line and local trolley cars in this vicinity suffered very little from the rain, except that there were slight delays during the afternoon and evening, but below Westfield and at Bayway, cars were stalled for a considerable time. In Elizabeth the storm did much damage. In all parts of the city limbs were blown from trees, making walking more or less dangerous. So far as known Plainfield suffered little in this respect.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men were out early this morning opening up catch basins and cleaning out gutters that were choked up by debris. Green brook was swollen considerable, but no damage was reported along its course in this vicinity. In some parts of the city gardens were deluged, vegetables being washed out, and not a few families found it necessary this morning to bale water out of their cellars.

BOROUGH COUNCIL WILL DISCUSS TAX PROBLEM

The North Plainfield Council will hold a meeting tomorrow night, at which the tax situation in the borough will be discussed. It is reported that the Somerset County Board of Taxation is somewhat opposed to granting the petition submitted by the Council a week ago, asking authority to raise the tax rate to $2.10, nine points above that allowed by law.

It is probable that members of the County Board will be present at tomorrow's session and inform the borough fathers of the action taken by their body.

UNION CO. ENDEAVORERS MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

An interesting and instructive program has been arranged for the fall rally of the Union County C. E. Union to be held Tuesday night, October 7, at 8 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, Elizabeth. The local societies will be largely represented.

Rev. Dr. W. B. Wallace, of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, will deliver the address of the evening. J. D. Sproull, State president of the society, and the presidents of the local societies will also be in attendance. At 7.45 there will be a short organ recital by Miss Jane Whittemore, followed by a song service, led by a large chorus choir. There will be special music by a quartet.

This meeting will be held in connection with the seventieth anniversary of the First Baptist church, Elizabeth, and a cordial invitation has been extended to all young people to make the rally a success.

—Fancy fruits and vegetables of all kinds will be offered for tomorrow's trade at Neuman Brothers', Watchung avenue and Fifth street.—Adv. ***

BUSY DAYS THESE FOR SUFFRAGISTS

Plainfield Organization Makes Elaborate Plans for Pushing Its Campaign.

TEACHER IN ORATORY

Gifted English Woman to Instruct in Public Speaking—Would Have Half-Holiday Here When They Parade in Newark.

Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, president of the Woman's Suffrage League, opened the library at her home on Myrtle avenue, yesterday afternoon, for the first fall meeting of the organization and it was decided at the session to hold a meeting on Tuesday, October 28, at the Public Library; to give an entertainment every month, of a social, musical, classic or educational character in which the cause of woman's political standing shall be paramount; to canvas the entire county for women's votes and to ask every woman interested in the cause to contribute ten cents to the State fund.

Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite generously offered Hydewood Park for a suffrage tea party on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 11, at 3 o'clock, when Mrs. Mary W. Dennett will speak on "The Suffrage Amendment," presented to Congress, and Miss Rose Schneiderman will explain as she sees it, "The Attitude of the Working Girl Towards Suffrage."

One of the great drawbacks of the embryo suffragist, it is said, is stagefright. The average enthusiast is afraid of her own voice. This will be obviated soon, it is believed, for the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association has engaged Lady Beatrice Forbes-Roberson to teach public speaking. The course will comprise six lessons for which there will be a nominal charge. These lessons will be given at 35 Halsey street, Newark, headquarters of the association. At yesterday's meeting fifteen women enrolled for the course which will begin on October 15.

An invitation was given to all suffragists to march in the parade at Newark, October 25. White linen or butcher's cloth is preferable as a uniform, but not obligatory. Yellow hats will be worn. They can be secured through Mrs. Riley. All the residents along the line of march have volunteered to decorate. Eighty flash-lights in central stations will announce October 25, a week before, and all business firms employing women have generously provided a holiday, in return for which the girls will display the firm's name along with "votes for women" on the gold ribbon sashes.

A committee was appointed to invite the Plainfield merchants, corporations and mercantile firms to decorate the city and declare a half-holiday on October 25 in honor of the Newark parade.

MAN KILLED ON TRACK HAD RELATIVES HERE

Word has been received in this city of the death of William Van Houten, a trainman, and former resident of this city, who was killed Tuesday night in Newark on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the road on which he was employed. The local police were notified by the Newark authorities to acquaint a brother-in-law, Sylvester Sharkey, a grocer, of 228 Richmond street, of the death of the victim who was struck by a train while walking across the bridge spanning Market street, Newark. After the accident, the body was taken to Holle's morgue, Newark, and later identified by railroad employes.

Van Houten was an uncle of Harold Sharkey, a local newspaper reporter, and a brother of Mrs. Emma J. Henry, of 23 Somerset place.

MRS. CROWLEY'S FUNERAL.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Crowley, who died Monday of paralysis, were held this morning at her late home in Anne street, and later at St. John's church, Dunellen, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Dunphey. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, this city. The pall bearers were Patrick Driscoll, Joseph Mahoney, Daniel Sullivan, John Tobin, Joseph Canary and John Kerwin. Mrs. Crowley is survived by her husband, John Crowley.

SERVIANS ARE WINNING.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Oct. 2.—A despatch from Belgrade says that Servian officials have announced that the tide of battle in Albania has turned in favor of the Serbs, who have reoccupied Dibra and Ochrida. The Serbs now outnumber the Albanians and are pushing the latter back.

SECURE A RULE IN NOMINATION FIGHT

County Clerk Must Show Cause Why Some of Bellis' Votes Were Not Counted.

HEARING OCTOBER 17

Reed & Hetfield Retained by Somerville Candidate for Somerset Democratic County Clerkship to Have Him Granted Certificate.

Lewis A. Bellis, of Somerville, who was supposed to have secured the Democratic nomination for county clerk of Somerset, defeating Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, by about one hundred votes, has retained Reed & Hetfield, of this city, to contest the right to throw out 150 ballots polled in Bernards Township, which bore the name of "Louis" A. Bellis, instead of Lewis A. Bellis.

Reed & Hetfield have secured an order on the county clerk of Somerset, Walter C. Linbarger and others interested, for a rule to show cause why the 150 ballots, which were thrown out, should not be counted for Mr. Bellis. This rule is returnable before Judge Benjamin A. Vail, at Elizabeth, on Friday, October 17.

After the clerk of Bernards Township made up the ticket for that township, he sent it to the printer, and no one noticed the mistake in the spelling of the name of Mr. Bellis until the returns were made and counted. The 150 ballots were not counted for Lewis A. Bellis, owing to the error in spelling his first name.

Mr. Reed in speaking of the matter today said that there is no question as to the intent of the voters to cast their ballots for Mr. Bellis, and he added, the rule regarding marked ballots would not apply in this case for the entire 150 ballots were voted alike.

Although Mr. Linbarger, according to the returns, secures the nomination by a majority of 36, he stated yesterday that he would not accept the same unless it came to him rightfully. He said that he would not contest the nomination on a technicality. However, he will be summoned to appear at the hearing on October 17, and he will have a right to be heard, if he desires to oppose the rule.

VOTE FOR GOVERNOR AT THE PRIMARIES

Figures Announced by Secretary of State as to Results at Nominating Elections.

Trenton, Oct. 2.—Figures compiled by the various County Boards of Election and the most of which have been filed with Secretary of State Crater, show that the result of the voting for Governor at the primary election on September 23 was as follows:

Democratic ticket—Fielder, 80,419; Katzenbach, 35,116; Fielder's majority, 45,303.

Republican ticket—Stokes, 60,567; Carey, 10,068; Fowler, 10,398; Pierce, 5,013. Stokes' plurality over Fowler, his nearest competitor, 50,169.

Progressive ticket—Colby, 6,440; Osborne, 3,648; Colby's majority, 2,792.

The table of the gubernatorial vote at the primaries in part follows:

Union county—Fielder, 4,592; Katzenbach, 1,665; Stokes, 1,639, Fowler, 1,655; Pierce, 1,364; Colby, 672; Osborne, 296.

Somerset county—Fielder, 1,179; Katzenbach, 754; Stokes, 1,017; Carey, 131; Fowler, 166; Pierce, 174; Colby, 147; Osborne, 24.

Middlesex county—Fielder, 4,268; Katzenbach, 1,568, Stokes, 1,745; Carey, 220; Fowler, 366; Pierce, 120; Colby, 227; Osborne, 122.

MUSICALE AND DIME SOCIAL.

Mrs. C. H. Rugg, of 75 Mercer avenue, will open her home tomorrow evening for a dime social and musicale to be held under the auspices of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star. Refreshments will be served. The committee in charge of the affair comprise Mrs. E. W. Poinier, Mrs. Elizabeth Woodard and Mrs. W. R. Causebrook. The chapter will hold a Hallowe'en party, Friday night, October 31, at the home of Mrs. E. S. Weaver, of East Second street.

Y. P. U. TO MEET.

The annual meeting of the Young People's Union of All Souls' Unitarian church will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of the pastor, Rev. Arthur E. Wilson, 1218 Martine avenue. After a business meeting during which the officers for the ensuing year will be elected, Mrs. Wilson, will act as host. A short musical program has been arranged.

PUNISHES BOY WHO STOLE NEWSPAPERS

David Goldberg Thought to Be But One of Several Who Are Guilty of Offense.

When David Goldberg, of 319 Liberty street, was sentenced to pay a fine of $2 or spend ten days in jail, Judge DeMeza, in police court this morning, considered that the punishment would serve as a warning to others who have been stealing copies of newspapers from in front of homes where they were distributed. Time and again, the local newspaper offices have received reports of apparent failure to deliver papers but it has been almost impossible to catch the thieves.

William H. Olmstead, the Watchung avenue newsdealer, receiving complaints, determined to put a stop to the practice. After much effort he finally detected young Goldberg and his arrest followed.

M'ALL WORK TOPIC OF MISS BALDWIN

Plainfield Auxiliary Hears of What is Being Done in Lille and in Paris.

Under the auspices of the Plainfield Auxiliary of the McAll Association, a parlor meeting was held this morning at the Y. W. C. A. building, when a talk was given by Miss Bildwin, president of the Boston Auxiliary. The meeting was to have been held at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead on East Front street, but owing to the death of a relative, other arrangements were made.

Miss Baldwin, who has been abroad visiting the various halls and mission stations, brought encouraging news of the great success of the work. She spent much of her time at Lille, France, where the Boston Auxiliary montains a mission, and in Paris. She gave an excellent description of the association's new $100,000 building in Paris, which she said was complete in every detail for carrying on the vast work of the association. Her account of the meetings held in the Paris building was exceedingly interesting.

While the local members felt a little disappointed to learn that Miss Baldwin did not visit the mission at Limoges, France, where they are supporting a missionary, they were repaid for the excellent reports of the work which the speaker brought from the other stations. After the meeting those present were afforded an opportunity to personally meet Miss Baldwin.

SCOUTMASTER WILL ADDRESS Y. M. C. A. BOYS AT A RALLY

Allen E. Beals, scout commissioner of Plainfield, will be the speaker at the second rally meeting for members of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department to be held in the association auditorium next Saturday morning. Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman has arranged a series of these meetings similar to the successful course that was conducted last year for the benefit of the boys' department members and the first was held last Saturday when Herbert E. Parker was the speaker.

The second rally will be open to friends of the members as well as the members themselves and any boy in Plainfield who is twelve years old or over will be admitted free to the special program that has been arranged for the occasion.

AUTOPSY REVEALED CAUSE OF HIS DEATH

Elizabeth, Oct. 2.—An autopsy was performed yesterday afternoon n Martin's morgue, on the body of Peter Woyftowicz, of 218 Livingston avenue, who died in the Elizabeth General Hospital from the effects of a punch given him by his wife when he asked for a kiss.

After the autopsy, which was performed by Dr. Shangle and Dr. R. T. Munger, it was announced that they had found a perforation of the intestines, which had been sewn up in the hospital. This was given as the cause of death. It was said that the blow might have caused the puncture.

Mrs. Woyftowicz was before Judge Mahon in police court yesterday charged with manslaughter. She was committed in default of $1,000 bail. When on the witness stand Mrs. Woyftowicz denied that she had struck her husband in anger. In this she was corroborated by Mrs. Sophie Taylor, of 68 Livingston street.

ROLSTON PRES'T OF COMEDY CLUB

Organization to Hold Special Meeting to Consider a Change of Name.

TWO PERFORMANCES

Club Has 38 Active and 82 Associate Members—Executive Committee to Meet Next Week to Make Plans.

Members of the Park Comedy Club, at their annual meeting held last night at the Park Club, decided to take steps to change the name of the club to the Comedy Club of Plainfield. A special meeting of the club will be held at a later date, at which time the question of amending the constitution by changing the name will be considered.

The nominating committee, consisting of Henry C. White and Harry L. McGee, recommended that the following officers be re-elected for the coming year: Brown Rolston, president; William T. Pelletier, vice-president; Dr. F. E. DuBois, secretary; Alson M. Abbott, treasurer and business manager. Mr. Pelletier, who was present, stated that he would not seek re-election, and Harry L. McGee was chosen to the vice-presidency. Mr. Abbott, who served the club so successfully last year, objected to holding dual office, but said that he would be willing to continue as business manager, if the treasurer was chosen from among the other members. Leslie R. Fort was then chosen as treasurer. The executive committee consists of Mr. Rolston, Dr. DuBois, Mr. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. McGee, William T. Pelletier and Leslie R. Fort. Henry C. White was chosen stage manager at a meeting of the executive committee.

It was reported that the financial condition of the club was satisfactory and the secretary's report showed that there are 38 active members, 82 associate members, and 13 seeking associate membership. It is hoped to increase the latter list to 200 during the coming winter.

Plans for the annual presentation of plays by the club were left to the executive committee, which will meet next week. It is probable that two performances will be given, one some time during the fall and the other in the spring.

The nominating committee for next year consists of Maxwell E. Perkins, Robert H. Cox and Donald A. McGee.

WHAT TO DO WITH LEAVES IS QUESTION

West End Civic Association to Discuss Matter at Its October Meeting.

Among the matters to be discussed at the October meeting of the West End Civic Association will be that of the collection and disposal of leaves. The members have been making a study of the question with a view to offering some practical suggestions at the coming meeting.

Attention has been drawn to the system employed at Bound Brook. There each resident rakes up the leaves about his property into a pile and they are collected once or twice a day into a large wagon, carted away and disposed of without burning. When the association decides upon a practical and feasible plan it will be presented to the Councilmanic street committee.

Another matter to be discussed will be that of sidewalks and crosswalks, especially in the West End. It is the opinion that never before in the history of the city have these walks been in such poor condition, and the members say that this also applies to the gutters which are frequently choked up causing the overflow of sidewalks in heavy rains such as yesterday.

ATTENDING COPS' MEETING.

Chief Marshal Weiss, Roundsman Keller and Marshal Herman, of North Plainfield, today are attending the annual convention of the State P. B. A., which is being held in Bayonne. The saliant feature of today's program is a parade in which the borough police will march. During the absence of these men, Marshal Pope is acting as head of the department.

WILL IMPROVE PROPERTY.

Ground has been broken on West Front street, opposite Waynewood place, for two two-family houses which Isaac Bloom, of New York, will erect on a tract that was acquired by Jacob Sachar, who sold a portion of it to Mr. Bloom. Dr. Isaac Finkel will soon begin the work of building a home for himself in the same neighborhood.

FLYING SQUADRON HERE TOMORROW

Progressive Campaigners Led by Colby to Tour Union County.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

The Party's Assembly Candidates to Be in Party Which Will Have a Brass Band Accompany it on Its Tour.

Colby's Flying Squadron will sweep through Union county tomorrow, pausing long enough in the various towns along the route to allow the Progressive party's gubernatorial standard bearer to sound a political call to arms under the Bull Moore banner. The campaigners will occupy three automobiles and will be accompanied by a brass band.

After a dash through Middlesex county, the calvacade will reach Plainfield after a short stop at Dunlen, where they are due at 2:30. Promptly at 3 o'clock, Colby will speak at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. Then on to Westfield, where a meeting is scheduled for 3:45; Cranford, 4:15; Rahway, 5:00, and Elizabeth, 6:00.

In the party will be the three Progressive assembly nominees in Union county, former Mayor Moy, of this city; Mayor Fish, of Roselle, and Clarence Morrell, of Elizabeth.

Former Mayor Moy obtained from Mayor Stewart the necessary permit for a street meeting here.

6,000 PATROLMEN ON PARADE IN BAYONNE

Plainfield Policemen Participate in Demonstration Incident to Convention.

Bayonne, Oct. 2.—Over 6,000 patrolmen gathered from all parts of the State were in line this afternoon in the parade incident ot the annual convention of the State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which opened here yesterday and ends tonight with a banquet. Over fifty patrolmen from the Plainfield association were in the parade, twenty of the men coming from the Queen City. In the business meetings held yesterday Patrolman Cornelius McCarty, of Plainfield; Marshal John Herman, of North Plainfield, and William McNeil, of Westfield, represented the Plainfield association.

More than 200 delegates were in attendance at the opening session of the convention held yesterday morning in the Municipal building. The meeting was called to order by Patrolman Henry Weller, of Newark, State president.

At a short business session the following officers were elected: William J. Mullen, of Trenton, president; Robert Shannon, of East Orange, vice president; J. J. Ohrenberger, of Elizabeth, secretary; Joseph Kehoe, of Edgewater, treasurer, and George Stecklein, of West New York, sergeant-at-arms. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Atlantic City in September, 1914.

BRIDE'S PARENTS ENTERTAIN THE WEDDING GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Woolley, of the Bristol, West Front street, whose daughter, Miss Helen Woolley, was married yesterday noon to Ray Fitz-Maurice Ingram, of Elizabeth, entertained a number of the wedding guests last night at the Queen City Hotel, where supper was served.

Included in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Woolley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ingram, of Elizabeth; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Middlesworth, of Hollis, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. H. Twelling, of Elizabeth, and Miss Cosette Bratten and Mr. Grant, of North Plainfield.

SILVER CROSS EVENT.

The Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters of the borough is planning to give a "cafe chantant" at the Park Club on election night, according to its annual custom, and like previous affairs it will be an elaborate one. While it will be along the same lines as those of other years, the program will be entirely new and there will be many features. Mrs. Francis E. DuBois is chairman of the entertainment committee, and the program will be announced within a short time.

MISS HOYT WON'T DEFEND HERSELF

Co-respondent in Hood Divorce Case Declines to Clear Her Name by Testifying.

COUNSEL TELLS COURT

Vice Chancellor Says Her Absence Counts Against Her—English Derides "Platonic Friendship" of Hood and Hoyt Girl.

Newark, Oct. 2.—Contrary to general expectation, based on comments and queries with which he punctuated the arguments of counsel, Vice Chancellor Stevens did not give an offhand decision when the advocates had all had their say in the Hood divorce suit yesterday afternoon. The vice chancellor's failure to give his conclusions orally immediately upon the conclusion of argument is attributed to the fact that another divorce hearing had been set down by him for yesterday, the parties to which, principals, and their respective attorneys and a dozen or more witnesses, were in court waiting for the case to go on. This second hearing was proceeded with at once.

At the outset of yesterday's hearing the vice chancellor stated that since the last hearing he had received a communication from Albert C. Wall, of the Jersey City law firm of Vredenburgh, Wall & Carey, to the effect that Mr. Wall had been informed by Miss Dorothy Hoyt, the corespondent, who is in England, that she did not intend to enter an appearance with a view to her exculpation from the charges affecting her contained in Mrs. Hood's petition.

Miss Hoyt's failure to come into court to clear herself would count against her, the vice chancellor said.

The vice chancellor's interpolated queries and comments made it plain that some tall explaining would be required to overcome the incriminating testimony addressed by counsel for Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood, petitioner in the case. That his mental attitude had not been shaken by the arguments of Chauncey G. Parker and former Supreme Court Justice Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, counsel for the defendant, Richard Haden Hood, Vice Chancellor Stevens was at no pains to conceal.

When Mr. Collins, who followed Mr. Parker, urged that the conduct of Hood and the corespondent, Miss Hoyt, on board the Kronprincezzin Cecilia on their voyage to England last September did not necessarily warrant the conclusion of guilt, the vice chancellor broke in with:

"What possible explanation can there be except that he (Hood) was so infatuated with this girl that he was willing to take every chance."

When counsel for Hood essayed to minimize the force of the evidence concerning the automobile rides, the

BONNIE BURN'S REPORT FOR MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

Twelve patients were admitted to Bonie Burn Sanitorium during the past month, according to the report of Supreintendent John E. Runnells, of which number two men and two women, were moderately advanced cases, seven men and one woman in the advanced stage. There were three deaths, two men and one woman.

The men who died were in very poor condition at the time they were admitted and lived seven and six days respectively. The woman had been in the sanitorium a month at the time of her death. There have been ten discharges, seven men and three women. Of this number, five left with the disease arrested; two were improved, two unimproved and one not considered. The largest number present at any time has been 80, the smallest number 75, the daily average 77.5. The number present on September 29 was 79.

HEBREWS CELEBRATING THEIR RELIGIOUS FEAST

The Jewish New Year is being celebrated today by the Jewish people of the city, the customary services being held at the synagogue of the Congregation of the Children of Israel on New street. Rabbi Davidson is in charge of the services and the cantor is Rev. Dr. Miller, of New York, who has charge of a choir of seventeen boys. The Jewish merchants of the city have closed their stores for the day and one of the most sacred holidays of the race is being strictly observed.

WASHINGTON STIRRED BY NEW JAPAN NOTE

Declared That She Is Seeking Another Treaty.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The reports from Tokyo that the Japanese government is sending a new note in the California alien land law controversy caused much surprise in official circles here, inasmuch as the last note received from Japan has not yet been answered by the state department.

No official announcement that the note is coming has been received from the American embassy at Tokyo. At the Japanese embassy here it was said that nothing was known in regard to the new note.

From other sources, however, it was learned that there is good reason to believe that Japan is contemplating a request for the negotiating of a new treaty, which would completely alter the face of the situation between the two governments. According to this source, Japan desires that the United States negotiate an agreement which shall state specifically that Japanese subjects shall enjoy the same rights of ownership of land in the United States as all other aliens of whatever nationality.

In other words, the Japanese, apparently despairing of making any headway in their contention that the present treaty of 1911 is violated by the California land law, purpose to effect an agreement which will make the California law unquestionably in violation of its terms. This done, the United States will be called upon to effect the nullification of the California act under the decisions of the supreme court of the United States that a treaty to which the United States is a party is the supreme law of the land.

The immediate effect of such a request would be to raise the direct issue as to whether the federal government of the United States is or is not in favor of permitting the Japanese to acquire and own land in this country.

INHUMAN MOTHER HELD.

Charged With the Murder of Her Nine-year-old Daughter.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—Charged with the murder of her daughter, Viola, nine years old, and suspected of slaying five other children, Mrs. Ida Leckwold, thirty-two, mother of eight children, is held at the county jail here. Godfrey Norman, said to be the "man in the case," is also held for investigation.

According to Chief of Police Martinson, Mrs. Leckwold confessed that she poisoned Viola, William and her husband with "fly killer." Viola died. The other two recovered.

Mrs. Leckwold, according to Martinson, said she had become infatuated with a man who had demanded that she kill her children, and she had blindly followed his suggestion.

GREEKS ARE COWED BY BULGAR-TURK ALLIANCE

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Eng., Oct. 2.—A telegram from Athens says that in consequence of the alliance between Bulgaria and Turkey, the Greek troops are being withdrawn from the port of Dedeagatch, a piece of territory whose possession was disputed by Greece and Bulgaria.

The Greek Government realizes that it could not hold the port against a combined Bulgar-Turk army. Greek reservists have been summoned to the colors.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will hold its next meeting on Thursday, October 9, at the Y. M. C. A.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

TAKING INTEREST

The more interest a man takes in his business the more "interest" he's likely to take out.

This wise saying of Franklin's has always interested us.

We take interest in our business, we watch things closely, we know our clientele, we see that the stock that enters our store is the finest obtainable for the price; we see that it is BOUGHT "right" so that it can be SOLD "right."

And doing all these things we have been rewarded with success!

Isn't it a stroke of good judgment to deal with a store that protects you in the big things and little ones alike?

Store closed Thursday and Friday on account of holiday—but we shall be ready to serve you on Saturday.

SULZER SURE TO TAKE THE STAND

Accused Governor Insists That He Be Heard.

LAWYERS DENIED DELAY.

Apparently Taken Unawares When Prosecution Rests, Sought Adjournment Until Monday — Impeachment Managers Hold Several Witnesses For Rebuttal.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Beginning today at 2 o'clock counsel for Mr. Sulzer will move to have the assembly indictment quashed on constitutional grounds, supplemented by the contention that none of the charges against the respondent has been proved and that if proved they do not constitute a crime within the meaning of the law.

There is very good reason to justify the statement that this effort to invalidate the indictment of the accused governor will fail, as most of the objections anticipated have already been overwhelmingly overruled by the high court.

Word came from the executive mansion that irrespective of any advice he might receive from his counsel Governor Sulzer would positively take the stand in his own defense.

The governor is insistent in his determination to put upon the record of the impeachment court his narrative of how the alleged conspiracy to expel him from office was hatched and the political and personal reasons that he feels prompted Tammany Boss Murphy to seek to accomplish his official crucifixion.

Intimates of Mr. Sulzer in discussing his purpose to take the witness stand predict that he will "split things wide open and that certain features of his testimony if admitted will force the assembly managers to call Tammany Boss Murphy in rebuttal."

Evidence For Rebuttal.

Announcement that the prosecution rested, which was made by John B. Stanchfield for the prosecution, shortly after the opening of the afternoon session yesterday, came as a distinct surprise to the court, which had expected that the entire afternoon at least would be devoted to the examination of witnesses.

The assembly managers have still in reserve a great mass of evidence to present against the governor, but they decided to hold this for rebuttal.

Included in this testimony that the prosecution has tucked up its sleeve is the testimony of James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, and that of William J. Conners, once chairman of the Democratic state committee. Besides this they have the evidence of the payment of the governor's expenses while canvassing for votes by the state committee and the local committees in the places where he made stops.

The assembly managers believe that they can by holding back much of their evidence tear to pieces the story that it is expected Governor Sulzer will tell when he goes on the witness stand in his own behalf.

No record was taken during the executive session held to consider the adjournment. Presiding Judge Cullen ordered the stenographers not to divulge any of the proceedings and to make no minutes. It was Senator Roosevelt who first moved an adjournment until Monday. This was promptly voted down.

Settles the Point.

Then Senator Palmer substituted a motion to adjourn until Friday. This met the same fate as the previous motion. Judge Cullen settled the matter by suggesting an adjournment until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

From an authoritative source it is learned there was much concerning the governor's actions during his campaign that he had not revealed to his lawyers. It was because of this that some of the sensational testimony offered during the past two sessions of the court appeared to take their breath away.

The chief point made by the prosecution in the day's testimony was the statement of John B. Gray of Fuller & Gray, brokers, that Frederick L. Colwell, who had opened and conducted "Account No. 500" on the firm's books, had told him that the account was for Mr. Sulzer.

Name Not Mentioned.

Mrs. Sulzer's alleged connection with stock transactions was again brought into the record in this connection, though her name was not mentioned. Mr. Gray testified that Mr. Colwell, when ordering a bond sale for "Account No. 500," had told him that the transaction was for "a woman client." The witness did not remember that Mr. Colwell had mentioned the name of this woman, and efforts of Harvey D. Hinman, for the defense, to show that Mr. Colwell had referred to Mrs. Sulzer were unsuccessful.

This testimony followed the appearance of several witnesses who were called with the intention of proving the charge of bribery against Governor Sulzer in connection with the appointment of Louis A. Sarecky, his financial agent, to a position at $4,000 a year in the state board of deportation. The prosecution attempted to prove that the refusal of Sarecky to testify before the Frawley committee was influenced by his appointment to the state position.

Real Elegance in 25.00 Suits for Women

The Bamberger twenty-five dollar suits for women possess an air of grace and individuality that is seldom equaled in suits at anything like the cost. They are the products of famous designers and painstaking tailors—garments of real elegance. Among the gathering are stunning suits of broadcloth, poplin, mannish serge, wide wale cheviot and eponge. The styles are legion. One pretty model that comes to our mind is made of eponge, in a slight cutaway effect. The coat is fashioned with ball buttons, the collar and cuffs are of imitation broadtail. Has ribbon girdle. Lining is Skinner's satin. The skirt drapes gracefully. It has a shirred back and is button trimmed. Garments of this character at once appeal to the woman of refinement. The values are indeed exceptional. See Bamberger's $25 suits tomorrow.

OELRICHS ARRESTED FOR STABBING GIRL

Miss Singleton Accuses Young New York Millionaire.

New York, Oct. 2.—Acting under orders of Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, Detectives Cassassa and McKenna arrested Hermann Oelrichs on a charge of felonious assault growing out of the investigation made by the commissioner into the automobile accident on Tuesday night at Broadway and One Hundred and Twentieth street, when Oelrichs' car crashed into a tree, throwing Miss Lucille Singleton, daughter of a mining man of Texas, who lives at 606 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, to the street.

The arrests were made at Miss Singleton's apartments, when Oelrichs, accompanied by a student friend named Taylor, called to see Miss Singleton, who had telephoned to the former to call in connection with the payment of $400 which she says he promised to her if she would not press the case against him.

According to the story Miss Singleton told Detectives Cassassa and McKenna, Oelrichs stabbed her eight or ten times in the chest with a sharp instrument, not a knife, because she insisted on keeping an appointment with another man.

Detective Theodore P. Thayer of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, who was assigned to make an investigation into the alleged stabbing, which Miss Singleton persistently denied during the day, was suspended by orders of Commissioner Dougherty. He had telephoned the results of his investigation to the commissioner, but these results were not satisfactory and a second investigation was ordered.

Young Oelrichs is an enthusiastic motorist. He is an intimate friend and motoring rival of Vincent Astor, with whom he engaged in a wild race at Newport two years ago. Oelrichs' car burst into flames, but he stopped it and escaped injury.

For Rural Credit Banks.

A NOTABLE GATHERING.

The intellect and the power of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States are concentrating in New York city in anticipation of the opening next Wednesday of the forty-third triennial convention of the church.

This will be the first time in about twenty-four years that the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church is held in New York city. It will begin on Wednesday next, in the morning, with a procession of the bishops and clergy, and will remain in session about three weeks. About 110 bishops and 600 deputies, equally divided between clergymen and laymen, will take part in the convention. They will come from 68 dioceses, 23 missionary districts and 10 foreign jurisdictions of the church and will represent more than 1,000,000 communicants. The convention will sit as two houses, the house of bishops and the house of deputies, each having veto power over the other. The primary object of these conventions is to make laws for the government of the Protestant Episcopal church in this country, to some extent in the form of constitutional provisions, requiring action by two successive conventions, but generally in the form of resolutions adopted by each convention for itself and in the terminology of ecclesiastical law known as canons.

In the house of deputies there are fourteen standing committees appointed by the president, always a clergyman, subject to the limitation that each of the eight missionary departments in which the church within the United States is distributed must be represented. Besides the fourteen standing committees there are thirty-four joint committees and commissions of the two houses sitting between conventions, eight of which were appointed to consider ecclesiastic relations and activities with other communions, religions and peoples; viz. to revise the church's services of prayer and praise and visitation; four to provide for the education of the clergy; four others to look after the care and support of the clergy; one to provide for them an ultimate court of appeals; one to report upon the question of provinces five for the church's missions of help.

The House of Bishops, which has a roll of 115 without counting bishops-elect who have not yet been consecrated, will hold its sessions at the old Synod House on the Cathedral grounds of St. John the Divine. The Right Reverend Dr. Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, Bishop of Missouri, who is the senior bishop of the church, will preside. To relieve him an assistant president will be selected after the opening meeting.

The House of Deputies will hold its sessions in the new Synod Hall, an imposing new structure south of the choir part of the Cathedral, which was erected for such purpose through the generosity of the late Pierpont Morgan and the late W. Bayard Cutting. The Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim will preside at the sessions until a new presiding officer shall be elected. There will be a spirited contest for the honor of that position and it is expected that there will be at least ten candidates in the field.

The convention will open on next Wednesday morning with a communion service in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The bishops will meet at the old Synod Hall, the deputies at the new Synod Hall. At the appointed time a procession will be formed, led by the famous Cathedral choir under the direction of Miles Farrow, the choir leader and organist of the Cathedral. Follow- the choir will come the members of the House of Deputies and these in turn will be followed by the bishops marching in reverse order of their rank, carrying out the divine command that "the last shall be the first and the first last."

From the old Synod House the procession will march to the Cathedral, where a solemn communion service will be conducted by Bishop Tuttle, assisted by Bishop David H. Greer, of New York, and several other noted leaders of the church. The sermon on that occasion will be delivered by Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts. On the following day another special service will be held at the Cathedral which will be attended by the women members of the auxiliary organizations of the church and on that occasion the women will place $275,000 upon the altar as their contribution for missions.

When auto tourists pass Fire House No. 4, in the Netherwood section, their attention is directed to it and many are the favorable comments. It is not only an ornament to the east end of the city but speaks well for the community. Probably nowhere in New Jersey, certainly not in this section of the State, is there such an attractively appearing fire house. The firemen take pride in keeping it neat and through the generosity of Stanley, the florist, have made the building and grounds one of the sights of Plainfield.

George T. Hughes, of Watchung, who spends his odd moments when not engaged in farming, as the city editor of the New York Globe, yesterday told the North Plainfield High School students that he would advise no young man to enter journalism. Experience is a great teacher.

Plainfield has two county chairmen, Frank H. Smith, the veteran leader of the Union county Republicans, and Percy Hamilton Stewart, a promising factor in the Democratic party's future.

St. Mary's parochial school celebrates it silver anniversary. Hundreds of good citizens have been graduated from that fine school.

The harmony prevailing at the Progressive State convention, after a heated campaign, augurs well for the future of that party.

A local clergyman will be the contributing editor for Saturday's issue.

Do It For Plainfield.

DYNAMITE CONSPIRATOR ARRESTED; CONFESSES

New York, Oct. 2.—George Davis, a structural iron worker, was arrested in the Breslin Hotel this morning on the charge of being concerned in the dynamite conspiracy plot in which thirty-eight men, including the two McNamaras, were convicted in Indianapolis. Davis admitted the charges against him.

Davis is under indictment in Indianapolis and when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Shields waived examination and was held in $10,000 bail for the Indianapolis court.

TYPIST SUES GROSSCUP, DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

Trenton, Oct. 2.—State Treasurer Edward E. Grosscup of Gloucester county, who is also chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is the defendant in a suit brought in the City District Court here by Clarence Sackett, a Newark stenographer, to recover $180 and interest.

Sackett alleges the money is due for making stenographic notes of speeches made by President Wilson, when Governor, in an effort to elect a Democratic Legislature in 1910. Sackett's bill was $1,180 and of this he has been paid $1,000. The total amount now sought is $300, including the interest.

Mr. Grosscup is being sued as an individual as he heads the head committee, although he is not personally liable for the sum.

SENATE CAUCUS ADOPTS TARIFF

Expect Upper House to Pass Measure Today.

MAY DROP COTTON FUTURES

Six Senators In Caucus Vote Against Conference Committee's Report—Cotton Tax Likely to Go Over Until December Term.

Washington, Oct. 2.—After many hours of wrangling the Democratic senators by a vote of 33 to 6 agreed to stand by the report of the conference committee on the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, and an incipient insurrection was subdued.

The six senators who voted against the adoption of the report were O'Gorman, New York; Reed, Missouri; Pomerene, Ohio; Hughes, New Jersey; Vardaman, Mississippi, and Hollis, New Hampshire.

At the same time the caucus made short work of the Clarke cotton futures amendment by agreeing unanimously to recede from it and to disagree to the Smith-Lever amendment voted into the bill by the house. This action by the senate caucus eliminates the cotton futures tax legislation from the tariff bill, as the senate leaders have assurances that the house will agree to recede from the Smith-Lever amendment. The cotton futures legislation will then go over to the regular session in December.

The conference report came up in the senate today and after debate likely will be agreed to and go back to the house, where it is expected it will be concurred in in time to be sent to the president for his signature not later than Saturday night.

Tariff Bill Held Up.

Washington, Oct. 2.—The entire conference report on the tariff bill was laid aside for twenty-four hours in the senate yesterday as the result of a protest among Democratic senators which resulted in the calling of a party caucus to go over the conference report before it should be finally acted upon in the senate.

A hurriedly called caucus assembled at 11 o'clock, but when the senate met at noon the caucus had made no progress toward a conclusion, and the Democratic leaders agreed to lay the tariff bill aside. The caucus resumed work at 3 o'clock yesterday.

The so called insurgent forces, led by Senator Reed of Missouri, who circulated the demand for a caucus, insisted that there were many compromises and amendments agreed to by the conference committee which demanded further study and consideration by the Democrats of the senate before being finally written into the bill.

To Give Time For Debate.

After an hour's discussion of the matter in the caucus, Democratic leaders determined not to try to force the tariff bill through the senate yesterday, but to allow ample time for the debate behind closed doors. Senator Pomerene's objection to the action of the conferrees in dropping the $1.10 tax on grape brandy used to fortify sweet wines and Senator Reed's criticisms of the decisions of the conference committee on several important tariff rates were the chief points brought up when the caucus met.

Senator Kern, the Democratic leader, and Mr. Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, expressed the opinion that the tariff bill would be taken up today in the senate.

When the senate met the conference report on the bill as agreed to by the house was presented.

Senator Simmons, for the senate conferees, asked that the conference report be allowed to lie upon the table until today. He offered no explanation of the request, but it was granted, and the consideration of the tariff bill went over.

WARRANT FOR SOCIETY GIRL.

Miss Sears Went to Horse Show Instead of Answering In Court.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 2.—A warrant for the arrest of Eleonora R. Sears, a Boston society girl, was issued by Judge George B. Sears because of her failure to appear to answer a charge of operating an unregistered automobile.

The judge told Chief of Police Woodbury of Beverly to go out and find Miss Sears. It is understood Miss Sears decided to attend the Brockton fair horse show.

The automobile which Miss Sears is alleged to have driven is registered in the name of Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York, who has been abroad on his yacht since the middle of July.

CANTILEVER WON STAKES AT NEWMARKET RACE

(By telegraph to The Daily Press)

New Market, Eng., Oct. 2.—Cantilever won the race for the New Market stakes of $50,000 here today defeating August Belmont's Tracery, for which horse an offer of $200,000 from W. Allison yesterday in behalf of the British International Horse Agency was refused by Mr. Belmont. Tracery finished second in the race and Aleppo third.

SKEETER EXTERMINATORS ARE CAMPAIGNING HERE

Under the direction of Inspector Frank Putnam, of the Union County Mosquito Commission, a gang of men has been employed for the past few days digging a trench through the fields between Green brook and West Front street, and West End avenue and Giraud avenue, where a wretched condition was found. Breeding places for three of the worst kinds of mosquitoes, including the malaria variety, were discovered, and it was also learned that householders had been dumping garbage and other kinds of refuse on this land.

The attention of the Board of Health will be called to this condition and it is expected that the property-owners, or whoever may be found responsible, will be ordered to "clean up" and to stop using it as a place to throw such stuff. The trench now being dug will serve to drain off the land and prevent the further breeding of mosquitoes in that particular section.

GOV'T OWNERSHIP DOESN'T ALARM WIRE MONOPOLY

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Oct. 2.—Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in discussing this morning the report from Washington that the Wilson administration is engaged in preparing ground work for legislation looking toward Government ownership of wire communications, said to a representative of the New York News Bureau:

"We know absolutely nothing of this matter beyond the information contained in vague rumors such as are presented in the news despatches of this morning."

Relative to the suggestion that the Government is considering a policy of taking over inter-State telephones, Mr. Vail stated:

"So far as our inter-State business is concerned it does not amount in some sections to more than one-tenth of one per cent. of the business. Our profits lie largely in our short line business and we would welcome anything that would reduce the expense of our long distance service on the general proposition." Mr. Vail added, "The matter is yet, at most, in a nebulous state, if it is under consideration at all, and so conjecture at this time is practically useless."

WON'T DEFEND HERSELF

vice chancellor remarked:

"He didn't tell his wife about those midnight rides; he concealed them from her."

"I think that probably he didn't want her to know about them," Mr. Parker suggested, whereat everyone smiled.

Conover English, of McCarter & England, counsel for Mrs. Hood, in his opening argument, urged that "opportunity, inclination and the deceit practiced by both Hood and Miss Hoyt argued guilt on the part of both." Mr. English started in to tell about the opportunities for wrongdoing disclosed by the testimony of both defendant and corespondent themselves but was shut off by the vice chancellor, who said:

"You needn't go into that phase, for there was abundant opportunity, of course."

When Mr. English adverted to the "vain explanations" of incriminating circumstances attempted by Mr. Hood on the stand, the vice chancellor again shut him off, saying:

"You needn't dwell on that. I will hear what counsel on the other side have to say in explanation."

Mr. English derided the theory of platonic friendship between Hood and Miss Hoyt. He was infatuated with her, Mr. English said. He got to taking her out to lunch, and to theatres, and out walking in the grove on his estate when Mrs. Hood was away, and when he took to going automobiling with her the situation became so bad that Mrs. Field, Miss Hoyt's foster aunt, begged Hood to desist, saying that his attentions to the young girl were giving rise to unpleasant gossip.

Mr. English spoke of the clandestine midnight auto rides; of Miss Hoyt's sneaking out of the house, wearing mocassins given to her by Hood, and which belonged to Mrs. Hood, so as to avoid making any noise that might awaken her guardian; of Hood's journey to Plattsburg and the proposal to have Miss Hoyt accompany him on a trip to Montreal; of the gift of a "cherished" ring to Miss Hoyt; of the cryptic telegram sent by Miss Hoyt to Hood, apprising him of the fact that the trip could not be made, which telegram fell into Mrs. Hood's hands; of the deceitful cablegram written in Italian, sent by Miss Hoyt to friends in England, fifteen minutes before she herself sailed, informing them that her departure had been delayed, by which ruse she was enabled to spend a week in Hood's company in London after their arrival abroad, and of the constant companionship of the defendant on the way over.

When Mr. English made a scathing reference to the alleged "fatherly interest" which the defendant claimed had actuated his conduct towards Miss Hoyt, the vice chancellor interrupted with the comment that it was "incredible that anyone feeling a fathering interest in a young girl could so compromise her good name."

Mr. Parker urged that there was nothing in the case indicating guilt except the trip to Europe on the same steamship made by Hood and Miss Hoyt last September.

Taking up the so-called "collette" letter written by Hood to Miss Hoyt, which Mr. English had termed a "most damnatory epistle," Mr. Parker said that there was nothing incriminating in it, the letter being merely a lot of mystical and fantastically phrased sentences having no meaning. The quotation with which the letter closed: "Was woman ever so wooed; was woman ever so won," Mr. Parker said, was not a part of the letter at all, being merely a quotation which Hood wrote on the cards on which he had written out a draft of the collette letter, intending to look the quotation up later.

Mr. Parker went on to explain that the quotation was in reality a misquotation of the words Shakespeare put into the mouth of the Duke of Gloucester, after the duke had stabbed Henry IV. to death, and he was making love, over the dead king corpse, to the monarch's widow.

"Was ever woman in such humour wooed; was ever women in such humour won?" was the correct quotation, Mr. Parker said.

How can you explain the phrase in that letter: "You are the sinner and I'm the sinned against," the vice chancellor asked.

"It was just employing a common phrase, which meant nothing," Mr. Parker replied, adding: "Because the defendant can't explain the extravagant phrases in that letter is no reason why he should be found guilty."

References by Mr. Parker to midnight and automobile rides taken by Hood and Miss Hoyt, drew from the vice chancellor the comment:

"If he had had the character of the girl at heart he wouldn't have taken her out automobiling, whether his wife gave him permission or not."

Mr. Parker admitted that the defendant had no business to take the automobile rides; no business to travel with the corespondent on the same ship, and no right to receive her in his state room, but even these things, he said, did not warrant the conclusion of guilt.

Vice Chancellor Stevens volunteered it as his opinion that when on the eve of her departure for England Miss Hoyt cabled to the people she expected to visit: "Departure delayed; I write," it warranted the assumption that she had been in communication with the defendant respecting her trip.

Mr. Parker urged that the court "could not disregard the definite, full and perfect denials of guilt by both defendant and corespondent."

Mr. Collins, arguing in the defendant's behalf, pictured Hood as a man "of highest morality," and Miss Hoyt as a "bright, attractive, little girl, with child-like proclivities, who at the age of eighteen, took her dolls and teddy bears with her when she went automobiling with Hood. There could never have been any thought of wrong between Hood and Miss Hoyt, Mr. Collins declared.

The deceptive telegrams sent by Miss Hoyt, Mr. Collins ascribed to a peculiar romantic twist of her mind.

HUGHES TO GIVE HIS VIEWS SOON ON SUFFRAGE ISSUE

Washington, Oct. 2.—The attitude of Senator William Hughes, of New Jersey, toward woman suffrage will soon be published by the Senator. He said today he has long contemplated making such a statement, but in the stress of his work here, which has been heavy since he entered th Senate, and never heavier than in the last six months, has not found time to consider the question thoroughly.

Just where the Senator will place himself with relation to "the cause" is not known, nor has he said anything upon which to venture a fairly safe guess. As soon as a few spare hours are his, Mr. Hughes said this morning, he will go over the matter thoroughly and prepare a statement.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Two headliners of widely different appeal in the persons of Clifton Crawford and Willie Ritchie will shine at Proctor's Fifth Avenue during world series week. Mr. Crawford, who is deep in his admiration for Ritchie, gladly consented to share honors with the lightweight champion while Ritchie is deeply sensitive of the favor accorded him. A bill of tremendous proportions will aid the two distinguished gentlemen foremost among whom will be Willa Holt Wakefield and Yvette, the whirlwind violiniste. In conjunction with them will be Francis Stevens and Company in Edgar Allan Woolf's newest playlet, "The Country Bride;" Chadwick Trio in Herbert Hall Winslow's freshest effort, "Wiggins' Training Camp;" Morris and Allen, Hebrew comedians with the Irish songs; Kramer and Morton, two black dots; Work and Play, acrobatic jesters, and Victorinne and Zolar, in "An Affair of Honor."

GAS KILLS COUPLE WHILE THEY SLEEP

Found Dead on Eve of Their Golden Wedding.

FIRST NIGHT IN NEW HOME

Aged Jersey City Pair Gave Up Old Home and Went to Live With Their Daughter—Arrangements Were Ready For Big Celebration—Children Find Their Bodies.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 2.—On the eve of their golden wedding Christopher Rupp, seventy-nine years old, and his wife, Caroline, seventy-seven years old, were found dead in bed at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Katherine Blomberg, 37 Pearsall avenue, this city, as a result of gas poisoning.

Rupp and his wife had just given up their old home in Greenville and went to live with their daughter. It was the first day in their new home. All arrangements were ready for the celebration of a golden wedding by the Rupp sons and daughters. The aged couple knew nothing of it. The arrival of the parents to the daughter's home was celebrated by a welcome party. All their children were present and gave the couple a great welcome to the daughter's house.

It was near midnight when they went to bed, leaving word that they wanted to be called early.

When Mrs. Blomberg went to call them she received no response. She smelled escaping gas and traced it to the room occupied by her parents. Herman, one of the sons, broke open the door and found the two lying in bed, apparently asleep.

All efforts to rouse them were futile. A gas jet, partly turned off, was discovered. Dr. Lambert, who was called, said they had been dead several hours.

Mr. Rupp, so the daughter stated, was nearsighted and probably thought he had turned off the gas all the way.

TAFT TO SPEAK AT PRINCETON

Wilson and Roosevelt Unable to Be at Exercises on Oct. 22.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 2.—President Hibbs announced that former President Taft will make an address at the opening of the Princeton graduate school and the dedication of the Cleveland memorial on Oct. 22. President Wilson and former President Roosevelt were invited, but are unable to come. President Wilson wrote:

"I appreciate very sincerely your kindness in conveying to me on behalf of the trustees of the university an invitation to be present at the dedication of the Graduate college buildings and the Cleveland memorial tower on Oct. 22 next and beg to express my regret that it will not be possible for me to be present. I have denied myself all engagements for this year which do not lie within the direct line of my official duties, because I feel it so important that I should attempt to master the difficult tasks imposed upon me here."

NO RUN ON BAYONNE BANK.

Conditions Remain Normal Following Arrest of Clerks.

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 2.—Conditions at the City Bank of Bayonne were normal, no run resulting from the arrest of the paying teller, Charles Jaeger, and his assistant, Henry J. Klink, who are accused of robbing the bank.

The bank examiner whose investigation led to the arrests made a favorable report to Banking Commissioner La Monte as to the general condition of the institution, and Mr. La Monte has issued a statement in accordance with this report, saying that the condition of the bank is excellent. The shortage is not more than $5,000, and as both of the young men arrested were under bonds what loss the bank has incurred through their operations will have to be made good by the surety company that went on their bonds.

STRIKING PUPILS BARRED.

Bayonne Principal Excludes Them From Class Meetings.

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 2.—Because they struck for shorter hours, twenty-eight boy students of the Bayonne high school have been directed by Principal Preston H. Smith to abstain from attendance at all class meetings for thirty days. They will not be allowed to take part in the morning exercises or in any school activity outside of their studies for that length of time.

The cause of the strike was the institution of a new course by Principal Smith which kept the pupils in school nearly an hour longer than usual. Mr. Smith calls this new course the "success in life" class, and he has been telling the boys and girls how to get rich and become great men and women.

The boys said they would rather hear a lecture on football and went on strike.

Man Hurt In Auto Dies.

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 2.—Robert W. Miller, sixty-two, of Rutherford, N. J., who was injured when the auto in which he was riding turned turtle on Terrace avenue, this city, died in the Hackensack hospital without regaining consciousness.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 14.

OUT in Chicago, according to a dispatch printed in the newspapers, a woman became so angered when thieves visited her coop and stole 20 chickens that she advertised for the culprits to come back and take the 12 she had left.

They did.

Oh, there's no telling what advertising will accomplish!

Which reminds me of the story of the hen that, after watching the pigeons make their graceful flights from the top of the henhouse until she grew envious of their skill, concluded that she, too, could fly with equal success if she could only get up on the henhouse so as to make the right kind of a start.

After many strenuous efforts, she finally gained the desired elevation, squawked, flapped her wings and made the plunge. She turned seven somersaults, struck on her neck and broke it in two places.

The moral of the first story is that advertising is a force with which it doesn't pay to trifle, and of the second, that skill, knowledge and ability are as essential as opportunity to the man who would accomplish what others have accomplished through publicity.

Before you advertise, be sure that you can deliver the goods. Newspaper advertising is a mighty force in bringing to your door the people who want what you have advertised.

But newspaper advertising isn't worth a continental hurrah to the advertiser who either can't or won't live up to his printed claims.

When you get ready to jump from the top of the henhouse, Mr. Merchant-About-to-Advertise, be sure that your wings are built to fly and that they are in good working order.

FRANCES MARSHALL

True Piece De Resistance.

Most of us think of the typical meal as consisting of one light and frothy course after another—a shave of canteloupe, a dish of radishes and bread and butter, an inch-wide square of fish, a sliver-like slice of veal served with three French peas and three dice of turnip, a course of macaroni au gratin, a slice of chicken and a leaf of endive, a preserved apricot, a dash of sweet omelet, a nut and a raisin and a demi tasse. But what about the piece de resistance of the French meal—a dish indicated by a too often misquoted phrase? Don't most of the people in France dine royally from a single dish? Doesn't cabbage soup or a good ragout or pot-au-feu, with a bit of green vegetable, some bread, and a little sweet make up the principal meal of most of the French? And isnt it rather from the tables of the many than from the tables from the hôtels and the well-to-do that we should take our lesson in French economy?

What It Should Be.

The piece de resistance—the cabbage soup or the good ragout or the pot-au-feu mentioned—should really be the backbone of the meal. It should be a dish containing, in good proportion; all the food elements necessary for perfect nourishment.

A carefully made vegetable soup is a good piece de resistance. A stew of meat and vegetables, chicken served with rice balls and onions, peppers stuffed with meat and bread crumbs and served with celery, club sandwich, containing toast, lettuce, chicken, bacon, tomato and mayonnaise dressing, a mixed vegetable salad—one, for instance, with lettuce, potatoes, peas, beans and celery, dressed with French dressing and served with cheese balls and toasted wafers, corn pudding, made with canned corn, milk, eggs and crumbs—all these dishes are all-around, nourishing dishes, that have the various elements needed for proper diet in good proportion. Good pork and beans, too, are a nourishing dish, but they should be accompanied with something fresh and green—celery, lettuce, or fresh or stewed fruit. Hence a lunch of pork and beans, brown bread and butter and apple sauce would be well proportioned. But a lunch of pork and beans, cocoa, brown bread and butter and rice pudding would be too one-sided—too heavy—to be good: It would be lacking in the health-giving qualities contained in the apple sauce—or in grapefruit or a lettuce salad or cut up oranges which might be substituted for the apple sauce with the pork and beans luncheon.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WHAT TO EAT TODAY.

DINNER MENU.
Cream of Celery Soup.
Mushrooms a la Reine.
Beaten Flank Steak.
Onions Baked in Paper Bag.
Apple and Nut Salad.
Rice and Rhubarb Pudding.
Coffee.

A MIDSEASON menu should contain food that is light and nourishing. A suggestion for an autumn dinner is given here.

A Seasonable Soup.

To make cream of celery soup cut celery in small pieces until there is one quart measure full. Put it to boil with two quarts of water. Cook ten minutes. Drain off the water. Add three cupfuls of white stock and cook until the celery is very soft. Rub through a strainer. Put a cupful and a half of milk over the fire. Cook one slice of onion in it for ten minutes. Remove the onion. Add the milk to the stock and celery rubbed through a sieve. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter. Add three level tablespoonfuls of flour. Stir until smooth; then add it to the soup.

With Anchovy Sauce.

Mushrooms a la Reine.—Take some good, fresh mushrooms, wash them, remove the stalks and peel carefully. Spread the under side with butter and sprinkle with pepper and salt. Place on a gridiron over a clear fire and cook until soft. A few drops of anchovy sauce on each mushroom is nice. Have ready as many croutons of fried bread as mushrooms, squeeze a little lemon juice on each, and then place the mushrooms on the top. Put a tiny sprig of parsley in the center of each and serve.

Beaten Flank Steak.—Cut flank steak into pieces about four inches square. Season with salt and pepper and pound them until beaten to a rag. Roll up each piece, dip in yolk of egg and then in corn meal. Fry in hot fat and serve with latticed fried potatoes.

Paper Bag Cookery.

Onions Baked In Paper Bag.—Parboil Spanish or Bermuda onions a quarter of an hour, cut a V out of the center and fill space with butter, after dusting with salt and pepper. Put onions in paper bag with lump of butter and a little water. Seal and bake twenty minutes in hot oven or thirty minutes in moderate oven.

Dustin Said He Was Ill.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Make Believe Aches Didn't Help Dustin.

GOING to school gets tiresome sometimes, and Jack and Evelyn often sighed for vacation days when their time was very much their own.

"Dustin is a little boy who started to kindergarten this year," daddy told them. "He is a lively lad who likes to play outdoors, and the first day he spent in school was about the hardest in his life.

"The other morning when Dustin got up and had his breakfast he sat down and looked at his mother. He is not generally a quiet boy, so she said to him a little anxiously:

"'What is the matter? Don't you feel well today?'

"'No, mother; I've got a pain,' he answered.

"'Is it a very bad pain?' she inquired.

"'Oh, yes; it hurts awful!' replied the naughty boy.

"'Where is it, son?' she wanted to know. Dustin placed his two small hands on his small stomach and gave a groan.

"'Very well, dear; if you feel like that you need not go to school this morning. Just lie down there on the couch and mother will mix some peppermint and sugar to cure the pain.'

"Dustin drank the medicine meekly and stayed quietly on the couch until it was well after school time. Then when his mother came into the room she found him looking out of the window.

"'Are you feeling better?' she asked.

"'Yes; thank you, mother,' he answered as he hung out of the window to get a better view of a passing automobile.

"That afternoon Dustin's auntie came in to call on his mother, and she said, 'How well Dustin is looking!'

"'Ah, you do not know,' his mother answered. 'Our Dustin is an invalid today. He was so ill this morning that he could not go to school.'

"'He doesn't look much like it now,' auntie declared as she watched her little nephew racing around the yard with the dog.

"The next morning when Dustin got up he ate a hearty breakfast. Then he sat down to think.

"'Oh, mother, I've got another pain today!' he exclaimed as his mother came into the room.

"'Where is it today?' asked his mother.

"'It's in my head, mother, and it's an awful bad pain.'

"'Ah,' his mother answered; 'that must be because you're head is empty! There is nothing like school to cure that kind of a pain. There's the bell now. Run along.'

"And Dustin ran."

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

Lunches Popular.

So great has been the demand for the penny lunches at the Bryant School that the Mothers' Association finds itself in dire distress.

It would take two kitchens, two cooks and two Mothers' Associations to fill the need of nutritious food, a simple cake and a tiny sweetmeat.

The Association counted about forty who really needed the food, but planned food enough for eighty. Each day the supply has been increased and each day it has given out before the end of the line of children with trays could be reached. Nine gallons of soup has proven to be less than enough and the present equipment will not allow a larger supply to me made. Here is a work of a very tangible sort that will need support. Doubtless Mothers' Association will be able to solve the problem.

Child Labor.

Good Housekeeping for August has an article by Judge Lindsley and George Creel on "Why Do Children Toil." Read this summing up of the cause of child-labor. It will make you want to see some laws passed right speedily.

Giving the Boy Something to Do.
(The Mother's Magazine.)

* * * "Now so long as his ambitions for occupation do not run along mischievous lines, we try to give him his occupation and to encourage in him freedom of thought and action. We do not command him; to a large extent we subordinate ourselves to him, striving to lead, not to restrict and bind * * *.

"We find when we give a boy compulsory occupation, place weights upon him just because we have a certain authority over him, that he takes on sneakish habits, shows a tendency to lie, and eventually falls far behind in class standing and deportment. The more freedom we give him with occupation, the more his ordinary sense of honor is appealed to, the more is got out of him and the stronger his manhood.

"Patience, thoughtfulness, hard work are required on the part of mother or teacher to thus watch over a boy, but the final results attained well justify the labor. The boy finds in his free occupation a constantly strengthening shield against temptation and he learns in its best sense the meaning of the two words—useful citizenship."

Life for Girls.
(Playground Magazine).

"Many centuries passed before the world discovered the woman. It is not strange, then, that even this age, which has been called the Age of the Child, did not at once discover the girl. In the midst of countless movements, local and national, to improve the opportunities of the boy, his sisters have been until recently almost forgotten.

"The problem of the girls is so much less dramatic than that of the boys. They do not organize gangs to turn pirates, fight Indians or burglarize the corner store. They couldn't do these things; society has so long held them back, teaching them a restraint and self-repression of which it might have been well to impart some to their brothers, and holding before them, enforced by terrible penalties, a double standard of morals not only for the vital, but for the most trivial questions of conduct.

"You will say that boys and girls are different by nature. Perhaps. But I wish I might live to see the effect upon the human race when for a generation or two the girls have been given more liberty, but not too much, and boys have enjoyed less license."

WILL BANQUET ROOSEVELT AS HE STARTS ON TRIP

Trenton, Oct. 2.—New Jersey will have a large delegation at the banquet to be given tomorrow night on the New York Roof Garden in honor of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who sails for South America the following morning. Gubernatorial Candidate Everett Colby; Edmund B. Osborne, State Assessor George L. Record, former Assemblyman Henry G. Blauvelt, State Senate Candidate Frank J. Higgins, E. B. Bacon, former Governor J. Franklin Fort, National Committeeman Borden Whiting, State Committeeman Herbert M. Bailey, of Bergen; Colonel J. H. Adamson, of Passaic; Assembly Candidate E. Yancey Cohen, of Palisade, will be among the New Jersey people at the dinner.

WRAPS OF TWEED OR VELVET SHOW EQUALLY MODISH LINES

Separate winter wraps are not the nondescript garments of some seasons ago, but in line and materials are quite as smart as the smartest gowns, showing the same general silhouette. The vogue of the one-piece dress is responsible for the awakened interest in these coats and for the subsequent novel designs and trimmings that have been called forth to make them attractive.

Among the new materials is a heavy, sacking-like fabric resembling closely ratine. It is excellent for motoring or general utility wear. Ratine is still a favorite, and most effective trimmings of suede are seen on many of the ratine models. Boucle is warm and serviceable for juniors and the soft woolens also in the warm, bright colorings so much used in sports coats this summer, the blues, scarlets and green, are most becoming and suitable.

To copy No. 7982 in size 16 it will require 3¾ yards of 42 inch material.

In planning school frocks for the kiddies matters are simplified if cotton fabrics are used rather than the woolen stuffs. These are easy to keep fresh and clean and under a warm coat may be worn in the coldest weather. 7966 is a design suitable for any of the cottons or for a serge. To make this little dress in size 8 it requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Design for Corset Cover or Chemise.

At this change of the season ones underwear usually needs replenishing. A hand embroidered undergarment is always a delight to have, for, where is the woman who does not fancy pretty dainty underwear? These are rather a luxury, for they are very expensive, when bought ready to wear, but can, however, be easily and inexpensively made at home of nainsook, batiste or longcloth or even of crepe de chine, China silk or Italian silk.

Pattern number 14554 is a very simple and attractive design suitable for embroidering a corset-cover or chemise. This pattern may be used on either a front-closing or slip-over garment as the sprays may be separated without changing the design.

The dots, small leaves and flowers may be embroidered in solid work and eyelets and the large leaves in outline and seed-stitch. Mercerized cotton should be used except on silk garments when filo silk is used.

Pattern number 14554 will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

Father Curran, of the Church of the Holy Saviour, at Wilkesbarre, Pa., "the miner's priest," will say grace. John Purroy Mitchel and the other Progressive candidates in New York will be present. Gifford Pinchot will be toastmaster, and in addition to Colonel Roosevelt the speakers will be Raymond Robins, of Chicago, and former Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana.

TO THE BOY SCOUTS.

Commissioner Allen E. Beals has issued an order to the local troops of the Boy Scouts to assemble in the rear of the First Presbyterian church edifice promptly at 3.30 o'clock on Sunday afternoon for the purpose of having their picture taken in a group for historical use. He regrets that Sunday should be the day but inasmuch as it has been found impossible for all the scouts to get together on another day he fixed that day. Scouts will appear with full equipment.

Perfect Kneading — Perfect Bread

UNIVERSAL

Bread Maker

Mixes and kneads the dough in three minutes better than it can be done by hand.

Anyone can make bread in the UNIVERSAL Bread Maker. All you have to do is to put in all the liquids, then the other ingredients, and turn the crank.

Any recipe that will make good bread by hand will make better bread in the UNIVERSAL Bread Maker. Sanitary always, because the hands do not touch the dough.

Made in three sizes; $1.35—$2.00—$2.50.

Call and ask for booklet describing its operation.

P. H. S. ATHLETIC BOARD ELECTED TEAM MANAGERS

Morris Mann, who was recently elected manager of the Plainfield High School basketball team for this year, resigned this morning, because of the time required in transacting his business as assistant manager of the Oracle and the Boys' Athletic Association selected John Cottrell to succeed him. Harold Williams was chosen to book games for the baseball team at the same time.

Letters were received today by the football manager, from Princeton High School and Pennington Seminary, cancelling the football dates. These dates are now open. Election Day, November 4, is also open and the P. H. S. manager is trying to fill the vacancies on the schedule.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly decide the following: Can pinochle and company be melded together, and can double pinochle be melded twice?—F. H.

Answer—House rules would decide these, Frank.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are there any padded cells in the local police station? Not that I'm due to go there, but I'd just like to know.—J. K.

Answer—We never saw any. In case you should, eh?

Sporting Editor:

Query—A claims butter is made from sour cream and B claims it is made from sweet cream. Who is correct?—B. H.

Answer—Butter is made from sweet cream. You ought to know better than that, A.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Am in serious trouble and it's up to you to get me out of it. Sunday night, September 21, while I happened to be out at 12:45 p. m., I stated to B, my friend, who was not out that evening, that the moon was visible at that time. B doubts the statement, because it had been storming all day and up to 12:30 p. m. Now I think that you will be able to give me an answer to this one as I think I saw you on the same night.—N. C.

Answer—You mustn't tell everything you know, old man, and I have a good mind to hold the answer until you tell me who B is and where you saw me and last of all, who you are. In the first place you could not have possibly been out at 12:45 p. m. at night. Anyone who goes out in a downpour of rain at 12:45 in the morning and sees the moon shining has got something on us. However, this sounds like a "moonshine" and we will pass it up until we meet you again.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Why do you always refer to yourself as "we" in answering queries?—G. Y. T.

Answer—Just because, that's all.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Who was president of the United States when the naval trip around the world was started?—D. L. H.

Answer—Roosevelt held the job down at that time.

S. L.—We cannot answer your query in this column. Consult a physician.—Sporting Editor.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will Jack Martin return from Boston in time for "Martin Day?"—J. U. T.

Answer—Don't worry about that, we have it "fixed" with Stallings.

Sporting Editor:

Query—If someone used a simple word you did not understand, would you show your ignorance by telling him that you do not understand it or would you go ahead and run a chance of making a mess out of it by trying to understand?—S. I. B.

Answer—As a rule you should be able to grasp the meaning of the word from the general topic or drift of conversation. A gentle "beg pardon" though, will usually cause the speaker to elucidate. If not say "Whaddayou mean?"

Sporting Editor:

Query—Name the winners of the American League pennants since 1909.—S. V.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

NEW MOTOR CAR RECORD.

London, Oct. 2.—A thirty horsepower motor car cover 1,078 miles 460 yards in twelve hours at the Brooklands track yesterday. This beats the best previous record—914 miles 640 yards—made by W. G. Scott over the same course last May, by more than 163 miles.

DIES OF FOOTBALL INJURIES.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—Allen Weidman, the High School boy whose spinal column was fractured while playing football September 24, died yesterday. Weidman was running with the ball when he collided with another player and was thrown.

FOOTBALL RESULTS.

At Burlington—Vermont 10, Middlebury 7.

At South Bethelem—Lehigh vs. Western Maryland, cancelled; rain.

NORWICH CANCELS ALL GAMES.

Northfield, Vt., Oct. 2.—The cancellation of the entire schedule of the Norwich University football team, because of the death of Half Back Verner Belyet, was announced yesterday. Belyea's death resulted from injuries received in a game with Holy Cross on September 24.

VARDON AND RAY WIN.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 2.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the English professional golfers, defeated Roger H. Hover and Foster B. Davis, Rhode Island amateurs, 18 up in a 36-hole four-ball foursome match at the Wannameisett Country Club, yesterday. Hovey is the State champion.

MINISTER RAPS OLYMPIC FUND.

Southampton, Oct. 2.—At the Church of England congress yesterday the Rt. Rev. James Welldon, dean of Manchester, gave a sly dig at the funds being raised in England for the Olympic games. He said it was more than doubtful whether prizes were worth winning in the international Olympic sports if they could be won only by the ever-increasing expenditure of money.

AN AUTOMATIC COACH.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The camera has become an important feature of the practice of the Cornell varsity football team. Coach Dan Reed devoted his entire time yesterday to taking pictures of the various members of the squad in action. These pictures are enlarged and will be used in the daily blackboard talks and will aid the coaches in pointing out the faults of the individuals.

WILL HIKE TO PHILLY.

Rahway, Oct. 2.—Starting from Rahway at 3:30 p. m. Saturday, October 11, with a message from Mayor Fyffe addressed to the Mayor of Philadelphia, E. Harry Kinn and Joseph T. Lockwood, Jr., of Richmond Hill, Long Island, Robert E. Emery, of New York, and Nelson M. Turner, of Rahway, will start the first lap of a hike to Philadelphia, stopping at New Brunswick, Trenton and finally at the Quaker City, returning by train. The quartet has been liberally supplied with necessities by various concerns for advertising purposes.

"MARTIN DAY" FUND CONTINUES TO GROW

Committee of Fans Working Hard to Make Event Eclipse Any Previous One.

"What's the use of waiting when you know your going to give?" Have you done your share to make "Martin Day" the big thing it ought to be and is going to be? A busy committee of fans has been working day and night to bring the affair about and it is now up to you to reward its efforts and do your share to stir things up among the fans. Martin has been playing in Boston during the past week against the New York Giants and arrangements have been entered into with Manager Stallings to have the Plainfield boy shipped back home post-haste Friday night.

Jack knows nothing of the plans that have been made by the local fans for Saturday and it may be possible to keep him in ignorance of the whole affair until he takes the field Saturday afternoon in an International League uniform. There are still a lot of contributors, large and small, to be heard from and if your name is in this list you had better get busy and hand in your donation. The committee meets tonight and will then decide what to do with the proceeds. Whatever is done will have to be completed between now and tomorrow night, and in any event, the celebration will be big and interesting and enjoyable.

The committee isn't going to coax the fans, or urge them, or praise them or scold them. If you have done your share—have done your duty—you can well be satisfied with yourself, but if the fund doesn't reach $100, then you know, and we know, that somebody is shirking. A complete list of the contributors will be presented to Jack with the trophy, or whatever the token may be, and it is up to you to get on this list. Glance down the line of contributors printed in bold face type and see if you don't miss a number of names that ought to be there. This is the last card the committee has to play. All of its trumps have been led during the last three days and if it isn't effective it isn't their fault.

Are you satisfied? No! Well, collar the first member of the committee you meet on the street and add to the following sum;

Andrew McCardell	$ 5.00
William R. Townsend	5.00
Charles J. Fisk	5.00
James N. Steele	5.00
William L. Smalley	2.00
V. W. Nash, Jr.	2.00
Harry Dreier	2.00
Robert Dorman	1.00
An Admirer	1.00
Jack Doyle	1.00
Francis Blatz	1.00
Walter Firstbrook	1.00
George T. Leighs	1.00
William H. Conger	1.00
Total	$33.00

WILLIAM N. RUNYON TO PRESENT TROPHY

Will Represent the Local Fans on "Martin Day" Program Next Saturday.

Former City Judge William N. Runyon consented this morning to make the presentation to Jack Martin on behalf of the local fans on Parker Field next Saturday afternoon when "Martin Day" will be observed and some suitable trophy given to Jack by the fans. A subscription list is now being circulated by the local fans as described in another column and the purchase for Martin will be made with this fund.

Mr. Runyon is a close friend of the ball player and the committee was unanimous in its decision to extend an invitation to him to do the presentation work.

TICKETS ARE PLENTIFUL FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME

Twelve thousand tickets will be placed at the disposal of the Navy Athletic Association for the Army-Navy football game at the Polo Grounsd. Each member will receive four with the privilege of buying others from the management of the Polo Grounds prior to November 19, when the tickets will be put on general sale.

Each service has received 8,333 tickets heretofore when the game was played on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, but they had been promised 1,500 additional had the game been played there this year. Last year some of the members of the association received three tickets and others were given only two.

HOLY CROSS TEAM'S SCHEDULE IS FULL

Manager "Doc" Doyle Has Nothing but Home Contests on the Program.

Manager Jack Doyle, of the Holy Cross football team, announced last night that he had completed his schedule of games for the coming season and has every Saturday afternoon filled. All of the games will be played on Cricket Field this year, thus assurring the local followers of the game a weekly program of the gridiron sport.

Doyle has signed up the strongest club teams of the State and as special holiday and feature attractions he will pit his warriors against teams from the navy and many Metropolitan elevens. The Holy Cross outfit is gradually rounding into shape under the watchful eye of experienced coaches and the aggregation will probably be heavier and faster than the combination that captured the State club title last season.

Many new players have made their appearance and the line and backfield have been bolstered materially. The forwards are heavier than the ones on the 1912 eleven, thus assurring a sturdier defense against weighty lines such as will be encountered during the coming season.

HUNT CLUB SCHEDULE FOR MONTH ANNOUNCED

Rufus C. Finch, master of the hounds, has announced the following schedule of runs for October: Wednesday, October 8, Plainfield Country Club, 3:30 p. m., Saturday, October 11, Water Tower, Netherwood, 3 p. m.; Monday, October 13, Mt. Pleasant, 9:30 a. m.; Wednesday, October 15, kennels, 3:30 p. m.; Saturday, October 18, Plainfield Horse Show Grounds, 3 p. m.; Wednesday, October 22, kennels, 3:30 p. m.; Saturday, October 25, New Market pond, 3 p. m.; Wednesday, October 29, kennels, 3:30 p. m. Farmers are invited to take part in all the runs.

LOCAL BOYS STAR IN COLLEGE GAME

Townley Pitches Well and Smashes Out a Circuit Clout at Springfield.

Although having been connected with the institution barely two weeks Herbert Stine and George Townley, who are attending the International Y. M. C. A. Training School in Springfield, Mass., have established a name for themselves in athletics and are two of the most likely candidates for next year's varsity baseball team. Baseball at this time of the year seems nseasonable in college athletics but it is the annual custom at Springfield to play a game between the old students and the new students at the beginning of the school term in order to give the coaches and captain an opportunity to get a line on the material available for the formation of a nine in the spring.

The "old students" team is generally composed of the veteran varsity players who are left after graduation and it is customary for the more experienced players to trim the "rookies" annually. Stine caught for the new comers and Townley pitched for five innings being practically invincible. It was plainty evident that the Queen City youths had one of their best days on the ball field and their college mates hailed them as "finds" following the contest which the "rookies" won by a score of 6 to 3, thereby breaking a well established precedent.

A letter from Stine describes the battle vividly and both boys hope to make the varsity nine in this freshman year, something that is exceedingly rare in college sports. Not only did Townley do some phenomenal work as a hurler but the first time he faced the college team's pitcher he smashed the ball for a home run drive, drawing first blood along the scoring line. Stine caught the whole game and his throwing to bases was a brilliant feature of the game.

EASTERN COLLEGES ON THE GRIDIRON

All of the Bigger Institutions Will Open Their Schedules Saturday.

New York, Oct. 2.—Virtually all of the big college football teams in the East will be seen on the gridiron Saturday. The majority of the contests will be in the nature of practice games, the big teams lining up against weaker opponents, but many of them nevertheless are expected to afford a good indication of the calibre and condition of the big elevens and a more or less reliable forecast of the probable results when the big fellows clash later in the season.

Harvard will have Bates as an opponent and Yale will line up against the University of Maine. Pennsylvania and Lafayette will meet at Philadelphia and Princeton and Fordham at Princeton. Other contests of more or less interest to followers of the game will be those of Brown and Rhode Island State, at Providence; Dartmouth and Colby, at Hanover; Williams and Vermont, at Williamstown; Carlisle and Lehigh, at South Bethlehem; Amherst and Colgate, at Hamilton; Syracuse and Hamilton, at Syracuse; Union and Rutgers, at New Brunswick; Trinity and Worcester Polytechnic, at Hartford; Holy Cross and M. A. C., at Worcester; Bowdoin and Wesleyan, at Middletown, Swarthmore and Villa Nova, at Swarthmore, and West Point and Stevens Institute, at West Point. The first intersectional game of the season will be staged at Ithaca by Cornell and Oberlin.

DETAILED ACCOUNT OF EACH WORLD SERIES GAME FOUR MINUTES AFTER FINISH.

Following the precedent set last year in local and suburban baseball circles by this paper when it published an accurate and complete box score of each of the world series games played between New York and Boston in both cities, four minutes after the final out was recorded in each case, the same service will be given the fans this year, and a number of new features have been added to give the Plainfield baseball followers a knowledge of everything that is going on in New York and Philadelphia every afternoon.

The Daily Press will contain a detailed account of each play, together with numerous interesting features surrounding each of the big contests for the world's championship, and will be in the hands of the reader one hour and a half before any metropolitan paper makes its appearance and a half hour before any local paper. Last year this paper announced exclusively each play as it was made and the same method will be used next week.

REAL FOOTBALL TO OPEN IN THE WEST

Pigskin Game Will Enter the Limelight for a Short Stay.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 2.—Real football will take the stage Saturday, with many contests scheduled on college gridirons in the middle and western States. The opening in this section will be most important, as Chicago, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Nebraska, Missouri and several of the other big State institutions will inaugurate their schedules.

Chicago and Indiana will clash at Marshall Field, while Northwestern and Lake Forest will meet at Evanston. Illinois is scheduled to play Kentucky State at Urbana and Michigan will have Case for an opponent at Ann Arbor. Wisconsin and Lawrence will play at Madison, Nebraska and Washburn at Lincoln, Missouri and Columbia at Columbia, Purdue and Wabash at Purdue, Ohio State and Ohio Wesleyan at Columbus, and Notre Dame and Ohio Northern at Notre Dame. Iowa State will meet the State Teachers' College at Iowa City. Minor contests will include those of Coe and Drake at Des Moines, Cornell College and Iowa Wesleyan at Mount Vernon, Western Reserve and Mount Union at Cleveland, and Depauw and Moore's Hill at Greencastle.

Farther West, the University of South Dakota will line up against Nebraska Wesleyan at Vermillion, and the University of Montana will play Montana State College at Missoula.

Good News—

More "Sport" Coats

All Sizes for Women—Values to $16.50; Tomorrow, at . . $8.75

The first sale of these coats announced earlier in the week was a "hummer." This distribution for tomorrow will more than likely prove equally successful—it may even eclipse the earlier event.

Instead of going into details of the transaction which makes it possible for us to offer such extraordinary bargains we will skip to the part which interests you most—the coats themselves.

Most of These Coats Are Belted

With large patch pockets (as illustrated); some coats without belts. Duvetyne—this season's newest fabric. Chinchilla, this season's rage. Also double-faced cloths in camel's-hair finish, now so popular. And last, but not least, solid-color and two-toned boucles. Complete showing of sizes and styles in these colors:

Beautiful Old Rose, Emerald Green, Mahogany, Navy, Copenhagen, Light and Dark Brown and Light and Dark Grays

No Mail, 'Phone, C. O. D. or Approval Orders Filled.

MAIN BUILDING

CANVASSING VOTE BY COUNTY CLERK

How the Primary Elections Returns Are Figured Out Officially.

County Clerk Calvert and his corps of assistants are thankful that most of the extra work caused by the recent primary election has been finished. The general public has, at the best, only an imperfect conception of the immense amount of work an election entails upon the county clerk's office, and for that matter, upon municipal officers in general. Municipal clerks have more work at a primary election, in fact, than at the general election.

Preparations for the general election in November now occupy much of the time and energy of the clerk and his deputies. In addition to preparing the offcial ballots for the general election, showing the names of the candidate, all matters on which a referendum vote is taken must be indicated, and the clerk is responsible for the proper advertising of the election.

The official compilation of the returns, at both primary and general elections, is a big task and one in which the utmost care must be exercised. Deputy Clerk Donald McLean was in charge of the work resulting from last Tuesday's election, directing the activities of the young women assigned to assist him, and was himself engaged in compiling the figures and checking them to discover errors.

But the work of the county clerk's office starts long before election day. All the stationery and supplies required in the booths and for the use of the election officials must be supplied. And for the general election the ballots must be provided; with the big tickets in use this year the work of counting and packing them is in itself a tremendous task.

In compiling the vote and tabulating the work involved is practically the same as for primary or general election.

Different ballot boxes are used at the primary election from those used at the general election. Two hundred and fifty new primary boxes were purchased by the freeholders this year. The consignment required an entire box car. When the boxes arrived they were found to be incomplete lacking the brass plates designating the polling districts they were to be used in; brass tags to be attached to the keys, corresponding in marking to the brass plates, were also delayed. When these missing items arrived a force of men was employed to get the boxes in proper shape for delivery to the various district boards of election, and they then were transported to their destinations on a motor truck.

It makes no difference how heavy or how light the vote is, the work of compiling and tabulating the vote is about the same in volume. The vote for each candidate in every one of the districts in the county has to be called by one man, entered in the proper place on the official book by another and then tabulated at the finish. It is comparatively as easy to enter four hundred and fifty-six votes for a candidate as it is to enter sixteen or even none at all, for the same amount of work is involved before the official result can be obtained.

In the recent primary the small vote of the Progressives and Socialists resulted in many cases on the Assembly vote for instance, in ciphers being placed opposite all twelve names. Especially was this true of the Socialist party where district after district failed to show a single vote cast by the party.

But the fact that no votes were cast for any of the twelve candidates had to be just as carefully transcribed in the official return book as did the returns for the Democratic and Republican candidate who may have each received one hundred or more votes in the same districts in which none was cast for the Socialists.

The returns are coupled in duplicate and after all the missing districts have been rounded up and the figures obtained, the work is ready for tabulation.

There are spearate sets of books for each party having a full list of candidates, the recent primary elections necessitating four sets of books as follows: Republican, Democartic, Progressive and Socialist. Further to facilitate the work and make it possible to complete the official tabulation within five days after election day, the work is divided into the city and county districts for each party; that is, the sixteen wards of the city are in one set of books, while the county municipalities are in another. Still another division is necessary in an election where State and county offices are involved, as in last Tuesday's primary, and a separate set of books is used for the vote on the State officials.

When the figures have all been entered and the tabulation finished a comparison of the two sets of books containing the vote for the same officials is made and any errors are immediately discovered and the proper corrections made.

Scientific VERSUS Home Baking

"Home Spun" was once the finest of cloth; there was nothing better in those days. Yet who of this generation ever saw a spinning-wheel in use?

"Home Baked Bread" was once the very best; there was no other way to get bread except to bake it, then. But modern progress has now effected the same opportunity to save work and energy as in the case of "Home Spun".

KLEEN-MAID BREAD

is the scientific solution of the bread question—one of the great problems of the ages. Exact automatic processes replace guesswork; huge machines do all the actual labor. Each day the purest and best of ingredients are combined into bread that is simply perfection. It's time to get up to date on this question of bread, and use KLEEN-MAID—the bread without a fault.

PUBLIC LECTURE COURSE ARRANGED

Board of Education Prepares Rich Feast of Instruction and Entertainment.

ILLUSTRATED SPEECHES

Series to Be Begun Next Thursday Night—All Talks to Be Given at the Washington School Auditorium—The Detailed Program.

The Board of Education has provided an unusually strong and interesting program for the winter's course of public lectures. All the lectures will be in the auditorium of the Washington School, Darrow avenue and West Fourth street.

The series opens next Thursday night, with a concert by the popular Apollo Male Quartet, of Newark. The evening's program will include many of the songs that have touched the hearts of the people by their music and their interest.

On Thursday, October 30 A. S. Riggs will give a stereopticon lecture on "Egypt and the Nile." His collection of pictures is very choice, and he is a master hand at lecturing.

On Thursday, November 20, E. A. Mead, the skillful monologue artist, will present the play that has had such a run in New York, "The Man from Home."

Paul G. Tomlinson will describe a trip to Newfoundland and Labrador in a forty-foot yawl on Thursday, December 11. Princeton College presented Dr. Grenfell, the famous Labrador missionary with a power boat for his work, and Mr. Tomlinson was one of the men chosen to deliver it in Labrador. The talk will be illustrated by many lantern slides from pictures taken by Mr. Tomlinson on the trip.

Dr. Charles A. Eastman, the famous Indian who is a graduate of Harvard College, will describe the real Indian dressed in the costume of a Sioux chief on Thursday night, January 13. He will present the life and character and customs of "The Real Indian."

George N. Cross, so well known in Plainfield, by the many lectures he has given, will present "Scotland, the Land of Lochs and Braes," with the aid of stereopticon views on Thursday, February 5.

Thursday, February 26, Henry L. Rose will given an interpretation of the drama of Ben Hur, illustrated by many stereopticon pictures taken from the presentation of the drama in New York, accompanied by the New York music rendered by the auxetophone.

March 19, Robert G. Weyh will tell of the beauties of the new National Park that has within a few years come forward so prominently as a place of grand scenery and amusement, "The Glacier National Park." Mr. Weyh has spent much time in the park for pleasure and as a guide, and has many very interesting stereopticon views and moving pictures to present.

The course will be completed April 9, by "An Evening With the Stars," by Prof. Baumgardt, with many lantern views from photographs taken by the most famous telescope. It is the latest thing in astronomy, and will be intensely interesting.

MATTHEW CASHIN FUNERAL TO BE HELD TOMORROW

The funeral service of Matthew Cashin, formerly of this city, will be held at his late residence, 292 Fourteenth avenue, Newark, tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock and at St. Antonius church, South Orange avenue and Ninth street, Newark, at 10 o'clock. Mr. Cashin died yesterday morning, following a short illness. For the past ten years he had been living at Wappinger's Falls, N. Y., recently removing to Newark.

While a resident of this city, Mr. Cashin was employed by William Sebring the clothier, after which he engaged in business for himself on Park avenue. He was a charter member of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and was generally prominent in Catholic circles in this city. He is survived by a wife and eight children and a brother, Rev. W. E. Cashin.

SOCIAL CLUB DANCE.

The recently organized Young Men's Social Club, connected with the Gesang and Turn Verein, will hold its initial reception and dance tonight in Saengerbund Hall. The members have made elaborate arrangements for the event and are expecting to entertain a large number of guests. The committee to be in charge of the affair is composed of Herman Klinsman, chairman; Ernest Luthman, Gustave Bremer, and Edward Korman.

GIVES PLAYGROUND TO THE DAY NURSERY

B. J. Mumford's Substantial Present to King's Daughters' Union.

Through the generosity of B. J. Mumford, of West Ninth street, the City Union of the King's Daughters has obtained the ownership of a large tract of land extending from its property on West Front street to the brook, the parcel being about an acre and a half. Messrs. Woodhull & Martin, appreciating that the property would be used for charity work, disposed of it to Mr. Mumford at a very low price.

It is proposed to use the newly acquired land as a playground for the little ones at the Day Nursery. With that in view, playground apparatus will be purchased in the spring when funds are provided.

Mr. Mumford, who is the benefactor in this instance, not long ago purchased a property and provided the funds for the erection of a handsome rectory for Grace church.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR A. D. SHEPARD

New York Business and Social Organizations Represented at Obsequies.

The funeral service of Augustus Dennis Shepard was held at the late home, "The Gables," Fanwood, at 2.15 o'clock, yesterday aftrnoon. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and neighbors, including a number of former business associates of Mr. Shepard in the American Bank Note Company, as well as representatives from the Chamber of Commerce, the Downtown Association and the Union League Club, of New York, of which Mr. Shepard was a member for many years. Beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony of the high regard in which Mr. Shepard was held by those who knew him.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, officiated at the service, reading the Scriptures, offering prayer and making a short address of eulogy. During the service a quartet comprising Miss Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Grace Carroll, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and William Tallamy, tenor, sang two selections, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee." The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

WHAT THEY'RE DOING FOR LITTLE POOR

King's Daughters City Union Nursery and Diet Kitchen Work.

Interesting reports of the past month's work at The Day Nursery were received at the monthly meeting of the executive committee held at the Nursery yesterday. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, the president, was in the chair. It was stated that during September there were 327 children at the institution.

The diet kitchen was opened 100 days, being in charge of Miss Wilhelmina Plummer, chief nurse of the City Nursing Bureau, with an assistant from Muhlenberg Hospital, and of the five or six physicians who offered their services some of them were present on forty days, to give advice. In addition to the work at the Nursery, the nurse made 146 visits to homes and physicians made ten visits. The number of mothers and babies at the Nursery was 847, of course many of the same ones being present each day. Five very sick babies were kept at the Nursery all of the time and four were sent to the hospital. Some of them will continue to receive treatment.

Thirty-two babies that were seriously ill were probably saved from fatal consequences through the work of the nurses and physicians, and some of these are still cared for. This all means a lot of work, while the expenses have been unusually heavy. The City Union of the Kings' Daughters is always glad to receive contributions of money as well as provisions for the work.

MISS WHARTON NOW MRS. VILAS

Elder Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., Secretly Married.

BY REV. DR. HOUGHTON

Ceremony at Church of the Transfiguration and Couple Leaves For Chicago—Wedding Was to Have Taken Place Next Spring.

Miss Susanne Clifton Wharton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., of Belvidere avenue, and Logan Archbold Vilas, of Chicago, were married at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Transfiguration, New York city. The Rev. George C. Houghton, the rector, performed the ceremony. The couple started immediately on their honeymoon, their destination being Chicago.

The engagement was announced only a few days ago and the wedding was to have taken place next spring, but it is believed that owing to illness of the bride's grandparents the couple decided to get married at once without any display. Only a few intimate friends knew the nutials were to take place yesterday.

The Wharton family have spent the last twenty-nine summers at the Thousand Islands, where the Vilas family also made their summer home for years. The young couple had been playmates and Mr. and Mrs. Wharton readily consented to their engagement. When seen last night, Mr. Wharton said that he had received telephone messages announcing the marriage and that he and Mrs. Wharton were agreeably surprised.

The only ones present at the ceremony were two friends of the family, who acted as witnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Vilas will make their home in Chicago. The bridegroom's father was the founder and president of the Pyle National Electric Headlight Company, of Chicago, in which his son is interested. Mrs. Vilas is popular among the younger set in local society. She is a graduate of the Plainfield Seminary and also attended the Briancliff School.

MANY ENJOY THE WEEKLY DANCE IN DEBELE'S HALL

Over one hundred persons attended the fifth of the weekly receptions being conducted under the auspices of Robert McCormack and Jack Doyle, in Debele's Hall, every Thursday evening. Inclement weather conditions greeted the entertainers last night but notwithstanding this handicap a fine delegation turned out and everyone had a good time.

Three pieces of music rendered terpischore music for the dancers last night and the next reception will be similarly conducted next Thursday night.

YEARLY DONATION PARTY OF THE KING'S DAUGHTERS

The annual donation party and tea under the auspices of the City Union of The King's Daughters will be held at The Day Nursery on West Front street, Tuesday afternoon and evening, October 28, from 3 to 6 and 8 to 10 o'clock, to which the public is invited. Donations of money, groceries, vegetables, jellies, etc. will be gratefully received. The Cheerful Workers and Unity Circles will serve refreshments at that time and the members are planning for an elaborate entertainment in this respect.

NEW JEWELRY SHOP.

Alterations on the structure at 224 West Front street, formerly occupied by Leo Zeisel, a sporting goods and bicycle dealer, were begun yesterday. The store will be thoroughly renovated and transformed into a jewelry store, which will be occupied by Leo Slonim, who now occupies the premises next door. The store will have all the modern burglary-proof appliances and built-in wall safes. The work will be completed by November. When Slonim takes possession, the Woolworth five-and-ten-cent store concern will add the present jewelry store to its present store space.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' MEETING.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of The King's Daughters will be held on Thursday afternoon, November 6, at which time it is hoped to have a speaker of prominence. The place of meeting and the name of the speaker will be announced within a short time.

25 YRS. MARRIED; HOLD RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Roger F. Murray Celebrate Their Silver Wedding Anniversary.

MANY ARE PRESENT

Fifty-three Relatives in the Gathering—Mrs. Murray Wears Her Wedding Gown—Mr. Murray is Prominent Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger F. Murray, of 901 Madison avenue, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, last night, when they entertained at their home. There were fifty-three relatives present, the affair being in the nature of a family party. There were many pleasing features.

Mrs. Murray wore a wedding gown in which she was married a quarter of a century ago. Austen of Brooklyn, furnished the music at the wedding and Davis was the caterer, and they both served in that capacity, last night, while the decorations of green and white, comprising Southern smilax, cosmos and roses, were in charge of Mrs. L. J. Denton.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray were married at Dunellen, when the latter residered with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus P. Hatfield. Rev. Dr. Skellinger, who was then pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Murray have lived in Plainfield.

Mr. Murray for several years has been active in politics, being a Republican. He represented his party in the Assembly for one term, during which time he took an active part in the legislation of the lower house. Mr. Murray has for many years been engaged in the fire insurance business in New York, his agency being one of the best known in the metropolis.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, of Central avenue. The couple received a large number of gifts as pleasant reminders of the happy event.

FORMER LOCAL MAN KILLED IN THE WEST

R. C. McMurtry Murdered Near Riverside, Cal., His Father Here Learns.

Shot from behind by a man lying in ambush near his home in Riverside, Cal., Raymond C. McMurtry, thirty-six years old, formerly of Manning avenue, this city, who three years ago, according to the victim's father, deserted his wife of two weeks and went West, is dead. Word of the shooting has been received by John McMurtry, of North avenue, father of the dead man, having been sent by another son, C. O. McMurtry, of Perth Amboy, who received a telegram last night giving meagre details of the murder.

The cause of the assassin's actions has not been revealed, nor has the one who fired the fatal shots been captured. The elder McMurtry said he spent eighteen months in the California town, which he said was thinly populated. He asserted that nearly all the men had permits to carry weapons.

"When I was out there," he said, "I carried two revolvers with me continually. I often cautioned my son to do the same, but he said he wasn't afraid, and that he would take care of himself with his fists. But now he has 'got it' and I suppose his murderer will never be known."

The elder McMurtry said the wife of the victim is still living in this city, but that he did not know her address. Neither did he know her name before marriage. He knew of no legal action which had been taken by either to secure a divorce. Asked why his son separated from his spouse, the father said, "They just couldn't agree, so he went out to California.

Raymond McMurtry was born in Pottersville. The McMurtry family lived in Manning avenue for eighteen years.

ROAD WORK COST $145,172 IN YR.

Union County's Share of Expense $79,620 Freeholders' Board Learns.

BONNIE BURN BONDS

To Raise $125,000 for Additions to Tuberculosis Sanitorium—Collucci Presents a Claim—Widows' Pension Claims Are Considered.

Elizabeth, Oct. 3.—An exhaustive report from the county road committee showing what has been expended on county roads during the past year, was presented at the meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders yesterday. The grand total reported was $145,172.55, of which the State pays $50,245.20 and the Morris County Traction Company, $6,306.02, making the net amount paid by the county $79,620.93.

The board authorized a bond issue of $125,000 to be used in building an addition to the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, and at a special meeting of the committee today it is expected that the contract will be awarded.

Michael Collucci, of Richmond street, Plainfield, presented a claim to the board for damages to his automobile, caused, he claimed, by the bridge on LaGrande avenue, Fanwood, being in poor repair. This was referred to the county attorney, as was the claim of Joseph Greer, who was a member of the old small board, who asked that John K. English and W. R. Wilson, who acted as counsel under the old board, be paid for their services.

Twelve pension certificates for as many widows were referred to the county attorney, county collector and a special committee comprising members of the lunacy committee. The claim of W. A. Willouby, of Westfield, for $45 damages to his moving van while travelling over Dorian road, Westfield, was received and after some discussion, was referred to the county attorney for investigation. There was also a report concerning the proposed widening of Springfield road between Scotch Plains and Westfield, it being stated that the matter is still in the hands of the condemnation committee.

TRUELL HALL SOLD FOR UNPAID TAXES

C. L. Hyde, Representing Hyde Estate, Bought in Valuable Property.

Among the one hundred properties which were offered for sale by Tax Collector William R. Townsend for unpaid taxes yesterday afternoon were Truell Hall and the City Market. The Truell Hall property was bought in by Charles L. Hyde, representing the Hyde estate, owners, the tax amounting to about $2,500. The City Market property upon which there was a tax of about $400, was bought in by the mortgagee, Nathan R. Leavitt, of Elizabeth.

The remaining properties were chiefly residential. The city bought in about thirty-six parcels. This cleans up the delinquent tax list for the year. All of the one hundred properties were disposed of within forty minutes. There was considerable interest, there being present many prospective buyers. In a number of cases the owners settled the delinquent tax.

MAYOR WILL CONFER ON ASTOR THEATRE

Before Granting License Wants to Be Satisfied Code Has Been Complied With.

Before granting a license to the proprietor of the new Astor theatre Mayor Percy H. Stewart has decided to hold a conference with representatives of the Building Trades Council with a view to ascertaining whether in their opinion as builders the building code of the city has been complied with by the contractors. The time appointed for the conference is Tuesday night.

There have been many rumors and veiled accusations as to alleged violations of the building code and Mr. Stewart is desirous of getting at the truth of the matter before he grants a license to operate another moving picture theatre. Fire Chief T. O. Doane, as building inspector, has been in close touch with the construction of the Astor theatre, and it is expected that he will attend the conference and express his opinion. It was stated today that no less than five well-known builders of the city have inspected the new building and they will likely be heard at the conference.

WILLS IS SUED FOR BIG DAMAGES

Victims of Accident When He Drove Car Into Carriage Seek to Recover.

TWO ASKING $15,000

Defendant is Ending a Sentence of Thirty Days in Jail—Reed & Hetfield Counsel for the Plaintiffs.

Arthur Wills, who is ending a sentence of thirty days in the county jail, having been found guilty in police court of driving an automobile when intoxicated, is the defendant in two civil suits for damages. The actions are brought by occupants of a carriage, into which Wills' car crashed on the night of August 13. George F. Murphy and his sister, Miss Gertrude F. Murphy, of East Front street, are the complainants. Mr. Murphy, who is a school principal in New York, asks $10,000 damages for injuries received. His sister demands $5,000. Reed & Hetfield are counsel for the plaintiffs.

Mr. Murphy's left hand, it is alleged, was permanently crippled as a result of the accident. He teaches stenography, short-hand and music and his earnings have been greatly reduced because of the injury to his hand. Miss Murphy was bruised and cut about the head and face. Her face, it is said, has been disfigured and she has suffered continual pains in the head. She still is in a nervous condition.

The papers in the two suits were filed today in the Supreme Court and the case will come up for trial at the next term of the court.

Mr. Wills was sentenced to the county jail after a long trial in police court on September 5. By good behavior the time is reduced to twenty-five days.

MASCOT "TOOTS" VAN NESS A FEATURE OF PARADE

Although it rained before and after the parade of the State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association yesterday in Bayonne, Jupiter Pluvius was kind enough to "let-up" long enough to allow one of the most successful street demonstrations in the history of the organization. Over 6,000 bluecoats representing the "finest" in every municipality of New Jersey were in the line of march. Over twenty patrolmen from this city paraded and Chief Marshal Weiss, Roundsman Keller and Marshal Herman, represented the Plainfield local from the borough.

The patrolmen marched through the streets of Bayonne and on Broadway, the principal street, passed in review before the mayors of several municipalities, city officials and many police chiefs, who occupied a stand over 200 feet long, gayly decorated with American flags and bunting. "Toots" Van Ness, as mascot of the Plainfield local association garbed in police uniform, attracted considerable attention.

TWO YOUTHFUL THIEVES ARE SENT TO REFORMATORY

Elizabeth, Oct. 3.—John and Edward Connolly, of Somerville who were arrested in Newark by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, of Plainfield, and later confessed to entering the store of Leo Zeisel, a Plainfield bicycle dealer, and stealing two wheels and many other articles, were sentenced to the Rahway Reformatory this morning, when arraigned before Judge Connolly, in the Court of Special Sessions.

The two youths were also the thieves who entered several stores in Dunellen several days previous to doing the Plainfield "job."

COAKLEY IN FOOTBALL.

Andy Coakley, who formerly played baseball in this city and who was a member of the Somerville team that was defeated by the Plainfield club for the Central New Jersey pennant in 1911, held down a tackle position on the Williams College second team in a game against the varsity eleven yesterday afternoon. Coakley formerly played with the Jersey City Eastern League baseball nine and has been coaching the Williams College diamond stars for some time.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Mrs. Lydia Hunt, of Hampton, is spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Spangenburg, of Plainfield.

Miss Laura Bowlby and Walter Curtis, of Hampton, are spending a week in Trenton.

After spending the summer in Hampton, Professor Robert Petty and family went to New York Wednesday.

Somerville

The first of the organ recitals by E. H. Shappard will ge given on Monday evening, Oct. 13. Mr. Shepard has already made a name for himself in Somerville, and no doubt will be greeted by a large audience.

Confirmation instruction is being given every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, in St. John's rectory.

Preparatory services will be held in the First Reformed chapel tonight.

Rally Day exercises will be held by the First Reformed and Baptist Sunday-schools on Sunday morning.

Dunellen & Vicinity

E. Daniel, formerly of Dewey Park, has moved into his new home in Washington avenue.

William Childs has moved to Plainfield.

Harry Steinberg, a Plainfield contractor, will be arraigned on Wednesday, Oct. 8, before Judge Rene F. von Minden, in the borough court, charged with larceny, by Isaac Kupenberg, a baker. Steinberg furnished $200 bail for his appearance. The Plainfield man said his arrest was a mistake and explained that he was the contractor for a small job on Kupenberg's establishment. When he completed the work, he sent one of his men to gather up the tools, and the baker claimed that the workman carried away some implements which belonged to him. The contractor's arrest followed.

Miss Nellie W. Stryker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Stryker, will be married Sunday, Oct. 19, to Leonard Tolley, of Roselle. The ceremony will take place at St. Luke's church, Roselle.

In the absence of Miss Winans, Miss Zella Kelly, of New Market, has been engaged as a substitute teacher in the Whittier School.

Mrs. M. Klauss has returned to her home in Brooklyn after spending several days in town as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Ryan.

William Yoeman is visiting relatives at Haverstraw, N. Y.

Peter Benson has fully recovered from his recent illness.

PRINCETON HAS A NEW LAW COURSE LECTURER

Princeton, Oct. 3.—The selection of Philip Marshall Brown to fill the chair of lecturer on international law has been announced at Princeton University. Last year Professor Brown had a similar course at Harvard. He has had twelve years af actual experience in the diplomatic service, having been private secretary to Lloyd Griscom, then charge d'affaires to Turkey, in 1900.

Mason Whiting Tyler, a graduate of Amherst and Harvard; George A. Wood, a graduate of Amherst and a resident graduate student of Columbia University; Walter P. Hall, graduate of Yale and historic editor of the new edition of the International Encyclopedia, and John R. Knipfing a graduate of De Pauw University, all have been added to the department of history and politics as instructors.

Professor Robert McNutt McElroy is at the head of the department. Professor Frederick John Rogers, of the University of California, is temporarily appointed to the place of Professor Augustus Trowbridge, who is on leave of absence for the coming academic year.

JOHNSON LOOKS LIKE AUTOMOBILE WINNER

Big American League Hurler Has a Great Record on the Mound This Year.

There would be mighty few .300 hitters in the American League if the scouts employed by the clubs of the junior organization could dig up a few more pitchers like Walter Johnson, who stands an excellent chance of winning the Chalmers car offered to the American League's most valuable player this season. The Idaho phenom has held his opponents to a collective batting average of .184 in the contests in which he had engaged up to last Monday, no team coming anywhere near acquiring a .300 batting average at his expense. In fact, only one club—Cleveland—had managed to hit better than .200 against Washington's eminent gunner, even the coming champions, the Athletics, who have triumphed over Johnson thrice this season, only having batted at a .185 clip in the games in which they have faced him.

Johnson has twirled 315 and 2-3 innings of ball for the Senators this season, or about 35 nine-inning games. In these contests his opponents have made 205 hits in 1,112 times at bat and have scored 49 runs, the average number of safeties and tallies per game being 5.57 and 1.4 respectively. The greatest number of hits made off him in a contest was fifteen, the Red Sox obtaining this total on July 3 in a contest that lasted fifteen innings. Cleveland made thirteen safeties off Johnson on May 22 in eight rounds and ten on July 13 in nine periods of play. The only team that has knocked Johnson off the rubber is Philadelphia, the Mackmen compelling him to retire on June 25 after he yielded five hits and four runs in three innings. Two days later Sir Walter avenged himself by shutting the coming champions out 2 to 0, and by limiting them to three hits.

The American League pitching averages this year are to show the number of runs earned off the boxmen—information which the National League records revealed last season. Of the 49 runs now charged up against Johnson 36 have been earned, which is just a trifle more than one to the game. Cleveland earned fourteen runs off his delivery, Philadelphia, thirteen; Chicago, four; Detroit, three; Boston, one, and St. Louis, one. The Highlanders have obtained only one run off Washington's great pitcher in 37 innings this year and that run was unearned.

Batsmen have found it hard to make sacrifices, either of the new or old fashioned kind, off Johnson this year. His opponents now are credited with ten sacrifice bunts and three sacrifice flies. Players who have had the honor of making home runs off him this year are Frank Baker, Harry Lord, Ray Schalk, Joe Jackson, Harry Hooper, "Buck" Weaver and D. Johnson. Baker has made a pair of four-baggers off the man who generally is conceded to be the greatest pitcher in captivity.

Johnson undoubtedly will lead the American League pitchers in preventing tallies this season and Baker will be at the top of the Runs Batted In Brigade, J. Franklin already having passed the century mark in driving home counters.

MANY FREE TRIPS TO THE ATHLETICS

World's Championship Contenders Lead in Free Transportation.

If the team that wins the next world's championship is to be the one that has proved most successful in procuring favors from the pitcher this season, then there will be general rejoicing in the Quaker City on or about October 15 next and general gloom in Manhattan. For the Athletics have this year proved more adroit in working the hurlers for transportation that have the Giants. The Mackmen have been getting about four bases on balls in each controversy this year while the McGrawites have been obtaining about three.

To September 1st the American League's pace setters had received 429 walks of the regulation kind while the National League's leaders had been acquiring 349. On neither combination was the lead-off man the individual who had worried the pitcher the most, for the White Elephant who had received the greatest number of passes—Eddie Collins—bats third in the Athletic line-up and the Giant who had been awarded transportation most frequently—Larry Doyle, one of the winners of the Chalmers autos in 1912—strikes from fourth place in the McGraw alignment.

Collins has been favored with 76 passes this year, Doyle with 52.

However, both George Burns and Eddie Murphy, the men who lead off for the teams that are likely to figure in the next world's series, have done splendidly this season in getting gratuities, the National Leaguer having obtained 50 and the American Leaguer 61. Other patient and persevering pitcher workers are Fred Snodgrass, Frank Baker and Tilly Shafer. Snodgrass and Baker each have drawn 46 bases on balls and Shafer has been favored witn 43. Many of the passes handed J. Franklin Baker, it is hardly necessary to remark, have been presented to him with malice aforethought.

Selecting the best team of waiters from among the players likely to play in the next world's series would bring about a combination that would have McInnis at first, Collins at second, Shafer at short, Baker at third, Burns in left, Snodgrass in centre, Eddie Murphy in right, Meyers behind the bat and either Plank or Mathewson on the rubber.

The number of basses on balls received by each New York National and Philadelphia American League player this season will be found below:

WARREN CHAPEL WOMEN SPEND A DAY SEWING

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel held its annual sewing meeting at the chapel, yesterday, with a large attendance of members. The women were engaged in sewing from 9:30 in the morning until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, during which time four quilts were made, in addition to underwear and toweling. This work was under the direction of Mrs. Henry Bishop, chairman of the box work committee.

At 1 o'clock a hot dinner was served by a committee of which Mrs. J. H. Snyder was the acting chairman in the absence of Mrs. John Higgins. Rev. J. O. McKelvey and Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, the latter former president of the society, were guests of honor. The tables were set in the dining-room and were attractively decorated with flowers. Those serving on the dinner committee were Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. George Hoagland, Mrs. Frank Burner, Mrs. William Newmiller, Mrs. William Bacon, Mrs. Peter Seader, Mrs. A. C. Causebrook and Miss Taynor.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Why Wait?

Without a doubt the man who purchases his clothes at the opening of the season has a distinct advantage. Not only does he secure exactly the size he should have, but he may pick from an assortment which is very wide and very complete.

Distinctive styles for Autumn are now being shown to and purchased by the early fellow—the fellows who want the most for their money. We want to number you among this class. May we?

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Harvey D. Hinman, who is slated to present the case for Sulzer, was exhausted yesterday, declared D-Cady Herrick, chief of Sulzer's counsel. A very important witness, who was to be one of the first called, was away. Therefore he pleaded for an adjournment until Monday at 2 o'clock. This was granted and the court adjourned.

PAL OF M'NAMARAS BARES BOMB PLOTS

Dynamiter Tells Amazing Story of Many Jobs.

New York, Oct. 3.—After signing a confession of dynamite depredations which rivals the startling confession of the McNamara brothers and Ortie McManigle, George E. Davis, alias George O'Donnell, a structural steel and bridge worker, arrested in the Breslin hotel by United States Marshal Henkel, waived examination before United States Commissioner Shields and was held in $10,000 bail.

The specific crime for which Davis was arrested was the transportation of explosive materials in violation of the interstate commerce laws. He will be taken to Indianapolis, Ind.

As a result of Davis' confession Harry Jones, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was arrested in Indianapolis on the charge of conspiracy.

In his remarkable confession Davis alleges that dynamiting "jobs" are still being sanctioned by the bridge workers' union and that large sums are being paid to dynamiters.

Davis is charged with being an active accomplice of President Frank M Ryan, the McNamara brothers, Ortie McManigle, Herbert S. Hockin and other members of the union in a conspiracy to destroy bridges being erected by nonunion laborers by the American Bridge company in various parts of the country. In addition, he is charged with the carrying of explosives in violation of federal laws.

DELUGE DEVASTATES TEXAS.

Rain Falls For Seventy-two Hours, and Damage to Crops Runs Into Millions.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 3.—Ceaseless rain for seventy-two hours has placed nearly every river and smaller stream in the state at flood stage. Many are already overflowing and have inundated an enormous scope of territory in the southern, central and eastern portions of the state. Rain is still falling in torrents.

Scores of towns are partly under water, and scores of families are temporarily homeless. Flood conditions are serious in San Marcos, where many houses are under water. Temple, Holland and Orange are partly flooded.

MORE CRIME IN BOSTON.

Municipal Court Records Show an Apparent Increase.

Boston, Oct. 3.—An apparent increase in crime in Boston is shown by the establishment of a new record in the number of cases handled by the municipal court in a year.

For the year ended Sept. 30, according to the report filed by the clerk of the court with the prison commission, the total of these cases was 53,211 as compared with 46,758 in the previous year. The increase was most marked in drunkenness, automobile law violations and cases of assault and battery. Robberies and breaking and entering fell off somewhat.

3,237,351 Bales of Cotton Ginned.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Cotton of the growth of 1913, ginned prior to Sept 25, amounted to 3,237,351 bales, the census bureau announced today. Round bales included 27,324. Bales of Sea Island cotton numbered 10,555.

PROCTOR'S GOOD SHOW.

The five acts which comprise the vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre, this week, are all headliners and that it is a pleasing one was shown by the big crowds that filled the popular playhouse yesterday. Perry's Minstreal Maids top the bill, presenting a complete minstrel first part. The songs are fine, the jokes both old and new and the dancing is well received. The interlocutor is especially prepossessing and she has a fine voice. Allen & Burt, in "The Essence of Refineness," make a hit in song and dance; Baker, Lynn & Co., in a farcical sketch, "The Electric Boy," is a live wire of fun; Kraemer & Ross are a clever dancing team, while the Two Harringtons are aerial marvels.

IN BOROUGH COURT.

Oscar Waldron, 30 years old, of 8 Harmony street, and John Colebern, 62 years old, of Dog Corner, received suspended sentences of $5 fine each, this morning, when arraigned before Recorder Gano in the borough court on a charge of being intoxicated. They were arrested last night by Marshal Pope.

THEY CALL IT JUSTICE.

Let those carpers who say that justice never overtakes the wicked hereafter hold their peace. Max Blanck, one of the proprietors of the shirtwaist factory in the Triangle building in New York, who locked the doors of his workroom in defiance of law and thereby contributed to the loss of 140 lives, has been found guilty. An outraged justice has fined him $50! The coroner's jury in the Binghamton factory fire, on July 22, in which 32 lives were lost, rendered a verdict the other day which does not definitely fix the cause or blame for the fire, but "the fire escapes were inadequate, the wooden building and wooden stairways were highly inflammable and everything in the best shape for a fire." And there you are! When another fire of the kind occurs, and innocent working girls are burned and slaughtered, the country will raise its hands in horror, demand the punishment of the responsible party or parties—as in railroad wrecks—and there it will end.

In line with its policy of introducing enterprising features in local newspaper work, the Daily Press last fall furnished the assembled crowds of fans with the first news of the world's series, play by play, during each game. The plays were reported with the aid of a large megaphone and excellent wire service in our office. The Daily Press, moreover, was the first on the street with a satisfactory detailed report of the games including the box scores. Others may be compelled to follow, as is expected in this as in other features we have introduced, but the Daily Press will be depended upon to give the best service in all respects.

One of the boys who have been guilty of stealing newspapers from doorsteps was fined in police court yesterday. This should serve as a lesson to youths of his type. The practise is one not only annoying to the newspaper concern and the newsdealer but to the patrons who are robbed of the day's news.

Local suffragists would have Plainfield merchants close their stores while the "Votes for Women" army parades Newark streets. Now, where is the Anti who would be cruel enough to say that such a thing would be in celebration over their absence?

Everett Colby, father of the New Idea in New Jersey politics and the Progressive party's Gubernatorial nominee, addressed an open air meeting at Park avenue and Second street this afternoon. A few months hence we hope to have him visit Plainfield as Governor Colby.

The English clergyman who says that English women are losing their beauty might make a trip to this country if he seeks real feminine loveliness.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will be the contributing editor for Saturday's issue.

We are a trifle late but none the less sincere in wishing out Hebrew friends a Happy New Year.

It's dollars to doughnuts that Hammerstein will be Mrs. Pankhurst's showman.

What Thaw stands in need of the most is a good strong dose of "Jersey Justice."

JEFFERY WILL ATTEND A MEETING OF PRESIDENTS

Movement was started sometime ago to organize a committee composed of the presidents of the Boards of Trade of towns along the line of the Jersey Central and the first definite move toward effecting this organization will be launched next Thursday night when a meeting has been called to be held in the Westfield Golf Club. President William Jeffery, of the local Board, has received an invitation from Arthur N. Pierson, who heads the Westfield body, and the local delegate has ac- The plan was originally suggested affiliated with the new plan.

The proposition will be discussed at a dinner to be held in the Westfield club and the project will be definitely disposed of at that time. PAY FIRE LOSS.

Through the insurance agency of Frederick A. Martin Co., settlement was made yesterday to Freeman Straight, of Warrenville, whose barn, two horses and farming implements were burned on Saturday September 27, and to William Johnson, whose barn near Mt. Horeb was ruined by fire on last Tuesday, September 30.

TO RESUME SERVICES.

Beginning Sunday afternoon and continuing throughout the fall and winter the 5 o'clock services will be resumed at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and beginning a week from Sunday, October 12, E. Metler Davis, organist, will resume the fifteen-minute organ recitals previous to the 5 o'clock service.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Miss Elizabeth Pound, daughter of Mrs. William A. McClurg, of West Seventh street, and Edward Fowler, of this city, will be married Tuesday evening, October 7, at the home of the bride-elect's mother. After a wedding trip the couple will reside at Jamaica, L. I.

THE MISSES MACK.

Daughters of Norman E. Mack Sailed For Europe Yesterday.

Photos by American Press Association.

Norman E. Mack, former chairman of the National Democratic committee, gave up politics long enough to see his daughters, Norma and Harriet, off for Europe yesterday. They sailed on the Hamburg American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria bound for Paris, where they will live on the Rue Gounod with a French family and study with a tutor. Norma is at top

SAID FELKER FAVORS THAW BE SENT BACK

Fugitive's Lawyers May Resort to Federal Writ.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 3.—Reports that Governor Felker will send Harry K. Thaw back to New York and others that he will send him back to Pennsylvania flew thick and fast here.

The excitement followed the supposed remark by the governor that "New Hampshire does not want a man like Thaw, and the sooner he is returned to Matteawan the better for all concerned."

The governor is supposed to have made this remark to a man close to him. He refused to discuss the case himself, reserving his decision until he has had time to peruse the briefs which the attorney for the two sides will file at the end of the week.

If the governor permits Thaw to be extradited the latter's lawyers will immediately have recourse to their federal writ of habeas corpus.

It was said that the brief of the Thaw attorneys would be filed with Governor Felker tomorrow. It is expected that William T. Jerome will file his brief late this week and that there will be no delay on the part of the governor in deciding the question.

WOMEN OPPOSE GARDNER.

Will Fight Bay State Candidate Who Is Against Suffrage.

Boston, Oct. 3.—Suffragists were preparing to make it as hot as possible for Augustus P. Gardner, Republican candidate for governor, who has announced his opposition to woman suffrage.

"Personally," said Mr. Gardner when asked to pass upon a plank in the platform favoring an amendment to the constitution which would give the ballot to women, "I shall not vote for woman suffrage if the question is referred to the people."

It is predicted that Mr. Gardner will be made uncomfortable in his campaign in view of the precedent three years ago, when a party of suffragists followed Lieutenant Governor Louis A. Frothingham, who headed the Republican state ticket, through Massachusetts and continually importuned him on the question of their political rights.

WILL TRY TO SOLVE BORO TAX PROBLEM

Major Carl Lentz Will Be Present Tonight to Try to Help Out of a Hole.

Steps will be taken at the October meeting of the Borough Council tonight to solve some of the tax problems that are confronting that municipality and it is expected that Major Carl Lentz, who has been retained by the Council, will be present to outline a plan of action which will doubtless be approved.

During the past year there has been a dispute between the Borough Council and the Somerset County Board of Taxation regarding tax assessments in the borough, and it being understood that there has been a disposition on the part of the county board to increase assessments, the Council proposes to take some action to protect the borough. Major Lentz is an expert in tax matters and what he will have to say tonight will doubtless be of great interest to the borough taxpayers.

BUILDING BUNGALOWS ON SHERMAN AVENUE

With the completion of three "English" and two "Colonial" cottages being built of hollow tile at Sherman Park by the Little Farms Company, together with the many new features that will accompany the structures, the immediate vicinity will embody all the features of an ideal residential section. A new street has been "cut" through the tract, to be known as Palmer avenue. The thoroughfare was named after the former owner of the property. The Plainfield Water Co. has laid its pipes and the P. S. has installed electric current to provide the improvements of up-to-date residences. The park fronts on Sherman avenue, between Monroe and Clinton avenue, and runs through to Tompkins avenue.

The dwellings will be surrounded by grounds one-half acre in size. One of the features will be a regulation sized tennis court on each estate, and in the yards will be planted fruit trees of several species; asparagus patches and currant and berry bushes.

The cottages are being constructed of the durable hollow tile, covered with cement stucco to match the exterior decorations. The pillars supporting the large porch roofs are being constructed of concrete and an architectural beauty will be added to the homes by a large roof over-hanging, with beams visible beneath the shingle roofs. The interior trim will be finished in Old English.

William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade, and head of the realty firm, will occupy one of the dwellings.

MISSIONS THE THEME OF A BAPTIST SOCIETY

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire on East Ninth street yesterday afternoon, many interesting papers being read and discussions followed each. The papers dealt with various phases of the work being carried on and advocated the promotion of the foreign interests during the coming season of work.

Mrs. D. M. Runyon presided and the following papers were read: "The Need of Women's Work in Missions," by Mrs. John Groendyke; "Opportunity and Obligation," by Mrs. Frederick Mulford, and "Near Neighbors in Far Lands," by Mrs. Robert Lowry.

New Hats at $5 to $9.50

An ostrich feather hat—a good looking one—is quite possible for $9.50.

Becoming turbans with pretty quills, attractive plaid tailored hats and soft, floppy hats, with crushed roses, are only a few instances of the good moderately priced millinery here.

At $5 a special collection of hats will be shown for the first time. Silk-faced velvet in a variety of shapes, trimmed with smart bows and feathers—styles one would never suspect of being so inexpensive.

Hats for School Girls and Children

Corduroy, velour, velvet, plush, chinchilla, are some of the materials.

Tyrolean shapes predominate.

Prices, $1.75 to $9. All colors. Inexpensive Millinery Salons, Second floor, Old Building.

The Gowns a Woman can Wear in the Evening for $16.50 and $22.50

She may have chiffon in pretty shades of pink or blue, simple white or dignified black, softly draped over lustrous messaline—and she need only pay $16.50 for the gown.

If she prefers a more conservative dress, we have one specially made for her. It is of charmeuse, with long, close-fitting sleeves, cut slightly low at the neck, and it has a pretty retrousse skirt draped over lace. $22.50. Second floor, Old Building.

Short Jackets and Long Coats—Both are Favored

Questions and Answers About Men's Suits

Q. What is more effectual than tariff changes in putting value into men's suits?

A. Effort and thought.

Q. Don't all makers of men's suits put effort and thought into their work?

New Store for Men

Q. Don't those tailors make suits for other retailers, too?

A. Not our kind of suits.

Q. What's the distinctiveness of your kind of suits?

A. Something you can see at first glance—the all-wool, the good feel of the cloth, the sensible pattern, the fine cut.

And something you've got to wait to find in the wearing—the continuing good appearance, the sturdy holding-up under daily wear.

At $16.50, Suits for Men and Young Men

PARTY PLATFORM OF REPUBLICANS

Many Current Issues Touched Upon and Position is Taken on Some of Them.

The following is the platform adopted by the Republican state convention:

We, the representatives of the Republican party, chosen according to law, in convention assembled, for the purpose of declaring our principles, under which we ask for the votes of the people of the state of New Jersey, declare as follows:

We invite the co-operation of all citizens who desire a state administration progressive and constructive in its character.

We earnestly appeal to the young men of the state to participate in this campaign and lend their influence for civic betterment.

All the progressive laws upon the statute books of New Jersey today were inaugurated under Republican administrations and extended from time to time by legislative amendment, largely through the effort of Republican legislators. We pledge ourselves to a continuance of these policies and to the strengthening of such laws when experience shows the need of improvement.

Economy and Efficiency.

We favor the reorganizing and remodeling of the various departments of the state government and the consolidation of existing departments in the interest of economy and efficiency and a nonpartisan businesslike administration of public affairs.

Public Works.

We favor the further development of New Jersey by establishing a comprehensive general plan for public improvement, including a complete system of public roads, whereby all main arteries of travel shall be maintained by the state, and the elimination of all toll roads, the early completion of inland waterways, the construction of a ship canal from the Delaware to the Hudson, state control of all watersheds so that the potable water supply may be free from corporate ownership, the preservation of our forests, the development of our seacoast resorts, the establishment of a system of docks in our large cities for the encouragement of shipping and the lowering of freight rates, the legislative treatment of sewage along scientific lines.

Protection of Human Life.

We favor the immediate protection of human life at existing grade crossings and, in addition, the gradual elimination of all grade crossings throughout the state

We believe that the work of the public utility commission should be enlarged and extended by the appointment of practical railroad men to act as inspectors and to report and advise with the commission in all matters pertaining to the regulation of railroad problems.

Election Laws.

We favor the revision of the present election laws which will simplify voting and reduce the unnecessarily increased expenses of the present system and at the same time strengthen the safeguards surrounding an honest ballot. Thousands of our citizens have been disfranchised by the present complicated, cumbersome and unsatisfactory election laws, and we pledge the people of New Jersey to correct the defects therein.

We favor a preferential system of voting at primaries, which will enable the voters in each party to select candidates favored by a majority of all the voters of such party.

We favor a shorter ballot by the separation of municipal and state elections.

Constitutional Revisions.

We believe that the state constitution should be flexible, and to that end we favor a constitutional amendment providing that amendments to the constitution may be submitted whenever the public needs may require.

We pledge ourselves to submit to the people the election of assemblymen by districts and the holding of state and municipal elections in alternate years.

Home Rule In Municipalities.

Too many laws are now enacted which, while general in character, regulate specifically minute details concerning the internal affairs of municipalities. We favor an amendment to the state constitution which will give to the municipalities a broader system of home rule under which there can be more government at home and less government from Trenton.

Woman Suffrage.

We promised last year to provide for the submission to the voters of the state of a constitutional amendment for the extension of the right of franchise to women. We renew the promise we made last year.

Education.

We favor a more practical system of education and the improvement of our educational laws, and believe that our present public school system can be carried on with greater efficiency, less expense and with more satisfaction to the people if more power be vested in the local boards of education and less power concentrated at Trenton.

State Normal School.

We pledge our efforts to the enactment of laws, when the finances of the state will warrant, which will make possible the establishment of two additional state normal schools, one to be located in one of the south Jersey counties and the other in north Jersey, and also the enactment of laws for the educational and industrial betterment of our colored citizens.

Industrial Reforms.

The laws pertaining to child labor and protecting those who labor were passed under Republican administrations. We favor the strict enforcement and we favor the strengthening of such laws by requiring employers to provide healthful conditions and to install safety devices, and we pledge ourselves to maintain and strengthen statutes preventing excessive hours of toil for women and children and for the maintenance of health and the prevention of occupational diseases and for the further enactment of laws providing for proper lighting and ventilation of tenement houses and the adoption of such other industrial reforms as shall be fair and equitable, including peace and more harmonious relations between employer and employee, along modern lines now in apparent successful operation in other countries.

Agriculture.

We favor the promotion of scientific agriculture and legislation and appropriations for the benefit of the farmers of the state.

Agricultural New Jersey is a land of unrivaled opportunity. It has already won recognition for the wealth and quality of its agricultural products, but such resources have scarcely been touched. In order to create taxable values, to transform the thousands of acres of undeveloped land into a region of agricultural progress and prosperity, in order to benefit the producer as well as the great mass of consumers, we must make production more efficient and transportation and distribution less costly.

High Cost of Living.

The high cost of living is a worldwide problem. Some of it is due to the individual standards of living. That the law cannot affect. Part of it is due to lack of training and knowledge. This can be relieved by scientific instruction, so as to produce more food per acre and unity of effort, by the encouragement of co-operative societies and municipal markets, to bring the producer and consumer in closer contact.

To this end we pledge ourselves to the enactment of laws that will open wide the door of opportunity to the farmer of New Jersey by providing agricultural education accessible to all who have it. We pledge ourselves to the enactment of such laws as will encourage soil improvement and legislation that will make our trolley system a more vital factor in rural prosperity and thus reduce the cost of commodities in the market by lessening the cost of transportation.

Publicity of State Finances.

We pledge ourselves to a policy of the strictest economy in the management of our state departments and the submission of a budget by the comptroller's department in time for a thorough discussion of the same by the public and members of the legislature before the passage of the appropriation bills. We recognize the tremendous burdens of growing taxation, and we pledge ourselves to give the voters greater power, both in supervision and veto, over local expenditure.

Insurance Monopoly.

We favor any necessary amendments to the Ramsey insurance rate law which will prevent a state insurance monopoly.

Revision of Lunacy Law.

The lunacy act, passed by the last Democratic legislature, is unsatisfactory and imposes unnecessary burdens upon the public. We favor a complete revision of this law.

Taxation.

We favor a more effective method of the administration of our tax laws to equalize valuations and assessments, not only as between individuals, but as between the taxing districts of the state.

Uniform System of Accounts.

We favor legislation requiring the installation of a uniform system of accounting for municipalities and counties of this state.

Civil Service.

The Democratic party has covertly attacked the civil service system, both by attempted legislation and administrative subterfuge. We pledge ourselves to uphold and extend the principles of civil service.

Corporate Problems.

We favor the solution of the corporation problems which will result in the punishment of the guilty without punishing the innocent, and we hold that a policy which drives legitimate business enterprises from the state of New Jersey is neither statesmanship nor reform; it is destruction. We favor the enactment of laws which will attract industrial enterprises to our state.

Prompt Distribution of Laws.

The Republican party stands for a businesslike administration, for a simplification and codification of our laws and the prompt printing and distribution of our pamphlet laws at the close of the legislative session.

National Problems.

In national affairs we favor a change in the system of electing delegates to the Republican national convention, so that representation herein shall be based upon the number of Republican votes cast and not upon population. The Republican party stands for a tariff based upon the principle of protection, with a duty sufficient to cover the difference between the cost of production here and abroad, which can only be established by scientific investigation by a nonpartisan tariff board.

New Jersey ranks third among the states of the Union in the proportion of industrial wage earners to population. These workers are the market of the farmer and the merchant. They cannot buy without wages, and their wages will be injuriously affected by the Democratic tariff, which is based upon the Democratic doctrine that protection is unconstitutional.

Democratic Incompetency.

The Democratic party has utterly failed to keep its pledges to the people. It has played politics with the jury system of the state; it has been compelled to call extra sessions of the legislature to remedy its own blunders; it has made laws which have driven law abiding business enterprises from our state; it has used the direct primaries, not as an instrument to serve the popular will, but as a means for the furthering of the personal ambition of the Democratic bosses, and it has by neglect of official duty delayed the submission of constitutional amendments to the voters of the state.

State Tax.

By legislation enacted during the last session the Democratic legislature has decreased the income of the state and at the same time increased the appropriations, so that when those appropriations shall have been expended there will be a deficit of $750,000 in the state treasury, and no provision has been made for income from any other sources to make up this deficiency. As a result of this destructive policy of financing, there is imminent danger of a direct state tax. This is one of the glaring examples of the utter incapacity of the Democratic party to conduct the affairs of the state on a businesslike basis.

Federal Mismanagement.

In national affairs the Democratic party has confessed its inability to protect the lives and property of American citizens and missionaries in foreign lands; it has dethroned "King Caucus" and made it a dictator of legislation to the exclusion of deliberation and debate; it has denied the right of petition to those whose business and occupation are threatened by legislative injustice; it has failed in its promise to reduce the cost of living; it has made the great questions of tariff and currency footballs of politics, and secret conferences have been substituted for open door methods.

Service.

The gospel of humanity should constitute part of the mission of the state. The elevation of mankind is the aspiration of the age. The object of constructive statesmanship is to promote the welfare of the people and the betterment of the conditions under which each individual lives and labors. The good of the people is the highest law of progress. Equality of opportunity and perfection are the sacred rights of every person, and that government is best and safest and most enduring which guarantees to every individual the largest opportunity to make the most of his capacities, while restraining him from intrenching upon the rights of others who are striving to accomplish the same purpose. Let justice and equality before the law crown the prosperity of the commonwealth.

SENATOR MARTINE IS NOT INSURGENT

Explains His Action in Signing Call for Currency Bill Caucus.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—Senator Martine, who joined in signing the call for a Democratic caucus on the tariff conference report, denies that he is an insurgent or that he has any particular grievance in connection with the conference committee's work.

"Senator Reed, who was dissatisfied with some of the changes made in the Senate bill, asked me to sign my name to the call, and I did so very gladly," said Senator Martine, in explanation of his action. "If there are any Democratic differences over the tariff, the caucus, in my opinion, is the proper place to thresh them out."

The senior Senator from New Jersey is not, however, of the opinion that the currency bill should be made a caucus measure. To this extent, at least, he is opposed to the President, who thinks it should be.

"I have no doubt that a currency bill will be passed," said Senator Martine yesterday, "and I believe it will be a good and satisfactory bill. There should be, however, no unseemly haste in its passage. The subject is too important to justify any attempt at anything like 'railroading' such a bill to passage. Nor do I think it should be a caucus measure. The only way we could get a tariff revision was by caucus action, because it was a partisan measure. There is nothing partisan in the currency and banking question. Republicans, in the main, are as anxious for currency legislation as any of us.

"There is no indication of any desire to throttle or improperly delay action, and I do not think there should be anything done that will prevent full and free discussion, so that the Senate may act intelligently and every Senator be permitted to vote his convictions."

CONGREGATIONALISTS WILL MEET AT ANOTHER EDIFICE

The members of the Congregational church, who have been worshipping in the Hartridge Auditorium during September on account of building operations in their edifice, will, beginning next Sunday, meet in the Seventh-day Baptist church, Central avenue and West Fifth street, and will meet there until further notice. The morning service will begin at 10.30 o'clock and the Sunday-school will meet at 11.50 o'clock. The subject of the sermon on Sunday morning will be "Achsah and Her Choice." It is hoped that the congregation will be able to return to its church by November 1.

AGED MAN SENTENCED TO PRISON TERM FOR FORGERY

F. C. Kimball, an elderly man giving his residence as Newark, was arraigned in the Somerset County Court at Somerville this morning and sentenced to serve a term of not more than seven years and not less than one year for a forgery which was alleged to have been committed in this city. Kimball was arraigned in Somerville some time ago and waived a jury trial on the charge and a plea for clemency was entered because of his advanced age.

The accused was arrested while trying to pass a worthless check on Charles Jensen, of North Plainfield, on October 1. He had forged the name of William F. Walters, formerly of this city but now of Frenchtown, to the note which was drawn on a trust company for $17.50.

FATHER BOGAN SPOKE AT HIBERNIANS' RALLY

Elizabeth, Oct. 3.—Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's R. C. church, Plainfield, was one of the principal speakers at a big rally of the Ancient Order Hibernians of Union county held in Sacred Heart School Hall, here, last night. During the course of his address he told how the organizations was formed and emphasized the principles for which it stands. He reviewed the history of the order from its inception to the present time.

More than 500 members of the order were present at the rally, including a large delegation of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Father Bogan was accompanied by a large delegation of Plainfield members. Among the other speakers were John J. Gascoyne, of Newark; E. R. Hayes, of New Brunswick; Rev. William T. McLaughlin, of Jersey City; Gen. Dennis F. Collins and Judge James C. Connolly, of this city.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 14.

OUT in Chicago, according to a dispatch printed in the newspapers, a woman became so angered when thieves visited her coop and stole 20 chickens that she advertised for the culprits to come back and take the 12 she had left.

They did.

Oh, there's no telling what advertising will accomplish!

Which reminds me of the story of the hen that, after watching the pigeons make their graceful flights from the top of the henhouse until she grew envious of their skill, concluded that she, too, could fly with equal success if she could only get up on the henhouse so as to make the right kind of a start.

After many strenuous efforts, she finally gained the desired elevation, squawked, flapped her wings and made the plunge. She turned seven somersaults, struck on her neck and broke it in two places.

The moral of the first story is that advertising is a force with which it doesn't pay to trifle, and of the second, that skill, knowledge and ability are as essential as opportunity to the man who would accomplish what others have accomplished through publicity.

Before you advertise, be sure that you can deliver the goods. Newspaper advertising is a mighty force in bringing to your door the people who want what you have advertised.

But newspaper advertising isn't worth a continental hurrah to the advertiser who either can't or won't live up to his printed claims.

When you get ready to jump from the top of the henhouse, Mr. Merchant-About-to-Advertise, be sure that your wings are built to fly and that they are in good working order.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Among the big Charles Frohman successes on Broadway is William Collier in "Who's Who" at the Criterion Theatre, Broadway and 44th street, which has more laughs to the minute than any farce in years. Richard Harding Davis, author of "The Dictator," is responsible for the two hours scream. John Drew is appearing in a double bill at the Empire Theatre, Broadway and 49th street, "The Will," by J. M. Barrie, and Chambers' celebrated comedy, "The Tyranny of Tears." At the Globe Theatre, Richard Carle and Hattie Williams, with 100 fun-making auxiliaries, are presenting for the second month that best of musical comedies, with rich melody, dancing and fun girls, "The Doll Girl." Donald Brian is to be seen in the latest musical triumph of New York and London, "The Marriage Market," at the Knickerbocker Theatre, Broadway and 38th street. It is more popular than "The Merry Widow," and five times as lively. Grace George is filling the Lyceum at each performance with her double bill, "Half and Hour," by J. M. Barrie, and "The Younger Generation," by Stanley Houghton. As the World says, they are two strong dramas superbly acted.

Miss Elizabeth Goddard, of East Ninth street, is a member of the faculty of Wilson College, Chambersburg, Penn., acting as instructor in music.

Alexander Sternberg, of Newark, spent the day in the city.

J. R. Jeffers has removed from 833 to 724 West Third street.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Women's Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-day Baptist church at its meeting on Wednesday elected these officers for the year: President, Mrs. William C. Hubbard; vice-president, Mrs. Sarah Wardner; recording secretary, Mrs. C. W. Spicer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Edwin Shaw; treasurer, Mrs. F. A. Dunham.

The first fall meeting of the Men's Association of Warren chapel will be held at the chapel this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Reverend William S. McCoy, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, has announced his resignation to become effective on the first day of December. With the withdrawal of Mr. McCoy the community will lose a valuable citizen, and the church in Plainfield a devoted priest. Mr. McCoy has been active in all interests, civic and religious, in the city, and throughout the entire diocese. At Grace church he will be especially missed. He was always a gracious, kindly and sympathetic neighbor, working always for the larger and not the narrower good. His like in character and personality is not too common. We trust that Mr. McCoy's future will be filled with the happiness and success he so genuinely deserves.—From Our Work (Grace Church Parish Monthly.)

The Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters will hold its first fall meeting at the residence of Mrs. R. W. Barnes, 22 Mountain avenue, Thursday afternoon, October 9, at 4 o'clock. The members are requested to note the place of meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Following the custom that originated with the opening of the new High School building, the lunch counter in the basement will be started again this term. A light luncheon can be had at the counter between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock every day. This is for the convenience of the numerous students in the upper school who live a long distance from the institution or who have to remain over to take freshman subjects in the afternoon.

The High School orchestra has been reorganized and regular practices are being conducted every Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, under the directorship of Mrs. J. C. Evans, who organized the musical club last year. Many new instrumentalists have made their appearance and the orchestra will be larger than ever this year.

Football practice was interrupted for the first time yesterday by the appearance of Jupiter Pluvius. Coach Patch called a halt in the drills which will be resumed at Parker Field this afternoon.

The new football jerseys and stockings arrived this morning and a dozen fellows have been outfitted for the coming gridiron season. The jerseys are blue with a red band and the stockings are of a similar color.

Two former High School athletes, Herman Rosenson and James Dunwell, are taking an active interest in the football practices and have been attending the drills as associate coaches. Both of the veterans have a lot of praise for their successors and say the team will be a notable successor to last year's strong aggregation.

Miss Millwood Lutz and Joseph Carty, two graduates of the High School, returned to their alma mater this morning to renew old acquaintances.

Miss Myra Burrage, who was the High School instructor in German last year and who is now teaching in the New York Public Schools, is visiting friends in Plainfield over the week-end.

A number of High School athletes are taking an active interest in the Jack Martin day celebration to be held by the Plainfield fans on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. Jack coached the P. H. S. ball nine last season and will do the work again this spring in all probability.

The P. H. S. racquet wielders who qualified for the third round of play in the interscholastic tennis tourney at the Plainfield Country Club last Saturday have been practicing all week for the renewal of play tomorrow on the same courts and the red and blue representatives hope to hold the title which they won last year.

Owoing to the unfinished condition of the new schoolwing, the basketball games with other school fives will be played on the Y. M. C. A. court this year. This floor is a favorite with the High School players and the team will be able to show to a much better advantage on the larger and better equipped court.

Agitation is rife in the school for reorganization of the girls' field hockey team which proved so popular last year. Miss Helen Brynairski was captain of the 1912 squad and a successor to her will probably be elected and practice started at once.

James Buckle, a member of last year's sophomore class and baseball team, who intended to enter school a few weeks after the term started this year has abandoned the idea and is still working in New York. Buckle was a likely aspirant to a place on both the basketball and baseball teams this year.

The Freshman number of the Oracle will probably make its appearance next Wednesday. The editors are working hard to get it out on the regular date.

STATE ENDEAVORERS IN ANNUAL SESSION

New Jersey Societies Gathered at Camden Get Greetings From Founder.

Camden, Oct. 3.—Following last night's meeting of the New Jersey State Christian Endeavor Union, in session at the Calvary Presbyterian church here, a reception was tendered to the delegates by the Camden committee.

Greetings from Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the organization, were read to the delegates during the day. From General Secretary William Shaw a message was received and a response was made by State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington.

Mr. Sproull gave a brief talk on "Christian Endeavor Efficiency Experts." He told of his success in raising to a higher standard the work done in the movement in the last year. Mr. Sproull, who is president of the Coal and Iron National Bank of New York, and one of the principal advocates of the movement, is the father of the efficiency plan, and his efforts received the commendation of the delegates.

Miss Mae Hice, of Flemington; Mrs. G. D. Baker, of Jersey City, and Rev. J. Madison Hare, also of Jersey City, spoke briefly on men's work in the junior, intermediate and Bible study departments.

Henry Marshall, superintendent of the fresh air department, made a plea to carry on the work among the poor. The sum of $3,330 was expended during the year and 1,230 children were afforded summer vacations at the various seashore and county homes of the society during the past summer.

The scope of good work, Mr. Marshall said, had extended all over the State and a campaign for next year was already under way. In his closing remarks Mr. Marshall urged the delegates to make efforts to enlarge the fresh air field of work.

Rev. J. J. Adams, of Red Bank, spoke on "Work Among Our Colored Societies."

Reports from the missionary field were made by the superintendent, Miss Margaret H. Logan, of New York. Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, superintendent of press and information, was unable to be present, but sent a letter telling of his efforts to give the movement Statewide publicity.

Two of the addresses yesterday afternoon were by George Innes, of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and Rev. Dr. W. P. Shriver, on "Immigration."

Junior and intermediate work will be the theme for this afternoon. Miss Mae Hice, Mrs. G. D. Baker and their assistants, Mrs. A. Brownlee, Miss Emilie Edwards and Miss Elinor R. Gebhardt, have prepared the program. An exercise, "Weights and Wings," will be presented by intermediates of the United Presbyterian church, Paterson, of which society Miss Edwards is superintendent. This society under Miss Edwards' leadership was able to reach the 100 per cent. goal in the United Society's Efficiency Campaign, receiving special mention at the recent Los Angeles convention as being the first intermediate society in the country to pass the test. Three of the young men of this society have decided to make the ministry their life work, and will take up their studies this fall.

HELD A MEETING.

The Chamber of Commerce met last night in W. S. Angleman's law office on Park avenue. A committee on the garbage question made a report and promised to have the data ready to present to the civic organization at the next meeting which will be held next month. The committee on lights also reported.

The Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will hold its first fall meeting in the parish house, Thursday night, October 9.

MANY FREAK BETS ON WORLD'S SERIES.

Freak betting on the world's series between the New York Giants and Philadelphia Athletics is now in order. Few wagers have been made on the outcome of the big series. Some of the bets that have been recorded are as follows:

Even money on the Giants and Athletics.

Two to one that Bender does not win one game.

Four to one that Bender does not win two games.

Seven to five that Mathewson does not win one game.

Three to one that Mathewson does not win two games.

Twenty-five to one that the series goes over four games.

Two to one that the series does not go seven games.

One hundred to one that the Giants do not win four straight.

One hundred to one that the Athletics do not win four straight.

In New York one bet was recorded at odds of 4 to 5 that Mathewson would pitch the first game. Another bet was reported at even money that Demaree would win his first game.

A third bet was that the series would go six games. This bet was also at even money. One Giant enthusiast offered 1 to 4 that the Giants would win the first three games, but found no takers.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will you please tell me if the Daily Press is going to have a man describe each play of the world's series this year as it comes over the wire?—A. B. U. G.

Answer—Surest thing you know.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is "undertakers' chowder?"—K. L.

Answer—Well, we should imagine that toadstool soup would come under this head.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the premium on a half dollar dated 1826?—J. N. C.

Answer—There is no premium on your coin.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are there any fish in the lake in the notch?—T. P. B.

Answer—Not enough to make an extensive fishing trip worth while. There are a few of the finny tribe there, however, and occasionally one is hooked.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any chance of an outsider becoming a member of the Ajax basketball team?—F. O.

Answer—All the chance in the world. Present your credentials, old man.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is Jack Martin slated to go back to the Rochester team next season or will he go on the training trip with the Boston Nationals?—F. D. S.

Answer—If he looks good to Stallings during this week, the Brave manager will probably take him along next spring.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Has the Plainfield High School football team got any open dates and would the High School managers fill such vacancies with local elevens?—B. B.

Answer—Three dates are open but it is not likely that he will book games with local teams with the possible exception of Holy Cross.

"MAC" SAYS

EASY MONEY.

The ump had chased him from the game and yet he did not care.
He made his way across the yard with glad and jaunty air
Couth he: "Why toil and swelter in a long and dusty game
When I can loaf all day and draw my stipend just the same.

Have you affixed that John Hancock of yours to the Martin contribution list? Well, if you haven't you better take advantage of the last opportunity. The polls close today and the big event comes off tomorrow afternoon.

Tomorrow's exhibition will pull the lid down on 1913 baseball in this burg. But the fans still have the World Series to think about and that is pretty nearly as important as the Somerville-Plainfield clash.

Some fans have begun to wonder if Jack Martin really is in Boston. The Plainfield product has not been heard from since he left for the bean town.

Now that it is time to can white shoes and because overcoats are ripe, it is about time the horsehide 'ingers gave way to the onrush o' the pigskin tossers. Hope chapel and the West End contingent will put a grand finale on the season tomorrow afternoon.

Some fan ventured the question: "Will you be able to do enough for Martin to make it worth while to tramp out to Parker Field?" I should be annoyed and smoke a dill pickle.

Joe Harter's idiocyncrasies will be viewed by an International League scout tomorrow. Simmons has announced that he is coming to Plainfield again for the express purpose of getting another look at the Plainfield centrefielder.

A number of these scouts have taken several looks at Joe, but that is all the good it has done them. Harter will never enter professional baseball while he has two hands to hold down a "regular" job, and after that—

Simmons has furthered stated that the International Leaguers will not conclude their week end trip this time by visiting New Brunswick. He says that the climate in that section does not agree with his men.

Have you run across any friend of yours to date who has not offered you a "sure shot" on the world's series? If you find any human being who will.

To get the world's series winner is one thing. How to get it is another. He who picks one or the other team because he favors the club in question, may be content, but the experts would never be satisfied to reach their conclusions in that manner.

No pennant winner is any stronger than its weakest coin flipper.

Those fans who object to paying $9 for the best reserved seats for three games are the same chaps who a month ago declared they would see the series "at any price."

Here's a quartet who can't lose in the world's series: Klem, Rigler, Connolly and Egan, the umpires.

The world's series elgibility list brought out the fact that several players who we thought were dropped long ago, are still sticking with the ship.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Harvard and Pennsylvania have not met on the gridiron since 1905, when Penn won 12 to 6.

Tufts College squad looks good this Fall, having the most promising material in many years.

"Pie" Way, now playing at Yale, was a member of the baseball, football and track teams while attending Exeter Academy.

Penncok, Harvard's right guard, now out of the game because of an injury, did not miss a practice or a game in 1912.

"Andy" Smith, formerly head coach at Pennsylvania, is now in charge of the Perdue University squad at Lafayette, Ind.

Yale has now scored 1,826 points to 12 for Wesleyan in the forty-one games which the two Connecticut colleges have played.

The first bit of gloom that fell on the Illinois football camp was the report that Madison would not return as tackle on the Illinois eleven.

Joe Wheelock, the famous Carlisle star of other years, is playing end for Lebanon Valley. Evidently Lebanon Valley plays them to a ripe old age.

Advertise in the Daily Press—it brings results.

LOCAL FANS CAN PUT ONE OVER ON THE NATIONAL COMMISSION.

Why spend nine dollars for a ticket to the world series when you can hear every play described and know just what is going on in New York and Philadelphia a few seconds after it happens, without spending a cent for carefare and without having to worry about getting a seat behind the catcher or first baseman, through the service the Daily Press has offered for the big show? By means of the system inaugurated by this paper for the furnishing of detailed information concerning the series you can be in back of every play.

Everything will be shown except the players and the deep bass voice of the umpire and the shouts of rabid fans as the game sways one way or another will all be supplied. The hundreds of fans who took advantage of the exclusive service of the Daily Press last year are all looking forward to another five or six days of the same kind of enjoyment and the Daily Press has a surprise in store for everyone this time.

BASEBALL NOTES

New Yorkers declare that Harry Williams, the Yankee first baseman, has bigger hands than the "flippers" Honus Wagner carries around with him.

In a recent game in Boston, Pitcher Wyckoff, of the Athletics, issued 12 passes, hit a batsman, was touched up for 10 hits, and yet copped the game 10 to 9.

Pitcher Claude Hendrix, of the Pirates, is organizing a team of National Leaguers for a barnstorming tour through Kansas after the close of the big show.

If Manager Rickey can land a few regular ball players to help out his classy pitching staff, the Browns may be mentioned in the newspapers next season.

St. Paul is the only team in the American Association, and Baltimore the only team in the International League, not affiliated with the Baseball Players' Fraternity.

The Lowell team received a royal greeting on its return home after the victory over Hartford in the post-season series for the minor league championship of New England.

"Connie Mack has scouts daily watching the Giants play to get a line on their style," says a baseball scribe. Whatdayu mean by style? The fancy-trimmed uniforms or the noisy coats?

If there was ever a "contrary" team in baseball the White Sox have earned that title. The Callahans can play the champion Athletics to a standstill, and then curl up and fade away when they meet a bunch of sand-lotters.

Boston fans were disappointed on learning that the post-season series between the Red Sox and the Braves had been called off. The Braves made quite a hit in the Hub this season and the Bugs were anxious to see them perform against the Sox.

DUNELLEN FOOTBALL.

The Monarch A. C., a strong football club of Dunellen, will lineup against the Somerville High School eleven tomorrow afternoon in the opening game of the gridiron season. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on the Dunellen field.

—The store ad that carries money-saving facts becomes, at once, "popular reading matter."

"MARTIN DAY" AT PARKER FIELD WITH THE STARS AS OPPONENTS

"Martin Day" will be celebrated with all the pomp and splendor of a world series match at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, when Jack Martin, Plainfield's best contribution to organized baseball, will be presented with a silver loving cup secured through the efforts of this paper. At a meeting of the committee in the Daily Press office last night, it was decided to purchase a silver loving cup with the fund raised by subscription and the trophy will be presented to Jack by former City Judge William N. Runyon the first time he steps to the plate tomorrow afternoon. Martin is away now and will not return to Plainfield until tomorrow morning and is entirely in ignorance of the plan to honor him.

Tomorrow's game will be the final one of the series and the International Leaguers who defeated Plainfield last week will have to face the shoots of Harry Jennings, the former Rutgers College heaver, on the second occasion. The International Stars have not been scored on in the two games they have played on their barnstorming trip and the Queen City combination expects to shatter this enviable record tomorrow. Jennings' appearance on the mound will materially strengthen the combination and the Plainfielders' chances will soar at least fifty per cent. with a heaver of his calibre to serve them over.

Billy Lush, one of the veteran National League pitchers, will appear on the mound for the hard hitting Stars, but it is doubtful if he can eclipse the great work of Rysiegel here last week, when the latter let Plainfield down with a quartet of bingles. Both teams will have the same lineups that they presented last week with the exception of the moundsmen and the new addition to the local nine will probably tend to make the contest interesting.

Lineups:

Plainfield—Harter, cf; W. Stallings, 2b; Carlstrom, ss; Luyster, rf; Bruggy, 1b; Craig, 3b; E. Stallings, 1b; Nelson, c; Jennings, p.

All Stars—Eschen, cf; Breen, 2b; Hanford, lf; Simmons, 3b; Gordon, 1b; Martin, ss; Rysiegel, rf; Jackolitz, c; Lush, p.

Umpire—O'Rourke.

WHAT A NEWARK BASEBALL WRITER THINKS OF OUR "MARTIN DAY" IDEA.

"Plainfield is going to do the right thing by Jack Martin. The youngster who held down the short field position for Rochester, during the past season, and who was drafted by the Boston Nationals, is to be honored by Plainfield fans on Saturday. Martin is a native of Plainfield and the followers of the game in that town are raising a fund by popular subscription for the purpose of securing a silver loving cup for him. The player will perform with an aggregation of International League players against the Plainfield team, champion of the Central New Jersey League and of which Martin was once a member.

Martin jumped into the limelight while performing on the diamond for Plainfield and his work attracted the attention of many big league scouts. When George Stallings was manager of the Newark Indians, Martin reported here, but was never given a chance to display his worth, nor was he tendered a contract. Martin later signed with the New York Americans and played with the Yankees and the Hustlers since that time. He is considered an excellent fielder and a timely hitter. He was turned over to Rochester last Spring by the Yankees and became the property of the Hustlers. When the Hustlers and Yankees decided to end their agreement for the interchange of players, Manager John Ganzel, of the Hustlers, hooked up with the Boston Nationals. Boston put in a draft for several Rochester players and when the draft was decided in favor of Boston, Stallings picked Martin. Martin will likely be used at third base by the Hub team, as Maranville is apparently a fixture at shortstop for the Stallings aggregation."

Holy Cross will open the local football season with a blare of trumpets and tooting of thirty brass horns on Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon, when the churchboys open the gridiron game by lining up against the Pearl A. C., of Elizabeth. The Betsytowners are coming to the borough with a lineup that will bulge with padding and are confident of taking the wearers of the red and white into camp with ease. The Holy Cross combination is equally as confident and expect to uphold their reputation as State champions and smear the visitors.

Many new faces appear in the churchboys' lineup and the new additions are the kind that add greatly to the playing strength of the team. This is the initial contest for the boroughites and they are hopeful of making their best showing as a starter. The eleven is heavier than last year and while many of the veterans have returned to the fold they are all having their hands full to maintain their old positions.

Previous to the game the team members and their friends will parade around town with the Dutch Arms band leading the procession and the band will render musical strains during the time the contest is in progress, including funeral numbers and triumphant marches. The parade will form at Second street and Park avenue and march east to Watchung avenue, then north to Front street, then west to Giraud avenue and north to the field. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock.

The final practise will be called tonight on the field at Seventh and Centre streets and the eighteen candidates are all requested to be on hand at that time. Another preliminary drill will be run off previous to the parade tomorrow afternoon which will be the final one before the opening battle.

DRISCOLL IS MANAGER FOR COBB AND JOHNSON

Dave Driscoll, formerly captain of the Plainfield baseball team, will lead an all-Star combination against the T. A. B. team, of Elizabeth, Sunday afternoon, and included in his lineup will be Ty Cobb, the greatest of baseball players. While one of Driscoll's teams is performing at Elizabeth, his second aggregation will be playing in Schenectady, N. Y., with Walter Johnson on the mound.

The nine playing in New York State is known as the All-American team and will play at Elizabeth against the Tabs a week from next Sunday. Driscoll has handled these games for Johnson and Cobb for the past three seasons and has played before large crowds in every instance.

BLOOMER GIRLS AT THE 'PLAINS NEXT SUNDAY

As announced in this paper the first part of the week, Scotch Plains will play the Bloomer Girls baseball team of New York on the 'Plains diamond Sunday afternoon in a contest that has been pending for some time. They were scheduled to appear at the 'Plains two weeks ago but rain prevented the playing of the game and the contest was postponed until this Sunday.

Unlike numerous feminine nines, this one is heralded as a combination of genuine players, and will probably make the home nine go the limit to win. The playing field at Scotch Plains will be enclosed by a canvas fence which the female team carries with it.

RUTGERS ATHLETES ELECT LOCAL BOY

Harry B. Smith, Assistant Cheer Leader for the Gridiron Games.

New Brunswick, Oct. 3.—When the Rutgers football team opens its season at home tomorrow afternoon it will be given one of the greatest welcomes that has ever greeted a gridiron band of the Old Dutch College. According to plans which were made yesterday afternoon, following the election of Howard Gaipa, of Jersey City, as head cheer leader, the spirit to be shown on Neilson Field tomorrow, when the scarlet eleven lines up against the team from Union University, will be unparalled in the annals of Rutgers football history.

Cheer Leader Gaipa and Assistant Cheer Leader Harry B. Smith, of Plainfield; John H. Green, of Jersey City, and Ned Howlett, of Bloomfield, have arranged for a parade of the student body through the streets of New Brunswick, headed by a band of fifteen pieces. The parade will take place before the game, starting at 2.15 o'clock.

PASTOR CHARGED WITH MISCONDUCT

Say He Had Young Girl Sitting In His Lap.

HE DENIES ACCUSATION.

Four Parishioners Claim They Found Minister and Girl In an Empty Passenger Car on a Siding—Her Father, It Is Said, Will Express Confidence In Pastor.

Manasquan, N. J., Oct. 3.—The Rev. Halleck F. Schanck, pastor of the First Methodist church here, faces the charge that he had been surprised by four fellow townsmen holding Sarah Foreman, a sixteen-year-old Sunday school teacher of his flock, on his lap in a deserted passenger car. He will deny the charge.

The minister was called to appear before the trustees of the church to explain the incident, which has stirred the residents of half a score of nearby villages, where Miss Foreman is well known.

Thomas Ryan, Austin Newbury, Harry Mount and Joel Parker are the clergyman's accusers. They claim that they followed him last Friday evening from Manasquan to the Asbury Park cloak store where the girl is employed. From the store, they say, the pair went to Sea Girt and, after a long walk, entered an empty passenger car on a siding.

The accusers claim they burst into the car, at the same time lighting matches, and found the minister with the girl on his lap.

Mr. Schanck has denied the charges, and the father of the girl, it is said, will express confidence in the pastor at the hearing. The girl's mother is ill at her home as a result of the charges against the minister and her daughter.

SHE'S A WILDGOOSE NOW.

Miss Margaret De Hart Is the Bride of One of the Flock.

Franklin Park, N. J., Oct. 3.—Robert Wildgoose of Livingston avenue, New Brunswick, N. J., and Miss Margaret De Hart were married at the bride's home here.

The bridegroom is one of fourteen children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wildgoose, Sr. Counting Robert, eleven have taken unto themselves wives or husbands, and each of the remaining three is engaged—Herbert Wildgoose to Miss Barbara Bauer in Lindenau, N. J.; Andrew Wildgoose to Miss Grace Serviss of Franklin Park and Miss Lillian Wildgoose to Herbert De Hart, a brother of the bride.

The Rev. Eugene H. Keater, pastor of the Franklin Park Reformed church, performed the ceremony. Andrew Wildgoose was his brother's best man.

MRS. PAYNE, JR., ROBBED.

New York Congressman's Daughter-in-law Loses Gems at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 3.—A sneak thief entered the room of Mrs. Sereno E. Payne, Jr., daughter-in-law of the well known New York state congressman, who is staying at a beach front hotel, and got away with several valuable jewels and heirlooms, it was learned. An alligator handbag in which the articles were kept was slashed open, and the contents were removed.

The thief had little time in which to work, but he succeeded in rifling every drawer in the room. As far as known he secured only a few hundred dollars' worth of plunder, evidently being scared off by a guest passing in the corridor before he could make a complete search. The police are working on the case, but have made no arrest yet.

GIRL KILLED BY TRAIN.

Raised Umbrella Prevents Her Seeing Fast Approaching Express.

Rutherford, N. J., Oct. 3.—While on her way to work Eva Poltack, eighteen years old, was struck by the eastbound Tuxedo express on the Erie railroad and killed. The accident occurred at the Central avenue crossing in the Bergen county short cut. Rain was falling, and the girl was carrying a raised umbrella, which probably prevented her from seeing the approaching train.

There is a signal bell at the crossing, but it is said that it failed to ring, and it is supposed that it had been put out of order by the storm. The girl was hurled about seventy-five feet, and her skull was fractured.

AMBULANCE HITS CAR.

Patient Being Rushed to Hospital Is Badly Injured.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 3.—An automobile ambulance carrying Marcus Singer, a well to do merchant, and three of his relatives toward a hospital, where he was to be operated upon for appendicitis, struck a trolley car at Kinney and Washington streets, this city, and not only the patient, but his kinsfolk, were badly hurt.

So severely was Mr. Singer cut and bruised that the trip to the hospital—a few moments before deemed a matter of life or death—had to be abandoned and he and the others were taken home in a second ambulance. He was reported as in a critical condition.

Mrs. Asa Saums entertained the Wishbone Club at her home in East Whitehouse, Wednesday afternoon.

GIMBEL BROTHERS

BROADWAY NEW YORK THIRTY THIRD ST.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Principal Earley has presented each member of his civil government class with a copy of the constitution of New Jersey.

Twenty new typewriter desks and chairs were installed in the commercial rooms yesterday.

The freshman and sophomore classes have decided to give two dollars apiece for the support of the tennis tournament and the matches will now be run off, the first round being played today.

At a meeting of the tennis trophy committee it was decided not to present the singles cup at present, but to wait and give it with the doubles prizes.

The girls' basketball team is having some trouble in trying to elect a captain. Some want this position filled immediately by a vote of the entire Athletic Association while others want to wait until a squad has been picked out and let them choose a leader. The three last year's players who are in line for the position are Elsie Debele, Lucy Douglas and Marjorie Burtis. Miss Debele has had a year's experience over her teammates.

Mr. Stillman has finished the basketball backboards and the baskets will be set up today in the rear of the school buildings. Both the girls' team and Captain Burner's squad will start preliminary practice.

Although the classroom clocks are running in fine shape the bells have not yet been connected and the classes still have to be dismissed from the desk by Mr. Earley.

At a meeting of the sophomore class yesterday it was decided that the class should give last year's basketball team their monograms. This team was the school champions last year and those who will receive their letters are Captain Warren Townley, Martin McDonough, Harry Kirch, Addison Newkirk, Vincent LaPorte, Raymond Pasch, John Dawe.

Principal Earley has installed a new placard in the front of the assembly hall in which to place the numbers of the songs at the chapel exercises.

Lawrence French, '12, who entered Rutgers College this year, has sent a pennant of his college to Mr. Earley. This is the second contribution of flags with which the principal intends to beautify the classrooms and assembly hall.

In order to make the afternoon session as effective as possible, Mr. Earley has requested that no pupils return at that time unless they are back for work or are called back by a teacher on account of conduct.

Miss Helen Yates, '16, has returned from her vacation and started today to pursue her course of study as a sophomore.

North Branch.

James Tunison returned to Plainfield yesterday, after a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Tunison, at Burnt Mills, near North Branch.

Mrs. Garret Pfaff is home from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pfaff, of Plainfield.

Dr. E. A. Rosenberg and family, who have been spending the summer at their country place, near here, have gone to New York for the winter.

The next meeting of the home department of the Sunday-school of the Reformed church will be held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lane, at North Branch Depot, on Sunday afternoon, October 26.

Miss Mary Leibold, of Raritan, is the guest of Miss Josephine McGowan, at North Branch Depot.

Mrs. Catherine Garretson has just returned to East Millstone, after spending several weeks at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

Miss Bernice Higgins, of North Branch Depot, has gone to Newark, where she will spend a week.

Mrs. Joseph Ten Eyck, of New Centre, near South Branch, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William V. D. Jelliffe, at North Branch Depot.

Charles Haver and sister, Miss Ruth Haver, of Dunellen, are the guests of their grandparents, former Freeholder and Mrs. William E. Haver, of North Branch Depot.

Mrs. John Remsen, of Millstone, is able to be about again, after suffering from an attack of mumps.

William Bunn, of Trenton, is spending a few days at his former home in this section.

Miss Blanche Nevius, of Newark, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Nevius, near Millstone.

Robert Haver, of New Brunswick, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Haver, of North Branch Depot.

Miss Olive Mayse, of Brooklyn, is spending a vacation of two weeks with her sister, Mrs. George Coe, in East Millstone.

Miss Elsie Stryker has taken the position of organist in the Reformed church at Millstone.

GRANT DELAY TO SULZER COUNSEL

Hinman Too Ill to Make Opening Address.

RESUME HEARING MONDAY

Preliminary Motions by Defense to Strike Out Certain Articles of Impeachment Swept Away by Court. Kresel Apologizes to Brokers.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—In forty minutes the high court of impeachment cleared the stage for the appearance of William Sulzer, the respondent, as a witness in his own defense, all of the preliminary motions being disposed of. But the defense was not prepared to go on immediately. Besides, Harvey D. Hinman of counsel for Mr. Sulzer, who had had charge of the preparation of the defense, was represented to have broken down under his labors. For these reasons the court granted a recess until next Monday at 2 p. m.

The governor's lawyers had gone into court prepared to make lengthy arguments on the preliminary motions to strike out certain testimony and several articles of the impeachment. After Isidor J. Kresel, for the assembly, had submitted what amounted to a retraction and an apology for the suggestion that the books of Harris & Fuller, brokers, had been "fixed" for Mr. Sulzer's benefit, Austen G. Fox, for the defense, moved to strike from the record the testimony attributed to Louis A. Sarecky, Mr. Sulzer's agent, before the Frawley committee on the ground that it was hearsay.

A heated argument followed, which Chief Judge Cullen cut short by ruling that while the evidence was hearsay it would remain on the record unless the defense produced Sarecky on the stand. The defense announced its intention to call Sarecky as a witness.

Mr. Fox then moved to strike out the testimony of John B. Gray of the brokerage firm of Fuller & Gray, who had said that Frederick L. Colwell told him that "Account No. 500" on his books was being conducted for Mr. Sulzer. This motion was lost, Judge Cullen moving that the testimony must stand.

Impeachment Stands.

Mr. Fox then attempted to offer motions for the dismissal of articles 3, 4, 5 and 7 of the impeachment, but was interrupted by Chief Justice Cullen, who ruled that such motions must not be made until the final judgment in the case.

This left the defense in a position of having no witnesses ready to call. Besides, it was advanced that Harvey D. Hinman, who is to outline the governor's case, was in a state of exhaustion resulting from his arduous work before and during the trial.

The defense's lawyers pleaded for an adjournment because of their predicament. The court at the suggestion of Chief Judge Cullen granted the request.

Mr. Fox in his argument to strike out the Sarecky testimony declared that it was of a hearsay nature and unsupported. Therefore, he contended, it failed to sustain the allegation that the respondent practiced deceit and fraud by preventing witness from appearing before the Frawley committee.

The fact that the Sarecky testimony was that given to the Frawley committee, Mr. Fox insisted, made it hearsay, and therefore it should be stricken out. Mr. Stanchfield called the court's attention to the fact that no objection was made to the Sarecky testimony at the time it was introduced. An objection at this time, he contended, was too late. Judge Cullen held that the evidence in question was hearsay, but announced his decision to permit it to stay on the record unless Sarecky himself were produced as a witness.

Out if Sarecky Testifies.

"If you produce him as a witness on the stand then it will go out; otherwise not," Judge Cullen told the defense.

D-Cady Herrick, Harvey D. Hinman, Austen G. Fox and Roger Clark of the defense remained at the executive mansion until court opened putting together the final touches of the governor's answer. Alton B. Parker, John B. Stanchfield, Edgar Truman Brackett and Eugene Lamb Richards of the prosecution were in conference in one of the hotels.

The report that Governor Sulzer will when he takes the witness stand make sensational accusations against Charles F. Murphy and others connected with the Tammany organization was dismissed as wild talk by those looking after the interests of the prosecution. They insist that the governor will be held strictly to the answering of the charges contained in the testimony adduced by the assembly managers.

Another rumor had it that Governor Sulzer intended to get his sensational statement before the court by making the opening address himself. This, however, was dismissed by the governor's lawyers, who insisted that Harvey D. Hinman was to outline the case for the defense.

FRANCES MARSHALL

Housework For Little Girls.

An important part of the education of most of the princesses of the world is housework. Queen Wilhelmina, doubtless remembering her own childhood is personally directing the education of her small daughter, the Princess Juliana, in household matters. The German crown princess, Cecilia, although fond of society and sports, is thoroughly versed in housework. Many of the children of American middle-class parents have not the practical knowledge of work that these royal women are given as a matter of course.

There is no reason why a child should not be taught to work. To be sure its youth ought to be happy, and carefree, too. But the child ought to learn gradually to take responsibility, to pay the world for the living it gets. And housework is the simplest, most natural sort of work to give the little girl to develop this sense of responsibility.

When to Begin.

The child that is just beginning to walk likes to "help." The child a little older struggles to button its shoes, to put its slippers in the closet, to brush its hair or wash its hands. So the littlest child is hardly too young to learn to do something useful about the house.

Most little girls are interested in their clothes, and these may be made a point of beginning. Teach the little girl to fold her hair ribbons neatly, to pick up her clothes from the floor, to hang them on low and convenient pegs when she is old enough to do so, to keep her bureau drawers in order. Let her help choose the clothes she is going to wear.

Next to her clothes, she might be interested in her room. Let her learn to keep it in order. It is no more difficult for a little child, old enough to dress herself, to get out of bed and pull the clothes over the footboard, than it is for that child to swing or skip rope or play tea party. She can soon learn to make her bed, with help at first, and supervision always.

Next the little girl could learn to help in the dining room. It is better, perhaps, not to let a very small child dust, as dust is sometimes injurious to the lungs. But the dining room presents many pleasant duties. She can learn to set the table, daintily, accurately and neatly. She can learn to clear it, and to put everything away in its place. She can even be allowed to wash the glass or fine china, when it is used, if she likes that sort of work and can be relied on for steady hands and careful work.

Never hurry a little girl in her early housework. Never give her tasks that will make her nervous or that are too difficult for her to accomplish well. Let her realize that her work is really helpful, that it is really putting her on a self-supporting basis—that it is keeping her from being one of those who eat without labor.

"La Promenade des Toilettes"

New York's Supreme Fashion Exhibition, Now Being Shown At Gimbel Brothers.

The "La Promenade des Toilettes," shown to the public on the eighth floor of Gimbel Brothers, beggars description. It is the result of the highest achievements of such artists as Callot, Premet, Bernard, Martial et Armand, Berny, Poiret, Drecoll, Jeanne Halle and all that select coterie which has made Paris at once the dream and the despair of lesser lights in the realm of fashion.

The background for this exceptionally beautiful display is a setting that depicts the scenes from "Le Minaret" at the Theatre Renaissance in Paris, and some of the gowns are the exact reproductions of the gowns worn by Mlle. Mirelle Crobe, who created the role of Mai-Mouva and the charming Mlle. Marcelle Yrven, who wore the accordian-pleated pantaloons as Zour-Zuvabe. These sensational gowns conceived by Paul Poiret, written about, talked about and marvelled at all over the world are presented for the very first time in America. But, there are scores of other creations — masterpieces, every one, gowns, suits, wraps, furs, and millinery made to order for this event. Costumes for young girls are also displayed, and all of these are especially lovely.

Gowns for afternoon and evening wear are shown. The evening dresses and wraps are especially beautiful, showing at their best the artistic phases of the new modes and the absolute perfection of the rich velvets, shimmering satins, rare laces, exquisite embroideries and luxurious furs.

This promenade of living models, all beautiful women, each chosen for the gown that is portrayed, takes place daily from 10 o'clock to 12 o'clock, and from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock. Such an exhibition has never been approached. It is an event that is well worth a special trip to the city.

The above cut illustrates an exceptionally beautiful gown by Buzenet. The bodice is an exquisite creation of old lace, artistically draped with rose-colored chiffon edged with fur. The skirt, the latest two-tier effect, is of light blue silk, draped with the same old lace and rose-colored chiffon. The belt and sash are of a darker shade blue taffeta ribbon about fourteen inches wide, draped around the waist several times, and allowed to drop gracefully in a butterfly bow in the back. Large red velvet poinsettes, worn at the waist and just above the right knee, finish the gown.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CANNING VEGETABLES.

WHEN vegetables are cheap and abundant it is the part of wisdom to put them up for winter use. The process is so simple that any housewife can hope for success with most vegetables.

Lima Beans.—As lima beans lose their flavor soon after picking, they should be canned immediately. Pack them into the jars, cover with salted water and cook, like corn, an hour and a half.

Easily Put Up.

Cauliflower.—Take off the outside leaves and soak the head upside down in cold salted water to allow insects to escape. Break into flowerets, tie in a cloth and boil for twenty-five minutes in water. Then cool, pack into jars, cover with salted water and seal.

Canned Greens.—Greens may be canned in the following manner. Pick over and wash Swiss chard or spinach. Cook in boiling salt water until nearly tender and drain. Pack closely in glass jars and cover with boiling vinegar. Seal tightly and wrap each can in paper to exclude the light and put away in the celler or any cool place.

Cooked In the Jars.

String Beans.—String the beans and put them in glass jars. Add one teaspoonful of salt to each jar, then fill up with cold water. Place the jars in a boiler of cold water in the bottom of which are laid some wood strips to keep the jars from breaking. Boil three hours. Fill the jars to overflowing with boiling water, then screw on the top and put away.

Corn may be canned in the same way after it has been cut off the cob.

Canning Corn.—Can corn at once after picking. Strip off the husks, remove the silk by means of a stiff brush and score down the kernels with a sharp knife. Add a teaspoonful of salt to each quart of corn and pack it into the scalded jars. Cover to overflowing with cold water and proceed as with string beans.

Pungent Peppers.

Canned Pepper.—Take sound green or red peppers. Split them in halves, take out seeds and core and soak for twenty-four hours in brine made of four quarts of water and one cupful of salt to a peck of peppers. Drain off brine and soak another twenty-four hours in fresh brine made of four quarts of water and one-half cupful of salt. Pack into the jars, cover with salted water and cook as for string beans. Soak for ten minutes in fresh cold water before using.

Dropped the Bee In a Hurry.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Bee Wanted to Go to Sleep.

THE last bees of summer—or that is what daddy called them—had been buzzing all day around the late flowers in the garden. They were what Jack and Evelyn called bumblers, and they seemed stupider and clumsier than usual.

"Guess they're sleepy," Jack suggested.

"Yes; guess so," daddy answered. "But it will be a long winter sleep for them when they do go instead of a little trip to dreamland like yours."

"Are they going to sleep in the flowers?" Evelyn asked.

"Oh, no," daddy answered; "they are hunting nice cozy nooks where the wind and the snow will not reach them. Some of them will make their way into the house in spite of our screens and care to keep them out.

"What do you suppose happened to little Betty one morning? It was quite a cool day in the fall, and she was playing in the attic. Such a fine old attic as it was, with the roof rising to a peak in the center and sloping down so low at the sides that Betty's nose scratched the ceiling when she laid down on the floor there.

"This day as Betty sat in a corner of the attic playing with Dottie Jane, her youngest doll, she heard a low buzz.

"'Jes' like a sewin' m'chine,' Betty said.

"She looked around. She thought perhaps among the attic treasures there might be a sewing machine of a kind that would go all by itself.

"Betty scrambled right up off the floor, never paying the slightest attention to Dottie Jane, when the child fell back and hit her head on the wall.

"She looked around in all the corners, and finally she traced the buzzing to the big green cushioned chair that stood by the window.

"Right on the green seat of the chair, which perhaps it had mistaken for a patch of grass, was a big brown and yellow insect. It was droning sleepily.

"'The big bug mus' be lost,' she murmured, and then in her kindly little way she leaned down to pick it up and put it out of the window where it could fly off to its friends in the sunshine.

"But the little bug didn't understand her kindness. It wanted to stay right in that attic all winter and nap. So it stung Betty's finger.

"She dropped it in a hurry and rushed downstairs.

"'Oh, mamma,' she cried; 'there was a bee lost up in the attic, and I found it and picked it up so I could put it outdoors and let it go home, and it went and ran a needle into my finger!'

"And as she put ammonia on Betty's finger to soothe the pain her mother explained to her that the little bee had been too frightened to know what it was doing when it stung her."

PRINCESS ALEXANDRA.

She Will Become Bride of Prince Arthur of Connaught.

The Chapel Royal at St. James' palace, where the wedding of the Duchess of Fife and Prince Arthur of Connaught will take place at noon on Oct. 15, is being decorated for that event. Every effort is being made to preserve the family character of the coming wedding ceremonies, and Queen Mary is in continuous consultation with the Princess Royal and the Duchess of Fife, so that everything may be carried out in accordance with precedent. The old banqueting hall where the wedding breakfast is to be laid is being prepared to accommodate not fewer than 800 guests.

A SIMPLE MATTER OF SHIRRING IMPARTS DISTINCTION

Indoor frocks of dark silk are effectively brightened by touches of vivid color on girdle and tunic. The yoke too, often suggests an attractive way to bring a becoming shade toward the face. These dark silks are being used for street wear also at the moment, almost to the exclusion of the tailored suit. 7940 would make up well in charmeuse, one of the new shades, tete de negre, for instance, with the yoke in a softly shaded matelasse. A narrow strip of the colored material would be smart edging the tunic.

On a simple street dress of Worth's a narrow crochetted belt of vari-colored wool was a most distinctive detail. This hint should offer unlimited possibilities to the girl or woman looking for something "different." To copy 7940 in size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Young girls' afternoon and dancing dresses to be modish, smart and in good taste must be simple. Quite sufficient adornment is given 7926 by the shirrings that form yoke, girdle and flounce. White tulle, not the perishable quality we know, but a material that resembles a very fine Brussels net, used in many of the little French designs of this sort, would be admirably suited to this model, with ribbons and rosettes of white or a becoming tint. This design in size 18 requires 6½ yards of 36 inch material.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Smart Trimmings for Plain Frocks.

A smart touch added to a dress lends charm and individuality. Buttons embroidered in gay colors or a frog often gives just the touch needed to relieve the severeness or brighten a somber gown.

The buttons in this pattern should be made of the dress material and embroidered in colored silks, wools, metal thread or beads in solid work and outline-stitch.

The design should be worked on material large enough to allow for gathering up at the back of the button-mould, which may be from 1¼ to 1½ inches in diameter.

Pattern 14214 contains 6 designs; 12 of each in the pattern.

Pattern 14063 contains 8 frogs and 3 ornaments, of various sizes, which may be made from any of the heavy silk braids or cord. These designs are appropriate for use on dresses, suits, coats, evening wraps, belts or as hat trimmings. Instructions for making them are given on the pattern envelope.

These patterns will be supplied to Daily Press readers for ten cents.

SENATE ADOPTS TARIFF MEASURE

All Ready Now For President's Signature.

MAY BE LAW BY MIDNIGHT

Bill Agreed to In Upper House by 36 to 17 Vote—Vice President Marshall Has Attached His Signature to Long Discussed Legislation.

Washington, Oct. 3.—It is expected that President Wilson will attach his signature to the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill this afternoon, and the bill probably will be a law by midnight tonight.

The senate agreed last night to the conference report by a vote of 36 to 17. At the same time the senate receded from the Clarke amendment taxing cotton futures and disagreed to the Smith-Lever amendment voted into the bill by the house. The report of the conference committee will be laid before the house today, and the house will promptly recede from the Smith-Lever amendment. This will be the final act in the passage of the tariff bill.

The bill was engrossed and ready last night for the signature of the vice president, speaker and president. After the senate acted last night Vice President Marshall signed the bill. Speaker Clark will sign it today, and it is expected that the bill will be presented to President Wilson for his signature this afternoon. He has said that he would sign the bill as soon as it came to him, and if he does it will become a law at midnight following. Some of the Democratic leaders were inclined to doubt whether President Wilson would sign the bill on Friday, but he is not likely to be deterred by any superstition. The president is on record as regarding the number "13" as favorable to his fortunes, and he will now have a splendid opportunity to deliver the Friday Bogey a solar plexus blow.

Final Vote Is Delayed.

Although the tariff bill report was laid before the senate at noon yesterday, a vote on it was not had until nearly 8 o'clock last night. A demand was made for the reading of the entire report, which consumed about two hours. Then there were speeches by Senators Simmons, Penrose, Burton, Pomerene, Gronna and others. Senator La Follette took no part in the argument. There was less interest shown in the debate than there has been at any other time during the consideration of the bill. The bottom seemed to have fallen out of the tariff controversy.

The roll call on the adoption of the conference report showed fourteen Republican senators absent without pairs. Had they been present and voting, or paired, the report would have been adopted by a majority of five, which is the real Democratic majority.

How Senators Voted.

As on the passage of the bill, Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Poindexter of Washington, the former a Republican and the latter a Progressive, voted for the report, and Senators Thornton and Ransdell voted against it. The announcement of the result aroused no particular enthusiasm. Chairman Simmons was quietly congratulated by Democrats and Republicans alike on the successful manner in which he has handled the bill. It was recalled that on 114 votes taken in the senate on amendments the finance committee was sustained on each and every one. This showed party discipline as it has never been known before in the history of the senate. The finance committee made a few concessions and changed some rates, but on every test of strength Senator Simmons had the pleasure of having his view sustained by a majority of the senate.

While the senate was considering the conference report today leaders from both the senate and the house were quietly considering the parliamentary status of the tariff bill. The parliamentary experts of both the senate and the house and probably a majority of the Democratic leaders contended that the action taken by the senate would pass the bill without any further action by the house, and at one time it was seriously contemplated sending the bill direct to the president without the interposition of the house.

HOOSIER BANKERS SEE WILSON

Financiers Who Testified Before Senate Visit White House.

Washington, Oct. 3.—A delegation of Indiana bankers who appeared before the senate banking committee in opposition to the currency bill called on President Wilson.

The party included J. L. McCulloch, Marion; John Frenzel, Indianapolis; Charles Worden, Fort Wayne; Francis Reitz, Evansville, and Thomas Paxton, Princeton.

James B. Haggin Improved.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 3.—The condition of James B. Haggin, millionaire turfman and copper magnate, who is ill with pneumonia at Greenhills mansion here, is much improved. He is planning a trip to Europe with Mrs. Haggin and friends as soon as he recovers.

Weather Forecast.

Cloudy today; tomorrow, fair; brisk west winds.

The Big Dress Sensation of the Season
An Enormous Purchase of High-Grade Dresses at Savings of One-Third to Two-Thirds

This will be a short story—but straight to the point. We believe that we sell more women's dresses at popular prices than any other store in this vicinity. There seems to be no limit to the number we can sell. It is only a question of being able to get enough dresses—at the right price—and for spot cash.

We tell you sincerely—IT IS THE GREATEST DRESS EVENT OF THE YEAR.

You could not duplicate these dresses in most Fifth Avenue shops for less than two or three times the prices we ask.

Make up your mind not to hesitate. Come early if you can, but come anyway before these lots are gone, for the values won't be duplicated again till the season is half over.

GEORGE F. OPDYKE HAS PASSED AWAY

Former Plainfielder Dies After Long Illness at Jamestown, New York.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

Family Once Lived at Property Owned by C. J. Fisk—Opdyke's Father Early Mayor of New York—Wife Survives Him.

George Francis Opdyke, aged 73 years, for many years a well-known resident of this city, died on Wednesday at Jamestown, N. Y., where he had been living for the past six years. He had been in failing health for some time. Mr. Opdyke at one time owned and occupied the property on West Seventh street, now the property of Charles Joel Fisk, and which was leased a few days ago by Walter L. Righter.

For several years plor to leaving Plainfield he lived on West Eighth street. He had been retired from business for thirty years at least. Mr. Opdyke's father, the late George Opdyke, was one of the early mayors of New York city. His brother, the late Charles W. Opdyke, lived at Watchung and Highland avenues for many years.

Mr. Opdyke is survived by a wife, who was Ida Reed, and who was deeply interested in religious and temperance work here; two brothers, W. S. Opdyke, a New York lawyer, and Henry B. Opdyke, who at one time lived in North Plainfield, and two sisters. The funeral will be at Jamestown, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PENNY LUNCHEONS PROVE A SUCCESS

Plainfield Mothers' Association Experiment at Bryant School Works Well.

The first week of penny luncheon service at the Bryant School ended yesterday, and the Mothers' Association, which has charge of the undertaking, is highly elated over the results obtained. Mrs. O. H. Smith is keeping an account of all expenditures, money received and profits.

On the first day, Monday, September 29, 110 children paid for lunches, 6 were served free of charge for assisting in the work, the receipts amounted to $4.53, costs, $3.44; profit, 89 cents. On Tuesday, 133 pupils paid, 6 were served free, the receipts were $4.07; cost, $3.94; profit 12 cents. The other days were approximately the same.

The menu included a nourishing dish, varying from day to day. Last week maraconi soup, Scotch broth, corn chowder, mashed potatoes and gravy and creamed potato soup were served, respectively. The dish cost one cent, accompanied by several slices of bread. The second nourishing dish, costing a like price, varied as follows: Stuffed potatoes, meat, jelly, peanut-butter and cheese sandwiches. Apple sauce, stewed prunes, chocolate candy, a package of assorted cakes and cocoa were also included in the menu, for one penny each.

The announcement that teachers, mothers and the pupils of Lincoln School could also come to the Bryant institution and be served at the low price boomed business, many taking advantage of the offer. In the near future, lunches will be served in the Lincoln School. After being cooked in the Bryant institution, the food will be carted in a wagon made for the purpose, to the former school.

The Mothers' Association, which planned the penny lunches and arranged the details, have received many congratulations from city officials.

HARRY WEBBER AT PROCTOR'S.

Harry W. Webber, of this city, who is widely known in musical circles and who will be remembered as one of the big hits at the Elks' minstrel shows last year, will appear at Proctor's Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. He has added many novelties to his clever act. He is billed as a musical comedian, with an up-to-the-minute act that is sure to be a headliner. Rube Welch & Co., will offer a musical comedy entitled "At 11 A. M.," or "The Stage Carpenter's Troubles at a Monday Morning Rehearsal," presenting a company of nine clever performers in a rip-roaring farcical travesty of the vaudeville stage. Faust & Williams, singing and talking comedians, with an entirely new lot of jokes and songs; Azard & Co., sensational athletes; Bobby Zeno and (Little Eva) Mandell, in a refined singing, talking and dancing act will complete the bill with a change of photo-plays.

HOW MARTINE WILL MAKE APPOINTMENT

Physical Tests First For Applicants for West Point Nomination.

Guy D. Peck, Jr., and William H. Knauss, of this city, are among the applicants who have furnished satisfactory proof of physical qualification to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point, provided they pass the other examinations.

So that all of the two score young men who have applied to Senator Martine for appointment to West Point may have an equal chance, the Senator has arranged for a competitive preliminary examination, to be held Saturday, October 18, at 9 o'clock in the morning, in the Trenton High School. William A. Wetzel, a member of the school faculty, will be in charge.

Recently there has been talk in Congress about the strict interpretation by army officials of the physical requirements of applicants. Senator Martine, to avoid any trouble when his appointee goes before the army examiners, ruled that only those who could supply him with satisfactory certificates from a reputable physician should be allowed to take the test. The list was closed yesterday, but several days of grace have been extended to several of the applicants who have not yet furnished a medical certificate, within which they may file the necessary papers.

The pending examination will determine the Senator's choice. High man will be designated as principal, and the next two as alternates. At Fort Slocum, N. Y., next spring, the three successful ones will be required to take the government examination, and also to pass the government medical examination. Senator Martine's test will be approximately the same as the government's, however, and the boys who pass the coming ordeal successfully need have no fear of the army tests.

MASONIC AUXILIARY HOLDS DIME SOCIAL

The musicale and dime social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Rugg, 75 Mercer avenue, last night, under the auspices of Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order Eastern Star, was largely attended by members and friends. It was the chapter's first social affair of the season.

During the first part of the evening the program was enjoyed, comprising piano solos by Miss Reba Voorhees, recitations by Mrs. Lulu Krinick, of Dunellen, and Mrs. Maude Caine of Somerville, and vocal solos by Mrs. E. W. Poinier, of this city.

After the program, refreshments were served and then the guests joined in dancing the Virginia reel. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Mrs. Elizabeth Woodard and Miss Aller furnished the music. The committee in charge of the affair comprised Mrs. W. R. Causebrook, Mrs. E. W. Poinier and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodard.

BOARD DOES NOT ACT ON CIVIL SERVICE IDEA

Elizabeth, Oct. 4.—Only nine of the twenty members of the Board of Freeholders attended the special meeting called for yesterday to take up the matter of submitting to the voters the question of making county employes civil service employes. There was not a quorum, so adjournment was taken until Monday morning at 10 o'clock. That will be the last date on which the matter can be considered, as thirty days' notice is required by the county clerk under the law, if the question is to be put on the ballots.

All the Democratic members—six—with the exception of Moses Acken, of Rahway, were absent. Mr. Acken was in the building on another matter. It is rumored that the absence of the Democrats was prearranged.

DR. MAGUIRE'S TOPICS.

Dr. Gabriel Reid Maguire will preach on "The Great Guide" at the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow morning and "The Homeless Mother and Her Boy" at the evening service.

ALFRED J. EVERITT DIES OF APOPLEXY

Well Known North Plainfield Resident Passes Away Suddenly.

Alfred J. Everitt, a well-known resident of North Plainfield for forty years, died suddenly last night, following a stroke of apoplexy in the morning. He had been in his usual good health and his illness and death was a severe shock to the relatives and friends.

Mr. Everitt was a native of New Jersey and for forty years had lived in the borough. For many years he was a companion and nurse by occupation. He was a member of Warren chapel, the Christian Endeavor Society and a very active worker in all departments of the chapel. He was a member of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle and the Order of Owls.

Mr. Everitt is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Everitt, who is 91 years old; three brothers, Jacob A. Everitt, of East Orange; Samuel C. Everitt, of the borough; W. A. Everitt, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and three sisters, Mrs. Mary Everitt Bolsterle and Mrs. Sarah E. Coddington, of the borough, and Mrs. Annie Campbell, of Newark. The funeral service will be held at the late home, 78 Fairview avenue, North Plainfield, Tuesday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB TO HEAR TWO ADDRESSES

Under the new departmental system, adopted by the Monday Afternoon Club, the first meeting reception and tea will be held Monday Afternoon at the Hartridge Auditorium. A general welcoming will be accorded the new members and Mrs. James A. Cheesman, president of the Women's Club of Orange, and Miss Frances C. Hays, president of the Contemporary Club of Newark, will speak on "Club Methods."

In past years, the educational work has been carried on under one committee, but it was recently decided to divide the club into various departments, each division to be devoted to a certain line of educational work.

MAY HAVE PREVENTED THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE

Thomas O'Gorman, who drives the patrol wagon for the police department, jumped into the limelight last night by probably preventing theft of an automobile owned by Robert W. Rushmore, of 732 West Eighth street, from Laing's garage, in Sycamore street, by a man who has a long police record, the police say.

O'Gorman was talking to one of the garage employes when a man claiming to be Mr. Rushmore's chauffeur, and giving his name as Thomas J. Johnson, of 658 South Second street, called for the auto saying he did so by direction of the owner. The patrol driver recognized Johnson, who is colored, as a paroled inmate of the Rahway Reformatory and who had been arrested several times. He directed the garage employe to lock the colored man in an office and in the meantime Sergeant Higgins was summoned. O'Gorman and Higgins took him to headquarters.

This morning, arraigned before City Judge DeMeza, Johnson was released under a suspended sentence, providing he left town at once.

ULRICH'S CLAIM ALLOWED.

The Union County Board of Freeholders, upon the recommendation of County Attorney W. R. Codington, has allowed the claim of Judge John Ulrich, of this city, for $225, as a compromise settlement for money paid from his estate during a period of illness while he was under treatment at the State Hospital.

A CORRECTION.

Through a typographical error it was announced in this paper yesterday that B. J. Mumford had donated the land in the rear of the Day Nursery for a playground for that institution conducted by the City Union of the Kings' Daughters. It was T. J. Mumford who was the benefactor.

ALLEGE FIVE DEFECTS AT ASTOR THEATRE

Violations of Building Code in Construction of W. Front St. "Movie" House.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart, who at the request of representatives of the Building Trades Council, has arranged for a conference to be held at his office Tuesday night, to discuss matters pertaining to the new Astor theatre, especially as to alleged violations of the building code, says he has received various reports from builders and others in the course of his investigation of the construction of the new theatre. The members of the Building Trades Council claim that there are still violations of the code which would prevent the proprietor from securing a license to operate his moving picture entertainment.

Five specific alleged violations have been presented to Mayor Stewart and they will be considered at the conference Tuesday night. These reported violations are: First, Front or main entrance; second, width and non-covered fire-protected covering side exits; third, fire-escape obstructing clear or free passing side exits; fourth, non fire-proof doors throughout; fifth, violations throughout exit opening on Front street; also placards or advertising at emergency exit.

The question of issuing theatre licenses is entirely in the hands of the Mayor, and before he takes any action he says he desires to give the representatives of the Building Trades Council a chance to be heard in accordance with their request.

MISS ANNIE T. BURKE NOW MRS. JNO. PAGE

Scottish Girl Becomes the Wife of Englishman Here.

Miss Annie T. Burke and John William Page, both of this city, were married at 8 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, of 916 West Third street, in the presence of about thirty guests. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, performed the ceremony.

Miss Lavinia S. Burke, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Thomas O'Brien, of this city, the best man. Following the ceremony a reception was held during which an elaborate supper was served. The bride received a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends. The home was attractively decorated for the affair.

Later in the evening the bride and groom left on a short trip. They will reside in this city, where Mr. Page is engaged in business as a builder. He is a native of England, while his bride was born in Scotland.

—Neuman Brothers will continue their sale of flour at the special price of $6.25 a barrel on Monday only. See adv. on page 6.—Adv. ***

BALLPLAYER WEDS MONTCLAIR GIRL

Popular Local Athlete Marries Miss Florence Weekes in Latter's Home.

Miss Florence Weekes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Weekes, of Upper Montclair, was married to Philip Smith, son of William Smith, of South Plainfield, at noon today by the Rev. C. W. Attlee, of this city. The ceremony, which was performed in the bride's home, 206 Inwood avenue, was a simple affair and was attended only by the immediate relatives and friends of the couple.

The bride wore a gown of white broadcloth trimmed with shadow lace and was given in marriage by her father, E. C. Weekes. Mrs. E. C. Ives, of Upper Montclair, was matron of honor, and Jarvis Weekes, a brother of the bride, acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left on a honeymoon trip which will be spent in the South and upon their return will reside in Upper Montclair. Mr. Smith will commute from that city to New York, where he is employed by the General Electric Company.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and one of the best known all around athletes in this section. He starred both on the baseball diamond and on the football gridiron and has been a conspicuous figure in semi-professional baseball for the past five years. During his High School course he was the peer of scholastic pitchers and following his graduation he pitched for the Plainfield, South Plainfield, Dunellen and other semi-professional teams. He has many offers to join the professional ranks but has turned them all down.

GILBERT WILL SPEAK ON CURRENCY MEASURE

Upon the invitation of the Plainfield Chamber of Commerce, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, who was former president of the New York Clearing House, will give an address before the chamber Monday night on "The New Currency Bill." The National Chamber of Commerce has requested the local body to interest itself in the new currency legislation and it promptly invited Mr. Gilbert to address the members and all interested at its meeting on Monday night.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES.

An elaborate program in observance of Rally Day will be rendered tomorrow at the Sunday-school session in the Dunellen M. E. church. At the church service in the evening, Rev. A. G. Schatzman, of Linden, who spoke a year ago in the borough chruch, will occupy the pulpit.

CAN NOT AFFORD TO MAKE IMPROVEMENT

Retaining Walls and Concrete Bottom for Green Brook Too Expensive.

The cleaning of Green brook and Tier's pond was briefly discussed last night at a meeting of the North Plainfield Council. Councilman Allan Cowperthwait, chairman of the committee on public affairs, submitting a report which stated that the building of retaining walls and a concrete bottom or bed along Green brook would entail an expense that the borough could not afford at present and to remedy the unsanitary condition at Tier's pond is entirely up to the owners. Mr. Cowperthwait stated that it was the duty of the Boards of Health of the city and borough to see that the owners of abutting lands should keep the pond in a sanitary condition.

The report related what could be done, providing the borough had sufficient funds. The transformation of Tier's pond vicinity into a public park, with the small body of water as a lake, was suggested. To accomplish this, the report read, would necessitate the annulment of water-power rights granted by the State and the condemnation of a large tract of land. Green brook should be covered, the report read, with a re-inforced concrete span, affording a tunnel for the water to run through. If this were done, the area now occupied by the stream with its banks, could be diverted into a public highway, affording valuable business property along the street. The report was based on the results of action taken in other municipalities where similar problems confronted the authorities. A copy of the report will be transmitted to the Borough Board of Health, which, in a communication, recommended that immediate action be taken to get rid of the sanitary defects at Green brook and Tier's pond.

Fred Becker, overseer-of-the-poor, was granted an appropriation of $150 for the work, and Recorder Gano's report was submitted showing that 23 arrests had been made and $39 in fines collected during September. Warrants amounting to $3,537.02 were ordered to be drawn to meet the payments due on invoices and authorization to borrow $3,000 was granted. Councilman Milne, chairman of the Street Committee, introduced an ordinance, which was adopted on third reading, calling for the macadamizing of Watchung avenue, from Codington avenue to the bridge. The owners of property fronting on the northeast side of Walnut street between Jefferson and Harrison avenue, will be notified to construct sidewalks.

PLAINFIELDERS ATTEND THE ROOSEVELT DINNER

Plainfield was well represented at the big farewell dinner given last night at the New York Roof Garden, in honor of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who sailed today for South America. Among the hundreds from New Jersey were Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, Mr. and Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, former Mayor George W. V. Moy and Leslie R. Fort. Rev. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, was also present.

ONE DEAD, THREE HURT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Oct. 4.—One person was killed and three others were injured in an automobile accident in front of the home of James J. Corbett, at Bayside, Long Island, early today. The dead man is George K. Glass, owner of the car. The injured, all of whom are in the Flushing Hospital, are Mrs. Edith Robbins, a famous beauty; Frederick Kuenmund and William Prescott.

The car struck a rut and turned turtle. Glass was pinned beneath the wreckage, sustaining a broken back and fractured skull. Corbett, who was aroused by the crush, gave first aid.

ELECTED THEIR OFFICERS.

The Young People's Union of All Souls' church held its annual meeting last night at the home of the minister, Rev. A. E. Wilson, and elected Harold A. Brownell president, Miss Eva Selden vice president, Miss Grace Parker secretary, and Bradford Willard treasurer. Guessing contests followed the business and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be with Miss Selden in November.

FOR NON-SUPPORT.

J. H. Stevens, 72 years old, of 123 Church street, will be arraigned on Saturday, October 11, before City Judge DeMeza on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife.

BORO TO FIGHT IN TAX MATTER

Refused Refund Promised by County Board, It Retains Counsel.

CARL LENTZ ENGAGED

Breach of Faith on Part of County Tax Board Ground for Action—If State Board Gives No Relief Courts Will Be Resorted to.

Claiming that the borough had not been fully reimbursed for excess taxes levied and paid in 1912, as agreed by the Somerset County Board of Taxation following a public protest, the North Plainfield Council at its October meeting last night decided to carry its protest to the courts. The resolution adopted reommending this course authorized that Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, a former member of the State Tax Board, be retained as counsel. He will be paid $250 as a retaining fee.

This is the first step in legal action to be taken by the borough to oppose any action to increase the valuations as proposed by the County Board. The Council claims that when the County Board of Taxation signed a document in November, 1912, fixing the market value of the real estate and personal property of the borough at $4,071,622, a reduction of $912,003 from the valuations appearing on the books of the assessor after a protest had been made, that the Board in so doing adjudged the true valuations of the taxable property. It further claims that no increase in the valuations can be made except where additions or improvements have been made. This stand was taken by Major Lentz in an address at a conference held several months ago between the Council and the county officials.

The first steps to be taken by Major Lentz will be to make an appeal to each member of the County Tax Board; to the Freeholders of the county and to the State Board of Taxation. The Major was a member of the latter body for twenty-five years, and is considered an authority on tax matters.

The resolution recommending court action adopted by the Council to oppose what it terms "unjust and discriminate taxation," follows:

"Whereas, the Somerset County Board of Taxation on the day of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen, signed a judgment adjudging the true or market value of the real estate and personal property of the Borough of North Plainfield for the year 1912 to be $4,071,622.

"And, whereas, this was a reduction of $912,003 from the valuations as appearing on the books of the assessor of the Borough of North Plainfield for the year 1912,

"And, whereas, the Borough of North Plainfield paid to the County Collector of Somerset county the sum of $42,527.23, being the amount of State school and county taxes on the valuations as appearing on the assessors books for the year 1912 and not allowing for the reductions made by the Somerset County Board of Taxations.

"And, whereas, the amount paid to the collector of Somerset county for such State school and county taxes for the year 1912 was the sum of $7,843.22 in excess of what was due and owing by the Borough of North Plainfield to the county of Somerset for the year 1912.

"And, whereas, under the statute such overpayment or payment in excess by said Borough of North Plainfield must be adjusted by the Somerset County Board of Taxation in the calculation of the Tax rate for the year 1913.

"And, whereas, on application by said Borough of North Plainfield to the Somerset County Board of Taxation the said Board has refused to adjust such overpayment or payment in excess by said Borough to said County of Somerset and has refused in calculating the tax rate for the year 1913 for said Borough of North Plainfield to make allowance to said Borough for the amount so overpaid or paid in excess for the year 1912.

"Therefore, be it and it is hereby resolved and ordered by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield,

"First, That the Borough of North Plainfield appeal to the State Board of Equalization of Taxes of New Jersey from the action of the Somerset County Board of Taxation in calculating the tax rate for the Borough of North Plainfield for the year 1913 at $2.26 per $100 and to make such further appeal in the matter as may be decided.

"Second, That Carl Lentz, esquire, be and is hereby retained as counsel for the Borough of North Plainfield to prosecute such appeal with vigor and despatch.

"Third, That a retainer of two hundred and fifty ($250) dollars be and is hereby ordered to be paid to said Carl Lentz.

"Fourth, That the State Board be

CITY HOSPITAL REPORT IS NOT READ BY COMMISSION

Jersey City, Oct. 4.—The report of Dr. George O'Hanlon on the condition of the City Hospital was received and filed by the city commissioners Thursday without being read. Immediately afterward the commission received a recommendation from the hospital trustees that Miss Emma Hennnig be made temporary chief of nurses until a regular chief is appointed under the provisions of the civil service act. The commission gave Mayor Mark M. Fagan the power to make this appointment.

The bond for $85,000 for the Mill Creek sewer, which is designed to relieve a large area of lower Jersey City between Monmouth and Bright streets, and extending from Railroad avenue west to Merseles street, was filed at Thursday's meeting. The sewer is to be seventy-two inches in diameter and of concrete. Work on the sewer will begin within a week and it will take about six months.

About 150,000 pounds of chloride of lime, to be used at the Boonton reservoir in the water purifying process, has been purchased by Commissioner Ferris.

AGAIN UPHOLDS DEMOTION OF POLICE CAPTAIN KELLY

Trenton, Oct. 1.—For the second time the Court of Errors and Appeals affirmed yesterday the action of the Jersey City Police Commission in reducing Captain James H. Kelly to the ranks. Kelly was charged with dereliction of duty and was found guilty after a trial. The Supreme Court held that the conviction was justified by the weight of the evidence.

The case was argued again before the Court of Errors and Appeals upon the apparent assumption that a review could again be had on the weight of the evidence. The opinion of the higher court pointed out that under the well-settled rule of practice, it would not examine into a finding of fact by the Supreme Court farther than to ascertain whether there was any legal evidence to support it. The opinion then continued:

"Our examination satisfies us that there was ample evidence for the board and the Supreme Court to base their findings upon, and we find no prejudicial error in the admission or rejection of evidence, or in other rulings by the trial body."

TO FIGHT TAX MATTER

requested to hear said appeal in the Borough of North Plainfield."

The Council chambers were crowded and among those present were several of the largest taxpayers of the borough. For their benefit Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., presiding, summed up the tax situation. He said that in 1912 the borough's valuations were increased by the County Board over $900,000 and that after the Council had protested and called a public meeting, and proven that North Plainfield had been unjustly taxed and discriminated against, a deduction of .183 points, or $912,003 was allowed. Although the deduction of $912,003 was made in the valuations, the Mayor said, $7,843.22, representing the excess amount of taxes paid to the county for "county expenses," and "State school purposes," was not refunded to the borough this year, as expected. An effort to recover this amount will be the first action to be taken by Major Lentz in the borough's behalf.

Provided a victory is won by the borough in this action the tax rate will be $2.10, but failure to gain this advantage will boost the rate to $2.26. The borough recently petitioned the County Tax Board to authorize a tax rate of $2.10, but in a communication to the Mayor and Council, read last night, the board [illegible] that it had refused the petition and said the rate should be placed at $2.26 to raise the necessary amount of money by taxation.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A New England idyl, the sweetest of all the plays that have presented New England life and people on the stage, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday, October 9, presented by a fine company and with Klaw and Erlanger's original production that reveals the ideas of scenery and architecture described in Mrs. Wiggin's story. Rebecca herself, the heroine of the play, is the most enchanting creature that has come out of New England. She charms by her naivette, her humor, her cheerfulness and her merry heart. Her conquest of the rigid discipline of her old maid aunts, her winning of the love of a brave, good man, form the thread of the story, which is filtered through with very delightful scenes of comedy and touches of pathos that reach to the heart.

Thomas M. Muir has returned from Lake Hopatcong after a successful season as manager and owner of Camp Ram's Horn on Halsey Island.

PETITION BOARD TO ALLOW RAILROAD TO RESUME SERVICE

Persons living along the route of the New Jereey and Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday petitioned the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, to rescind its order, given recently, which would stop traffic on that road on and after October 13.

The board told the petitioners the fate of the railroad practically rested in their hands, and that if they saw fit to guarantee enough money to the receiver, Frederick B. Pitney, to continue the road in operation, he could then go before the Court of Chancery and ask for authority to issue certificates to obtain funds for necessary repairs.

It was pointed out that the Chancery Court had expressed a willingness to authorize the issuance of certificates for money for repairs, but not for funds to be used to meet operating expenses.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Why Wait?

Without a doubt the man who purchases his clothes at the opening of the season has a distinct advantage. Not only does he secure exactly the size he should have, but he may pick from an assortment which is very wide and very complete.

Distinctive styles for Autumn are now being shown to and purchased by the early fellow—the fellows who want the most for their money. We want to number you among this class. May we?

BOYD TAKES APPEAL FROM CONVICTION FOR SABOTAGE

Trenton, Oct. 4.—The Supreme Court has sealed two writs of error in the case of the State against Frederick Sumner Boyd, of Paterson. Boyd was convicted there September 29, last, on two indictments alleging that on March 31 and April 1 he appeared before meetings of strikers and advocated the destruction of properties or, in other words, preached sabotage. The writs of error carry the convictions to the Supreme Court for review.

Boyd, who is an Industrial Worker of the World agitator, had waived the right of trial by jury and was tried before Judge Klenert.

GOING OUT INTO THE WORLD.

All young people should have the desire to climb the ladder of success. A person is going down hill when he ceases to have ambition. Young people face peculiar responsibilities. In starting out in life, the choice of an occupation is a solemn responsibility. There should be a careful selection of an occupation. It should not simply be a profession in which we can make success, but a profession in which we can make the greatest success.

Moody was a success as a barber, but that could not be compared to his greater success as an evangelist. Lincoln's success as a rail splitter could not be compared with his service as President.

There are many differnt standards of success. Each person largely sets his own standard. What may mean success to one, may mean failure to another.

Back of all work is the man himself. Character is the greatest asset of life. It was Emerson, who said: "What you are, speaks so loudly, I cannot hear what you say." Character is not the product of a single day. It takes a life time to develop a character. Said a noted painter, "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle." In every relation of life, never was there such a demand for incorruptible character.

So much in life depends upon the motive. The value of every act is found in the motive. Noble high motives inspire. Sordid, base motives pull down. A selfish motive may be nothing more than a spur of a whiplash. A pure motive enables us to do heroric and sublime deeds.

We must carry high ideals with us. The world demands men and women who are satisfied with nothing but their best. So many of us label as our best that which is only our second best. We are too easily satisfied with ourselves. A motto of a college professor was, "beat your best." Our lives are not always fully and adequately occupied.

We must hold high ideals before us. We are ruled by our ideals. In the realm of music, some are satisfied with the popular song of the day; others live with a Mozart or Beethoven. In the field of literature some are content with a trashy novel of the day, others drink in a Browning or Shakespeare. We live in ideals and we rise no higher than our ideals. "You are becoming what you now are."

All our work must be placed upon a high plane, so that the enthusiasm and joy of working will not die out. Work should not be a drudgery or burden, but in the daily toil should be found the joy of working.

In all success, it is so essential to start right. Start wrong in the beginning, and it is hard to right the wrong. The way we begin, often marks our life's success or failure. Soon the testing time comes, when the assets of our ability, honesty and convictions are placed in the balance. But virtue and integrity will always win the day in the end.

Then opportunities will open. Opportunities are golden. Time is opportunity. Delays are dangerous. Postponing an event only increases the terror of it. We are given opportunities to create other opportunities. The man who lounges around and squanders his time will reap what he has sown. Have a definite purpose and then push with all our might.

Begin at the bottom, but be a climber. It is no sin to begin small. Let us a little more than fill our present position, and a wider position of usefulness will open. Resolve that today's record shall be better than yesterday's and take an inventory of each day's achievement.

In all we do, let us be nothing else than ourselves. Personality counts. Affectation is a counterfeit. Avoid the spirit of exclusiveness and narrowness. Widen the channels of sympathy. Make friends, and keep them. Let us have the right kind of metal in us. Have a genuine ring, and then life may not always be one of spectacular greatness, but it certainly shall be one in which the common place is glorified.

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith, and ready hands;
Men whom the lusts of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking!
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking.
For, while the rabble, with their thumb-worn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife-lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps!"

WASHBURN A COMER.

When Fay Washburn, the former Plainfield shortstop, reports to Jesse Burkett at Worcester next spring, the famous "squawker" will set himself to the task of developing what he has already termed "a mighty promising bit of baseball material." Washburn was with Burkett for a week toward the close of the New England League season just concluded and when he sent Fay home with a contract in his pocket Jesse confidently declared, "I will make a player out of that fellow when he comes back in the spring."

PLAINFIELD HEALTH DURING SEPTEMBER

What Was Done Last Month to Protect the Health of Local People.

According to a report presented at the meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health held last night, there were ten cases of communicable disease during the month of September and were divided as follows: Tuberculosis, 4; Malaria, 4; chicken pox, 1; measles, 1. In addition one case of typhoid fever was brought to Muhlenberg Hospital from North Plainfield township. Six rooms in the same number of houses have been inspected and fumigated during the month and at present there are no residences in the city under quarantine. A number of cases of malarial fever was reported in the West End of town and an inspection of that section conducted by Health Officer Randolph Chandler showed that two large bodies of water beyond the city limits formed a place where mosquitoes breed rapidly. A request was made to the Piscataway township authorities to abate the nuisance.

Thirty-one cultures were examined during the month for typhoid fever, sixteen for tuberculosis, five for malaria, and one for diphtheria. A sample of the waters supply was sent to Trenton for examination by the State authorities and it was reported to the local Board that the quality of Plainfield's water supply is normal. Twenty-one samples of milk have been analyzed and nineteen inspections in connection with the milk supply were conducted. Health Officer Chandler and the State inspector made an investigation of the city dealers' shops as to the exposure of foods to contamination and in several cases violations of the law were found and notices were served on the offenders.

During the month a survey of the West End of town was made in order to ascertain the number, location and condition of privy vaults and cesspools and the East End will be accorded a similar inspection during October. Notices have been served on owners of properties where it was determined necessary to have vaults and cesspools cleaned.

The resignation of Herbert A. Stine, who has left to pursue a course in a Y. M. C. A. Training School, was accepted, but no action was taken in selecting a successor.

SAYS HER DEATH REPORT IS GROSSLY EXAGGERATED

Mrs. Louisa Smith, colored, formerly of Plainfield, but who spent the past winter in New York, and who has been at the Everett House, Sparta, Sussex county, since June, returned to Plainfield, today, to deny the rumor circulated several months ago that she was "dead and buried." Mrs. Smith believes that the rumor was circulated by some enemies and wishes to let her friends know that it is untrue. She left Plainfield today for West Orange, where she will make her home at 5 Wilson place.

SUFFRAGISTS DESTROY HOUSE; TWO ARRESTED

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Hampton on Thames, England, Oct. 4.—Militant suffragettes today destroyed by fire the home of Dr. Tristram, former chancellor of the Diocese of London, doing damage estimated at $25,000. Two women who were loitering in the vicinity were arrested, charged with arson. A great quantity of suffrage literature was found on the lawn. At the police station the prisoners gave the names of Mary Richardson and Rachel Pate, two women who have long been active among the London militants. They were remanded.

PERSONAL.

P. S. Brown, who has been spending the summer at Bradley Beach, has returned to his home at 153 Sycamore avenue.

Mrs. John Valiant is visiting relatives at Annapolis, Md.

Miss Iola Schenck, of Westervelt avenue, has returned from an extended stay at Saranac, N. Y., having fully recovered her health.

EUROPE TO RECOGNIZE CHINA'S REPUBLIC OCT. 10

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press).

St. Petersburg., Oct. 4.—The Russian Government today agreed to join with the other Powers in recognizing the Chinese Republic on Oct. 10.

FIRST BAPTISTS WILL WORSHIP IN OWN EDIFICE

The congregation of the First Baptist church will resume worship in its greatly renovated edifice tomorrow, when the usual services will be held morning and evening with preaching by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor. The Sunday-school will continue to meet at 9.45 o'clock in the morning during this month.

When the congregation assembles tomorrow it will notice many pleasing changes and improvements, the latest being the installation of the most modern system of electric lighting. All of the old fixtures have been replaced by new chandeliers in which the lights are concealed. The finishing touches are being put on today to have everything in readiness for the services tomorrow.

FAIL TO DISCUSS OUSTING OF TWO MILITIA OFFICERS

Trenton, Oct. 4.—The State Military Board did not take up the discussion of the recent order of the War Department, whch would abolish the division rating in this State and throw out of office, so far as the Federal Government is concerned, Major-General Dennis F. Collins and his staff, and Brigadier-General Mather, of the Second Brigade, and his staff.

General Collins himself was not present at the meeting and the routine business was hurried through, bids being received for the erection of the armory of Troop B at Red Bank, and for the new armory in Orange of Companies I and H, of the Fifth Regiment.

Afterward the members of the board adjourned and the majority of them went to the State fair.

In some circles the side-stepping of the Dick law question by the board Thursday is taken as a tacit admission that the general officers of the State are not favorable to stepping into the arena to fight for General Collins, when the order fundamentally is for the betterment of the service in general. The board has no power either to approve or disapprove of the order, but it was believed by General Collins' friends that the board would take it up, and decide at least to send a committee to Washington to see Secretary of War Garrison and ask that its enforcement be deferred for a year or two instead of going into operation next January.

The order will not affect the personnel of the troops of the State and will simply abolish the position of major-general, and eliminate Brigadier-General Mather because the Second Brigade has only two regiments instead of the three that the government holds necessary before recognizing the brigade rank of the commanding officer.

APPEAL FOR A LEG.

A man in Plainfield recently lost his foot in a railroad accident. It was clearly not the fault of the railroad so he cannot collect damages. He has absolutely no money except a very small amount which he has turned over to start a fund towards obtaining a new leg. But he has the promise of a job which he will take just as soon as he can stand upon his feet. Once at work he will try to support himself and will save up towards repaying the money advanced. The leg will cost $60 and has been ordered. Anyone interested in helping this man can write or telephone to the Charity Organization Society for further particulars.

TRINITY'S MISSION BAND WILL HEAR MRS. RISING

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church at its first fall meeting held yesterday afternoon decided to give a missionary tea on Thursday, October 23, at the home of Miss Lillian A. Force, 82 Duer street, at which time Miss Lucie Rising, of the First Baptist church, will give a talk on her trip abroad. Miss Winifred Rapalje, the president, was in charge of the meeting and Miss Helen Smith conducted the devotional exercises.

MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY

AMERICAN POULTRY is a magazine devoted entirely to helping earnest men and women make a financial success of poultry raising. Its staff of writers is composed entirely of those who have made a practical, instead of theoretical, success of poultry farming, and who are glad to pass on the results of their hard earned experience to AMERICAN POULTRY readers.

There are many pit-falls in the path of the novice which may be entirely avoided by those who will follow the teachings set forth in this magazine. It fully explains how to make a start, how to construct houses, coops, and other devices, how to get a large egg yield, how to cure and prevent disease, how to exhibit, how to get the top price for eggs, how to use incubators and hundreds of other points which everyone wishes to know. It explains the famous secret system through which poultrymen have become rich and afterwards sold for hundreds of dollars.

AMERICAN POULTRY is a large handsomely illustrated, monthly journal well printed on fine paper, and should be found on file in the home of every poultry raiser. No beginner in the poultry business should think of being without it. It will save him many times the small subscription price. The advanced poultryman will also find it of great value; the articles being varied in their scope.

SPECIAL OFFER. The regular price of AMERICAN POULTRY is 50c per year, but in order to introduce it to several thousand new readers, we will, for a short time, give a large 200 page poultry book, which is a complete guide in the poultry business, absolutely free to everyone sending 50c for a yearly subscription or $1.00 for a three year subscription to AMERICAN POULTRY. A trial six months' subscription (without book) will be sent for 25c. Never has so much been offered for so small a sum. Advantage of this offer should be taken at once.

OPENING KENSINGTON AVENUE.

The undersigned, Commissioners heretofore appointed by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield to make an estimate and assessment of damages that any owner or owners of land will sustain by the laying out and opening of Kensington Avenue from the southerly side line of Prospect Avenue to the northeasterly side line of Park Avenue, pursuant to the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Laying Out and Opening of Kensington Avenue from the Southerly Side Line of Prospect Avenue to the Northeasterly Side Line of Park Avenue," approved November 6, 1912, and also to ascertain the amount of damages that shall be assessed as aforesaid, and of all necessary expenses incident to such laying out and opening and to make a just and equitable assessment thereof among the owners and occupants of the lands, tenements and real estate benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefits each shall be deemed to acquire, said assessment to be made pursuant to the amended charter of the city as amended or modified by general statutes of the State, and particularly by the act entitled, "An Act respecting assessments in cities," approved April 21st, 1876, hereby give notice that they have this day filed their report and assessment in the office of the City Clerk, and that the same is open to inspection of the public, and will be presented to the Common Council at the meeting of that body to be held at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, on the sixth day of October, 1913, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The character of the work and improvement is the laying out and opening of Kensington Avenue between the points stated in the above mentioned title of said ordinance.

The lands taken are designated on a map and schedule accompanying said report and assessment, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, entitled "Assessment Map for the Laying Out and Opening of Kensington Avenue from the Southerly Side Line of Prospect Avenue to the Northeasterly Side Line of Park Avenue, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1913," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The lands assessed for benefits are the lands fronting on Kensington Avenue as ordered laid out and opened by said ordinance, and other lands fronting on said Kensington Avenue between Watchung and Prospect Avenues; also on the northerly side of Watchung Avenue between No. 1119 and No. 1217, and on the southerly side of said Watchung Avenue between No. 1122 and No. 1218; also on the northerly side of Prospect Avenue between No. 1101 and 1245, and on the southerly side of said Prospect Avenue between No. 1100 and No. 1244; also on the northerly side of Evergreen Avenue between No. 1131 and No. 1231, and on the southerly side of said Evergreen Avenue between No. 1132 and No. 1230; also on the northerly side of Martine Avenue between No. 1133 and No. 1231, and on the southerly side of said Martine Avenue between No. 1130 and No. 1232; also on the northerly side of Thornton Avenue between No. 1132 and No. 1245, and on the southerly side of said Thornton Avenue between No. 1130 and No. 1244; also on the southwesterly side of Park Avenue between No. 1116 and No. 1198; also on the easterly side of Stilford Avenue between Randolph Road and Clawson Avenue, and are also shown and designated on said map and schedule, to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 15.

Let us shed no tears o'er the weight of toil
That falls to that human's part
Who has chance to labor and till the soil
Or to sweat in some business mart.
Let us waste no sympathy, sigh or sighs,
Over work-weary flesh and bone—
For these are the luckiest 'neath the skies—
Let them weep for themselves alone!

For the hand that is idle thro' baffling fate,
For the soul that has sought in vain;
With those wretched ones who for labor wait,
Let us sorrow with might and main.
The saddest, the hardest, the bitterest lot
That can fall to a mortal here
Is to search for work and to find it not—
For him let us drop a tear!
—Luarana Sheldon.

Somehow, I can't drop many tears. Somehow, I can't get it into my head that a man who really wants to work must remain idle.

Employers are constantly looking for employes. You don't believe it? All right. Just turn to the WANT ADS. in today's paper. Read the "HELP WANTED—MALE" ads. Then read the "HELP WANTED—FEMALE" ads. And then you look me squarely in the eyes and tell me that you are ready to shed tears for those who "search for work and find it not."

Of course, if a man or a woman is sadly deficient, mentally or physically, there's no helping hand in the WANT ADS. The world doesn't give the weakling a square deal—but I am not prepared to argue the why and where of that. The point I wish to make is that no person who wants to work, and who is really capable of work, need go long at the mercy of "baffling fate."

The WANT ADS. are the great meeting-place for employer and employe. Meetings are held daily. And the man who keeps an eye on these meetings—who is alert to seize the opportunities of the passing hour—is pretty sure of a ....chance to labor and till the soil

Or to sweat in some business mart.

NEW JERSEY GIRLS GIVEN WELLESLEY SENIOR PLACES

At a meeting of the Wellesley College senior class yesterday, Miss Gladys Gorman, of Montclair, was elected treasurer, Miss Hazel Cooper, of Newark, was named to the executive board and Miss Grace Collins, of Westfield, was elected art editor of the news board.

HUDSON CANDIDATES FAVOR CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

Jersey City, Oct. 4.—Senatorial Candidate Charles M. Egan and the twelve Hudson county Democratic candidates for the Assembly will hold a meeting today and prepare a platform upon which they will run at the general election. While this platform will not clash in any way with that adopted Tuesday afternoon by the Democrats in their State convention at Trenton, it will go much farther in its pledges to the people.

The most important plank will be the promise of the introduction of a bill in the Legislature providing for a Constitutional convention, at which changes in the State Constitution may be made. The plank will pledge the Hudson Democrats to a bill that will make the basis of representation the population of the counties.

When You Put Away Summer Clothes.

It is almost time to bid good bye to summer clothes and pack them away for the winter.

And what are you going to pack away until the first warm winds of the spring of 1914 remind you that another budding season is at hand and that it is time to unpack, instead of pack, again?

Of course, there are some things that must be put away. Straw hats, for one thing, cannot possibly be used in the winter. They should be cleaned carefully, relieved of all torn or useless trimming, wrapped in paper or put in pasteboard boxes, neatly labeled and stored away.

Parasols, too, are useless in winter and therefore must be packed up 'till spring. Clean them if they are soiled—dirt is always destructive—and roll them carefully in tissue paper, then in clean wrapping paper or unbleached muslin and stand them against a wall, on their handles.

What Not to Pack.

Skirts will doubtless change before another summer rolls around. Therefore don't pack away any more summer skirts than you absolutely can find no winter use for. It is all right, when skirts are full, to lay them away for next year. They can be made over then into smaller skirts if skirts grow smaller, or left as they are if skirts stay full. But when skirts are as small as they have been this year, there is no way of making them larger, if you want to next summer when larger skirts will probably be in fashion.

Parisian women are going to wear thin frocks for the house this winter. A chiffon shirtwaist frock and a net shirtwaist frock that have been worn at the watering places this summer are both to be worn in Paris for informal evening wear. You can follow the Parisian women's example and make use of your summer frocks for winter evening wear. So you will wear the frocks while they are still in fashion and, incidentally, you will save wear on more expensive winter evening dresses.

What You Do Put Away.

Such thin things as you do pack away, pack away clean. Have them all washed, and put them away unstarched—starch rots them, sometimes—and unironed. They will become wrinkled in the packing and must be ironed in the spring, anyway. Always have them washed, however, as dust is as disastrous as starch.

Mend underwear that you pack away. But don't mend such frocks as you put away, for they will doubtless need remodeling in the spring.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

I have been reading the life of a woman of the last century who did much in her generation to better the faulty conditions which she found in her surroundings. In one of the letters written to her family after her death occurs a phrase which strikes me as very characteristic of our sex. It is prefaced by a personal touch:

"Her strong intellect tended rather to espouse a cause than to hold the scales that weigh and balance; she would have been a better advocate than judge."

We women can see a wrong quickly, intuitively and we can advocate warmly and successfully, but this very warmth of advocacy is apt to lead us into really dangerous experiments. It is very hard for a woman to look at a thing in such a detached way that she can see all around it. It is largely for this reason that it seems the part of wisdom to content ourselves with bringing needed reforms so forcibly before our legislators that they will act on them. We, not having any voting power, can do this with a freedom that is impossible where one is tied to a party. We should, and in a vast number of cases do, act as a compass which points always due north. But bring iron or steel in the shape of a party and a vote near and the needle is deflected. Such a compass was Mrs. Clara Temple Leonard, of Greenfield, Massachusetts. To her largely belongs the honor of establishing the first Woman's Prison and Reformatory in the United States. The pioneer and original advocate of the plan was Miss Hannah Chickering, of Dedham, founder of the Dedham Home for Discharged Female Prisoners. A meeting was called and held in St. Paul's Chapel, Boston, Nov. 27, 1869, and a committee consisting of both men and women was appointed to bring the subject before the legislature. An act was passed in 1870 appointing a prison commission and an advisory board consisting of three women—Miss Chickering, Mrs. Durant and Mrs. Clara T. Leonard. This commission was empowered to select a prison to be used exclusively for women.

One of the reforms sought was "that the boards of control may be empowered to hold for the use of each prisoner, a percentage of the wages of her labor to be expended for the personal comfort of the prisoner or reserved for her future support, or for the use of those dependent on her, so that voluntary industry, frugality and self-reliance may be encouraged and promoted by a direct appeal to the self interest of the prisoner."

The idea of a separate reformatory prison for women was entirely new in this country and it naturally took some educative work to influence the Legislature. By the advice of an English woman, Miss Carpenter, who was well up in prison work, a league was formed and committee after committee, of which Mrs. Leonard was generally spokesman, appealed to the Legislature. In 1894 a bill was passed appropriating $300,000 for a prison (which was also a reformatory) for women.

Later, realizing that the laws for the protection of minor children were very inadequate she put herself at work to reform the laws and with legal aid, drew up a bill to enable the police to remove neglected or abused children from their unworthy parents and place them under the guardianship of the State, some suitable society or an individual. It would be interesting and amusing to tell of her troubles with General Butler, who found her an immovable obstacle in his way, when for political reasons he tried to remove certain officials from the almshouse at Tewksbury. She was armed against every attack. As a member of the advisory board of the Prison Commission, she knew the prisons and almshouses thoroughly. Hers were not perfunctory visitations. And at the same time she was doing an immense amount of charitable work.

In 1884 was formed the Massachusetts Remonstrants or Anti-Woman Suffrage League, with Mrs. Guild, the sister of President Eliot, at the head. Mrs. Leonard was asked to write a letter to be read before the Legislature, which she did. It is a well-written, calm and convincing paper, well worth reading, but too long to be copied in these columns. It is singularly "up-to-date," forestalling most of the arguments used now-a-days. Let me give one or two quotations:

"It is the opinion of many of us that woman's power is greater without the ballot or possibility of office-holding for gain, when, standing outside of politics, she discusses great questions upon their merits. * * * Our legislators have been ready to listen to women and carry out their plans when well framed."

* * * * *

"It is of vital importance to the integrity of our charitable and educational administration that it be kept out of politics. Is it not well that we should have one sex who should have no political ends to serve, who can fill responsible positions of public trust?"

"Many laws on the statute books of our own and other States have been the work of women. More might be added."

"She being dead, yet speaketh."

ELIZABETH B. SYKES.

Some Cookery Suggestions

WAYS OF COOKING SCALLOPS.

SCALLOPS are now in season and are delicious if well cooked. When preparing them be particular to wash them well in order to free them of sand.

Scallops have a sweet flavor and are most popular fried.

When Stewed.

Stewed Scallops.—First wash the scallops thoroughly and free them from sand, then set in a saucepan with a little butter, pepper, salt and lemon juice. Cover with a tight fitting lid and allow the fish to stew in their own juice slowly for half an hour.

Cooked In the Shells.

Scallops au Gratin.—Cook as above and then put two or three into a greased shell, scatter some fresh breadcrumbs over and as much of the liquor as the breadcrumbs will absorb, put a little butter on each, season with cayenne pepper and bake in the oven till nicely browned.

Fried Scallops.—After stewing the scallops in their own juice wipe dry, flour, dip into egg and breadcrumbs and fry in deep fat. Drain and serve with fried bacon.

Individual Service.

Baked Scallops.—Stew the scallops, then trim off the black parts and beards from the fish and wash the shells clean. Place three scallops in the deeper half of the shells till all are used. Chop and scald a tablespoonful of parsley, add to it a teacupful of fine white breadcrumbs, stir in a little melted butter, season all with pepper and salt, add sufficient milk to make all into a thin paste. Season the fish with a little vinegar, cayenne and salt and pour over it some of the mixture, sprinkle a few breadcrumbs over all, add small pieces of butter and bake for twenty minutes.

A Well Seasoned Dish.

Scallops In Stock.—Get some good sized scallops, sprinkle lemon juice over them, roll in sifted flour and arrange closely in an enameled saucepan. Cover with good white stock to which has been added three pepper corns, a blade of mace, a little grated nutmeg and a sprig of parsley. When the liquor comes to the boil skim it and add a gill of white wine. Cook slowly for an hour, take up the scallops and keep hot while preparing the sauce. Strain the liquor, skim it again and thicken with a piece of butter rolled in flour. Pour over the scallops, garnish with chopped parsley and chopped yolk of egg and serve at once.

Daddy's Bedtime Story

Mr. Cricket Had a Lovely Concert After All.

The Fairies Wear Flower Clothes.

IT was raining when the children came up to go to bed. Evelyn glanced out of the window.

"Raining again," Evelyn exclaimed. "I wonder if the dear little fairies mind it raining?"

"Huh; what do fairies care?" grunted Jack. "They just wave their wands, and then the rain is all gone in fairyland."

"But never mind; I'll tell you how little Mr. Field Cricket managed the night he had his garden party," said daddy.

"When he sent out the invitations he had expected to have a lovely moonlight night. But the day before the party the sun hid its face behind a cloud, and when evening came the cloud was beginning to send down rain.

"Mr. Cricket was very much put out. He had asked all the nicest crickets he knew and besides these some of the katydids, locusts, grasshoppers, beetles and other insect friends.

"Mr. Cricket is, as you may know, a fine musician. He carries his violin on his back so he can practice whenever he has time, and he was giving the garden party so their friends could hear a new piece which Mrs. Cricket thought very fine indeed.

"Well, Mr. Cricket had been practicing the nice piece with the greatest industry, and when he saw that rain coming down just on the evening of his party he was very much put out.

"'No party this evening, I am afraid,' he said gloomily as he peered out from between the blades of grass that grew like a forest in front of their home.

"'Dear, dear; it's too bad!' exclaimed Mrs. Cricket, for she knew it would be a great disappointment to Mr. Cricket if he could not play that evening.

"'Mr. Spider was just scrambling home, and he heard what she said.

"'If you will allow me, neighbors, I think it can be arranged,' he offered.

"So Mr. Spider scurried away as fast as he could. In a short time he came back. 'It's finished,' he announced.

"They all went out to see, and there, stretched from grass blade to grass blade, was a beautiful silver silk canopy which Mr. Spider had woven.

"'You can sit under there and play for the company, while the guests sit under those nice big china asters,' Mr. Spider said.

"And so they had the concert, after all. Every one was snug and dry, and the concert was a great success. This morning as I went by I saw the canopy studded with raindrops, and underneath it I could hear Mr. Cricket, who may have gone right to sleep there when the concert was over, waking up to give a sleepy 'Cree, cree!'"

WAISTCOATS RECEIVE UNUSUAL ATTENTION IN TAILORED SUITS

Severely tailored suits are practically a thing of the past. The suit today is dressy enough for an afternoon tea and conventional enough for a shopping trip, but lines are easy; skirts are draped and sashed; coats are belted and vested in charming, unusual ways.

Two-toned suits are modish, plain coats with skirts of plaids or stripes. A model of Cheruit's has a coat of plain blue duvetyn and a skirt of ribbed velours de laine in blue and green. Another imported suit of velours de laine has a coat of dark blue with a dark blue skirt striped in Nattier blue. Both were smart. Either of these combinations can be used with 7955-7710 most appropriately. The vest of softly colored silk duvetyn, matelasse or tapestry gives an effective touch of contrast. There is scarcely a suit or blouse that does not show a vest or at least a suggestion of a vest. It is one of the details that makes for smartness this season.

7955 in size 36 may be copied with 3¾ yards of 36 inch material; 7710 requires for size 24 3¼ yards of 36 inch material.

A long, loose coat most practical to slip on over a one-piece frock is shown in 7917. Ratine with cuffs and revers of a smooth contrasting material would be good for general wear, while in one of the new velours or corduroys, fur trimmed, it would be dressy enough for evening.

To copy in size 36 this design requires 5 yards of 42 inch material. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Smart Neckwear In Various Shapes.

Neckwear is an accessory in dress which has become an essential feature. A variety of collars is quite needed to complete the wardrobe of the well dressed girl, for she must have collars to go with her various dresses.

These four collars are particularly suitable for the school or college girl, for wear with dresses or coats. The designs are all very simple and easy to embroider and may be developed in white or a color.

Patterns number 13294, 14220 and 14403 should be embroidered in solid work and eyelets and pattern number 14137 in solid work and button-hole stitch.

Handkerchief linen, lawn, fine batiste or heavy colored linens may be used for making the collars.

Pattern number 14137 may be made of two different materials or colors. The collar proper may be white linen embroidered in a color and the border of a pink or blue material, embroidered in a color and the collar may be made of net with a border of linen. The two materials should be slightly overlapped and buttonholed.

These patterns will be supplied to Daily Press readers for fifteen cents each.

CAR STALLED, MAID RIDES TO WEDDING IN PRODUCE WAGON

Passaic, Oct. 4.—A tale of the value of a produce wagon in providing a maid of honor for the wedding of Miss Marion Clark and Alfred Sprecht Wednesday afternoon has just been made known. Miss Julia Kirk, of Newark, the maid, for a time feared the ceremony would have to proceed without her.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the Clark street home of the bride. Miss Kirk and her sister were on the way, aboard a street car, when a fuse blew out, leaving them stranded in West Nutley. Miss Kirk hailed a passing wagon as the only chance to get here in time.

Crouching deep beneath the canopy and surrounded by garden produce the young women were jounced to their destination on the assurance of the driver that they had plenty of time. He proved it.

EVEN MONEY ON SERIES.

Approximately $1,000 Wagered—Athletic Supporters Ask Odds.

New York, Oct. 4. — There was increased activity in world series betting in the financial district. Approximately $1,000 was wagered at even money on the curb and in cafes.

Fred Schumm reported a bet of $300 even that the Athletics would win the first game. There was another bet of $300 even that the combined score of the first day's game would be odd. One man put up $50 against $100 that Mathewson would oppose Bender in the first game, while $50 was wagered at evens that Demaree would win the first game he works in.

ELKS ELECT LEADER.

Francis Blatz, who has led the Elks' bowling team in the antlered league for the past three years, was re-elected by the pinners at a meeting last night and will again head the Plainfield representatives who this year will play on alleys of their own for the first time. Heretofore the public chutes on East Second street have been used to play visiting teams on but it is expected that the four new alleys in the basement of the new lodge building will be completed before the season opens and the first home game will be played on the new chutes.

Queries, Comment and Answers.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are the meetings of the Common Council open to the public? N. C.

Answer—They certainly are and our city fathers are always glad to see people at the sessions.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the highest waterfall in America? J. H.

Answer—In America, Multnomah Falls, in Oregon, height 850 feet. In the world the Grand Falls in Labrador, 2,000 feet.

Sporting Editor:

Query—A contends that vitriol is produced from fumes arising from copper or copper ore. B contends that vitriol is produced from oxide of copper. Which is right? U. U. V.

Answer—Sulphate of copper (blue vitriol) is made technically in chiefly two ways. One method is to heat metallic copper to redness in air until it is almost completely oxidized, and to dissolve the oxide by means of dilute sulphuric acid. Another process starts from the sul-sulphite (produced metallurgically as "mat," or perhaps expressly from its elements) and converts this into sulphate and oxide by careful roasting. The product is dissolved into dillute sulphuric acid. In the production of blue vitriol (copper vitriol or sulphate of copper) the copper, where metal is used as the base, is first oxidized because the oxide is much more readily attacked by sulphuric acid than is the case with the metal itself. Oil of vitriol is sulphuric acid, but the name vitriol is oftentimes applied to certain metallic sulphates, but always with the distinguishing prefix; such as green, blue, iron or copper vitriol, as the case may be. A has confused "fumes" with the preliminary oxidization of copper.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the value of a dime dated 1866? K. M.

Answer—Ten cents, unless it is a counterfeit.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it true that Christy Mathewson wont play ball on Sundays?—N. J. K.

Answer—Matty is one of the few ball players who won't play ball on Sundays. Most of the diamond performers don't have as much to say concerning when they will play as does the "Peerless One."

Sporting Editor:

Query—Did Ralph Rose compete in the Olympic shot put in the games at Stockholm?—G. T.

Answer—Yes. He won that event, with both hands.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where can I secure a copy of the factory rules of New Jersey? O. L. C.

Answer—Write to the Factory Inspector at Trenton.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Who will pitch the first game of the world's series for the Giants?—B. H.

Answer—Matty probably, although no twirler has been definitely slated to do the opening work.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Who is the bike sprint champion of the world?—T. S. L.

Answer—Walter Rutt, Germany.

MARSHALL BEATS DURAS.

In the third encounter between Frank J. Marshall, United States chess champion, and Oldrich Duras, of Prague, at the rooms of the Manhattan Chess Club, Marshall had the white pieces and essayed his favorite Danish Gambit. The result was the same—a dashing win for Marshall after thirty moves. The score to date is Marshall 3, Duras 0.

BRICKLEY'S RECORD KICK.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 4.—Captain Charley Brickley, of the Harvard football team, yesterday kicked a goal from placement from the 53-yard line during the scrimmage with the scrub team. This is the longest goal ever made in the Stadium and the hopes of Harvard's success on the gridiron this season soared last night.

HEAVIES IN A DRAW.

Sam Langford, of Boston, and Joe Jeanette, of Hoboken, battled through ten rounds at Madison Square Garden last night without either showing any of the superiority on which that much discussed bout with Jack Johnson is supposed to hinge. Jeannette showed flashes of boxing skill, but his punches were weakest, and when they came the hardest they did not carry enough force to make the Boston negro back up. On the other hand, Langford showed the greater willingness to force matters, and his punches carried all the snap that they ever had. But Sam came into the ring under the handicap of twenty pounds of surplus flesh.

WOMEN GOLFERS PLAY FINALS.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—Miss Muriel Dodd, the English champion, defeated Miss Florence Scott, of Hamilton, Ont., in the semi-finals of the Canadian women's golf championship tournament yesterday by 7 up and 5 to play. Miss Dodd's opponent in the final tomorrow will be Miss Florence Harvey, of Hamilton, who defeated Miss Violet Pooley, of Victoria, B. C., by winning the eighteenth hole after the game had been all-square at the seventeenth.

CLUB SOLD FOR $165,000.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 4.—The Indianapolis American Association Baseball Club was sold here late yesterday by Sol. Meyer, owner, to Jas. C. McGill, George A. Wahlgreen, and Jack Hendricks, of Denver. The purchase price, said to be $165,000, is the largest every paid for a minor league organization. The disposal of the franchise by Mr. Meyer comes after a year of futile effort to build up a winning aggregation. Mr. McGill for years has been the President of the Denver team of the Western League, and he and his associates expect to begin work at once building up the local team.

RAHWAY WINS ANOTHER.

Barringer High School football eleven suffered its first defeat of the season yesterday afternoon when it fell victim before the strong Rahway High School gridiron warriors at Riverside Park, Rahway, by a score of 14 to 6. Andy Dempsey, captain of the Blue and White eleven, was responsible for the only scoring done by the Barringerites, he getting off two beautiful kicks, the first in the second quarter, from the thirty-five-yard line, while the second, which came in the third quarter, was sent between the bars from the forty-yard line.

HARVARD MEETS PENN STATE.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 4.—Harvard and Penn State will meet in football in the Stadium on Saturday, October 25. Arrangements for the contest were made yesterday in New York, when Graduate Managers Moore, of Harvard, and Smith, of Penn State, held a conference. Penn State has been assigned the date which Norwich was forced to cancel because of the injury and subsequent death of Half Back Vernon Belyea.

OTHERS FOLLOW

But the Plainfield Daily Press leads and always has led. It is the originator in progressive ideas in newspaper enterprise and the record speaks for itself here in Plainfield. We introduced the scheme of megaphone announcement for reporting the World Series last fall, play by play. Others imitate as they always have. We congratulate them in being, as they have been and will be, in newspaper enterprise an "also" for they do show that they appreciate what we do DO.

But remember, the best, the first, the most complete tidings of the World Series all through next week will be furnished by the Plainfield Progressive Paper—the Plainfield Daily Press.

Within fifteen minutes after the first World Series game is started the street in front of the Plainfield Daily Press office will be crowded with fans. You know that for you know that the Plainfield Daily Press always "makes good."

MONTCLAIR A. C. BRANCHES OUT

Montclair, Oct. 4.—At its annual meeting Thursday night the Montclair Athletic Club voted to purchase a large tract of lad adjoining its present extensive grounds on Valley road. The addition to the club's property includes a plot, 500x170 feet on Brunswick road and Central avenue. It was decided also to add to the facilities of the club by constructing an addition to the present building, which was only recently enlarged. The club also acted favorably on the proposition to increase the limit of regular members from 800 to 1,000 and life members from 50 to 100. The addition to the clubhouse will cost about $8,000, and will include an exercising room, two additional squash courts and bowling alleys.

WINNING PLAYS IN LAST GIANTS-ATHLETICS SERIES

The first game was won by the Giants, 2 to 1, on Snodgrass' good base running and an error. The winning run was the result of two base hits by Myers and Devore. Mathewson gave six hits, Bender five.

The second game went to the Athletics, Plank beating Marquard, 3 to 1. With the score one each in the sixth, Collins doubled and Baker hit his first home run of the series.

The Athltics took the third game, in New York. The Giants led until the ninth, when Baker duplicated his home run of the day before, tying the score. In the eleventh the Athletics scored two runs on errors by Herzog and Fletcher.

After several days' intermission Mathewson again faced the Athletics and started brilliantly, but in the fourth was hit for three doubles in succession by Baker, Murphy and Davis, followed by a single and sacrifice fly, which netted three runs.

The fifth game went ten innings, and the Giants won, 4 to 3, tying the score in the ninth and winning in the tenth. Doyle doubled, beat Plank's throw to third on a force and scored on Merkle's sacrifice fly.

The sixth and last game was a slaughter, the Athletics winning, 13 to 2.

WESTFIELD QUOIT LEAGUE'S OPENING

Schedule of Contests Arranged for the Next Five Months.

The Fraternal Quoit League tournament was begun last night in Westfield, with games between the Junior Mechanics and Loyal Association following the meeting of the Juniors in Arcanum Hall. A schedule of games for October, November, December, January and February has been prepared. Games will be played on each evening there is a meeting of a lodge. GAME LAW PROVISIONS ARE GIVEN OUT BY COMMISSION

Trenton, Oct. 3.—Upon receipt of a telegram from the Department of Agriculture announcing President Wilson's approval of the regulations for migratory birds in New Jersey, the State Fish and Game Commission issued a bulletin announcing the effect of the federal regulations upon the game laws in this State.

The United States regulations will in all cases supersede the New Jersey game laws where there is a conflict between the two. Under the federal law, known as the McLean act, violations are punishable by a fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or both, in the discretion of the court.

In the bulletin of the commission the open season, both dates being inclusive, for various kinds of game, is set forth as follows:

Quail, rabbit, squirrel, English ringneck pheasant (males only), ruffed grouse, prairie chicken, wild turkey, Hungarian partridge, November 10 to December 15.

Rails, coots, gallinules, marsh hen or mud hen, September 1 to November 30.

Woodcock, October 10 to November 30.

Water fowl, except wood duck and swans, November 1 to February 1.

Shore birds—Only black-breasted plover, golden plover, Jack snipe or Wilson snipe, and greater and lesser yellow legs, September 1 to December 15.

The closed season for birds is as follows:

Female English ring-neck pheasant, until November 1, 1914.

Reed bird (bob-o-link or rice bird), at all times.

All small shore birds not designated by name under the open season, little brown, sandhill, and whooping cranes, swans, curlews, upland plover and wood ducks, until September 1, 1918.

All migratory and non-migratory insectivorous birds.

A daily closed season on all migratory game birds shall extend from sunset to sunrise.

"MAC" SAYS

Watch these columns for the real "inside dope" on the world series. Every local fan will want to know what Jack Martin has to say about the big series. Martin will hurl the hyperbole for the Daily Press during the series next week.

Isn't it funny that some men who would gladly pay $5 to see one game of the world's series object to paying $9 to see three, and isn't it still funnier that Plainfield fans are passing up an opportunity to witness the big struggle when they can get the complete returns from the Daily Press service? Some fans know a good thing when they see it.

Plainfield baseball will vanish for the season this afternoon. "Martin Day" makes a fitting finale to the successful season of the Pets.

One is led to wonder whether the Glover playing football for Holy Cross is any relation to "Kid" Glover, the prize-fighter. If he is, he doesn't need any headgear.

Harry Jennings will oppose the International Leaguers at Parker Field this afternoon. There is some consolation in the fact that Harry never lost a game in a world's series. Maybe he will some day, though.

Cecil Gray, of Charleston, W. Va., claims that he has made thirty-three home runs this season. How could anyone with a handle like "Cecil" turn this stunt?

The Giants should be big favorites in the betting on the coming world's series. They have ten men writing stories for the metropolitan newspapers against the Athletics' two scribes. Don't be swayed by their sayings. You never can tell by the bunk they throw.

Were William Jennings Bryan a member of the Giants or Athletics he would not be forced to undergo the embarrassment of going on lecture tours to keep the wolf from the doors of his four residences.

GIRLS WILL PLAY BALL.

The New York Bloomer Girls' baseball team, one of the fastest feminine nines playing the national game, will oppose Joe Alberts' team at Scotch Plains tomorrow afternoon as a regular Sunday attraction. The Plains field will be enclosed in canvas, which the feminine athletes carry with them from one place to another and a record crowd is expected at the game.

JACK MARTIN WILL WRITE BASEBALL EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE DAILY PRESS.

Another innovation has been introduced into local and suburban baseball circles by the Plainfield Daily Press as a means of furnishing the fans with complete and detailed information concerning the coming world series' games to be played in New York and Philadelphia and Jack Martin, of the Boston National League baseball team, has been secured to write exclusively for the sporting columns of this paper. Jack will have entire charge of the world series information bureau which has been established in the Daily Press office and the information will be given in a complete, accurate and instantaneous manner.

Each play will be described in detail through a megaphone and Martin will write a story preliminary and succeeding each one of the big contests. "Plainfield's Pride of Diamond Performers" will begin work Monday. Watch these columns for his first installment Monday afternoon. It will give you some new "dope" on the big show and you will get an inside knowledge of the National pastime. Jack has been playing against the New York Nationals during the past week and is well qualified to handle the work.

AJAX WILL ORGANIZE FOR ANOTHER SEASON

Popular Basketball Five Will Meet Tuesday Night to Open the Fall Work.

Following numerous inquiries on the part of those who have followed the Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball team during the four years it has been in existence, the players have called a meeting to be held in the association next Tuesday night, when the work of reorganization for another season will be completed. At that time a manager and captain will be selected and a schedule will be started immediately.

C. William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., who has taken an active interest in the club since it was originally formed during the season that George Whittaker was physical director of the association, will meet with the members Tuesday night and plans will at that time be outlined for the season's work. The contests will again be played on the association court and the team will be as strong, if not stronger, than the one of last year.

Two of the players, William Peacock and Andrew Hetfield, are planning to play with the Plainfield High School quintet but there are still four members of the squad remaining and another one will be selected immediately to make up the combination.

MARTIN WITH TY COBB.

Among the players on Ty Cobb's All Stars that will appear on the Elizabethport field tomorrow afternoon to lineup against the T. A. B. aggregation will be Jack Martin of this city, who will play shortstop. Martin returned from Boston last night, and completed negotiations with Dave Driscoll, who is managing Cobb's team, to report on the Elizabethport diamond tomorrow.

WIDENING OF SYCAMORE STREET.

The undersigned, Commissioners heretofore appointed by the Common Council of the City of Plainfield to make an estimate and assessment of damages that any owner or owners of land will sustain by the widening of Sycamore Street from the southeasterly side line of East Fifth Street to the northwesterly side line of East Sixth Street, pursuant to the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Widen Sycamore Street from the Southeasterly Side Line of East Fifth Street to the Northwesterly Side Line of East Sixth Street," approved March 5, 1913, and also to ascertain the amount of damages that shall be assessed as aforesaid, and of all necessary expenses incident to such widening and to make a just and equitable assessment thereof among the owners and occupants of the lands, tenements and real estate benefited thereby, in proportion to the benefits each shall be deemed to acquire, said assessment to be made pursuant to the amended charter of the city as amended or modified by general statutes of the State, and particularly by the act entitled, "An Act respecting assessments in cities," approved April 21st, 1876, hereby give notice that they have this day filed their report and assessment in the office of the City Clerk, and that the same is open to inspection of the public, and will be presented to the Common Council at the meeting of that body to be held at the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, on the sixth day of October, 1913, at 8 o'clock p. m.

The character of the work and improvement is the widening of Sycamore Street between the points stated in the above-mentioned title of said ordinance.

The lands taken are designated on a map and schedule accompanying said report and assessment, and filed in the office of the City Clerk, entitled, "Assessment Map for the Widening of Sycamore Street, from the southeasterly side line of East Fifth Street to the northwesterly side line of East Sixth Street, City of Plainfield, N. J., September, 1913," to which map reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

The lands assessed for benefits are the lands fronting on Sycamore Street as ordered to be widened by said ordinance, and other lands fronting on both sides of said Sycamore Street between East Fourth Street and East Fifth Street, also between East Sixth Street and East Seventh Street; also on the northwesterly side of East Fourth Street between No. 123 and No. 141, and on the southeasterly side of said East Fourth Street between No. 130 and No. 138; also on the northwesterly side of East Fifth Street between No. 111 and No. 143, and on the southeasterly side of said East Fifth Street between No. 116 and No. 141, also on the northwesterly side of East Sixth Street between No. 115 and No. 145 and on the southeasterly side of said East Sixth Street between No. 114 and No. 142; also on the northwesterly side of East Seventh Street between No. 123 and No. 129 and on the southeasterly side of said East Seventh Street between No. 122 and No. 132; and are also shown and designated on said map and schedule, to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty.

ROOSEVELT GETS SPLENDID TRIBUTE

Thousands Cheer Him at Farewell Dinner.

SAILS TO SOUTH AMERICA

Trip Will Be Largely in Interests of Science—Plans to Make Addresses Before Four Universities—Big Crowd Sees Him Off.

New York, Oct. 4.—Colonel Roosevelt sailed at 1 o'clock today for South America on board the Lamport & Holt steamship Vandyck, having said a formal goodby to his fellow Progressives at the dinner given in his honor at the New York Roof Garden last night and promised to be back in fighting trim in six months. The steamship left the foot of Montague street, Brooklyn, and Mr. Roosevelt's followers, many of whom were unable to find places at the roof garden dinner, were on hand in force to see to it that the colonel got a properly Progressive sendoff on his latest adventure.

The South American trip, it is announced, will be more largely in the interests of science than was the invasion of Africa, when the slaying of the lion was the chief aim. Of that part of his time which is to be devoted to man to the exclusion of other animals the colonel has said:

"The political and social aspect of the trip is the carrying to our brother in the south a message concerning the ideals of a newer and greater democracy which have come into being among us here."

To Make Four Addresses.

This message will be presented in four addresses at universities or before learned societies. On Oct. 22 Mr. Roosevelt will speak at the University of Rio Janeiro on "American Internationalism," and following this in an order not yet determined he will lecture on "Character and Civilization" at Sao Paulo, on "Democratic Ideals" at Buenos Aires and on "The Democratic Movement In a Republic" at Santiago university, the oldest in the Americas.

The Vandyck is a 10,500 ton ship and the best of her line. She is smart in new paint, and the cabins have been redecorated in anticipation of the distinguished guest. It is said that the colonel's private suit is the finest that a private citizen at least has ever used for a tropical voyage.

With Mr. Roosevelt went Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Margaret Roosevelt, who will make the round trip on the Vandyck; Anthony Fiala, the polar explorer, who has charge of the expedition's equipment; G. K. Cherry and Leo L. Miller, naturalists of the American Museum of Natural History; Frank Harper, Colonel Roosevelt's secretary, and the Rev. Father John Augustine Zahm, provincial of the Order of the Holy Cross, a former field companion of the colonel.

The naturalists will start into the interior shortly after their arrival in Brazil to be joined by the colonel after he has finished his lectures. You can stow the heaviest lecture in a hand bag, but an explorer's luggage isn't so easily concealed, and the Roosevelt baggage, all going as excess luggage and specially tagged, was conspicuous on the pier. Among other things there are two motorboats, four launches, two canoes, what looked to be tons of canned goods, to say nothing of tents, taxidermist's requisites and the indispensable moving picture apparatus.

T. R.'s Great Ovation.

From all parts of the nation Progressives journeyed to New York to join the great farewell testimonial that was tendered Colonel Theodore Roosevelt on the roof of the New York theater last night. It was a dinner, so they termed it, but of the 2,350 men and women who jammed every inch of space in what on other nights is known as the "Garden of the Dance," there were few indeed who had a chance to partake of each of the five courses in which the meal was served.

It was a physical impossibility for the regiment of waiters to give everybody something of everything, and the speaking would probably have started some time this morning had not Gifford Pinchot the toastmaster, realized the situation, banished the waiters and then started the Progressive ball rolling.

The colonel has had many a great ovation, but it is doubtful if he ever received one that was more sincere or more enthusiastic than was the greeting of the men and women who were on the New York theater roof last night. They cheered him as the greatest of the bull moosers, as the foremost living American, as a past and as a future president, as a good fellow and as a hunter mighty and bold. And "Teddy" enjoyed it all. There can be no doubt about that. The smile on his face and the happy, quick way in which he applauded when some enthusiastic follower enunciated this or that Progressive doctrine told the story of his delight only too well.

Columbus Day Oct. 13.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Because Columbus day falls this year on Sunday it will be observed on the following Monday, Oct. 13, is a decision handed down by Attorney General Carmody. The question was raised by many interests, particularly by school authorities.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

There will be a corporate communion for the members of the Women's Guild and the Women's Auxiliary of Grace church, tomorrow morning, at 7.30 o'clock, with special prayers for the triennial convention of the church to begin its sessions Wednesday, Oct. 8, at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York city. All women of the parish have been asked to join in this service.

The meeting of the local branch of the W. C. T. U. will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the rooms in the Babcock building.

The boys' choir of Bethel chapel will render a sacred concert program at tomorrow night's service at eight o'clock.

The Plainfield Colored Lyceum will open its fall and winter season tomorrow afternoon at 4.30 o'clock at the Shiloh Baptist church.

Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, will, beginning tomorrow night, preach a series of evangelistic sermons, which will continue for several weeks on Sunday evening.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church at a meeting yesterday decided to give a luncheon in the chapel of the church, Thursday afternoon, November 6, at 1 o'clock, for the benefit of the society.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor, will speak at the meeting of the Young People's Society at the First Baptist church, tomorrow evening, at 6.50 o'clock.

John M. Carnie, the Scotch evangelist, will preach the gospel at the meeting room, 110 Liberty street, near West Front street, tomorrow evening at 7:45 o'clock.

CARMODY WILL PROBE HARRY THAW'S ESCAPE

Attorney General Designated by Acting Governor Glynn.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Acting Governor Glynn designated Attorney General Carmody to take charge of a grand jury investigation in New York county into the escape of Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan State Hospital For the Criminal Insane on Aug. 17 last. The plan has the approval of District Attorneys Whitman of New York and Couger of Dutchess.

In addition to investigating Thaw's escape the inquiry is expected to cover developments growing out of Thaw's arrest in Canada, his subsequent arrest in New Hampshire and the recent consideration by the Dutchess county grand jury of the charge of conspiracy against Thaw.

While the order issued by Governor Glynn directs the attorney general to take personal charge of the inquiry, he is permitted under the law to be represented by special counsel if he sees fit. It has been reported that William T. Jerome of New York, who was designated by Mr. Carmody as a special deputy attorney general in the proceedings to bring Thaw back to New York state, probably will be designated to represent or assist Mr Carmody. Mr. Jerome was here this week and conferred with Governor Glynn and Mr. Carmody.

It was deemed advisable to hold the inquiry in New York for various reasons, including the fact that the crime of conspiracy growing out of Thaw's release from Matteawan may involve persons residing both in New York and Dutchess counties.

Reports have been current here that certain influences have been at work to prevent Thaw's indictment in Dutchess county on the conspiracy charge. These reports were to the effect that Thaw's friends believe that if an indictment is not returned it will tend to aid Thaw in his fight against extradition from New Hampshire. The New York county grand jury is expected to consider this phase of the case.

MAXIM GORKY ILL IN ITALY

Famous Russian Novelist Is Victim of Tuberculosis.

Naples, Oct. 4.—Maxim Gorki, the author, was said to be worse, but he insisted on writing steadily for several hours. He is feverishly trying to complete the book on which he now is at work before the "white plague" claims him.

Surrounded by his wife, son, daughter and three Russian physicians, Gorki is fighting tuberculosis, but the end is not far off.

True to the Democratic Promise

The President of the United States, in an almost incredibly short time, has made good his own words and caused his party to redeem its promise in giving this nation and the world a new tariff law.

The President's pen, making his signature to the new tariff act, touches the entire commercial world. Let us meet, as good citizens, the new conditions without criticism and give it a fair trial.

Though all business men for months past have been putting their houses in order, to meet the changes that have been imminent, almost every concern had something to do yesterday to be ready for

This First Day of the New Tariff

This store has always been a price regulator, and we have been busy all day Friday and into last night in putting new prices on many goods.

Three things were done:

(1) Some prices were lowered
(2) Some prices were raised
(3) Some prices remain in doubt

All Tariff acts are complicated and not easy for the public to cipher out, and even the custom houses have to fall back on the Secretary of the Treasury for rulings in many cases.

To the Public that Know Us

all we can say is, that so far as possible within the time, we have adjusted our prices on such foreign goods as are affected, to conform to the Tariff Act.

Prices are Lowered on such Goods as:

Imported cotton hosiery and underwear
Imported silk hosiery and underwear.
Imported cotton dress goods, such as English voiles, crepes, velvet corduroy and shirtings; and French brocaded cotton velvets, sponge and interlinings.
Imported dress linens.
Imported jute velour and portieres.
Imported cotton tapestries for furniture coverings.
Imported cotton tapestry couch covers and table covers.
Imported Moquette couch covers.
Imported Nottingham curtains.
Imported silk, and silk-and-cotton mufflers.
Imported Terry bath robes (men's).
Imported silk bath robes (men's).
Imported watches and clocks.
Imported Fleurigny French opera glasses.
Imported art metal decorative pieces.
Imported table linen damask.
Imported furniture.
Imported bronzes.
Imported cotton bed spreads.
Imported inlaid linoleums.
Imported hemstitched handkerchiefs by the dozen.

Some of the goods are marked higher, such as diamonds, coral, amber, semi-precious stones, gun metal jewelry, jet ornaments, long gloves, antique tapestries and antique laces.

Some goods are in statu quo, as certain foreign manufacturers watching America through all this tariff agitation, have advanced prices to take home benefit before the American manufacturer organized to work under the new regulations.

In as few words as possible we wish to say to our patrons, who are not informed as to the effect the new tariff will have on prices, that the prices of this store may be Accepted as the Criterion of Conformity to the new Tariff Act wherever it changes values

The Way in Which the World Is Receiving the 1914 Cadillac, the Wonderful Manner In Which It Is Performing, Presages an Unprecedented Cadillac Year

There never have been enough Cadillacs—there surely will not be enough of this new 1914 model.

In the year closing June 22nd, the Cadillac Company manufactured and distributed 15,007 cars.

Several thousand buyers, anxious to own Cadillacs, were compelled to be content with other cars.

It was the story of the previous year all over again, in spite of increased production.

And the story of the year before—and the year before that.

Each season the same thing has happened—several thousand more Cadillacs could have been distributed had we been able to produce them.

Intending buyers, disappointed in securing Cadillacs, have been numerous enough to constitute almost the entire clientele of some other cars.

1914 Cadillac Touring Car $1975

It is perfectly obvious that Cadillac history is not only repeating, but surpassing itself.

Reports from all parts of the country make one thing perfectly plain, to wit:

That the accustomed Cadillac demand has been intensified into downright eagerness.

This is due to evolutionary developments in the new car.

Most potent among this is the marvelous influence of the Two Speed Direct Drive Axle.

Every one who rides in the new Cadillac recognizes immediately that its well known smoothness has been supplemented by an entirely new riding quality.

This is demonstrated at once, even to the inexperienced motorist.

Going even at high speed, the passengers discover that motoring in this new Cadillac HAS LOST ITS SENSE OF STRAIN.

Unless the eye is on the speedometer, one is apt to guess that the car is going at about half its actual rate of travel.

Mentally and physically, driver and passengers unconsciously relax, revelling in the delight of a new and luxurious sensation, oblivious to the almost watch-like mechanism.

For 1914 we plan to manufacture 18,000 cars.

And on the heels of this delightful discovery, come others equally pleasant.

The owner finds that this Two Speed Direct Drive principle influences almost every Cadillac function which contributes to ease, efficiency and economy.

It not only brings into being a new degree of luxury, but accomplishes an abatement of operating cost.

The slower engine speed results in greater power generated from a given amount of fuel.

The slower moving parts mean less friction.

Both of these mean lower fuel consumption.

But above all else is the contrast between the Cadillac and the average car with the ordinary gear ratio.

The trembling oscillation of the latter is transformed in the Cadillac into a straight-ahead, steady motion which reduces vibration almost to the vanishing point.

1914 Cadillac Sedam $2800

A simple electric switch changes the gear from low to high, and like magic there is added to any given speed of the engine an increase of 42 per cent. in the speed of the car.

Now—recall to your mind the high repute in which the Cadillac is held.

Remember its record for workmanship almost miraculously fine; for strict standardization of its parts; for alignment of its units.

Remember its reputation for staunchness, for dependability, for long life, and for the supreme satisfaction and service which it renders to its users.

Remember its reputation for economy of operation and maintenance.

Remember the stability and the ideals of the organization behind it.

Consider all these things stimulating the rivalry for early deliveries.

And then try to conceive the effect of this new revelation of Cadillac progress added to all the others.

You will realize, then, that we are acting in your interest when we advise you to book your order now, even if you do not wish your new Cadillac delivered for several months.

CHURCH TO GET FINE PROPERTY

St. Joseph's Parish Will Acquire Dr. Cooley's Westervelt Avenue Tract.

PRICE ABOUT $25,000?

Report Has it That Sisters Will Use Building for Educational Purposes—Physician Has Owned Property Since 1879.

One of the most important realty deals in North Plainfield in several years is about closed and thereby St. Joseph's R. C. church, of the borough, will become the owner of Dr. Justus H. Cooley's property at Westervelt, Jackson and Manning avenues. The dwelling on the property was formerly used by Dr. Cooley as a sanitarium, but about a year or so ago he transferred the entire work to his sanitarium on the upper part of Somerset street known as Brookside.

The tract has a frontage of about 350 feet and is about 200 feet deep. It is considered one of the best residential sites in the borough. The physician has possessed the property since 1879 and from time to time has made extensive improvements. Just what use the church will make of the property is not known at present, but it is said that the Sisters of the parish will have it for educational purposes.

Cosmick McDonough, of the borough, represented the church in the deal, and while the deeds will not be passed until next week, he has given his word to Dr. Cooley that the church will take the property. The consideration is said to be $25,000.

St. Joseph's church now owns considerable property in the borough, outside of the handsome new edifice which was completed within the past year. It owns the old site where the old edifice stood, and property adjoining on Manning avenue, which was known as St. Gabriel's Academy, while Mt. St. Mary College on the Watchung mountains is one of the most valuable assets of the Trenton diocese.

It is decided to use the more recently acquired property for educational purposes, very few changes will be necessary as the dwelling is large and well adapted for such purposes. There is also plenty of land there in case it should be decided to erect another building or build an addition to the present structure.

FAMILY REUNION ON "MARTIN DAY"

Twelve Members Entertained at a Dinner Prior to Public Demonstration.

"Martin Day" was celebrated in more ways than one here Saturday and as a forerunner to the big baseball demonstration on Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, the Martin family held a family reunion and dinner at the home of James B. Martin, father of Jack Martin, in whose honor the public demonstration was conducted. Twelve members attended the reunion dinner which served as a fitting preliminary to the event at Parker Field and many of those present went from Mr. Martin's home to witness the exhibition game of baseball.

Many reminiscent stories of family history and incidents that have taken place since the last gathering were rehearsed at the reunion which was an enjoyable event in every way. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jacques, of Portland, Me.; Miss Charlotte, Mrs. Minnie Steockle and three children, Edward, Charles and Ruth; Mr. and Mrs. David B. Martin and two children, Gladys and Thelma; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin and James B. Martin.

MRS. E. YARDE BREESE WILL MAKE AN ADDRESS

The Public Library will be the scene of an important meeting tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock when the local branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage will be addressed by the State president, Mrs. E. Yarde Breese, of Trenton. Mrs. Breese was formerly Miss Georgianna Smith, of this city.

Mrs. Breese will tell of the work being done in the State against the movement for equal suffrage. She will also give some account of the numerical strength of the Antis.

—Neuman Bros., Watchung avenue, will have for tomorrow's trade choice cauliflower, celery, Boston head lettuce, Casaba mushmellons, Bartlett pears and Northern Spy apples.—Adv. ***

FARMER ARRESTED AS THE INCENDIARY

Albert Jarvis Accused of Setting Fire to Buildings Causing $50,000 Loss.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 6.—Detectives employed by insurance companies to run down the incendiary who started a fire on the Cornell estate near here, which burned seven horses to death and destroyed property valued at $50,000, have arrested Albert Jarvis, a farmer. He is accused of being the firebug.

Jarvis lived on one of the farms owned by the Cornell estate. He was discharged from a position on the estate a short time before the fire.

It is alleged that he made conflicting statements when questioned about his movements on the night of the fire.

The estate of William Bradley, the New York subway contractor, which is near the farm on which Jarvis lived, has had many of its buildings burned by an incendiary, who has never been discovered.

FIRST BAPTISTS IN BEAUTIFUL EDIFICE

Structure, Renovated Throughout, Occupied Again by Large Congregation.

After an absence of over three months the congregation of the First Baptist church assembled in the auditorium of its own edifice, yesterday. The beautiful new windows, redecorated walls, floor covering and illuminating scheme have greatly enhanced the room, and it is hoped that within a few weeks that the tower, still in process of erection, will be completed.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor, occupied the pulpit morning and evening, preaching to large congregations. In the morning his text was taken from James 2:13, "Mercy glorieth against judgment." Dr. Strong applied the text first to the mercy of the Creator, as directed toward all His creatures.

"How manifold are God's mercies, showered all about us, and so little deserved," said the preacher. "The sun and shower are not given alone to those who delight to honor God, but also to those who live all-forgetful of Him. With loving-kindness and mercy He tries to woo us to Himself, and when we sin against Him, instead of executing judgment and justice upon us as we deserve, He so often lets us go unpunished, in the hope that we will see the folly of our sin without suffering the just reward of it.

"Last night awful crimes and shameful deeds were committed, reputations and characters wrecked, and hearts and homes broken because of sin. Yet this morning God's mercy pleads repentance and He waits to bless and pardon.

"In emulation of the mercy of our Heavenly Father, we, His followers, would do well to show mercy to those about us in withholding judgment and criticism and showing mercy by kindly praise and encouragement. Criticism is in the first place unlovely and un-Christlike and in the second place it is at best superficial. For how little we know the circumstances which have prompted the act upon which we presume to pass judgment.

"And how much worse we might have done had we been in exactly the same position. This life is too short, and there are too many heavy burdens to be borne for us to waste our time and soil our souls with harshly criticizing our neighbors. If God, who is all holiness and purity, can pardon the sins and imperfections of others, cannot we be equally tolerant and merciful."

ENDEAVORERS RALLY.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Hope chapel at its service yesterday observed "Rally Day." The attendance was unusually large. The pastor, Rev. F. L. Green, delivered an appropriate address, complimenting the society on the work it has done toward making the church successful and prosperous. Miss Mary Mortimer, president, led the devotional services and made the welcoming speech.

NEW COMPULSORY EDUCATION LAWS

J. B. Betts Submits a Synopsis of the Provisions for County Supt.'s Use.

PENALTIES PROVIDED

School Attendance Act of Interest to All Parents of Children of School Age—What the Education Boards Are Required to do.

Assistant State Commissioner of Education J. B. Letts, of North Plainfield, submitted a complete synopsis of the compulsory school law at the meeting of the county school superintendents at the State House at Trenton on Saturday. The statute was then discussed.

The draft made by Mr. Betts follows:

All children between the age of 7 and 16 years must attend school, unless prevented by mental or bodily infirmity.

Exception—A child between 14 and 16 may be excused from attendance, provided it can read intelligently and write legibly simple sentences in the English language, and has completed a course of study equivalent to five yearly grades in reading, writing, spelling, English language, geography and arithmetic, including simple fractions, and is physically able to perform the work in which it expects to be employed.

Before a child between the ages of 14 and 16 years can be excused from school, it must secure an "age and schooling certificate," and must present evidence that it is about to be employed in some useful occupation or service. The child must return to school as soon as it ceases to be so employed.

Age and schooling certificates shall be granted by the superintendent of schools or the supervising principal, if there be one. In a district in which there is no superintendent or supervising principal, the certificate shall be issued by the principal teacher, and if there be no principal teacher, by a person designated for the purpose by the Board of Education.

Application for an age and schooling certificate must be made in person by the parent or guardian of the child. The certificate must be signed by the child, in the presence of the person authorized to issue it. A certificate cannot be issued unless the child has attended school at least 130 days during the twelve months preceding the date of the application.

The following proofs of age may be accepted, in the order named:

a. An attested transcript of the birth certificate.

b. A passport or attested transcript of the baptismal certificate.

c. Such other documentary evidence as shall be satisfactory to the officer issuing the age and schooling certificate.

d. Certificate signed by two physicians, stating that they have personally examined the child and that, in their opinion, it is above the age of 14 years.

A certificate by the medical inspector, stating that the child is in sufficiently sound health and is physically able to be employed in any occupation in which the child may legally be employed, must be filed with the officer authorized to issue the age and schooling certificates.

A parent or guardian who violates any of the provisions of the law may be proceeded against before the Court of Common Pleas of the county or before a police justice, or city, town or borough recorder of the municipality in which the school district is situate. A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction in such cases.

Any child between the ages of 7 and 14 years, and any child between the ages of 14 and 16 years, who is not lawfully employed, who is repeatedly absent from school, whose parent or guardian is unable to cause it to attend school, and any pupil who is incorrigible, vagrant, vicious or immoral, may be proceeded against as a juvenile disorderly person, in the court for the trial of juvenile offenders.

Every Board of Education must appoint a sufficient number of attendance officers to secure an enforcement of the law.

Rules for the government of attendance officers must be adopted by the Board of Education and approved by the Commissioner of Education.

A Board of Education may establish special schools or classes for the instruction and restraint of children above the age of 7 years who are habitual truants, or who are habitually insubordinate, incorrigible or disorderly in school.

Blanks necessary for carrying the law into effect will be furnished by the Commissioner of Education.

As soon as the game is finished the Daily Press will be on the streets with a complete story of the contest, play by play, and with the full box score.

Jack Martin will be on hand each afternoon and in the Daily Press will appear his own story of the game.

JOS. DEVER HEARS HE IS BENEFICIARY

Young Grocer's Uncle Who Dies in West Bequeaths Him $15,000.

Joseph Dever, twenty-one years old, who conducts a grocery store on Liberty street, near South Second street, by the will of his uncle, the late Frank Dever, of Sioux City, Iowa, who died last Wednesday, has fallen heir to $15,000. The entire estate is said to be valued at $75,000. The youthful storekeeper was notified of the death of his uncle and the terms of the will by a Daily Press reporter. He believed at first that he was the victim of a practical joke and for a time refused to be convinced of the truth. Ten minutes after the reporter had been speaking to him a letter came from the widow, Mrs. Dever, telling the news of her husband's death, and stating that Joseph Dever had been bequeathed $15,000.

Patrick Dever, of West Sixth street, a brother of the westerner and father of the local heir, will leave tomorrow for Sioux City in compliance with a request of his sister-in-law. Another brother, John Dever, lives in West Third street.

After residing for many years in New York city, Frank Dever, who was thirty-five years old, left fourteen years ago for the West. He was a horse trader and was quite successful. He had no children. The letter sent by his widow to the Devers in this city was brief and contained no details.

After stating that he died last Wednesday the missive asked that Patrick Dever go West immediately At the end the letter said that "Joe" had been left $15,000.

PEOPLE UNANIMOUS FOR CURRENCY BILL

Small and Middle-sized Bankers for It, Too, Says President Wilson.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Washington, Oct. 6.—That the people of the country are almost unanimously in favor of currency legislation and approve the pending bill and that it is endorsed by the small and middle sized bankers is the firm conviction of President Wilson.

The President expects confidently to sign the bill before the close of the present session.

HARRY WEBER TONIGHT AT PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Harry Weber, of this city, a musical artist, who it will be remembered made one of the big hits in the Elks minstrel show last year, will make his first appearance in vaudeville tonight at Proctor's Theatre, and the members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., are planning to attend the performance, having engaged a box for the occasion. Mr. Weber will appear as a Dutchman. He will play a musical cane, hand bells and other instruments. He is an accomplished musician and entertainer and doubtless will be a strong attraction at Proctor's.

The Elks will meet at the club rooms on Watchung avenue at 8:30.

UNITED STATES REFUSES APPEAL OF HARRY THAW

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Washington, Oct. 6.—The State Department today denied the appeal of Harry K. Thaw, who claimed that the Immigration Authorities of Canada had infringed on the treaty between the United States and Great Britain in deporting him from Canada. The department will take no further steps in the matter.

8,000 TO MARCH FOR HOLY NAME

Annual Parade of Catholic Society Pledged to Stamp Out Profanity.

MARSHALS SELECTED

Great Demonstration in Elizabeth Next Sunday Afternoon—Positions Assigned to the Various Local Organizations.

Elizabeth, Oct. 6.—Further plans were made yesterday afternoon for the annual Holy Name parade to be held in Elizabeth next Sunday. Societies from all parts of the county will participate. It is expected that fully 8,000 men will be in line. The parade will form at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument, in North Broad street, and will move south on Broad street. The complete line of march will be announced within the next two days.

The following positions have been assigned to the various societies:

St. Mary's, Rahway, and St. Elizabeth's, Linden, form on Magnolia avenue, east of Trinity place; aide William Bradhurst.

St. Mary's, Plainfield, north side of Trinity place, facing Magnolia avenue; aide, Paul E. Downey.

St. Michael's, Cranford, north side of Magnolia avenue, facing Trinity place; aide, Frank Burns.

Church of the Assumption, Roselle Park, Prince street, west of North Broad street; aide, John P. Quinn.

St. Joseph's, Roselle, south side of Westminster avenue, facing Prince street; aide, Edward F. O'Neill.

St. Anthony's, of this city, north side of Westminster avenue, facing Prince street; aide, Anthony Delasey.

St. Michael's, Elizabeth, Prince street, west of Westminster avenue; aide, Frank Poda.

St. Patrick's, Elizabeth, south side of Union avenue, facing Prince street; aide, John Glotzbach.

St. Mary's, Elizabeth, north side of Union avenue, facing Prince street, aide, James Sheridan.

Holy Rosary, Elizabeth, Union avenue, north of Oakland place; aide, John Newstead.

Immaculate Conception, Elizabeth, Prince street, west of Union avenue; aide, George H. Miller.

The orders issued for the parade are as follows:

Carry pennants in canes; four men abreast, three feet between each four, thirty feet between each section; no smoking permitted during the parade; lines to be kept intact at the end of the parade until broken by order of the marshal.

James L. O'Neill has been named grand marshal. His aides will be Postmaster P. J. Ryan, Judge Owen P. Mahon, Peter J. Burns, William Geoghan, F. J. Castles, Dr. J. P. Reilly, James J. Higgins, M. F. Kenely, Thomas Rafferty, John F. Martin, Richard T. Potts and P. H. Burns, of Plainfield.

HUGH SWEENEY TO WED MISS HANAFORD SATURDAY

Miss Edith Hanaford, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth N. Hanaford, of 336 East Sixth street, and Hugh B. Sweeney, son of Mrs. Margaret Sweeney, of The New Madison, will be married at the Young Women's Christian Association, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. This will be the first time that there has been a wedding at the association building and in view of this fact it will be attended with no little interest.

Miss Hanaford was for some time engaged in the Y. W. C. A. work, being office assistant at the rooms of the local association, and because of this fact it was her desire as well as that of Mr. Sweeney that the wedding should take place there.

Mr. Sweeney, who is well known here, has for a long time been associated with the Plainfield Business College, being the outside representative of that institution. Following the ceremony on Saturday there will be a reception which has been arranged by friends of Miss Hanaford who are members of the Y. W. C. A. The couple will live in the New Madison.

BOROUGH SCHOOLS CLOSED.

The North Plainfield public schools are closed until Wednesday morning, to allow the teachers opportunity to attend the annual convention of the Teachers' Institute, which opened its session this morning in the Somerville High School, Somerville. It is compulsory for teachers to attend this meeting.

BOYS' CHOIR CONCERT.

Under the direction of Charles A. Van Horn, choirmaster, the boys' choir of Bethel chapel gave a sacred concert last night in connection with the regular evening service.

DAVID L. RANDOLPH DIED THIS MORNING

Octogenarian Succumbed After Several Months' Illness—A Retired Farmer.

Following a long illness, David L. Randolph, aged eighty years, died this morning at his apartments in the Babcock building. His health had been impaired for several months, and his death was not unexpected. Mr. Randolph was a life-long resident of this vicinity. For many years he was engaged as a farmer, occupying the large farm on the South Plainfield road, near Holly Park.

After Mr. Randolph disposed of his farm about two years ago, for development purposes, the house was destroyed by fire. He made his home in the Babcock building after leaving the farm. He was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and is survived by his wife, two sisters, Mrs. J. Frank Hubbard and Mrs. Jane Dunham, and a brother.

PUBLIC RECREATION WORK GROWS FAST

Activities Increase in the Various Branches of Free Public Amusement.

More than 150 young people enjoyed dancing Saturday night at the Washington School under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee. Vocal selections by James Jamison, of this city, and William Rabe, of Winfield, L. I., added to the enjoyment of the evening. Prof. Paroubek and Alfred Squier furnished the music.

A. B. Jones, W. H. P. Veysey and H. W. Marshall, members of the recreation committee, were present and expressed satisfaction at the interest being shown in the Saturday night entertainments.

The Municipal Orchestra will hold its last rehearsal tonight in the Washington School previous to the public concert to be given Monday night, Oct. 13, in the First Presbyterian church.

At the Friday night dancing class in the Washington School Miss Emma Ryno will take steps to organize a fold dancing club from among the members of the Dunbar Club.

At the Franklin School tomorrow night the Stillman School alumni will hold its regular meeting.

A movement to form a social club under whose auspices dancing classes will be held Wednesday night in the Washington school will be started on Wednesday night. There has been a general demand for dancing on "beaux night" and it is expected that good support will be given the new undertaking.

The Dramatic Social Club will conduct a rehearsal on Thursday night in the Washington School in preparation for the minstrel show to be given in the near future.

MR. GILBERT TO SPEAK ON CURRENCY LEGISLATION

Alexander Gilbert, former president of the New York Clearing House, and rated as an authority on banking and currency matters, will speak tonight at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, in the Boice-Runyon building. He will discuss the Currency Bill and matters pertaining to the Federal reserve bank now pending before Congress.

Recently a communication relating to these important matters of legislation was received from the United States Chamber of Commerce, and the committee of the local organization composed of John Ulrich, chairman; Winfield S. Angleman and C. P. Repp took steps to arrange for an address by Mr. Gilbert.

SEWING MEETING & LUNCHEON.

The Women's Foreign Mission Society of the First Baptist church will hold an all-day sewing meeting tomorrow, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. At noon luncheon will be served under the direction of the chairman of the work committee, Mrs. Charles Nash. In the afternoon, Miss Lundon will read a paper on the "Historical View of Christian Evangelization," and Mrs. Middledith will have charge of the devotional exercises.

TRADE COUNCIL TO MEET.

There will be a special meeting of the Plainfield Building Trades Council at the headquarters on West Front street, tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, and every member is urged to be present. All members of Painters and Decorators' Local, 480, of Plainfield, are requested to attend a meeting to be held at the same place at 8 o'clock. There will be business to interest every member.

MRS. APGAR MET A TRAGIC DEATH

Bride Drowned in Blackfoot River, Idaho, While Out Hunting Game.

ON HONEYMOON TRIP

Pony, Gift of Husband, is Supposed to Have Fallen on Her as She Waded in Stream to Recover a Duck She Had Shot.

Word has reached here of the tragic death of Mrs. Hazel Read Apgar, the bride of a week of J. N. Apgar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neaf Apgar, of Clinton avenue, this city, which occurred on Wednesday, September 17, while riding on a lonely trail near a ranch eighteen miles from Henry, Idaho. She was drowned in the Blackfoot river in an attempt to recover a duck which she had shot.

The pony which Mrs. Apgar was riding was a wedding present from her husband. The animal is supposed to have slipped and fallen on its rider as she was wading into the stream. The body arrived at Ogden, Utah, a day or two later.

Mrs. Apgar had been spending the honeymoon on a fishing trip and was stopping at a ranch near where she met her death. She was married on September 10 at Pocatello, to Mr. Apgar, who is superintendent of the Union Stockyards at that place. Mrs. Apgar started off alone from the camp for a ride along the trail which skirts the river. Just how the accident happened is not known, but it is supposed that she was wading into the stream with the pony to get the duck which had been shot and the animal, slipping on a steep embankment, rolled over on her, rendering her unconscious.

Soon after Mrs. Apgar fell into the river her husband, who had followed along the same trail, discovered the pony floundering in the water. For nearly a half-hour he searched the stream for the body, but was unable to locate it. He then hurried back to the ranch where he secured aid from several cowboys. A wagon was sent to Henry for a motor-boat and when it arrived the next morning the river was dragged and the body was recovered about ten feet from the bank.

Mrs. Apgar was 21 years old and popular in musical circles in Ogden. She leaves a mother, two sisters and four brothers. The funeral was held in the Second ward meeting-house, Ogden, and was largely attended. Bishop Robert McQuarrie officiated. There were several addresses. Mr. and Mrs. Apgar were expecting to come to Plainfield soon, where they were to make their home. Mr. Apgar was here last fall, staying about five weeks.

MRS. ALICE C. GREEN DIES IN 76TH YEAR

Aunt of W. T. Carothers Passes Away at His Home After Long Illness.

Mrs. Alice Carothers Greene, aged seventy-five years, widow of Frank W. Greene, died yesterday morning at the home of her nephew, W. T. Carothers, 715 Belvidere avenue. She had been helpless practically for the past seven years because of paralysis. She formerly lived in Philadelphia, removing here four months ago to make her home with her nephew. One son residing in Philadelphia survives.

The funeral service will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the late home. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, will officiate. The burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

BOY SCOUTS' TRIP.

The Boys Scouts of Bethel Chapel will leave tonight for Atlantic City, where they will take part in the celebration which began in that city today and will continue until next Monday, in observance of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation. The boys go under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee of Plainfield, of which Dr. J. C. Anderson is chairman. Charles Van Horn will act as scoutmaster, in the absence of Joseph Darner, who is laid up with injuries received recently in a baseball game.

CHORAL CLASS WORK.

The Karnlimo Choral Class will begin its study and rehearsals at the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow evening, under the leadership of Tom Daniel and will continue every alternate Tuesday throughout the winter. The meetings will be held in the chapel of the church. Tomorrow night Mr. Daniel will outline the course of study and the plans for the class. The opportunity is open for all who wish to read and study good music.

With special addresses and programs of music, Rally Day was observed yesterday in the M. E. church. At the morning service Mrs. I. G. Walker was the principle vocal soloist and Charles Roberts rendered selections on the violin. A special sermon was delivered by the pastor, Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll. Rev. Frederick J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. C. church, of Plainfield, addressed the members of the Sunday-school and at the evening church service Mrs. Charles K. Mason, former contralto soloist at the First Presbyterian church, Plainfield, rendered selections before and after the preaching by Dr. Carroll.

The Epworth League, of the church, also held special services at 7.15 o'clock in observance of Rally Day. The meeting was marked by one of the largest attendances of the year. A special program of music was enjoyed and the officers of the league made brief addresses.

Miss Katherine Cuthbertson has been elected secretary of the Epworth League of the M. E. church to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Mamie Clark, who moved to Chicago.

Burnett Brodziak, of Westfield avenue, spent the week-end visiting friends in New York.

Mrs. Henry Struve, of Taylor, Texas, is visiting Miss Jean Frentz, of Montague avenue.

The "Dime Club" will continue its meetings next week for the fall and winter season.

About 2,000 people witnessed the baseball game yesterday at Thorpe's Field, when Joe Alberts' nine took eleven innings to defeat the New York Bloomer Girls, by the score of 7 to 6.

Miss Dorothy Knight, a former resident of the borough, but now residing in New York, is visiting Miss Hazel Gardener, of Martine avenue.

John Todd, of Bellvail, N. Y., spent the week-end with John Kyte, of the borough.

Miss Joice Thompson, of Martine avenue, gave a party to a number of her friends on Saturday evening. An enjoyable evening was spent in dancing and playing games, after which refreshments were served.

Thomas Young, who is one of the oldest commuters on the Jersey Central Railroad, has retired from business and has started to raise chickens. At eighty-five, Mr. Young is still active and takes much pride in working around his home. Mr. Young was connected with the New York Stock Exchange and in the forty-four years he has been commuting he has only been late on the floor of the Exchange once.

Mrs. Henry Ripley returned to her home in the borough yesterday, after a two weeks' stay with Mrs. Roy Brooks, of Nile, N. Y.

Jeffery Knight, of New York, was the week-end guest of Gorden Erner.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ripley have returned from a stay with Mrs. Ripley's uncle, Howard VanZandt, of Somerville.

Dr. F. W. Wescott has received his new 1914 model Marion automobile, which he purchased from the Westfield Garage.

Dunellen & Vicinity

Township Collector William B. LaRue has purchased a new house on Centre street, New Market, and will move next week from the old LaRue homestead in the Borough of Middlesex.

Miss Julia Clark, who recently underwent a successful operation in Muhlenberg Hospital for appendicitis, will be brought to her home in New Market, tomorrow.

Alterations and improvements on the Peck homestead are steadily being completed by Contractor Charles Wrage.

Mrs. Rachel Winckler has been entertaining her son, Joseph Winckler, of Califon.

Robert Fairbairn, exhibiting six Clydesdale horses at the Trenton Fair, was one of the lucky prize winners.

One of the most successful fairs ever conducted by the P. O. S. of A. came to a close Saturday night at Holton Hall, where local residents for the past three days have enjoyed dancing and other amusements.

The local branch of the W. C. T. U. will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. F. G. Kinney. The members will sew for the Children's Home in Trenton.

Rally Day was observed yesterday in the M. E. church and the large number of communicants who were present at the various services, thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed the program of speaking and musical selections that were rendered. At the evening church service, Rev. A. G. Schatzman, of Linden, was the principle speaker.

New Providence.

A horse belonging to Simon P. Debbie, of Mountain avenue, New Providence township, is suffering from lockjaw.

Robert Winkler and family, of Hoboken, who spent the summer and early fall at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaffer, of Plainfield avenue, Berkeley Heights, returned to their home last Friday.

The township teachers met in the Columbia School, Plainfield avenue, Berkeley Heights, Friday afternoon, and outlined a course in reading for the schools.

Will Lyle, a Summit comedian, entertained an audience at Pine Grove Hall, Passaic street, Friday night, for the benefit of Hose Company No. 1 A dance followed.

Rev. and Mrs. W. A. L. Jett, Mrs. Selino O. Bassinger and Henry Welborne, of Central avenue, Murray Hill, left Friday by automobile for a trip to Virginia.

Mrs. L. A. Bedell, of Irvington, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Crane, of River road, Chatham township.

Raritan

John African, a 16-years-old Italian youth, was struck by an auto while crossing the bridge over the Raritan yesterday, and he was picked up unconscious. He was unable to give any information of the accident, or as to whose auto it was that struck him.

At the meeting of the Board of Commissioners tonight it is expected that application will be made for an auto truck by the chief of the fire department.

Invitations have been issued for the wedding of Louis Conti, of this place, to Miss Filemino D'Urso, of Somerville. The ceremony will take place on Sunday, October 19, at the residence of the prospective bridegroom, on Somerset street. Louis is the famous third baseman of the Somerville team, and has a host of admirers.

"Rube" Vickers, at one time star twirler for the Philadelphia Athletics and also for the Baltimore team, has become a resident of this place.

Somerville

Letter Carrier H. B. Ten Eyck has moved his family from North Branch to the Eder house, on Eastern avenue, in East Somerville.

George A. Vosseller has moved from the Gaston building to North Bridge street.

The children's choir of the First Reformed church will begin rehearsals tomorrow afternoon. On Saturday afternoon a cake sale will be held in the chapel, proceeds for the benefit of the choir.

Central avenue is in a deplorable condition, owing to the laying of sewer and gas pipes. The filling of the trenches have sunk over a foot in some places, making it dangerous for horses and wagons to attempt using that thoroughfare.

Considerable improvement is noticed on Main street nights, since the arc lamps have been replaced with tungsten lamps, and an additional light installed in front of the Schwed store.

County Collector E. B. Allen has sent out his printed abstract of ratables and exemptions for Somerset county for 1913, which includes the following information: Valuation of real estate, exclusive of second class railroad property, $28,711,215; second class railroad property, $322,172; personal estate, $4,842,383; deductions for debt, $99,791; total amount of exempt property, $2,731,035; total amount of apportionment of State school tax, $87,982.08; county tax, $200,719.59; local tax, $328,243.19.

The Rev. Minor Swick, formerly a resident of this place, but now of Flushing, L. I., has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. James A. Ten Eyck, at Pluckemin.

HELD AS ROBBER OF JERSEY MOTORISTS

Alleged Leader Under Arrest In New York.

New York, Oct. 6.—Suspected of being the leader of a band responsible for scores of holdups of automobilists in the New Jersey suburbs recently, Giuseppi Barbara, twenty-nine years old, was held without bail for the arrival of extradition papers by Magistrate Freschi in the Harlem police court. Barbara, who is a baker, living at 446 East One Hundred and Seventeenth street, was arrested on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill.

The complainant is Clarence Newton Pratt, superintendent of the Vermont Marble works, who identified the prisoner as one of three men who attempted to hold him up while he was driving through Edgewater, N. J. Two others accused of being with Barbara at the time are being held in the Hackensack jail, and one of them, according to the police, has made a confession.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo, who was held up and robbed less than two weeks ago, will be asked to see Barbara. Scores of other persons robbed recently have also been requested to see if they can identify the prisoner.

According to the story told by Mr. Pratt, he was driving, with his wife, through Valley place in Edgewater when three men jumped from behind a tree and, leveling revolvers at him, ordered him to stop. Mr. Pratt sent his automobile flying at full speed at the men and got away, although they fired several shots after the car. Orlando A. Spear, who is attached to the public service commission in New Jersey, witnessed the holdup, and he identified Barbara in court.

New Post For Admiral Knight.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 6.—The next commandant of the Narragansett bay naval station is to be Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight, present commander in chief of the Atlantic reserve fleet. He will relieve Rear Admiral William B. Caperton, who is destined for a sea command.

CUSTOMS BUSY ON NEW TARIFF RATE

Bonded Wealth Removed From Many Warehouses.

$73,000,000 GOODS STORED

Expect Great Rush of Freight From European Ports—Steamship Lines and Transportation Companies Perfect Facilities For Handling Record Transfers.

New York, Oct. 6.—On the first day of the new tariff law custom house officials estimate that importers had withdrawn from bonded warehouses merchandise valued at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. More than 4,000 withdrawal entries were made at the custom house. The amount of duties turned over to the subtreasury was $920,000.

There was a greater strain on the custom house facilities today when the steamship lines and transportation companies perfected their facilities for the moving of goods from the bonded warehouses. By the middle of the week the steamship and transportation companies are expected to have all they can do to meet the demands upon them.

It is estimated that merchandise worth $73,000,000 is now lying in the warehouses. What effect the heavy withdrawals will have on the market is a matter of conjecture. It is said that great quantities of supplies have been held in foreign countries awaiting the signature of the president to the tariff bill.

Vessels Heavily Loaded.

It is predicted that the holds of vessels leaving European ports for the United States in the next few days will be loaded to capacity. The greatest quantity of merchandise which has been held for the tariff reduction has been in New York. Boston, it is said, has about $17,000,000 worth of goods so held.

There is much speculation here over the report from Washington that Great Britain, Germany, Austria and other countries, with which the United States has "most favored nation" treaties, will demand the same 5 per cent discount granted to goods imported in American vessels. It is expected that the administration will refuse to grant this demand. The controversy may be thrown into the courts unless congress modifies this provision of the law which is declared to be ambiguous.

New York state and New York city bonds, which are exempt from the income tax, have advanced sharply in their quotations as a result of the enactment of the income tax law. Canal bonds were bid up to 100⅛ as compared with 99⅞, the price at which the last sale was made. All municipal issues advanced about a point from the Friday quotations.

Large corporations have engaged an extra clerical force to meet the great amount of extra work which will be necessitated in keeping the government advised concerning the holders of their various securities.

LANE SPURNS $7.50 BANQUET

Wants to Meet the People, He Says. Denver Compromises at 50 Cents.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 6.—Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, gave an illustration of his conception of democracy when he declined to attend a banquet in his honor offered by the chamber of commerce which was to cost $7.50 a plate.

He said that he would consent to attend dinners, luncheons and banquets planned for him by civic organizations on condition that they be given with the simplest informality, be open to the public and prices placed within reach of everybody.

"I want to meet as many people as possible," said Mr. Lane, "and I want nothing to prevent the humblest citizen from coming to see me."

The chamber of commerce banquet was changed into a 50 cent dinner.

MORGAN "GAS HOUSE" HEAD.

Grandson of J. Pierpont Is the President of Harvard Club.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—The Delphic Club of Harvard, unknown by its official title but famous in undergraduate history for years as the "Gas House," has chosen a new leader. He is Junius S. Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, and his election to the presidency of the "Gas House gang" has just been announced.

Each member of the club is wealthy and the majority are athletically inclined. Morgan is at present a candidate for the varsity crew.

Thirty Missing In Collision.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 4.—Only twenty-one persons were rescued when the steamship Borborema of the Lloyd-Brazilian line sank a military tug. Thirty persons were unaccounted for, and it is believed that they were drowned.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

When Boston puts its cachet on a play of New England texture it may well be claimed for the production that it represents New England life and people accurately. Such an approval Boston gave to "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," the Klaw & Erlanger production which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday, October 9. The comedy, which is in four acts, is a dramatization of Kate Douglas Wiggin's book of the same name, the stage adaptation being made by Mrs. Wiggin with the assistance of Charlotte Thompson, a seasoned and accomplished dramatist. The presentation of the play here will be one of the events of the season.

TWO OCEANS TO MEET.

Arrangements are practically completed for the blowing up this week of Gamboa dike, which will mean the flooding of Culebra Cut and the practical completion of the water connection between the Atlantic and the Pacific ocean. Gamboa dike is a great artificial embankment at the northern end of the famous Culebra Cut. It was erected to prevent the waters of the Chagres River and of Gatun Lake, created artificially by impounding the waters of the Chagres River, from flowing into the Culebra Cut while the excavating work was going on there. This dike is nearly 1,000 feet long, 48.2 feet high, 183 feet wide at the base and 65 feet wide at the top.

Gatun Lake, the waters of which will be released by the dynamiting of the Gamboa dike, came into existence on April 25, 1910, when the western diversion dam at Gatun was closed and the flow from the Chagres and Trinidad rivers was forced through the artificially constructed spillway channel. Since then the waters in the lake have risen gradually, and last Fall the rising of the lake caused the waters of the Chagres River to back up against the great dike at Gamboa, which protected Culebra Cut. The flow and the rising continued and for several months the water backed up against the Gamboa dike has been higher than the bottom of the finished portion of Culebra Cut.

Since the morning of June 27 last the gate of the sluices through the ogee of the Gatun spillway has been closed. At that time the surface of the water in Gatun Lake was 48.3 feet above sea level, having been maintained at that elevel since January 1, 1913, when the sulice gates were opened. The spillway has been completed and the sluice gates will not be opened again before the final completion of the canal. This means that the lake is on its final rise to the operating level. Under conditions of normal runoff of the Chagres and other streams which are pouring their flow into Gatun Lake, where the water is held confined, it is believe dthat Gatun Lake will reach its final level of 85 feet above the level of the sea about December 1 of this year. If the calculations of the engineers have been correct, the diversion of the waters of the Gatun Lake into Culebra Cut next week should give a twenty-one foot channel through the cut. The town of Gorgona would be covered with water and wiped off the map.

The top of the dike at Gamboa is 78.2 feet above sea level, but, even if the dike should not be blown up, the water in the lake would not reach that height for some time. The water now impounded in Gatun Lake represent the draining of a basin comprising 1,320 square miles. When the surface o fthe water in the lake rises to 85 feet, the level at which it will be maintained for the operation of the canal, the lake will have an area of 164 square miles. It will be the largest artificially created lake in the world. There will be 183,000,000,000 cubic feet of water in the lake. When the level of the lake is 85 feet above sea level there will be a depth of 45 feet in Culebra Cut.

After Gamboa dike has been dynamited and the water from Gatun Lake has flooded Culebra Cut, great dredges will be put to work to dredge the channel and to remove the enormous mass of material that will naturally be swept into the Cut by the inrushing waters of the lake and any masses of rock and soil that may slide into the cut, having been shaken loose by the shock of the explosion.

Although the flooding of the Culebra Cut will be an event of great importance, highly significant in its bearing upon the final achievement of the canal, as it will mean the supplying of the last link connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific ocean, the blowing up of Gamboa dike will not be made the occasion of any extensive official celebration. There will be no elaborate exercises and the program for the occasion is extremely simple and matter-of-fact.

Col. Goethals, the guiding genius of the canal, clad in the white soldiers uniform which has made him a conspicuous figure during the work on the canal, will occupy a position just beyond the mud of the Gatun dam. With him will be a little staff of officers and a small number of civilians, all men who are actively engaged in the work on the great waterway. When the explosion comes, after everything is in readiness and the signal given, there will be a tremendous upheaval, followed by a mighty rush of waters from Gatun Lake, carrying enormous masses of rocks, soil, trees and other tropical vegetation into Culebra Cut. That will be all and on the following day the work of removing this mass and clearing the channel of the cut will be taken up by a number of dredges which have been held in readiness for some time.

CHURCH ADVERTISING.

Several times we have referred to the growing tendency of churches to obtain desirable publicity through the advertising of local newspapers. In some places the practise is well established, but in many communities the religious congregations have not awakened to the value of such publicity. In our own community, on special occasions, a few of the churches have resorted to this means of attracting public attention, but there are only two that have started a systematic campaign to increase interest in their services. These are Grace Episcopal and the Park Avenue Baptist, whose display announcements appear in our advertising columns on each succeeding Saturday. We hope, in time, to have all the churches do the same thing.

FOR THE FANS.

So popular did the scheme prove last fall, the Daily Press has arranged to megaphone the World's Series games, play by play, to the fans who may gather in front of the newspaper building to receive the reports from the ball field. As each play is flashed by wire to this office, it will be announced. Within a few minutes after each game is ended a sporting edition will be issued containing a complete box score and the detailed reports, as was the case last fall.

The Industrial Edition of the Plainfield Daily Press will be the largest and finest single daily newspaper ever issued in Plainfield.

THAW AND MAC GORDON.

Snapped on Trip From Newport to Staten Island.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Interest in aviation in this country received fresh impetus when William Thaw and Steve MacGordon finished their trip from Newport to Staten Island in a hydroaeroplane. They landed at Oakwood beach at 3:17 o'clock in the afternoon, having added to their laurels by passing under the four bridges across the East river. This is the first time this feat has been accomplished in a flying machine.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of High Bridge has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Marion T. Conklin; secretary, Mrs. Walter Morgan; treasurer, Mrs. Charles H. Davis; superintendent of Sabbath observance, Mrs. Edgar Lance; mothers' meetings, Mrs. Emma Apgar; prayer meetings, Mrs. Horace Woods; press agent, Mrs. Charles H. Davis. The union will give a reception at the Reformed church parsonage next Friday.

TO DISSOLVE NEW HAVEN.

Attorney General Asserts Bill In Equity Will Be Prepared at Once.

Washington, Oct. 6.—A suit in equity under the Sherman law for the dissolution of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad from its subsidiaries, such as the Boston and Maine railroad, the steamship and interurban electric lines, will be filed it is said in the United States circuit court for the southern district of New York in the next week or ten days.

T. W. Gregory, special counsel for the department of justice in the New Haven case, has finished the report of its investigation of the New Haven and turned it over to Attorney General McReynolds. The latter said the preparation of a bill in equity would be begun at once.

GERM FILLED MONKEY OUT.

Ice Cart Driver Restores Animal to Experimenter.

Baltimore, Oct. 6.—A monkey which held the key to the solution of a rare and fatal disease and on which Dr. Harry Schmeisser of the pathological department of Johns Hopkins hospital was experimenting escaped from his cage in the laboratory.

Dr. Schmeisser was almost sure that his experiment had been successful and that humanity would be benefited when the monkey disappeared. The doctor was much worried until the animal was returned by an ice cart driver.

Checking It Up to Father.

That parents should exercise the greatest care in speaking of family secrets in the presence of little children was proved by the experience of a North avenue resident recently:

The man in question was visiting a maiden aunt, who is extremely stout and very sensitive about it.

A four-year-old boy who accompanied his father looked very carefully at the rotund form of his relative and then inquired, with a friendly smile:

"Aunt Myrtle, you don't have to put ashes in the bed to keep from slipping out, do you?"

Then when the man held up his hands in consternation the youngster exclaimed:

"There, papa; she says she doesn't."

Fun In Space.

I dreamed last night that I was present at a committee meeting of the sun, earth, moon and stars.

"I'm no coward," said the earth.

"No, but you have two great fears," said the sun hotly.

"And those are?"

"The hemispheres."

"You've forgotten the atmosphere," put in the moon. And the comet, who had no business to be there, wagged his tail with joy.

FRANK CHANCE.

"In my opinion, if luck breaks even, the Athletics will win the world's series. The Giants are a great ball team, but Macks' men outclass it in all departments save one—aggressiveness."

CHARLES DOOIN.

"I pick the Giants to win because I think the Athletics will be unable to hit McGraw's Big Four. I don't believe Bender or Plank will be able to last more than one game each."

TYRUS COBB.

"McGraw has a splendid team this year, and I pick his men to win. Breaks will figure a lot; but if my guess is right it will be the Giants."

HUGHEY JENNINGS.

"The Giants are stronger than most persons believe; but to me it looks like a toss-up."

JOHN EVERS.

"McGraw has four first-class pitchers to count upon, whereas Mack has only two. My pick is the Giants, for I don't think Mack's hitters will figure much."

FRED CLARKE.

"McGraw's men know how to fight, and if their pitchers go right the Giants will win."

BILL DAHLEN.

"I think it is a toss-up between the two teams. The team that is lucky enough to get the breaks will win."

SARECKY IS MAIN SULZER WITNESS

To Explain Expenditures In Gubernatorial Campaign.

HINMAN READY TO PROCEED

Expected to Consume Hour and Half With Opening Address—Not Settled Yet as to Whether Accused Will Take Stand.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Before the trial of William Sulzer was resumed this afternoon there was a conference between the accused and his counsel at which the main facts on which to build the defense of the impeached governor before the high court of impeachment were assembled, and it was definitely decided to introduce testimony instead of resting upon the assertion that the prosecution had failed to make out a case.

Harvey D. Hinman, to whom had been allotted the task of making the opening speech for the defense this afternoon, set about whipping into shape the address in which he is to outline the case for Mr. Sulzer and which, owing to the faulty memory of the respondent, could not be drafted satisfactorily until this eleventh hour before the reconvening of the court at 2 o'clock. Mr Hinman, owing to the short time allotted to him, will be obliged to make his speech from hastily written notes and a few typewritten pages. It is estimated that the delivery of the speech will take an hour and a half, probably two hours. That done, the introduction of evidence for the defense will be begun.

Sarecky First Witness.

The first witness for Mr. Sulzer will be Louis A. Sarecky, the confidential stenographer who had charge of his campaign funds. In an interview Mr. Sarecky intimated some of the lines along which his testimony would run, saying he could account for practically all of the money handled by him. He expressed the further assurance that Mr. Sulzer himself would be able to account for all the money that came to him personally.

Whether Mr. Sulzer would be permitted to take the stand his counsel were unwilling to state. They are to have another conference. If Mr. Sulzer does testify it will be probably as the last witness for the defense. A close personal friend of Mr. Sulzer not a member of his counsel said that Mr. Sulzer would make no statement in court except under oath and would not supplement that with a statement to the newspapers.

Herrick Calls Press Unfair.

It is believed by counsel for the defense that Mr. Hinman's opening speech and the examination of Mr. Sarecky may be disposed of at today's session of the court. How many witnesses the defense will call after that is not known, even to Mr. Sulzer's counsel.

Asked how long he expected the trial to last, one member of Mr. Sulzer's counsel replied, with a grin:

"Well, you know Mr. Sulzer's oratory goes in to considerable length, and there is no telling whether the cross examination they've been threatening will take a few hours or a few weeks."

D-Cady Herrick, chief counsel for Mr. Sulzer, when asked to give some intimation of the line of defense, complained bitterly that practically all the metropolitan newspapers were not giving the defense a fair show. He was reminded that the newspapers had been unable to get a word from the defense as to its side of the case. Mr Herrick would give out no information on the subject.

TYPHOID AT NEWPORT.

Colonel F. P. King and Ten Artillerymen In Hospital—One Death.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 6.—Colonel Frank P. King, commanding the Newport artillery company, and nine other members of the company are suffering from a serious attack of typhoid at the Newport hospital. One private, Harry H Turner, died last night. Two other stricken men were taken to the hospital today.

Citizens of Newport are much disturbed over the epidemic, which is said to have resulted from the company's visit to Put-In-Bay on Sept. 10 for the Perry victory celebration.

Major Robert Ebbs, in temporary command with other officers visited t[illegible] homes and learned that man[illegible] others were victims of the outbreak.

REED'S KNUCKLES UNINJURED

Senator Shows Them, but Won't Say He Hit McIntyre.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Senator Reed of Missouri smiled grimly when the subject of his encounter with John McIntyre, a member of the National Association of Manufacturers and of the typothetae of Philadelphia was broached. "I'm a man of peaceful disposition," he said. "Whether I hit him or not is a matter of small concern, but you see my knuckles are not skinned." And he displayed his hands.

Weather Forecast.

Fair in south, cloudy in north portion today; tomorrow cloudy, probably rain in north portion; light variable winds.

NOTICE.

The attention of manufacturers, dealers, merchants and anyone using baskets for the sale of fruit, berries and vegetables in the County of Union is called to Chapter 81 of the Laws of 1913.

BASKETS OF THE STANDARD SIZE ONLY WILL BE ALLOWED IN USE ON AND AFTER NOVEMBER 1, 1913. It will be unlawful on and after this date to use odd-sized baskets, whether capacity is marked on them or not. Wherever found, illegal sized baskets will be confiscated and prosecution will follow of those who fail to conform to the law.

The following is a copy of the law:

CHAPTER 81—LAWS 1913

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

1. Baskets used for the sale of fruit or fruits, berries or vegetables in this State shall be of the capacities in standard dry measurements of thirty-two, twenty, sixteen, eight, four and two quarts, and for the sale of berries or small fruits shall be of the capacities in standard dry measurements of one quart and one pint.

2. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

3. This act shall take effect on the first day of November, nineteen hundred and thirteen.

Approved March 12, 1913.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 15.

Let us shed no tears o'er the weight of toil
That falls to that human's part
Who has chance to labor and till the soil
Or to sweat in some business mart.
Let us waste no sympathy, sigh or sighs,
Over work-weary flesh and bone—
For these are the luckiest beneath the skies—
Let them weep for themselves alone!

For the hand that is idle thro' baffling fate,
For the soul that has sought in vain;
With those wretched ones who for labor wait,
Let us sorrow with might and main.
The saddest, the hardest, the bitterest lot
That can fall to a mortal here
Is to search for work and to find it not—
For him let us drop a tear!
—Luarana Sheldon.

Somehow, I can't drop many tears. Somehow, I can't get it into my head that a man who really wants to work must remain idle.

Employers are constantly looking for employes. You don't believe it? All right. Just turn to the WANT ADS. in today's paper. Read the "HELP WANTED—MALE" ads. Then read the "HELP WANTED—FEMALE" ads. And then you look me squarely in the eyes and tell me that you are ready to shed tears for those who "search for work and find it not."

Of course, if a man or a woman is sadly deficient, mentally or physically, there's no helping hand in the WANT ADS. The world doesn't give the weakling a square deal—but I am not prepared to argue the why and where of that. The point I wish to make is that no person who wants to work, and who is really capable of work, need go long at the mercy of "baffling fate."

The WANT ADS. are the great meeting-place for employer and employe. Meetings are held daily. And the man who keeps an eye on these meetings—who is alert to seize the opportunities of the passing hour—is pretty sure of a ....chance to labor and till the soil

Or to sweat in some business mart.

HORSE DEALER HITS EDITOR.

Accused of Assault on Charles A. Munn—Dispute Over Bill.

West Orange, N. J., Oct. 6.—Following what his friends declare to have been a particularly brutal assault, Charles A. Munn, president of the Scientific American company of New York, is confined to his home in Llewellyn park, the most exclusive section of this city. Mr. Munn's injuries are of such a nature that they will necessitate his remaining at home for several days under the care of a physician.

Millard F. Amonett, a horse dealer, who has a boarding stable at the Erie railroad station here, was arrested charged with assault and held by Recorder McLaughlin in $1,000 bail. They had a dispute over a bill for the board of Munn's ponies.

MORE ARRESTS AT NEWARK.

Wrecking of Roseville Trust Company Now Being Probed.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 6.—In the arrest and admission to bail of Augustus R. Jennings, former receiving teller of the Roseville Trust company, a sharp twist was given to the situation affecting that institution. It is rumored that Jennings' arrest is only the forerunner of the arrest of others believed to have been implicated in the looting of the bank.

Raymond E. Smith, secretary-treasurer, who is under heavy bail bonds, declared when he returned to Newark and surrendered that he was not solely responsible for the demoralized condition of the books.

STATE BANKS PROSPEROUS.

Total Resources of 150 Institutions Amount to $419,137,923.83.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 6.—The report of the state department of banking and insurance at the close of business on Aug. 9 shows that at that time the total resources of the 150 banking institutions in the state amounted to $419,137,923.83 and deposits to the total of $343,387,177.74.

In the savings banks, twenty-five in number, the total deposits was $120,101,087.29. These statistics represent one of the best showings ever made by the banks of the state.

The Care of Glass.

The phrase "clear as crystal" generally suggests sparkling, glowing clearness. Sometimes it indicates only a murky, blue-gray fogginess. This is not due to the original color of the glass, but is due rather to the care the glass receives.

Glass should always be washed in fresh, warm water and suds from a pure soap. It should then be rinsed in clear warm water and then thoroughly dried with a clean towel.

If the glass is greasy—like a glass that has held milk, or a glass bowl that has held ice cream—it should be rinsed before washing in cool water.

Cut Glass.

Cut glass sometimes needs to be washed with greater thoroughness than usual. A vinegar bottle, for instance, is sometimes used for a long time without being washed and the crevices in the cutting become marked with dirt. In such a case it is necessary to use a soft brush on the glass. It can be dried in a bed of sawdust, which should be left about it for several hours. This sawdust method dries all the creases and crevices of the glass and turns it out in good condition.

Cut glass must always be tempered to cold and heat. If it is to be put in hot water to be washed it must first be rinsed in warm water and its temperature gradually raised. In the same way it must be brought up to the temperature of anything hot which is to be served in it, or down to the temperature of ice cream or any other cold food served in it. Cut glass is unusually brittle, more so than any other sort of glass.

When two tumblers that you are washing stick together tap them with a third tumbler, gently and firmly, and they will soon come apart. If a stopper sticks in a glass bottle or cruet, tap it in the same way with another stopper.

Occasionally a little ammonia in the water in which glass is washed will give good results. It cleanses the glass thoroughly without injuring it.

SUMMER BRASSIERES.

Expensive to Buy, They Are Exceedingly Easy and Cheap to Make.

Now that the corsetless figure is in style and corsets are made so low in the bust, the average woman is obliged to wear a brassiere, or in other words, a sort of corset cover that is corded or boned to fit the form.

These brassieres are quite expensive when purchased in the shops, but they are exceedingly easy to fashion at home.

Pictured are three of the very latest effects in these waists. One of them is made from allover strong eyelet embroidery. It consists of nothing more than two front pieces with boned darts and a back portion. To conceal the front closing wide embroidery beading is used down the center through which ribbon is run. A loop is left at the end for securing to the corset. Ribbon is run at the top of the brassier and forms straps over the shoulders. Another one of the brassieres illustrated is more elaborate, being of net with pretty ribbon ornamentations and floral garnitures.

The third is of embroidery allover with insertion and lace trimmings.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOME HALLOWEEN CAKES.

EFFECTIVE and appropriate decorations will make almost any cake suitable for the Halloween feast. The jack-o'-lantern, with cats, autumn fruits, flowers, etc., may be used in its decoration.

For the Children.

Spook Cake.—This is merely a large angel food cake baked in a loaf pan with a cylinder in the middle. After the cake is coated with white icing the edge is outlined with tiny candles. When the guests enter the room the candles should be lighted. Spirits can be burned in the center of the cake. The cake should hold a surprise for each guest in the form of a tiny horoscope printed and planted beneath the pieces of candle. Each guest is given a slice of cake containing a horoscope, and, of course, it is supposed to be a true delineation of the future.

A Yellow Cake.

Halloween Cake.—Take one cupful of butter, cream very light, add a cupful and a half of sugar and beat vigorously. Add the beaten yolks of four eggs, two ounces of chocolate which has been melted over the fire in three-quarters of a cupful of milk and cooled. Add three level cupfuls of sifted flour, sifted four times with two rounded teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add a teaspoonful of vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in three layers. For the filling chop a quarter of a pound of cherries and a quarter of a pound of pecans. Add two teaspoonfuls of grape juice. Make a boiled icing of one cupful of sugar, half a cupful of water and the white of one egg. Color with orange coloring and spread between layers.

Filled With Favors.

Witch Cake.—Beat to a cream one cupful of butter. Add gradually a cupful and a half of sugar and then the yolks of three eggs, beaten. Flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla and a quarter teaspoonful of mace. Sift into three cupfuls of flour a teaspoonful of cream of tartar and a half teaspoonful of soda or two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, as preferred. Have measured out a half cupful of milk and add milk and flour alternately, a little at a time, beating thoroughly. Lastly add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Have ready a good sized round cake tin lined with buttered paper and as many tiny trinkets wrapped in oil paper as are desired. There should be a ring to show who is first to be married, a thimble for the spinster, a wheel for the traveler, a dime for the one predestined to riches and many other little things that may suggest themselves as indicative of what the future has in store for the various guests. Pour the cake into the pan, slipping the trinkets at proper spaces, then bake in a moderate oven for forty or fifty minutes. Frost and decorate with nuts.

Anna Thompson.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Little Annie Gets a Nice New Pet.

"Giddup, Jack," her daddy cried.

SAID daddy: "Little Annie wanted some pets. She had moved to a town where they had a nice large yard and there was a little chicken house, a dog house and a very tiny barn at one end of the yard. She coaxed and coaxed for the pet she wanted. Now, what do you suppose it was?"

"Chickens," answered Evelyn.

"A dog," suggested Jack.

"No, it wasn't either of these," daddy went on. "It was something much larger than either of these.

"Little Annie's daddy promised her that when her birthday came around he would have a nice surprise for her. So, of course, she gussed and guessed what it would be, but her daddy always shook his head when she coaxed him to tell.

"Dinner was to be very nice, although no one but the family was to be there. Annie's mother had made a birthday cake and on it were six little candles, so, of course, you know how old she was.

"Annie said she would save the treat for dinner, because then daddy could share it. Her mother had thought this a very good plan, as she thought the little girl was too excited to eat much until her father got home with the surprise.

"Annie went out to the gate to watch for him. It was almost dark when she heard the whirring of wheels coming down the street.

"She started out to see what made the noise, and then she saw the dearest little cart. And drawing it was the cutest little pony in the world.

"The pony cart drew up at her gate and then she could see that the man sitting doubled up in the cart was her own dear daddy.

"'Jump in and have a ride,' he called gayly. 'I take up a good deal of room, but this seat will hold two.'

"Still Annie did not understand. She allowed her daddy to lift her in, and the two sat on the little seat very close together, of course, but quite comfortably.

"'Giddap, Jack!' daddy cried, and the little brown pony, who had twisted his head to get a better view of the little girl, started nimbly off. It was wonderful how fast he could go and how strong he was for his size.

"'When we turn for home,' her daddy said, 'you may hold the reins. Of course you will soon learn to drive Jack, for he is going to be your own little pony.'

"And now Annie says there is no pet so nice as a little pony and that Jack is the nicest and dearest pony in the world."

NEW FRIENDSHIPS.

The "Open Sesame" of Good Fellowship Is Kindness and Sympathy.

A young married woman with her husband was about to leave the town in which she had been born, raised and married, to make her home in another state where an excellent business opportunity had been offered to her husband. On the eve of departure she was expressing to some of her friends her regret at leaving, and assuring them that never would she find in her new home the valued and loving friends from whom she was going away. Her old grandfather heard her, and putting a hand on her shoulder, he said:

"My dear, when you go to your new home take with you one thing. Show to every one with whom you come in contact that kindness and sympathy which is their due, and most important of all, respect the rights of others, and you will find no lack of friends and neighbors in your new home town."

The young bride took his advice and in the new town where she and her husband make their home they find that this policy has made them friends by the score. In these words of wisdom of the old grandfather lay the key to their happiness in their new home.

The Madonna Fichu.

Why the madonna fichu is so called nobody seems to know, but at any rate it makes a satisfactory covering for the blouse of ugly cut or evil fit, since it conceals most of the back and front and a goodly portion of the sleeve tops.

The madonna fichu actually is a shoulder cape, with a deeply rounded back reaching to the belt, and so broad is it at the shoulders that its lower edge terminates halfway between the top and the elbow of the sleeves.

The front tabs, instead of tapering, continue broad for their entire length and have square ends which come flatly against the figure and are fastened to some part of the frock by invisible hooks and eyes.

An Easy Egg Dish.

Mix equal quantities of water and good veal gravy, two tablespoonfuls of each, with a teaspoonful of vinegar and a seasoning of pepper and salt. Put the whole in a stewpan, and stir in gradually the yolks of two well-beaten eggs. When it thickens, and before it boils, have ready half a dozen nicely poached eggs. Pour the sauce over them, garnish with parsley and serve promptly. This is an excellent emergency dish, and only takes about ten minutes to prepare.

RUFFLES AND FRILLS A-PLENTY WITH JUST A TOUCH OF FUR

The only hint of winter in the gown today, unless it be a tailored street frock, is the strip of fur that trims it. Most of the dressy frocks are fashioned of materials so sheer that they could easily be drawn through a bracelet were it not for the "hoop" at the bottom of the tunic.

It may seem a trifle incongruous to have bands of fur on filmy blouses that are scarcely more than breadths of lace veiled in chiffon, but what matters incongruity if the effect is smart and new? Certainly a rippling line of fur edging a transparent tunic gives a wonderful touch to a gown.

Flounces of net on the softest, most supple of taffetas is the charming combination seen in many of the dancing dresses. A suitable model for such materials is seen in 7972. The underbodice and flounces may be of the net; the body of the frock in a soft pink taffeta. In its long, slender lines this dress suggests a Directoire design, and a decidedly quaint effect is given by the straps or "suspenders" over the shoulders. For size 36 this model requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch material.

Charmeuse veiled in chiffon, edged with fur and flounced with lace makes a most attractive dinner or dancing frock (7930). The underblouse is of the same lace as the flounces. One of those effective frilled girdles and a venturesome sash, caught with a bow back and front and falling nearly to the hem on each side, are distinguishing features.

To copy this model in size 18 it requires 8¾ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Wreaths for Enclosing Initials for Embroidery Sets of Linens.

The bride-to-be or housewife enjoys having her sets of household linens marked uniformally and wreaths to enclose these initials or monograms add greatly to the appearance of the article.

Pattern number 14416 is an exceptionally attractive and suitable design for that purpose, as there are nineteen wreaths, of three different sizes in the pattern. This enables the purchaser to embroider her sets of bedroom or table-linens in the same design or they may also be used separately for making Christmas presents.

These wreaths may be developed in solid work and eyelets in white mercerized cotton. Silks should not be used on anything which is to be frequently laundered.

This pattern contains one large wreath, seven and one-fourth by five inches, suitable for enclosing a three-inch initial, for making a sheet or table cloth; six wreaths, each three and three-fourths by two and three-fourths inches, for enclosing a two-inch initial, for marking pillow cases, towels, napkins or plate-doilies, platter clothes tea-cloths and serving table-covers; twelve wreaths each two by one and one half inches, for enclosing a one-inch initial on small doilies, guest-towels, pin-cushions, glove-cases, veil-cases or any small household linen.

Pattern number 14416 will be supplied to Daily Press readers for 10 cents.

"MAC" SAYS

The International Leaguers claimed that Jennings didn't have a thing on the ball. Wonder what they meant?

Something must have clung to the sides of the pellet to force nine of the visitors to demise on strikes.

Lost, strayed or stolen—Two pairs of batting eyes. If returned immediately, Harter and Luyster may be able to identify them.

A "Saurer" City Leaguer leading the visitor's attack. Who would have thought Bergen would have been so mean?

What would you have done had you been in Jack Martin's shoes the first time he went to the rubber Saturday? Maybe you will get a chance to try it some time.

The treatment accorded Jack Ryslegle Saturday was quite different from that of a week previous. Times do change and so do surroundings.

Ryslegle sprang a new one when he sent the "sneeze" ball to "Flick" Luyster. It was some bender, too.

Jordan was another man who was on hand—minus his batting eye. Quite a come-down for "Tim" and Jennings didn't have a thing.

Don't lay aside your rooting implements yet. The big show opens tomorrow. The Daily Press will supply the fans with the stuff hot off the bat.

Jack Martin is at the helm of the Daily Press sporting department this week. 'Nuf sed.

One thing we are certain of: "Joe Wood will not oppose the Giants in the opener this year." Everything else is uncertain.

Holy ross floated the pigskin into the limelight Saturday. Keep it up, the opener was an appetizer.

That canvas around the 'Plains field yesterday afternoon gave the appearance of a one-day circus stand or a gypsy camp.

Had Joe Alberts provided seating facilities for a few of the several hundred fans who lined the chalk marks he would have made a far bigger hit than he did with the little blonde?

Squire Reick had a big day with the Stars and was kept busy trying to keep the feminine ball tossers from raising his skypiece to get a peep at the roof garden.

Some one was heard to mention Gettysburg and Bunker Hill, but that didn't phase Squire a bit.

And the stars were just beginning to come out as the Stars left the diamond.

"MARTIN DAY" AN AUSPICIOUS EVENT FOR PLAINFIELD FANDOM

A mob of 1,500 loyal Plainfielders, some of whom could not tell a baseball from a cricket ball, turned out to honor a fellow countryman at Parker Field Saturday afternoon and every throat in the grandstand and bleachers helped to make "Martin Day" one of the most impressive baseball events ever held in this vicinity. Seldom does a ball player from the sand lots of the Queen City attain distinction in organized baseball as would warrant a public demonstration in his behalf, and still rarer is the diamond performer who can boast of having a silver loving cup, a token of esteem from fans in his home town, on his shelves.

Jack Martin was the center of attraction at Plainfield's popular playground Saturday afternoon and fans who never knew Jack from Christy Mathewson or some other star helped to make the occasion the great success it proved to be. Martin came within an ace of having to undergo the presentation ordeal in the first inning but the stunt was passed over until the second when he was the first man up. Just before the Plainfielder took his place at the gutta percha former City Jurge William N. Runyon handed him the large mass of silver at the same time commending the local youth's work on the baseball diamond and expressing a wish that he would soar to even greater heights in the organized game. Mr. Runyon has been acquainted with Martin since he played the game as a boy on the local sand lots and reviewed briefly the shortstop's rise in the National Pastime, classing him as a clean athlete and thorough sportsman.

In keeping with precedent Martin promptly proceeded to strike out immediately after he received the cup, and was the object of a volley of good natured "kidding" from the mob of admirers. Despite his rather auspicious start which was enough to unnerve any individual even though he might have cast iron nerves, Martin put up a good game in the field and succeeded in working Harry Jennings on two occasions for a pass to the first section.

JACK MARTIN
will describe the big games between the New York Giants and Philadelphia Athletics exclusively for the Plainfield Daily Press and local fandom will be treated to a detailed resume of each of the big contests staged to decide the world's baseball championship in New York and Philadelphia. Martin is well acquainted with the members of both of the contending nines and only last week practiced on the same field with the Gothamites. While a member of the New York American club, Martin played many games against Connie Mack's Athletics and is personally acquainted with each of the players who will take part in the big event of this week.

Martin has been a contributor to the sporting columns of this paper along kindred lines on a number of previous occasions and the local fans well know his ability as a dopester. He will be able to keep the readers of this paper posted on the real inside facts of the National pastime title play and his conceptions of each play will be reliable and accurate.

You cannot afford to miss this opportunity to get a line on the real facts of the series, for never before has a local newspaper made such an offer to its readers. This is only another example of the Daily Press' pace-setting qualities and is an innovation in local and suburban sporting circles.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:
Query—Do salt water streams ever freeze over so you can skate on them L. K.

Answer—Never heard of salt water freezing. At times salt water streams become clogg d with ice so that skating is possible, but the ice is washed down from fresh water inlets and is not frozen salt water.

Sporting Editor:
Query—How is a strikeout recorded on an official scorer's book? A says the letters "S. O." indicate a fan, but B differs, who is correct? D. U.

Answer—The capital letter "K" is generally symbolic of a strikeout, but many scorekeepers have methods of their own and I hove known a number to use the letters "S. O.' in recording this play.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Who is the city stenographer of Plainfield and where is his office? N. H.

Answer—George W. Wean is the city stenographer and his office is in the City Clerk's office on North avenue. You can see him by attending a Common Council meeting, but we cannot give you any definite office hours.

Sporting Editor:
Query—How much does a touchdown count in football? B says six and A says five. Which is right? S. J.

Answer—The count was recently raised from five to six. If the goal is kicked the count is seven, one point instead of the former two, being given for the kick after the touch down is made.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Where can I secure a copy of the hack rates in Plainfield? B. G.

Answer—They are posted in all of the carriages at the North avenue station and if you apply at the Mayor's office you can get the information you desire concerning the rates.

HOPE CHAPEL CLAIMS FORFEIT WHEN RIVALS FAIL TO APPEAR

Despite the fact that the members of the West End A. C. baseball team, runners-up in the City League, have been aching to get a chance to trim the Hope Chapel diamond performers ever since the churchboys ended up the season in second place in the Sunday-school League race, the Athletics failed to put in an appearance when given an opportunity Saturday afternoon and the scheduled bout between the second place occupants failed to materialize. But four of the West End warriors appeared on the field of battle while the Hope contingent was out in full regalia.

The stray sheep from the West End flock could not account for the absence of their comrades but were content to give them the benefit of the doubt in the matter and say that the football game at Cricket Field or the "Martin Day" celebration on Parker Field had been too great a distraction for the baseball players.

WESTFIELD SMOTHERS PINGRY "PREP" TEAM

Mt. Ararat Warriors Pile up a Score of 45 to 0 in Opening Gridiron Battle.

The Westfield High School football team completely smothered the Pingry "Prep" gridiron warriors Saturday afternoon on Pingry Oval, Elizabeth, in the annual game, by the overwhelming score of 45 to 0. The game proved easy for the winners from start to finish.

Westfield started its point-getting in the initial period of the conflict, the visitors scoring two touchdowns and a goal during the first six minutes of play. Westfield tallied twelve additional points in the second quarter and succeeded in crossing Pingry's goal line twice more during the last half.

Westfield's line proved invincible, while the Pingry line was penetrated easily. The plunging of the winning backfield, supplemented by the operation of the forward pass, proved to be the features of the game.

The victory was clean-cut and decisive and it demonstrates the fact that if Pingry expects to make any kind of showing against the strong Rahway eleven next Saturday they will be obliged to brace up considerably. Taylor, for Westfield, proved to be the individual star of the game, while his team-mates, Randall and Marsh, performed well. The line:

WESTFIELD.	PINGRY.
Miller	Whitlock
left end.
Trimble	G. Seiber
left tackle.
Howard	R. Moore
left guard.
Poole	G. Moore
centre.
Hohenstein	Waterbury
right guard.
Daves	Whitehead
right tackle.
Crittender	A. Potts
right end.
Cherry	Bruce
quarterback.
Marsh	Harris
right halfback.
Randall	Grant
left halfback.
Taylor	Allen
fullback.

Substitutes—G. Potts for Whitlock and Gage for Trimble.

HOLY CROSS PRACTICE.

Practice of the Holy Cross football teams will be held tonight at East Seventh and Central streets. Coach Martin wants every man out as he expects to get a detailed account of each play made Saturday. Mr. Martin accompanied the Stevens College eleven to West Point Saturday but will be on Cricket Field to watch the locals in the games played the rest of the season.

BERNARDSVILLE SCORES.

Bernardsville, Oct. 6.—Bernardsville overwhelmed the Madison eleven here Saturday afternoon in a one-sided game by the score of 34 to 0. The visitors proved no match for the local eleven, whose plunging backs tore through the Madison line for touchdown after touchdown. Nelly proved the individual star for Bernardsville, his offensive work counting heavily in the scoring.

PETS END 1913 SEASON WITH A TRIUMPH OVER THE STARS

To the delight of nearly 1,500 fans who packed the bleachers and grandstand at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, the Plainfield Pets pushed an auspicious finale on one of the most successful seasons in the history of local baseball by defeating an All-Star cast from the International League by a count of 4 to 2. The fight was fiercely waged from flagfall to finish and both sides fought desperately for every point.

Harry Jennings, the lanky young Rutgers College pitcher, weathered the entire nine rounds for the Plainfield nine, while the Pets were taking occasional healthy licks out of balls hurled by a galaxy of the best pitching material in the International League. No less a trio than Doescher, of Jersey City, Rysiegel, of Providence, and Hoff, of Rochester, did mound duty for the opposition and they were all treated alike by the Queen City batsmen who were evidently out to put a finishing touch and final boost on their season's averages. All fared alike during their respective regimes on the rubber and when they released the final bullet, four Pets had rung up seven hits. While the locals' bingles were one less than the visitors, the home boys got their slams when hits meant runs.

Jennings, on the other hand, was invincible in the pinches, and practically the same herd of wagon-tongue spliters who lamposted the offerings of George Ortlieb last Saturday were held to eight hard hit, but scattered bingles. While he yielded six bases on balls the youngster fanned nine of the leaguers as a side dish.

Bill Stallings led the Plainfield club's offensive work, thrice meeting the pellet on the nose for safeties, one of which went for three cushions. Carlstrom secured a pair of singles, both of which were of the life-saving variety and counted materially in the run getting. For the International Stars, Bergen, Eschen, Breen and Hanford each got a brace. Bergen is a former Plainfield Pet and was pressed into service at the last minute Saturday afternoon, owing to the non-appearance of Jackolitch.

Jack Martin, the other local star, who was evidently unnerved by the presentation of a cup the gift of local fans, fanned the air twice, but also worked the local heaver for a pair of free tickets.

This was the last game of the season for the locals and the team has had a wonderful season on the diamond, winning the Central League pennant and easily proving itself superior to anything in this section.

WHITEWASH FOR ELIZABETH TEAM

Holy Cross Eleven Batters the Visiting Ranks for Goodly Gains.

A GRUELLING COMBAT

Borough Team's Scoring Machine Oiled up in the Last Two Quarters and the Elizabeth Team's Defense Broke Under the Strain.

The 1913 football season was ushered into the borough on Cricket Field on Saturday afternoon, when the Holy Cross team defeated the strong Pearl A. C., from Elizabeth. The large crowd present was entertained between the quarters by the Dutch Arms band, which paraded before and after the game.

At exactly 3:45 Captain Wilson kicked off to Miller, who ran the ball back to the 25 yard line, when after two attempts at the Holy Cross line the Pearl team fumbled and Ruttledge recovered the ball for Holy Cross on the Pearl eleven's 18-yard line. Holy Cross was unable to gain and a forward pass from Coyle to Wilson failed and the ball went to the rival team on their 16 yard line. This was the only time the opponents' goal line was threatened until the last part of the first half, when the locals worked the ball to the four-yard line.

In the second half Holy Cross received the kick-off and then started the real playing by the home boys. The ball was worked steadily down the field by Wilson, Coyle and the Ricketts brothers until Jack Ricketts went around left end for the first touchdown of the season. The ball was punted out and fumbled and no try for goal was allowed.

Holy Cross again received a kick-off and Wilson ran the ball back thirty yards before he was downed. The forward pass again failed and straight rushing was resorted to. Wilson found an opening and made it first down. Coyle again ordered the captain to carry the ball and this time he broke through the line and ran sixty-five yards for the second score. Coyle failed to kick the goal. At the beginning of the third period Lee replaced Tom Ricketts and after pushing the ball to the twelve yard line Lee went through right tackle for the third touchdown. Coyle kicked the goal this time. The fourth score was made in the last minute of play when Captain Wilson was pushed over the line. Coyle again kicked the goal. After the next kick-off the teams lined up, but time was called before the ball was put in play.

BURLESQUE GAME WITH THE GIRLS

Female Stars Sparkled on the Diamond But Not Baseballically.

FARCE WAS PROLONGED

Strategy Helped to Engineer an Extra Inning Game at Scotch Plains Yesterday Afternoon—Scenic Effects Produced Were Unique.

Is woman superior to man? No in baseball, if the burlesque exhibition staged at Scotch Plains may be taken as a criterion by the rabid mob of 2,000 fans who broke the Sabbath to see what a group of maidens garbed in baseball regalia could do with a pesty little spheriod of horsehide. The comedy was prolonged to eleven innings by means of some clever, though not wholly effective, engineering on the part of the Alberts crew and the home combination won at the precise moment that had been previously "framed up," by a tally of 7 to 6.

There were moments when the fans, if the cosmopolitan congregation that gathered at the Plains may be termed such, let forth ripples of applause, but the enthusiasm was brought to the surface by novelties rather than spectacular playing. Vaudeville side shows accompanied the diamond farce and the unique tactics indulged in by the players of the weaker sex were the real cause of the applause.

Joe Alberts, with his blazing upper attic, was the brilliant star that adorned the horizon that crosses the pitcher's hillock but his shoots were the only things that did not baffle the opposing beauty destroyers. His offerings were dented by every player of the opposite sex and they wielde the willow with telling effect against his slants. The female contingent stepped before the spotlight with a hurler of the weaker sex but the curtain had been up but two inning when her act was tabled and a lank male twirler sent to the box. He was effective, if you want to term it such, but the 'Plainers laid low until they wanted to put that finale on 1913 baseball and easily went the victor's road in the last half of the eleventh when, with one out, 'Nibs' Hand sent George Baldwin across the platter with the winning tally.

CAPTAIN DOIG SOUNDS A CALL FOR HOPE QUINTET

The first practice of the Hope Chapel basketball team has been called for tomorrow night and Captain James Doig hopes to have a record squad of court players on hand for the initial workout. The team will get down to hard drilling tomorrow night and the captain will then issue a schedule for regular practice nights prior to the opening of the season.

Manager George Leighs, who has booked games for the Hope team during three successive seasons, is drawing up a stiff schedule and has signed up some of the best amateur quintets in the State to appear on the Chapel court. A number of new men have made their appearance and will make strong bids for positions on the team now held by veterans.

P. C. C. PLAYERS QUALIFY FOR 4-BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The chief event of interest at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday was the qualifying round, 18 holes, medal play, for the four-ball championship of the club. The first eight in Classes A and B qualified for match play, those in Class A playing from scratch and those in Class B being allowed a handicap. The scores generally were low, the play being under ideal weather conditions.

Those who qualified will now be paired for the match play which will continue on Saturday. The result of Saturday's play is as follows:

Class A—F. O. Reinhart and E. A. Lyon, 75; S. D. Lounsbery and W. H. Rogers, 77; W. Lester Glenney and Will T. Glenney, 79; J. Whitney Baker and A. S. Rowland, 79; E. T. Willson and H. D. Hibbard, 79; H. R. Stockton and A. J. Watson, 80; P. J. McKeon and Arthur Murphy, 83; L. G. Carman and D. O. Rogers, 84; Leighton Calkins and R. G. Morse, 84.

Class B—Harry Williams and H. E. Moore, 90, 24-66; C. C. Burke and L. H. Gates, 85, 18-76; R. H. Cox and O. H. Fleming, 85, 18-67; G. A. Bomann and W. A. Alling, 91, 22-69; R. C. Blancke, Jr., and A. W. Kleinecke, 94 23-71; Burnett C. Kenyon and T. S. Wheeler, 90, 18-72; C. W. King and H. E. Phillips, 94, 22-72; G. S. Clay and D. W. Taylor, 95, 23-72; J. V. Beekman and R. C. Brown, 101, 27-74; Dr. F. E. DuBois and J. P. Murray, 94, 19-75.

These cards were returned in the sweepstakes event:

C. E. Lipscomb, 91, 24-67; F. O. Reinhart, 75, 6-69; W. W. Coriell, 99, 27-72; George T. Rogers, 99, 27-72; George A. Bomann, 100, 27-73; Harry Williams, 100, 26-74; L. H. Gates, 98, 23-75.

SOMERVILLE EASILY DEFEATS FLEMINGTON

Home Warriors Are No Match for the Wearers of the Orange and Black.

Battling with almost superhuman strength against the formidable and heavy Flemington High School eleven Saturday afternoon, the Somerville High School gridiron warriors scored a great triumph on their opponents' field by whitewashing the home talent by a score of 25 to 0. Steady and hard line plunging with a neat repertoire of trick plays intermingled, aided the visiting pigskin chasers to carry the ovel up and down the battlefield at will and had little trouble in scoring three touchdowns.

The Flemington line was battered horribly by the Somerset county sea youths and the defense of the home warriors rent like paper whenever it was hit by an opposing back. Few forward passes were tried because of the strong wind and the ones that were tried were not of the sensational variety.

Somerville High got its first real chance to show its offensive ability Saturday and every play had to be used at one time or another. The contest brought out many rough spots that will be smoothed out by the coaches within the next two weeks and by mid-season the trainers hope to have all of the wrinkles ironed out of the eleven that at one time was Plainfield High School's most deadly rival.

The lineup and summary:

FLEMINGTON.		SOMERVILLE
Blagboro	left end	Ronine
Wyckoff	left tackle	Vanalee
Hawke	centre	Barne
Stockton	right guard	Brown
Young	right tackle	Johnson
Emery	right end	Kershaw
Bellis	quarterback	Defreese
Hurley	right halfback	Nortor
Giddis	fullback	Roberson

Touchdowns, Roberson 2, Kershaw 1; goal from touchdowns, Roberson; umpire, Jamison, referee, West; time of halves, 20m.

HOW TO BUY TICKETS FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES

Owing to the enormous demand for reserved seats at the world's series from newspapers and others permitted to participate in the purchase of seats before the public sale, no reserved seats for any of the games at the Polo Grounds will be sold to the general public. Every year the press and others who by reason of special and close connection with baseball are thought to be entitled to particular consideration are permitted to purchase a limited number of reserved seats at full box office prices. This year the demand has swallowed up the entire 8,000 allotment of reserved seats in the upper grandstand.

More than 30,000 unreserved seats in the lower grandstand and bleachers will be on sale on the day of each game, but none will be sold in advance. If past conditions are duplicated, no one who reaches the Polo Grounds before 12 o'clock noon will have much difficulty in getting a good $2 or $1 seat in the lower unreserved grandstand or bleachers. The games are called at 2 P. M.

PLAINFIELD BIRDS FINISH FIRST IN 150 MILE FLIGHT

The second young bird race of the season from 150 miles was flown on Saturday. The birds were liberated at Baltimore, Md., at 10:06 o'clock in the morning, weather fair, west wind, at home the weather was clear with a strong northwest wind against the birds, testing the quality of the lofts represented.

The birds finished in the following order, the time being yards per minute:

Robert S. Parson,s Plainfield, 1007.89; John Fischer, Westfield, 1007.30; John Robertson, Plainfield, 1004.40; Fred C. Brunnet, Westfield, 1000.21; Felix Rydzinski, Roselle Park, 740.13.

C. J. HAND AND O. B. HILL TIE IN GOLF PLAY

Clarence J. Hand and Oliver B. Hill were tie for first honors in the weekly competition for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, each returning the same score, while H. L. Moodey won the remaining point with a net score of 89. There was a large field out but only eight players posted their cards as follows:

Clarence J. Hand, 110, 24—86; Oliver B. Hill, 110, 24—86; H. L. Moodey, 101, 12—89; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 94, 5—89; J. V. Beekman, 108, 17—91; W. E. Lough, 102, 8—94; Charles B. Morse, 106, 12—94.

LOCAL TALENT ON ABSTAINERS' LOT

"Ty" Cobb's All Stars Defeated the T. A. B. Nine at Elizabethport.

SOME HEAVY HITTING

Champion Hitter of the Major Leagues Was Only Man On Winning Side Who Did Not Get a Hit Against Singer League Slab Artist.

Ty Cobb's All Stars, with Jack Martin and a crew of local favorites in the lineup, defeated the T. A. B. combination of Elizabeth on the Elizabethport field, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 5 to 1, getting eleven hits off Thompson, the star of the Singer Factory League. A peculiar piece of luck that pleased the Betsytown fans immensely was the fact that the "Georgia Peach" was the only man on the All Stars who did not get a safe hit during the course of the afternoon. Cobb played first base yesterday and what he left unlone along the hitting line he did in fielding, getting seven putouts and one assist without an error.

Handford, who played here Saturday, was the leading slugger on the winning nine, getting two three baggers and a two base hit. His clouting was all the more remarkable because of the fact that he was handling the willow under the handicap of a split finger. In the first inning after he had given the pill a ride that netted him three bases he overran the bag and in trying to scramble back was spiked in the finger by Frank O'Rourke.

Carlstrom, Luyster, Cosgrove and Dalton, a quartet of local favorites, also took part in the contest. Jack Martin got one of his team's bingles and handled three putouts and one assist with one slip.

TWO HOT MATCHES ON N. P. H. S. COURTS

Opening Round for School Doubles Championship Played This Morning.

Two matches in the semi-final round of the class doubles tennis tournament of the North Plainfield High School were played today on the courts of the Watchung Tennis Club. Franklin Lowe and Frank Dunning, the senior team, and defenders of the title, eliminated Roy Force and Grant Boos, the freshmen team, in the first match of the tournament. But two sets were necessary but they were hotly contested. The scores were 7—5, 6—4. Lowe is a player of only one year's experience and the freshmen players kept pounding their shots at his feet and were sadly disappointed when he returned them with ease.

The second match was very close throughout and not until three sets had been played had Tomkinson and Van Mater, the junior team, defeated Townley and Chandler, the second year men. The juniors started off fast and played their opponents off teir feet, winning by a score of 6—2. In the second set the sophomores played well together and finally pulled out ahead in an 8 to 6 score. This victory seemed to put them off their game and the final set went six straight games to the juniors.

This puts the juniors and seniors in the finals for the championship and cup and the match will be played off tomorrow morning.

CARR NEEL WINS TITLE ON THE P. C. C. COURTS

Playing the final match for the tennis singles, championship of the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon, Carr B. Neel defeated A. D. Beers in two out of three hotly contested matches by score of 7-9, 6-3, 6-1.

This match was the last one of the tournament that has attracted much interest from court enthusiasts of the club and the players each had a loyal band of supporters present to cheer them on in their efforts to win the coveted title.

ASKS ACCUSED PASTOR TO QUIT

Congregation Hears New Minister Preach.

CHARGES REFUTED BY WIFE

Rev. Halleck F. Scheneck Charged With Being Too Friendly With Young Woman Member of His Flock—Church Board's Action Surprises Accused Man and Congregation.

Manasquan, N. J., Oct. 6.—The persons who attended services yesterday at the First Methodist church here expecting to hear the Rev. Halleck F. Scheneck, the pastor, who is accused of too friendly relations with a young woman member of his flock, preach were disappointed. Mr. Scheneck will never again occupy the pulpit of that church. In his place the Rev. Jacob Leupple occupied the pulpit, and it was announced that Mr. Scheneck will not again be called upon to preach here.

This action was as much a surprise to Mr. Scheneck as to the congregation, and the decision was only reached after a lengthy conference in which John Debow, the Rev. A. L. Dunn and the Rev. Mr. Leupple took part.

Mr. Scheneck had fully expected to preach and confound his accusers from the pulpit, but he will not be given such an opportunity, at least not in Manasquan. Instead of being retained by the authorities of the church, he was paid up in full for his services to date and told that as he was only called on probation the board had decided that he would not be engaged to fill out the year.

Mr. Scheneck, who is supported by his wife, had expected to put in an affidavit refuting the charges made by four men, who said they trailed him from Manasquan to Asbury Park and from there to Sea Girt, where they say they saw him sitting very close to Miss Sarah Foreman, daughter of one of the trustees of the church.

TRAIN HITS EIGHT AUTOISTS.

One Dead and the Others Perhaps Hurt Fatally.

Norwich, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Boston express of the Delaware and Hudson railroad struck an automobile containing a party of eight at Bainbridge, near here. One of the party was killed. All of the others were injured fatally, it is believed.

The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wiley of Coventry and their two children and Mr. and Mrs. George Goodenough of Afton and their two children.

John, the six-year-old son of the Wileys, was killed outright. A special train took the injured to the Memorial hospital at Oneonta.

CHAMP CLARK WON'T LECTURE

Duty Prevents Him From Accepting Engagements Worth $5,000.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Champ Clark, speaker of the house, has canceled lecture engagements covering the next two months that would have netted him $5,000. As a result of the cancellation the speaker is out of pocket the amount named. As congress probably will remain in session all through the fall, the speaker feels it to be his duty to remain in Washington.

Mr. Clark left for Louisville, where he will deliver a lecture today. He will speak in Knoxville, Tenn., that night and will return to Washington early in the week.

THE SPOKANE IS SAFE.

Pacific Coast Steamer Gets Off Rocks and Proceeds For Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 6.—The Pacific Coast Steamship company has received the following wireless message from the purser of the steamship Spokane:

"La Touche transferred passengers back to Spokane, which is proceeding to Seattle under her own steam."

Wireless messages to Portland reported that the Spokane of the Pacific Coast line had gone ashore at Cape Lozo, B. C.

VIEWS WESTPHAL'S COMET.

Dr. Brooks of Hobart College Finds the Visitor Growing Brighter.

Geneva, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Westphals comet is under observation by Dr. William R. Brooks, professor of astronomy of Hobart college, with the large telescope at Smith observatory. Last night the comet was in the upper part of the head of Aquarius and was moving slowly northwest. It is visible through small instruments and is growing brighter, according to Dr Brooks.

The comet was last seen in 1852, giving it a periodic revolution around the sun of sixty-one years.

Russell Thaw on Lusitania.

London, Oct. 6.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's young son, Russell, is aboard the Lusitania under the charge of Miss E. Say. Friends of Mrs. Thaw hid the boy from the sight of newspaper correspondents at Euston station.

OSBORNE OUT, CALLS AUBURN AN INFERNO

Declares Penal Routine to Be Cruel Slavery.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Thomas Mott Osborne, who had been a voluntary inmate of Auburn prison during the past week under the alias of Thomas Brown, granted a pardon to himself yesterday afternoon and came out several pounds lighter than when he went in. His feelings also were harrowed by his ordeal which came to a climax when he became insubordinate and was locked up in the prison dungeon cell. This last experience, he said, was the worst of all, and he described the punishment cells as the innermost circle of inferno.

Mr. Osborne said what he had undergone had revealed to him the light of a new altruism, that his experiment had been a success from every point of view and that he intended to use it for the benefit of all convicts, the state and society at large. He condemned the convict system as unintelligent, ineffective and cruel—a form of slavery that robbed the prisoner of all initiative and individuality and sent him out with his senses so blunted that it was very hard for him to find a proper place in the world. What had surprised him most, he said, was the evidences of splendid courage, fine feeling and neighborly interest displayed by so many of the convicts and how they had understood and appreciated the purpose of his presence among them.

Now he is slowly recovering from the experience and pronounces it the most thrilling event in his life. Rumors of his insubordination were current, but it was not until yesterday that it was confirmed officially.

ANOTHER PANAMA QUAKE.

Population of Canal Zone Frightened, but No Damage Is Reported.

Panama, Oct. 6.—The fears felt by the population of the isthmus since the severe earthquake of Wednesday night were intensified again when strong earthquake tremors were felt. Canal officials showed but slight interest in the earthquake rumblings, as more than a hundred similar disturbances have been reported by the isthmian canal commission in the last four years.

The earthquake caused no damage to the canal locks. Many buildings in Panama city were shaken, and some of them show slight fissures, but the damage is of no consequence.

A CODE FOR MEMORY

The usual way people on the stage memorize their parts is by writing and rewriting the lines over and over again. Very few "get their words" by holding a manuscript before them, looking at and from it alternately as pupils do in schools. Alla Nazimova memorizes by writing out her parts and then re-enforces the lines in her mind by afterward setting the longest ones down in a very tiny notebook. This is how a typical speech from "Bella Donna" looks in Mme. Nazimova's notebook: "E. w. I w. w. n. p. c. r. a. m. d. I w. a. t. e. l. t. P. w. a. h. u. c. o. p. a. o. h. a. s. t." This, translated, means: "Even when I was what nice people called ruined, after my divorce, I was able to enjoy life thoroughly. People who are being universally condemned or pitied are often having a splendid time."

QUAIL PATROL OUT FOR THE PENNANT

Another Attraction Added to Boy Scouts' Big Schedule of Events.

SPECTACULAR EVENTS

All Sorts of Thrillers Promised at the First Annual Exhibition at Parker Field—All Local Troops to Participate.

Ten scouts, representing practically all the troops in the city, have organized themselves into Quail Patrol with Thomas Fitch, of Troop 8, connected with Crescent Avenue Sunday-school, to make the contest for the championship scout honors at Parker Field on Saturday an all-troop event. With only one week in which to prepare themselves for competing with Champion Eagle Patrol and the efficient patrol led by John Causbrook, Quails already have underway a surprise not only for the scouts but for every one who attends the exhibition. It will rank with the wireless telegraph and the other spectacular events which the contending Eagles and Wolves have secretly perfected themselves in.

The members of the eleventh hour Quail patrol who have the pluck to try to do in a week what it has taken the other two crack patrols a year to accomplish and who say they have a good chance to win the handsome silk championship pennant that Paul R. Collier has offered are Thomas Fitch, 1st class, Troop 8, Crescent Avenue Sunday-school; Harold Zeek, 1st class, Troop 5, First Presbyterian Sunday-school; Albert S. Dealaman, 2nd class, Troop 5, First Presbyterian; Carlton Dunham, 2nd class, Troop 5, First Presbyterian; Clifton Wiggins, Troop 9, First Methodist; Clare Higgins, Troop 5, First Presbyterian; Howard Leek, Troop 10, Trinity, and George Reed, Troop 9, First Methodist.

The personnel of the Champion Eagles is: Charles E. Rice, 1st class, honor class; George Lohrman, 2nd class; Homer Scruton, 2nd class; Colin Millard, 1st class; George Vanderhoef, 2nd class; Raymond Hansen, 2nd class; John Cartwright, 1st class; Joseph Angerbauer, 2nd class, and Byron Farland, 2nd class, all of Troop 5. The membership of Wolf patrol is: John Causbrook, 2nd class; Chester Alpaugh, 2nd class; Stockton Burr, 2nd class; Robert Cartwright, tenderfoot; Godfried Clay, 2nd class; Clifford Dunn, tenderfoot; LeRoy Western, tenderfoot, and Harold McKay, tenderfoot.

Invitations have been extended to Mayor Percy H. Stewart, who presented the medals that the athletic section of the contest will strive for; H. E. Parker, secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association; Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, chaplain of Troop No. 5, and A. W. Dale, National Field Commissioner of Scout Headquarters in New York; William D. Murray, a member of the National Editorial Board of the Boy Scouts of America; William N. Runyon, president of the Plainfield Scout Council, and Former Scout Commissioner Charles R. Bostwick, of Plainfield, to serve as judges of award.

Troop 7, connected with Bethel chapel, will give an exhibition drill under the direction of Scoutmaster Joseph A. Garner and assistants. This troop of colored scouts has also been asked to render some of its scout songs during the afternoon and to participate in some of the events of the day. Next year this troop will be in the competition for the championship pennant.

In addition to the competitive feature of the day there will be some athletic numbers under the auspices of the A. A. U. details of which will be given later. The Amateur Athletic Union has made a special ruling which will enable the scouts to present to its friends some of the crack amateur athletes of the day. This feature has been made possible through the influence and generosity of John Fritts.

Each patrol will enter the field simultaneously and will proceed to demonstrate the various scout activities. There will be three distinct sections, Eagle, Wolf and Quail. Interspersing these events will be the running, vaulting and other athletic numbers which have been announced by Mr. Fritts, the athletic director of the day. In judging the merits of the various patrols consideration will be given chiefly to the manner in which the different features are introduced, demonstrating not only that scouts can do things out of the ordinary, but that they can do them in a finished manner. This will be the great point upon which the judges will base their decisions. Next will be considered the general ingenuousness of the different numbers. Speed will be given due consideration in judging all numbers. The show starts at 1.30.

Scouts not taking part in the patrol contests will do police duty in keeping the crowds off the field.

HOW COUNCIL WILL DECIDE ON ENGINE

All Concerns Submitting Bids to Exhibit Auto Apparatus—No Overseer Yet.

Following a private meeting which lasted for nearly an hour and a half, the October session of the Common Council was held, last night, beginning about 9:30 o'clock. During the "executive session" the members discussed the selection of an overseer of the poor to succeed Henry L. DeForest, resigned, but as it was impossible to get six votes for a single candidate nothing could be done. The greater part of this session was devoted to a discussion of the automobile fire engine matter.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane was invited to be present and there was a warm argument between him and Councilman Fred Endress, chairman of the fire committee. The result was that the latter offered a resolution at the Council meeting, which was adopted, inviting all concerns which presented bids, to bring their engines to this city for an official test, the same to be arranged by Mayor Percy H. Stewart with the fire committee. The tests are to be made under the supervision of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, that body to be requested to make an official report for the guidance of the Council.

As for the selection of an overseer of the poor it seems to be doubtful whether this will be possible this year. It requires six votes for a choice and thus far it has always happened that one of the members has been absent from a meeting, thereby making impossible the choice of a man. It is possible that the matter will go over until next year.

TO SPEND $1,000 FOR SEWER PLANS

Prepare to Extend the Sewer System in West End of City.

Recognizing the urgent need for a more adequate sanitary system in the West End of the city, the Common Council, at the October meeting last night, took steps through a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt to solve this problem. The resolution provided that the committee on sewers have plans and specifications prepared at an expense not to exceed $1,000 the same to be taken out of the general fund.

This action followed the reading of a letter from George W. Fuller, an engineer, in which he offered to do the work for $750. Mr. Fuller recently made a superficial investigation of conditions in the West End. There was also read a letter from Street Commission A. J. Gavett in which he called attention to the same urgent needs.

There are sections of the West End, it is stated, which can be sewered by gravity, but a central pumping station is needed; also a low level sewer running along Green brook from Giraud avenue to Rock avenue. These reports were the result of a petition received from Jacob Sachar and others asking for sanitary sewers in that section of the city. Mr. Fuller will be engaged to do the preliminary work.

N. P. H. S. STUDENTS HELD PICNIC ON MOUNTAINS

Taking advantage of the two days' holiday, fifteen members of the freshman and sophomore classes of the North Plainfield High School and their friends enjoyed an all day picnic to Washington Rock, yesterday. The party started about 9 o'clock and walked to the rock, where the girls prepared a delicious outdoor lunch. The boys built the fires and a meal of hot-dogs, corn and marshmellows was enjoyed.

After lunch the party played various kinds of games and took an exploring trip to the old quarries. They returned home about 5 o'clock. Those who took the trip are the Misses Rose Cagers, Elsie Vandenburg, Grace Vandenburg, Ethel Hall, Letha Hoagland, Magdeline Layton, Helen Hand and Ronald Couroy, John Dawe, Leon Larison, Russell Lee, Harry Kirch, Robert Dawe, Addison Newkirk and James Goodwin.

CITY ACCOUNTS TO BE AUDITED

Work Will Be Done for $900, Much Less Than Paid in the Past.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Woodland Avenue Trolley Line Roadbed to Be Fixed—More Street Lights—Report Presented by A. J. Gavett.

The Universal Audit Company, of New York, which presented a bid of $900, was engaged at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, to make the yearly audit of the city's books and accounts. The bid of Alfred Rose, of this city, which was $1,200, was ordered returned. Until Mayor Moy's administration the city regularly paid $1,600 for this work and Mr. Moy made a vigorous protest asserting that the fee was exorbitant. He vetoed a resolution fixing the higher amount.

Certificates of sale were authorized to be given to J. Ackerman Coles for $92.35 on account of Westervelt avenue property and to Dorsey W. Hyde for $1,303.86, on account of Truell Hall, in connection with the sale of these properties for taxes.

R. C. Brown and others petitioned for an electric light on Hillside avenue, between Hillside and Thornton avenues, which was referred. The Plainfield-Union Water Company notified the Council that it had installed six fire hydrants as directed at a previous meeting of the Council.

J. P. Finley and others petitioned for an electric light at Richmond street and Cottage place, and E. P. Thomas and others asked for a light on Berkeley avenue. Both of these petitions were referred.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of ten sewer permits during the past month. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $297 and a balance of $152.80.

Resolutions offered by Councilman C. C. Randolph, and adopted, authorized the transfer of $2,500 from the general fund to the fire fund and an appropriation of $250 with which to employ extra clerical help in the office of the tax collector to get out the annual bills.

A resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, fixed Monday night, November 3, at 8 o'clock as the time for a public hearing on the proposed action to open up Spooner avenue from West Eighth street to Sherman avenue.

In the absence of the chairman of the light committee, P. J. Reville, Mr. Blatz reported for that committee, and upon his motion lights were granted on Madison avenue, south of Randolph road, Leland avenue, between Front and East Second streets, Hill street and Johnston avenue and Berkeley avenue. Several other petitions for lights were refused for various reasons.

Mr. Blatz offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling attention to the poor condition of the roadbed on Putnam and Woodland avenues and providing that the Public Service Railway Company be notified and requested to take immediate action to repair the same. The meeting adjourned to Monday night, October 20, to take further action on the joint sanitary sewer proposition.

N. P. H. S. TEACHERS HAVE ORGANIZED DANCING CLASS

About twelve teachers of the Somerset School have organized a dancing class under the direction of Miss Agnes Boxold. The class meets every Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Rowley, of Grove street. Miss Boxold teaches folk dances, the tango and various other fancy dances. She is a very experienced teacher, having had charge of this kind of work in public playgrounds for the past two summers.

Miss Nancy Woodworth and Jubilee Rowley play the piano. The class is very popular and its attendance is fast increasing. Those who already belong to the class are the Misses Casselle, Spiedel, Dugan, Westcott, Woodworth, Dwight, Huff, Spencer, Dampman, Winnie, Boxold and Mrs. Frank Rowley.

MISS HOLLAND ENGAGED.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Holland, of West Seventh street, today announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alverda M. Holland, to John F. Fisk, 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fisk, Jr., of Wyoming, Ohio. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Holland has been prominent here in the younger society set. Mr. Fisk has frequently visited Plainfield, where he has a number of friends.

BETTER LIGHTING NOT UNTIL MARCH

Public Service Unable to Make the Change for Five Months Yet.

The Public Service Corporation having been unable to comply with the request of the Common Council to install new and higher power lamps for street lighting by October 1, a resolution was offered by Mr. Blatz at the October meeting, last night, and adopted, changing the time from October 1, 1913, to not later than March 1, 1914, for making the desired changes in lamps. The contract is to run until March 1, 1916, and the city reserves the right to increase the number of lamps from time to time.

The rates to be charged, which is a part of the resolution, are the same as those charged other municipalities in the State and which have been approved by the Public Utilities Commission. Throughout the residential section 32 candle power Tungstens are to be used in place of the 25 candle power incandescents, and at certain points ten 60 candle power Tungstens will be used while in the business section there will be twenty-three 350 candle power Tungstens. The arc lights are to be discontinued in the business section.

MISS DEWEY DEAD; HAD LONG BEEN ILL

Complications Cause End of One Deeply Interested in Religious Activities.

Miss Carrie C. Dewey, aged 54 years, died this morning at her home, 1345 Watchung avenue, of complications, following a long illness. Last March her illness became serious and she underwent an operation in a New York hospital, after which she made her home on Watchung avenue.

Miss Dewey was born in this city and always lived here. For many years she was a member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Newman on West Fifth street, to which she was greatly endeared. She possessed a beautiful Christian character. She was a life-long member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and was deeply interested in all departments of the work, especially that of the Sunday-school, in which she was the pianist for many years. She was also a successful teacher of music.

A few weeks ago, through a telephone arrangement, Miss Dewey was permitted to enjoy listening to the music and addresses at the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school session. She appreciated this privilege greatly. Miss Dewey is survived by one brother, Charles Dewey, of Bridgeport, Conn. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

MRS. GUSTAFSON NOW MRS. COLTON

Daughter of Rev. Dr. Neilson Becomes the Wife of Walter Wadsworth Colton.

WEDDED IN NEW YORK

Her Father Officiates Assisted by Two Other Clergymen—Bridegroom a Newspaper Manager In the South.

Mrs. Katharine Neilson Gustafson, daughter of Rev. Dr. William Hude Neilson, of this city, was married to Walter Wadsworth Colton, manager of Progress, a newspaper at Union, S. C., at noon today at Grace Church Chantry, New York city, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of this city, and Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, of New York city, assisting the bride's father in performing the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of white shadow lace and crepe de chine with pearl trimmings and a Gainsborough hat of white velvet. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Bessie Crawford, of Baltimore, Md., was her maid-of-honor. She wore a gown of broad brocade and chiffon with pearl trimmings and a black picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Killarney roses.

The best man was Julian S. Myrick, of New York, and the ushers were Seymour Perkins and George S. Clay, both of this city.

The decorations at the church were by Stanley, the florist, of this city, and were elaborate. The decorative scheme comprised Southern smilax, white chrysanthemums, palms, arranged in a bower of perfect beauty. Stanley also furnished the bouquet for the bride, which comprised white roses and lilies-of-the-valley and that of the maid-of-honor, which was made up of beautiful Killarney roses.

Before the arrival of the bridal party William Lyndon Wright rendered the following musical selections: "Humoreske," Doorak; "Berceuse, ("Jocelyn"), Godard; "In Paridisium," Dubois; "Spring Song," Mendelssohn; "Traumeree," Schumann. This constituted a program of about twenty minutes, then followed the Lohengrin Bridal March and the Mendelssohn March was played after the ceremony.

Mrs. Gustafson was the widow of Bernhard Gustafson who invented the Gustafson press feeder for printing presses. Mr. Colton is an associate editor and business manager of "Progress," a paper published in Union, South Carolina. After a honeymoon in the South, Mr. and Mrs. Colton will reside in Union, S. C.

AGAIN A PLEA FOR GARBAGE COLLECTION

Request Made for 'Steenth Time—Comfort Stations Also Wanted.

The Board of Health, through its president, Dr. T. S. Davis, again called the atention of the Common Council, at its October meeting, last night, to the importance of installing a municipal system for the collection of garbage and ashes, emphasizing the necessity for taking some action now so that such a system can be put in effect next summer.

In another communication from Dr. H. D. Corbusier, secretary of the Board of Health, attention was directed again to the lack of public comfort stations in the city, and referring to a letter from W. G. Besler, vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central, in which he suggested that until the city establishes such stations, it pay one-half the expense of employing porters and assistants at the North Avenue Station, which is used so extensively by the public. Both of these communications were referred to the committee on public affairs.

FORMER PRIZEFIGHTER TO BE IN THE PULPIT

Jem Mace, of London, England, one of the greatest heavyweight boxers the puglistic world has ever known, is on his way to America on board the Lusitania and will preach Sunday night in the Park Avenue Baptist church. Mace comes from a family of fighters who have won places for themselves in puglistic annals. His father, who bore the same name, was at one time champion prizefighter of England.

Mace is a recent convert to Christianity and his sermon will be of particular interest to young men. Since his conversion he has devoted much of his time to helping fellow men and it is for this express purpose that he is coming to American soil.

ATHLETICS 6; GIANTS 4

Athletics	0	0	0	3	2	0	0	1	0	--- 6
Giants	0	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	0	--- 4

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 7.—Philadelphia won the first game of the World's Championship baseball series this afternoon, defeating the New York Giants.

Marquard was chosen to pitch for the New York team, while Bender was on the slab for the men from the city of Brotherly Love. New York had a hard fight. They scored the first run in the third inning, but in the fourth Philadelphia slammed the ball hard and made three runs, and Baker made a home run in the fifth, in which inning Philadelphia put two runs over the plate. In the fifth McCormick went in to bat for Marquard, and the latter was replaced as pitcher in the sixth by Crandall.

New York scored three runs in the fifth inning.

Crandall was knocked out of the box in the eighth being replaced by Tesreau.

Polo Grounds, N. Y., October 6.—Forty thousand fans witnessed the first game of the world's championship series here this afternoon, when the New York Giants of the National League and the Philadelphia Athletics of the American League crossed bats in the great struggle. Overcast skies failed to dampen the ardor of the spectators, and the players on both teams were on edge from the start.

Although the gates for general admission did not open until 9:30 this morning, there was a long line of ardent fans standing in line, some of whom had been waiting since last evening for the ticket boxes to be opened. When admission to the field was permitted ten ticket windows were thrown open, including a number of extra booths, and the crowd passed through the turnstiles with considerable rapidity. An hour and a half later, at 1 o clock, it was estimated that ten thousand people had passed through the gates, but there was still a big line waiting to purchase tickets.

Thousands of rabid fans swarmed onto the field below Coogan's Bluff and to the field below Coogan's Bluff and scrambled for seats in the big arena prepared to wait for hours before the umpires called the big contest. Many had provided themselves with boxed luncheons and early this afternoon the field was littered with refuse of every variety and the groundkeepers started a "clean-up" shortly before game time.

The sentiment of the fans was pretty evenly divided and the Athletics had nearly as many supporters present as did the Gothamites, although the rooters were not organized into factions as they were last year.

The playing was fast in the first three innings, but four players facing each of the twirlers in the opening round. Marquard was the object of a burst of enthusiasm when he wound up for the first heave and Bender received a similar ovation when he threw out his first ball.

The hitting on both sides was heavy but the balls went high in the air usually in the direction of right field and were gobbled up by the outfield patrol. Captain Doyle brought home the first run in the third inning after Merkle had got to first on a single and had been sacrificed to second by Marquard.

FIRST INNING.

Athletics—E. Murphy flied out to Murphy, on the first ball pitched. Oldring singled to right field and was caught napping at first by a quick throw from Marquard to Merkle. Collins singled to right field. Baker, the home run sensation of the last series flied out to Burns. Three outs. NO RUNS.

Giants—Shafer flied out to E. Murphy in right field. Doyle flied out to Strunk. Fletcher singled and drew a thunderous round of applause from the fans. Fletcher was caught stealing second base, Shang to Collins. Three outs. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Athletics—McInnis out, Herzog to Merkle on a Texas League. Strunk fanned out; Barry out, after hitting a hot one at Fletcher, who threw to Merkle. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Burns took three healthy swings and retired; Herzog flied out to McInnis; Murray singled to left field; Meyers took his place amid a round of applause for the crowd looked upon him as a run getter; the big Indian flied out to Oldring, losing the Giants' first real chance to get a run. Three out. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Athletics—Schang flied out to Burns in deep left field; Bender out, Fletcher to Merkle; E. Murphy singled to right field; Oldring forced Murphy at second base. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Merkle beat out a bunt along the third base line; Marquard sacrificed, Collins to McInnis, Merkle going to second base on the play; Shafer flied out to Strunk in centre field; Doyle singled to right field, Merkle scoring and drawing the first blood of the 1913 world's series. Captain Doyle was accorded a great ovation for his bingle and the crowd went mad; Fletcher flied out to Murphy. Three out. ONE RUN.

FOURTH INNING.

Athletics—Collins trippled to right field fence; Baker hit to Doyle, who fumbled and Collins scored, leaving Baker safe on first; McInnis sacrified Baker to second, Marquard to Merkle, who threw to Herzog retiring Baker; Strunk reached first on fielder's choice; Barry doubled along left field foul line, Strunk going to third on the clout; Schang tripled to centre field, scoring Strunk and Barry; the Philadelphia mob of fans, equally as big as the New York section, gave vent to an outburst that echoed like thunder against the bluff; Bender went out, Marquard to Merkle. Three out. THREE RUNS.

Giants—Burns, the first man up, doubled to centre field; Herzog followed by hitting to Bender and Burns was run down on the play, Bender to Baker; Herzog made second on the play, taking the sack vacated by Burns; Murray fanned the air; Meyers popped out to Oldring in left field. Three out. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Athletics—Murphy out, Marquard to Merkle; Oldring out, Marquard to Merkle; Collins got the first free ticket of the series and stole second. Baker hit to right field stand for a home run, scoring Collins; McInnis fouled out to Fletcher. Three out. TWO RUNS.

Giants—Merkle singled to centre field; McCormick went in to bat for "Rube" Marquard and singled; Merkle took second base on the hit; Shafer out on a sacrifice, Collins to McInnis; Merkle went to third and McCormick took second; Doyle hit to Barry at shortstop, who threw to first, Merkle scoring; Fletcher singled, scoring McCormick; Doyle went to third base by some fast sprinting, Burns forced Fletcher out at second base, Baker to Collins, Doyle scoring; Herzog flied out to centre field. Three out. THREE RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

*Crandall replaced Marquard on the mound for New York.

Athletics—Strunk flied out to Murray in deep right field; Barry flied out to Shafer; Schang flied out to Burns. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Murray out, Collins to McInnis; Meyers out, Baker to McInnis; Merkle got a pass to first on four wide ones after they had put two strikes over on him. A dispute arose at this time, Philadelphia claiming that Merkle had three strikes on him instead of two as the umpire called. Merkle went to first while the Philadelphia players walked off the field of play. Umpire Brennan went to Umpire Egan, who said it was strike three, so the claim was allowed and Merkle was retired. Three out. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Athletics—Bender took the count on three whiffs; Murphy fouled to Merkle; Oldring lined out to Shafer. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Crandall out, Barry to McInnis; Shafer singled over the keystone sack; Doyle singled to right field, Shafer going to third base; Fletcher hit into a double play, ending a rally. Three out. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Athletics—Collins beat out a hit to first base; Baker took the bat amid cheers from the fans and singled to centre field for another hit and incidently started a second rally, Collins going to third base with none down; McInnis got a two bagger into left field, scoring Collins and Baker going to third; Crandall was taken out of the box at this juncture and

SMALL BANKS FOR GLASS BILL

President Convinced Currency Measure Pleases the People.

Washington, Oct. 7.—President Wilson told his callers that he was convinced that the administration currency bill is satisfactory to the people. The White House has been deluged with letters from all over the country voicing a universal desire for currency reform. It was said at the White House that many of these came from the smaller bankers and that usually the writers asked that their names be not made public.

N. P. H. S. SENIOR TEAM LOSE TENNIS TITLE

Junior Players Defeat Holders in Hard Match for Doubles Supremacy.

Franklin Lowe and Frank Dunning, the senior tennis team and defenders of the class doubles title in the North Plainfield High School tennis tournament, failed to defend their honors this morning when Duclos Van Mater and Hoyt Tomkinson, the junior team, defeated them in the final match of the season. The contest went four sets before the juniors finally won. The scores were 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—3.

In the first set the seniors played a very steady game and finally won out by a 6 to 4 score. In the second set, however, Van Mater played very brilliantly and this together with Tomkinson's steady placing made the set an easy victory. The third set was the hottest of the entire match and it was not until every game had gone to deuce many times that the third year men finally won.

In the last set the seniors had the score 3 to 1 in their favor and it looked as if a fifth set would be needed for a decision but their opponents then took a start and won the next five games straight thus winning the contest and the title. The playing of Franklin Lowe throughout the match was a big surprise to all the spectators and it was many of his brilliant shots that kept the seniors in the running.

A large crowd witnessed the contest and there was much cheering for both sides. Van Mater and Tomkinson will each receive a silver loving cup for their victory.

CLERIC DISCUSSES "INSIDE OF THE CUP"

Rev. Charles Townsend Talks to Rectors on Winston Churchill's Latest Novel.

The Plainfield Clericus was entertained yesterday at the rectory of St. John's church, Somerville, by Rev. C. C. Silvester, rector. Rev. C. H. Malley, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest and Rev. H. C. Rush, curate of Grace church, were the only local members present. The speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Charles Townsend, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, Pa., who spoke on Winston Churchill's new novel, "The Inside of the Cup."

After the business meeting and luncheon, the paper was read and discussed. It seemed to be the opinion of the speaker and the members of the clericus, that the book while suggestive of important lines of thought, was on the whole misleading and dangerous in its treatment of present day conditions. In the discussion which followed the book in general was severely criticized by the clergy present.

During the short business session, Rev. William Virgin, of Grace church, Elizabeth, was elected secretary of the clericus for the coming year, succeeding Rev. E. G. Little, of Elizabeth.

KENSINGTON AVENUE EXTENSION EXPENSE

Figures Also Furnished on Widening of Sycamore St. for One Block.

Further action was taken at the October meeting of the Common Council, last night, in the matter of the opening and extension of Kensington avenue to Park avenue and in the widening of Sycamore street from East Fifth to East Sixth streets. The proofs of publication were presented and filed. In the matter of opening Kensington avenue the report of the commissioners, E. T. Barrows, F. H. Andrews and D. J. Couraine, was read. This showed the whole expense of the work to be $3,363.

J. Fred Macdonald, F. H. Andrews and D. J. Couraine were the commissioners in the matter of widening Sycamore street and their report, which was read, showed the whole expense of this work to be $1,990. Both reports were approved and resolutions offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, authorized City Treasurer W. F. Arnold to tend the amount of damages to the several property-owners, and Tax Collector William R. Townsend was authorized to collect the amount of benefits from those who are assessed for benefits. In connection with the above action, public hearings were granted, but no one appeared to speak for or against the improvements.

GILBERT TALKS AGAINST THE CURRENCY MEASURE

The Currency Bill and matters pertaining to the Federal reserve bank now pending in Congress were discussed last night at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, by former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, former president of the New York Clearing House and president of the Market-Fulton Bank.

After explaining the bill, Mr. Gilbert told of a number of items in the bill which is being opposed not only by the majority of the big banks of the country, but by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce. At one time during his discourse, which was informal, Mr. Gilbert said the new bill will take the power from the banks and give it to the Government. The speaker strongly opposed one provision of the Currency Bill which calls for the establishment of twelve Federal reserve banks.

The Chamber of Commerce members held a brief informal business session and decided that the organization should secure other headquarters. There were thirteen members at the meeting.

LINBARGER WITHDRAWS IN FAVOR OF BELLIS

Somerville, Oct. 7.—A meeting of the Somerset County Democratic Executive Committee was held last night at the Ten Eyck House, at which the complex situation over the nomination for county clerk was gone over. As a means out of the dilemma, Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, who received 31 votes more than Lewis A. Bellis because the 150 votes of Bernards township were counted for Louis A. Bellis, and this matter now being in the courts for decision, has agreed to resign from the nomination today, and Mr. Bellis will then be appointed by the County Executive Committee to fill the vacancy on the ticket, and thus end the matter.

DANCING CLUB COMMITTEE ARRANGING FOR MASQUERADE

The Plainfield Dancing Club will hold its regular weekly reception in Debele's Hall tonight and the committee in charge of the affair has completed arrangements for one of the most interesting events it has conducted since its organization. Unlike previous receptions, the committee has made arrangements for a complete orchestra which will be in attendance at all future weekly dances.

Instead of the monthly reception scheduled to be held with a special program on October 14, the committee is arranging for a Hallowe'en masquerade to be held Tuesday evening, October 28. Suhr's orchestra has been chartered for this occasion and prizes have been offered for the dancers appearing in the most unique costumes.

THE FORUM.

FROM PRESIDENT, BOARD OF TRADE.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I am always in favor of any movement for the advancement of Plainfield, and it is with pleasure that I lend my endorsement to the worthy enterprise that you have underway to bring our city more to the attention of the outside world. There is no doubt that a high class Historical and Industrial Edition of the Press, showing the many advantages of Plainfield as a city of homes and manufacturing centre will do much good, and it justly merits the encouragement and support of every progressive citizen. I can think of no better way of advertising the town.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) WILLIAM JEFFERY.

TO ENTERTAIN CLASSIS.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church at its monthly meeting yesterday, made arrangements to entertain the Classis of Newark at dinner, when it meets in that church, Wednesday, October 15. The reports from the various committees were encouraging.

CLUB METHODS TOPIC OF MRS. CHEESMAN

Orange Woman's Club President Addresses the Monday Afternoon Club.

An interesting address by Mrs. James A. Cheesman, president of the Woman's Club, of Orange, together with a reception to the new members were the features of the opening meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon. There were about one hundred members present. Mrs. Orton G. Dale, the new president of the club, was in the chair and directed the program. Her words of welcome were received with much enthusiasm.

Mrs. Cheesman spoke on "Club Methods," and in view of the fact that the club has inaugurated departmental work this year, her remarks were of special interest to every one present. She offered many valuable suggestions for the future guidance of the club. Miss Frances C. Hayes, president of the Contemporary Club, of Newark, who was to have addressed the club, was unable to be present.

The reception committee comprised Mrs. Orton G. Dale, Mrs. James A. Cheesman, Mrs. Edward G. Read and Mrs. Robert Strong, the last two named being vice presidents. Tea was poured by Mrs. Robert Lowry, Mrs. Eugene H. Hatch, Mrs. F. O. Herring and Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, and they were assisted by Mrs. Laurens H. VanBuren, Mrs. Frank W. French, Mrs. H. VanHouten Lewis, the Misses Ethel Colton and Ethel L. Titsworth. Mrs. Frank C. Ard was chairman of the entertainment committee.

HE HADN'T THE HEART TO PUNISH THE BOYS

Horace Johnson and Howell Chapman, aged 19 years, were detected stealing a ride on a New Jersey Central train at 2 o'clock this morning, and were arrested by the local police. When questioned they said they were bound for New York to see the World's Series games between the Giants and Athletics. City Judge W. G. DeMeza, being a "fan" himself, sympathized with the young men and allowed them to go under a suspended sentence.

ENTERTAINED AT "BRIDGE."

Mrs. Harold N. Underhill, of North Plainfield, gave a "bridge" party at the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday afternoon. There were seven tables and prizes were awarded the winner at each. After the play refreshments were served.

FUNERAL OF D. L. RANDOLPH.

The funeral of David L. Randolph will be held at his apartment in the Babcock building, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

SUFFRAGISTS RECEIVE SOME CO-OPERATION HERE

The local Equal Suffrage League says it is receiving the co-operation of merchants to celebrate October 25, the date of the suffrage parade in Newark. W. W. Warnock, a baker will bake a suffrage loaf-cake to be put on sale the day of the parade. He will also decorate his building at Park and North avenues. W. L. Smalley & Co., butchers, will illuminate and decorate their shop at Park and North avenues. Neuman Bros., Watchung avenue grocers, will make their store picturesque with bunting electric lights and harvest fruits. Others who will decorate include Marchant Brothers, J. L. Bennett, The Ritz, Woodnull & Martin Company, H. L. Viebrock, The Plainfield Trust Company. Others who wish to comply with the league's request may communicate with Mrs. C. L. Riley, 7 Myrtle avenue.

After the parade in Newark there will be a political mass meeting at Proctor's theatre, at which Dr. Anna Shaw will make the address. Tickets may be had at the league's headquarters, 33 Halsey street, Newark. All the boxes have been reserved for the State officers.

The parade will abound with features. Mme. William McDonald, president of the Newark Suffrage Association, in her chariot of state, will lead the marchers. Mrs. Lamar Van-Syckel and Mrs. F. E. DuBois on saddle horses will lead the local delegation.

MAN IS BADLY HURT WHEN THROWN FROM SEAT

Thrown to the ground from his seat in a carriage when a horse he was driving ran away, Henry C. Kuehn, of Scotch Plains, is in Muhlenberg Hospital suffering with concussion of the brain and lacerations about the head. The horse took fright at New street and in an endeavor to regain control of the panic-stricken equine, Kuehn, who is nearing three score years in ago, tugged heavily on the reins until thrown to the street. His condition is not considered serious.

RABBI FORFEITS $10.

A man who said he was a rabbi and that he came from Russia several months ago was arrested yesterday while soliciting subscriptions for a society with which he said he is connected, and was charged with disorderly conduct. He posted $10 for his appearance in court this morning before City Judge DeMeza, but failed to put in an appearance.

CHIEF LOST PRESENT.

Fire Chief T. O. Doane has lost a small gold souvenir in the shape of a minature fire hat, bearing the initials, "T. O. D.," which was a gift to him in 1895 by members of the old Volunteer Fire Department. It was an article cherished greatly by the chief and he has offered a suitable reward for its return.

JUDGE RUNYON A FATHER.

Former City Judge and Mrs. William N. Runyon, of East Ninth street, are the parents of a girl born last evening.

UNION CO. COURTS ARE OPENED TODAY

Elizabeth, Oct. 7.—James F. Buckle, of Plainfield, was chosen foreman of the October Grand Jury and sworn in before Justice Bergen in the Union County Court, this morning. Other Plainfielders selected from the panel are R. Henry Depew, John H. Green, Jr., and George C. Andrews.

In charging the grand jurors, Justice Bergen, after giving the usual instructions, commented on the "Poison Pen" case and on several murder cases which will be tried during the coming term.

The term gives promise of being one of the busiest in the nistory of the county. There are three homicide cases to be heard, with the possibility of a fourth.

The Jones-Pollard "poison pen" case, recently considered by the Federal Grand Jury in Trenton, is to come up; also the case of Gray B. Lester, of Irvington, charged with violation of the Mann white slave act in that he enticed a woman out of the State for immoral purposes. There also are several disorderly house cases to be tried.

BOARDS OF TRADE PLAN A CONVENTION

The Affiliated Boards of Trade of Middlesex county have sent invitations to Acting Governor Fielder, former Governor Stokes and former State Senator Everett Colby, gubernatorial nominees, to attend its annual convention to be held on Tuesday November 11, at Perth Amboy. The prominent Jerseymen will undoubtedly accept the invitations and the event should be an auspicious one. Many members of the Dunellen Board of Trade are planning to attend.

Plans for the convention are in the hands of an executive committee composed of Mayor John J. Morrison of New Brunswick; F. M. Yorston secretary of the New Brunswick Board of Trade; E. C. Roddy, secretary South Amboy Board of Trade; Fred. Diebert, of South Amboy; W. P. Deering, secretary Dunellen Board of Trade; C. M. Shepperd, of South River, secretary of the Affiliated Boards of Trade, N. W. Clayton, of South River; John Uteiffer, vice president of the Perth Amboy Board of Trade; Albert Leon and Hugh Lynch, secretary of the Perth Amboy Board of Trade.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," the best of New England drama, and the most charming, in that it presents pictures of New England children as well as her grown folk, will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday night, October 14, with Klaw & Erlanger's splendid production and a company of exceptional ability, will play a short engagement. The play is the work of Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson, and is a dramatization of Mrs. Wiggin's first study of New England life and character, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

STEAM CAUSED A SCARE.

Steam issuing from the barn owned by the Commercial Mills on South Second street last night caused a scare in the west end of town and some one turned in an alarm from box No. 45 thinking the building was on fire. When the firemen arrived they discovered that the smoke was nothing but steam.

We have every accredited good thing in Woolens, and Silks, Half Silk and Cotton in the Fashionable Fall Shades. A Dress Goods and Silk Department crowded with the accepted Fall Favorites.

Most prominent among these are, in silk, Brocaded and Plain Poplins, Brocaded and Plain Velvets, Charmeuse, Messalines, Crepes, Satins; in Wool Dress Goods we show a wide range of colors in Eponges, Crepe Matalasse, Sheer Surface Smooth Twills, Tartans; easy to make materials for which separate skirts and different coats have caused a popular and general demand.

Home dressmaking has been given a remarkable increase by the popular adoption of styles which call for coats and skirts of separate materials and of different style and shades, which must be, and has been met by harmonious shades in different fabrics.

Big Line of Cloakings

We show a much larger variety in Cloakings than any previous season. Among the popular favorites, are Chinchillas, Bukles, Zibelines; colors are Mahogany, White, Brown, Tan, Navy, Grey, Green, Plaid, and the always staple Grey and Brown Mixtures.

To appreciate Fall Styles at their fullest and to get in touch with correct materials, a visit to this department is the first step in the right direction.

WOMEN AT THE POLLS.

We would not be so ungallant as to accuse either the "Pros" or the "Antis" of resorting to the tricks of political spellbinders and political crooks in "handling the truth gently" when presenting arguments in support of their respective causes. There however has been some "juggling with facts," if apparently reliable statistics are to be accepted, concerning the results of elections in the Western States where equal suffrage is in effect. Constantly, it is stated by Anti speakers in the east that their Western sisters have not shown any marked inclination to avail themselves of the privilege of voting at elections. This is used as a premise to their conclusion that women do not want to cast a ballot when allowed to do so.

Facts and figures have been obtained by the Philadelphia Record which prompt that very worthy newspaper to take the view that "Votes for Women" has proven a success at least in California. Says the Record:

"To the assertion of the anti-suffragists that the greater number of women do not desire the franchise the best answer is the fact of the matter. In seven counties of California the registration of women for the first election at which they were privileged to vote amounted to between 80 and 90 per cent. of the total number qualified by law. In eleven counties the registration was between 70 and 80 per cent.; in six counties between 60 and 50, and in two counties between 40 and 50 per cent. Nowhere did the percentage fall below 20, and in most of the counties not enumerated above the registration of women approximated 40 per cent. of the total. In two counties more than 90 per cent. of the women registered actually voted, which is a higher percentage than is usual among male voters.

"Even the comparatively low registration in some places might be more reasonably set down to backwardness or indifference than to feminine hostility to the enfranchisement of the sex. It would be quite fair to conclude that the "antis" are a negligible minority.

FREE BAND CONCERT.

As an added attraction for the "fans" who gather at the Daily Press building to hear the story of the World's Series game as it progresses, play by play, on Saturday afternoon, the Daily Press has been fortunate in obtaining the Dutch Arms Band. This superb organization will provide a program of catchy music between the innings. There are forty trained bandmen in the aggregation and they are making a great reputation under the able leadership of Edmund D. Young. The band has been good enough to give its services free of charge and we feel sure that the "fans" will appreciate it as much as we do.

RIGHT ON THE JOB.

Councilman Blatz deserves a vote of thanks. At the Common Council meeting last night he offered a resolution notifying the Public Service Corporation that the roadbed of its trolley tracks on Woodland avenue is badly in need of repair and requesting that it be remedied without delay. The Daily Press has taken occasion to call the Common Council's attention to the condition of the tracks on the Netherwood line and like a good city father Council man Blatz made an investigation. Then he lost no time in offering the resolution which was unanimously passed.

The sessions of the Protestant Episcopal church general convention are being held within a stone's throw of the Polo Grounds. Now some of those dominies will know, as they pass the ball field, what it means when they pray "lead me not into temptation."

The tariff bill, promised as a trust buster and a high cost of living panacea, has been signed, but don't get it into your head that the necessities of life are to be a drug on the market.

Jack Martin, of the Boston Nationals, is reporting the World's Series for the Daily Press. We feel fortunate in having a popular local man do this for the benefit of our readers.

Eight thousand Catholics pledged to keep sacred the Holy Name will march in parade in Elizabeth on Saturday. The demonstration should be an inspiring one.

A Newspaper Plant on Wheels—newspaper headline.

"Wheels" in newspaper plants are common.

The World's Series is on and your office boy's grandmother is apt to die at any moment.

Nothing doing on that political story—this is World's Series week, Mr. Cub Reporter.

The contributed editorial for Saturday's issue will be one well worth your attention.

Whittall Rugs

Under Fixed Market Prices, as Noted Below

The extraordinary circumstances of this purchase are in connection with an explosion, doing much damage, at the mills of M. J. Whittall, Worcester, Mass., on August 25th. The occurrence brings to us the rugs from the looms and the storeroom that are of first quality, the full service of which we guarantee, because Whittall guarantees the rugs to us, and because we know they are all right. According to the Whittall records (still incomplete) the purchase includes:

11.593 Rugs---in 109 sizes and 359 selections

The Wanamaker Store is the only store authorized by the Whittall Company to offer Whittall rugs now at prices under the fixed rates agreed to by all dealers.

We are granted this privilege because we purchased a large quantity of the rugs on hand at the Whittall mill after the recent explosion noted below.

The Whittall purchase is larger, we believe, than the combined stocks of Whittall rugs now in all other stores in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Owning these rugs at lower figures than any other store, we have marked on them prices that are the lowest ever quoted for these grades, so far as we know.

Thirty-three years ago Mr. M. J. Whittall began the manufacture of carpets in a small wooden building in Worcester, Mass.

Today Mr. Whittall is the largest individual manufacturer of carpets and rugs in the world, the products of his looms, in rugs alone, aggregating 1,250,000 a year.

Whittall rugs are acknowledged to be the fines rugs made in America.

They are often called the Oriental rugs of America, for, in addition to their Oriental designs, closely following the original, the wool of which they are made comes from the same sources as that used in most Oriental rugs—the coarse, tough, long-fibred, lustrous wool of the hardy sheep native to the mountains and desert lands of Persia, India, Turkestan, Thibet and the Himalayan region.

Having Purchased the Entire Remaining Stock of the COWAN Retail Store of Chicago

(FURNITURE, ANTIQUE ENGLISH SILVER AND OBJECTS D'ART)

We Shall Offer It, Beginning Tomorrow

At Exactly Half the Cowan Prices

THE stock consists of Antique English Silver, Dutch Silver, Sheffield Plate, Paintings, Rugs, Objects d'Arts, and FINE FURNITURE—to the amount of $172,000.

In addition, we shall offer a selected assortment of $116,000 of Furniture from Cowan's artistic factory, at 40 per cent. under the market prices.

For many years the furniture store of W. K. Cowan & Co., 318 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, has been favorably known not only in Chicago, but throughout the country.

Mr. Cowan, himself, is a noted collector of old English silver, Sheffield plate and Dutch silver, and this silver, together with rich paintings and rugs, added a charm to the Cowan Furniture Store, making it a rendezvous for lovers of art.

In addition to the retail store, the Cowan Company operated a great furniture factory, one of the best equipped in America, for the purpose of supplying their own clientele and the higher class of furniture stores in the country.

The growth of this factory demanded the direct personal attention of Mr. Cowan, and he decided, therefore, to close his retail store. When he had reached the closing period he asked us to assist in the final distribution of the stock, and to do this quickly he was willing to take a heavy loss.

CHURCHMAN WILL DISCUSS DIVORCE

Triennial General Convention of Episcopalians at Cathedral of St. John.

New York, Oct. 7.—What is considered by the leading bishops and lay deputies as the most important conclave of Episcopalians ever held in America will begin here tomorrow, when the forty-third triennial general conventions will assemble for business. Before the opening session a service will be held in the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine, at which the sermon will be preached by Right Rev. William Lawrence, bishop of Massachusetts.

The convention will continue in session about three weeks. Its work will be divided between two bodies, the house of bishops and the house of deputies. The bishops will hold their sessions in the old Synod House on the Cathedral grounds, and the deputies will meet in the new Synod House, which was presented to the New York diocese by the late J. Pierpont Morgan and the late W. Bayard Cutting.

The presiding officer of the house of bishops will be Right Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, of Missouri, the senior bishop of the church in point of service. In regard to the election of president of the house of deputies, speculation is busy. Majority opinion seems to favor the selection of either the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, rector of Trinity church in this city, or the Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity church, Boston.

In addition to all of the bishops of the church in the United States the attendance will include missionary bishops from many distant lands. Among them will be Bishops McKim from Japan, Brent from the Philippines, Root and Graves from China, Avis from Mexico, Kinsolving from Brazil and Rowe from Alaska. Another notable figure will be Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, the Alaskan missionary who was the first to climb Mt. McKinley.

Among the important matters to be acted upon at the convention are the question of changing the name of the church, that of altering the divorce canon to prevent the remarriage of any person whose partner is still living, a proposed change in the method of choosing the presiding bishop, and a change in the method of representation at the convention. Church unity, religious education, training for the ministry, the support of disabled clergymen and their families, and plans for expanding the home and foreign missionary work of the church will also receive attention.

The question of changing the name of the church has been agitated for a long time. Many dioceses have expressed their preference one way or another in their diocesan conventions, but definite action in the matter by the general convention is hardly expected at this time. Not all of those who desire a change are agreed on exactly what form of designation they would wish to be substituted for the present "Protestant Episcopal Church." American Catholic Church is the preferred name of most of those who are discontented with the present title.

The attitude of the church in relation to marriage and divorce will be seriously considered by the convention. An effort is likely to be made so to amend one of the canons of the church that no clergyman of the church will be permitted to perform the marriage ceremony for any divorced person whatever.

The method of choosing the presiding bishop is of much interest to the churchmen. As now provided for by the constitution the senior bishop is the presiding bishop, and when he dies the next in rank automatically succeeds him. The seniority is regulated by the date of consecration. At the last convention an amendment to the constitution was proposed which provided that the presiding bishop should be elected at each convention to serve until the next convention. It is expected this amendment will be considered and acted upon by the convention.

The proposed change in the method of representation at the convention is a matter that is expected to excite spirited debate. At present each diocese is entitled to four lay and four clerical delegates, regardless of the number of its communicants. It is proposed that in future the number of delegates shall be based on the number of communicants.

The woman suffrage question will not be a legislative subject before the convention, but it may be included in the report of the commission on social service as a subject of interest and one on which the church is seeking information. Diocesan conventions with each passing year are more and more granting to women the right of vote in parish affairs, but not the right to hold office.

JERSEY TO GET CONFERENCE.

At the conclusion of the twenty-third annual conference of the Congregational Methodist church for the district of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware, in Philadelphia, it was decided to hold the 1914 conference at Billingsport, N. J., October 3, 4 and 5. At Sunday morning's service, C. H. Flexson, who was named Friday as the new pastor of the Millville, N. J., church, was ordained. Rev. D. W. Doughty, of Millville, was chosen secretary of the conference for the ensuing year.

VICE-CHANCELLOR HOWELL'S SON STRICKEN IN MONTREAL

A telegram from Montreal yesterday appraised Vice Chancellor Howell of the sudden illness of his son, Thomson Howell, who recently established himself in the automobile business in that city.

The dispatch said young Howell was stricken with acute diabetes and would start for Newark, accompanied by his wife. The vice chancellor's son was married about two weeks ago.

CIVIL SERVICE QUESTION WILL NOT BE ON BALLOTS

Elizabeth, Oct. 7.—Because of another failure of the Board of Freeholders to assemble a quorum, the question of protecting county employes by civil service will not appear on the ballots at the coming election. Yesterday was the last day the county clerk could be notified.

Eight members were present at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. A recess was taken and a little later another member appeared. None of the Democratic members was present and five Republicans were absent.

EARNS HIS WAY TO PRINCETON BY WORK ON SHEEP TRAIN

Princeton, Oct. 7.—When Robert Lee Nourse, of Boise, Ida., decided he wanted to go to Princeton, he counted up his money and found that not only did he not have enough to pay his way through the university, but couldn't even pay his fare East.

But Nourse was undaunted. He got a job as tender of sheep on a train running from the West into Chicago. He had to look after three carloads of sheep, feeding and watering them. At every stop he had to go along the sides of his cars and prod the reclining sheep into standing position to keep them from suffocating.

When Nourse got to Chicago he received enough for his work to pay his way to Princeton. Now he is facing the task of earning his way through the college. He is a good athlete, weighs 190 pounds, and is expected to take a prominent part in athletics here.

SULZER INVOKED ROOT AND BARNES

Got $20,000 Cash From Ryan and Meany.

BODY BLOWS FOR DEFENSE

Friends Restrain Governor From Entering Courtroom — Sarecky Main Witness For Defense—Accused Official Likely Will Take the Stand.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Lawyers for the defense in the Sulzer case today are fighting to save the accused governor. Instead of the defense opening its case yesterday when the impeachment court met, as had been expected, the prosecution gained permission of the court to call additional witnesses, whose testimony was quite as sensational as any that has been adduced at the trial.

Allan A. Ryan, son of Thomas F. Ryan, the financier, testified that Governor Sulzer requested him to see Senator Root and ask the senator to intercede with William Barnes, Jr., chairman of the Republican state committee, in an effort to influence Republican members of the impeachment court in Sulzer's behalf. Mr. Ryan said later that he had not communicated the request.

Mr. Ryan also testified Governor Sulzer had said: "Tell your father I'm the same old Bill."

I. V. McGlone, secretary of the elder Ryan, testified to having given Sulzer at the latter's request $10,000 in bills in behalf of the Ryans, and Edward P. Meany, a New York lawyer, said that he had "lent" Sulzer $10,000 in bills.

Sulzer's Only Chance.

In the judgment of his friends, the sole chance that Mr. Sulzer now has to escape removal from office is personally to take the stand and bare his soul and his mind of every detail regarding not only his own transgressions, but those of the men who are seeking his scalp.

Following the testimony of Allan A. Ryan, Mr. Sulzer's lawyers revealed to the members of the court an outline of the defense which they purpose to establish.

In a general sense this defense will be that Mr. Sulzer did not personally or intentionally commit the acts of perjury regarding the amount of his campaign contributions; that his habitual carelessness in the handling of money involves no moral obliquity and that, finally, the vast sums of money given to him during his campaign for governor were in the nature of "personal gifts," intended for any use to which he might wish to apply them.

In the long and carefully prepared outline of the defense delivered by Mr. Hinman, which at times approached the flavor of a campaign oration, there was no word that presaged the introduction of Mr. Sulzer as a witness. His appearance as such seems to depend entirely upon the impression made by his counsel and the witnesses subpoenaed to testify to his irresponsibility regarding money matters and as to his temperamental characteristics in other respects.

The first witness for Mr. Sulzer will be placed on the stand today by explicit and peremptory instructions from Chief Judge Cullen, obviously displeased at the methods adopted by Mr. Sulzer's counsel to defer the introduction of evidence favorable to their client as long as possible.

This witness will be Sarecky, the personal secretary and business manager of Mr. Sulzer for many years. His narrative is expected to supply the fullest details concerning Mr. Sulzer's personal and business methods.

Sulzer to Take Stand.

There is reliable information to justify the statement that Mr. Sulzer won't wait until Sarecky and half a dozen other witnesses called in his defense have testified before making his personal appearance. That he will do so is generally believed.

The developments yesterday during the session of the high court, which lasted three hours and ten minutes, were so startling that Mr. Sulzer's counsel frankly admitted embarrassment. The testimony of young Ryan was made the subject of a long conference between the governor and his counsel of record, from which the members of the "kitchen cabinet," sometimes known as the "board of strategy," were excluded.

Mr. Sulzer was on the point of contributing an even greater sensation at the session of the high court by putting in a personal appearance. He was at the executive mansion when informed of the two surprises sprung by the house of impeachment managers. On hearing of them he started for the capitol, but was dissuaded from his purpose by two personal friends.

THREE DIE IN HEAD-ON CRASH

B. and O. Blue Flier Collides With Freight and Cars Go on Fire.

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—Three persons were reported killed in a head-on collision of the Baltimore and Ohio "Blue Flier" and a freight train near Summerfield, Ill.

The mail and express cars of the passenger train were reported destroyed by fire after the wreck and all freight cars were reduced to kindling wood.

MEMORIALS ARE DEDICATED IN NEW BRUNSWICK CHURCH

New Brunswick, Oct. 7.—Three memorials were consecrated by Bishop John Scarborough at the service at St. John the Evangelist Episcopal church Sunday. The memorials were a pulpit given by the congregation in memory of John Neilson Carpender, a pulpit light in memory of Walter Flavell and a pamphlet rack in memory of Amelia Wix Seaman.

Bishop Scarborough preached the first sermon from the new pulpit. He spoke of the one in whose memory it had been erected, saying he was his friend for forty years. Mr. Carpender said the bishop had been honored by not only the members of the parish, but by the diocese in having been chosen to represent them in the general convention of the whole church in America for several years.

The bishop said he was glad the custom of presenting memorials was being revived, as he thought not only the families, but societies should cherish the memory of the dead.

CENRAL TRAINS RUNNING OVER ELEVATED SYSTEM

After nearly two years of preparation the Central Railroad began Sunday the running of trains over elevated tracks between Newark and its Jersey City terminal. The new rails are from twenty to twenty-five feet higher than those of the old system. The first trains to go over the new line were those that left Newark and Jersey City at 7 o'clock in the morning.

The greater part of the two years' work consisted of building two new drawbridges over the Hackensack and Passaic rivers and piling up a great embankment from West End avenue, Jersey City, to a point about a mile west of the Passaic. This embankment contains 2,000,000 cubic yards of filling. Most of the filling came in scows up the two rivers, after being taken from building excavations in New York.

Shortly after the 1:50 o'clock Sunday morning train had passed over the old tracks the rails that enter the Newark terminal were joined to those of the new system. The elevation is the beginning of a series of developments by the Central with the aim of putting Newark on the railroad map of the continent.

CALL ALL DAY AT 76 RANDOLPH ROAD

OUT FOR THE PENNANT

There will be a game of flag raiding to demonstrate how the scout enjoys himself and the last thing on the program will be a demonstration of the scout pace, the entire scout membership in the city taking part. This scout pace calls for a scout to do a mile in twelve minutes flat going fifty paces walking and fifty running. It counts a boy out if he does the mile in a half a minute less than twelve minutes just as much as it counts him out if he does it in more than twelve minutes. This promises to be an exciting wind-up of the day's events.

No boy under fifteen years will be charged admission to the field, but ten cents each will be the gate fee for adults. The proceeds of the show will be devoted to the furthering of scoutcraft in this city.

CONFESSES HE STOLE KLINSMAN'S BICYCLE

Arrested by Roundsman Keller after a bit of clever detective work, and charged with stealing a bicycle belonging to Herman Klinsman, of Harrison avenue, John Powers, of Girard avenue, this morning confessed to his captor. Klinsman reported to the borough police that some one had stolen his wheel early yesterday afternoon. Several hours after learning of the theft, Roundsman Keller saw Chauncey Stites, of Mt. Horeb, riding the stolen mount. When questioned, Stites said he had traded a wheel for the one he was riding, and he furnished a description of the youth with whom he made the deal. Shortly after 11.30 o'clock last night, Keller noticed a man who answered to the description furnished by Sfites. It proved to be Powers, who became confused and tried to run away when approached by the roundsman.

WEBER MAKES DEBUT AS VAUDEVILLE ARTIST

Harry W. Weber, of this city, made his formal debut in vaudeville at Proctor's Theatre, last night, where he was greeted by a "standing-room only" audience. He appeared as a Dutch comedian, entertaining with the cornet, musical cane, the bells and th horn. In response to a request he consented to give his clever impersonation of a widely-known physician, which made a hit. While he was before the footlights, Mr. Weber was greeted with applause, and a company of Elks, who occupied a box, presented him with a bouquet of flowers. The rest of the bill is presented by Billy O'Keefe & Co., in a clever sketch; Faust & Williams, comedians; the Azard Brothers, athletic marvels. Zeho & Mandell who could not appear, because of illness, will be replaced by another act tonight.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold an all day sewing circle in the Sunday-school rooms Thursday. A business session will be held in the afternoon at 2.45 o'clock.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 16.

NO sir; you "wouldn't have taken a thousand dollars for that dog."

But he has strayed away—goodness knows where.

And you are "all up in the air" about it, aren't you?

Feeling blue. Wondering if "somebody is kickin' your dawg around."

Well, wishing for him isn't going to do any good. You've got to take steps to let people know that your dog is lost, and then, if the dog wanders into somebody's back yard, they'll know to whom it belongs.

How can you let people know? Why, in the "LOST AND FOUND" column of this newspaper's Classified page.

Get busy—quick, man! Get to a telephone and call up this office. Say you want to dictate an ad. for the "LOST AND FOUND" column. Then describe that dog of yours and tell the clerk to insert the ad.

Within a little while your message will have gone out all over town.

And if the man who found your dog is honest, you'll get the dog back.

The same thing refers to cats and horses and —well, to any of the "dumb friends" that one does not like to lose.

What to Do With Dry Bread.

Never let dry bread accumulate until it is past using. Hardness or mustiness make it unfit for use. But dry bread in any of its earlier stages can be put to as many uses as fresh bread.

Bread that has just passed the stage when it is good for serving at the table can be served as French toast. To make this, beat an egg and add a pinch of salt and half a cupful or more of milk. Dip the bread in this and fry it quickly to a golden brown. Then, if you would make this dish especially tempting for cold weather eating, sprinkle it, while hot, with granulated sugar and cinnamon and serve with maple syrup.

Bread in this same condition of staleness is just right for toast. If you have a supply of stale bread on hand, plan to serve it for breakfast. Creamed or chopped meat, eggs in some form, creamed dry beef and some sorts of vegetables can be served on toast for breakfast or luncheon. Toast in thin, crisp slices can be served with afternoon tea, and thin strips can be served with soup.

In the Next Stage.

Bread that is a little drier can be used for all sorts of scalloped dishes and for croutons. Break the bread into very small pieces for scalloped meat or fish or vegetables—not crumbs, but not much bigger. For croutons, cut in neat dice, and either brown it in the oven or in deep fat. Oven-browned croutons can be kept for a long time in glass jars, and can be freshened in the oven when they are wanted.

Half-stale bread is also the sort to use for puddings of various sorts and for stuffing. There are many sorts of vegetables—tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers and eggplants among them—that can be appetizingly prepared with bread crumbs—economically, too, and in a way to increase their nutritive value. And many cuts of beef, veal and lamb, as well as fowl of all sorts, are improved by a bread stuffing.

When you have no other uses for stale bread make it into crumbs for future use. Dry the bread in a slow oven and then roll it fine with a wooden rolling pin. If you want some very fine crumbs for rolling croquettes, sift them, and keep the bigger ones for putting on the top of scalloped dishes. Keep them in glass fruit jars.

Bread, a satisfactory food for humans, is also a good food for domestic pets. Almost all dogs can be taught to eat bread, moderately stale, if it is treated to a little coating of butter or gravy. And most cats can occasionally be given bread.

And, at last, rather than let bread grow moldy, crumb it and scatter it out-of-doors for the birds. The birds are most of them friends of the flower and vegetable garden. They eat some seedlings, to be sure, but they eat many more destructive grubs and worms; and for the kindness they do you in the summer they deserve a little kind treatment in the winter.

Woman's World

Mrs. Diana Belais Pleads For Animals.

MRS. DIANA BELAIS.

The anti-vivisectionists of New York, headed by the president, Mrs. Diana Belais, have been watching the professors of the Rockefeller institution, whom they accuse of extreme cruelty to animals in the pursuit of knowledge by way of their experiments. This institute is said to be doing the most original work in the world in tracing the cause of disease and finding cures and is destined to be the great center of research. It is consequently too bad that anything should interfere with the work except that which is truly humanitarian. No doubt investigation, now begun in earnest, will fix the blame.

PREVENTING RUST.

Electric Light a Means For Keeping Out Dampness.

Families deprive themselves of the pleasure of having their piano in the summer home when the latter is located on the coast or in a climate where dampness rusts the piano strings and puts the instrument all a jangle, eventually ruining it.

Owners of such homes may be glad to know how Americans on the isthmus of Panama, where a similar condition exists, are able to keep their pianos uninjured. Into each instrument is dropped an electric light bulb, which is kept burning, sending a gentle warmth through the piano and maintaining it dry and in tune.

Similar in principle is the cupboard lined with canvas and heated with two electric bulbs, in which cupboard are kept wearing apparel, particularly shoes and cloth garments, that would absorb dampness and become molded. At the seashore and other places where rust corrodes articles of jewelry and even safety pins and the little brass "stickers" that are no good at all when rusty are kept in good condition if left in talcum powder when not in use.

It is a good plan to leave an expensive watch at home when going to a rust inducing place, as the delicate mechanism is soon affected, and the owner remarks pettishly that her watch "always gets out of order down here."

For the Rainy Day In the Auto.

When starting off for a day's trip strenuous objections are always made by the average woman to taking the heavy rubber blankets, even though she may realize fully that the rains may descend and the floods come and beat upon that auto. She dislikes those blankets not only because they are heavy, but because they are ugly and malodorous—two things offensive to her feminine soul.

Now, however, she may rejoice, for a blanket comes which is made of a rainproof rubberized material that is pretty, light in weight and hasn't a bit of a "rubbery" smell. It is a good looking thing, for it is of a pretty shade of tan and is trimmed with bands and conventional corner designs of stitched velvet of a darker shade than the blanket itself.

It has a separate backing of cloth which adds to the warmth of the robe, but not to its weight. Altogether it is a most welcome substitute for the clumsy and heavy rubber blanket.

Way to Plant Fine Seed.

Have the earth spaded carefully and break the clods into fine pieces. Soot is excellent to mix with flower bed earth. Sand is also good because it keeps dirt from becoming too compact. Having raked the bed smooth take an old sieve and sift fine rich dirt over the whole bed. Put your flower seeds into a pepper box and shake them evenly over the surface, and do not attempt to cover the seed with dirt. Instead, take a block or trowel and press the seed firmly into the soil. It is best to have the ground slightly damp. This makes a smooth flower bed. The plants will come up evenly and fewer will have to be weeded out.

Some Cookery Suggestions

CUCUMBER PICKLES.

If properly prepared pickles will improve the longer they are kept. One of the requirements is that they should be perfectly sound when put up and that only the best materials should be used. Keep them cool.

With Sugar and Spices.

Sweet Pickles.—Take ripe cucumbers, pare them and take out the seeds. Cut the vegetable into halves, crosswise, then cut each portion into halves or thirds. Cover with weak vinegar and salt and set aside for twenty-four hours. Make a sirup of two pounds of sugar, one quart of vinegar and one ounce of cassia buds. Drain the cucumbers, put them into the sirup and boil until tender and clear.

Dill Pickles.—To each gallon of boiling water add one cupful of coarse salt and let it get cold. Wash the cucumbers and pack in glass bottles with the brine and stalks of dill and seal.

Small Pickles.

Gherkins.—Into a stone jar put four quarts of small unripe cucumbers and cover with brine made with one cupful of salt and two quarts of boiling water. Let stand three days, drain off brine, reheat and cover cucumbers again, letting them stand three days. Drain and wipe. This time pour over them one gallon of boiling water in which one tablespoonful of alum has been dissolved and let stand six hours. Then drain from the alum water.

Cook cucumbers a few at a time in one-fourth of the following mixture: One gallon of vinegar, four red peppers, two sticks of cinnamon and two tablespoonfuls each of allspice and cloves. Allow cucumbers to cook slowly ten minutes. Strain remaining liquor over the pickles when they are put in jars.

Mustard Pickles.—Take one quart of small cucumbers, one quart of coarsely cut green tomatoes, one quart of cabbage chopped fine, one quart of small onions, four quarts of water, one-half pint of coarse salt. Pour the liquid over the mixed vegetables and let stand twenty-four hours. Then scald and drain.

For the mustard pickles take one cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour, six tablespoonfuls of mustard and one tablespoonful of turmeric powder made into a paste with cold vinegar. Pour this over the pickles, let boil and put in jars.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Kitten And the Fly Paper.

Sprite's Paws Stuck to the Paper.

"THE last fly of summer, as daddy playfully called it, was buzzing around the room.

"It's warm here," Evelyn remarked. "I suppose it doesn't like to go to bed in the cold."

"Well, neither do you," Jack said. "I guess, anyway, Dinah is glad flytime is done, for then she won't need to keep flypaper in the kitchen."

"Ugh! Flypaper! Does Dinah have flypaper there?" daddy exclaimed. "Well, Dinah better watch when she lets her canary out of his cage. Flypaper isn't safe to have about in a room where there are pets.

"Susie had a little pet kitten last summer. Sprite was the liveliest kitten you ever saw. Susie called her Sprite because she seemed never to care to be still.

"One day Sprite went out through the kitchen door to the kitchen porch. She noticed the door to the laundry was open, and, as once she had found a bowl of milk on a table, Sprite thought she would sneak in and look around.

"She sniffed about, but there was nothing to be found but some glasses of grape jelly which had been set in on the table to cool. Sprite didn't care for jelly, and she turned and looked around to see if there was anything else in there worth bothering about.

"At the other end of the table was a piece of paper. Sprite gave a mew of delight, for several flies were buzzing about on it.

"'Now,' she said, 'I shall get a fly!'

"The kitten reached out her little paw to hit one of the flies. Then something funny happened. Her paw stuck tight to the paper.

"'Meow, meow!' she cried. 'Let go of my paw!' But, of course, the flypaper didn't let go.

"Sprite put out the other paw to push the paper away, and it stuck too.

"'Meow, meow!' howled the kitten, and danced about until her other two paws and tail stuck to the flypaper. Then she laid down and rolled, and some of the paper stuck to her side. She was caught tight and struggled blindly until she fell off the table.

"Luckily for her, Susie came along and heard the noise.

"'Good gracious!' she called. 'Poor little Sprite has stuck to the flypaper.'

"Then Susie and the cook and the rest of the family did their best to think of a way to free Sprite. Even after they picked the paper off she was a very sticky kitten, so Susie took Sprite up to the bathroom and gave her a bath in warm water and dried her and combed her hair. Sprite then had a bowl of warm milk and, tired and sorry, went to sleep on her cushion."

FOR NOVELTY A QUAINT COATEE AND DOUBLE TUNIC

Dancing frocks of chiffon and lace are youthful and appealing in their simple lines. Flounce upon flounce of chiffon or lace form the skirts of some; others show the peplum, corded, frilled or plaited.

Accordion plaiting is especially becoming to slender figures.

An exquisitely dainty model seen at one of the recent openings had a narrow, slender foundation skirt of mousseline de soie and three plaited flounces of the softest pink chiffon. Plaited chiffon formed the bodice. In 7922 the itunc and skirt might be of the plaited chiffon with a broad band of lace to break the monotony. This dress may be copied in size 18 with 6⅛ yards of 36 inch material and 1¾ yards of 27 inch all-over lace.

The possibilities of plaited chiffon, silk duvetyn and plain charmeuse are shown in No. 7908. These new all silk duvetyns are exactly suited to the quaint peasant coatees which are a part of so many of the more dressy gowns. As yellow is such a favorite, an effective suggestion for this design is to have the coatee of yellow silk duvetyn with tunic of the palest lemon chiffon over cream colored charmeuse.

Size 36 will require 5¼ yards of 40 inch chiffon, with 2¼ yards of 30 inch material for the coatee and 4 yards of 36 inch material for the foundation dress. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

A Beautiful Design in Richelieu Work For a Lingerie Pillow.

Lingerie pillows are most useful and practical for they can be used on so manp different occasions and are very easily laundered if the covers are made to fasten in the back with buttons.

Pattern 14113 is a beautiful design in Richelieu work for a lingerie pillow. This kind of embroidery is exceptionally attractive and is very easy to do for the outlines should be embroidered in button-hole stitch and the bars are made by taking over and over stitches from one side of the button-holed edge to the other. These are then bound with a button-hole stitch and the material is cut away from underneath. The rest of the design is developed on eyelet work.

This design is 17 by 17 inches and should be stamped on a piece of heavy unbleached linen about 22 inches square and embroidered in linen floss or mercerized cotton. The edge may be finished with lace.

This pattern will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

DEFEATED CANDIDATE SEEKS TO BLOT RIVAL FROM TICKET

Flemington, Oct. 7.—Alleging the distribution of more than the legal number of ballots, Judson L. Fields has filed a petition in the office of the county clerk of Hunterdon county, contesting the nomination of Harry K. Kramer for freeholder on the Democratic ticket at the recent primaries. The petition bears the signatures of sixteen voters of Flemington Borough. Fields, who sought the nomination, was defeated by Kramer by a vote of 1,587 to 1,507.

The so-called "holy roller" faction supported Fields, and the "pirates" worked for Kramer. The petition alleges that the clerk of the township of Reading distributed 650 Democratic ballots, whereas the statutory limit, based on the figures of the previous election, was 306. A proportionate disparity is set up in several other districts of the county. The petition also says that the vote of some townships was not presented in proper form.

JERSEY DEATHS FOR MONTH 144 FEWER THAN LAST YEAR

Trenton, Oct. 7.—With a total of 3,309 deaths in New Jersey for the month ending September 10, the report of the State Board of Health just issued, shows a decrease of 144 compared with the same period last year. By age periods, the report records the deaths of 916 infants less than one year old; 289 children between one and five years of age, and 851 persons sixty years old or more.

Tuberculosis caused the death of 269, the average for the last twelve months being 303, typhoid took thirty-five lives; diphtheria the same number; pneumonia, ninety-one; whooping cough, fifty; cancer, 197, and Brights disease, 228.

HARRY KEMP.

Poet Goes to Jail and Later Will Be Deported.

A sentence of twenty-one days' hard labor was pronounced in Southampton, England, on Harry Kemp, an American verse writer, who was charged with stowing himself on board the steamship Oceanic on her last voyage from New York. The magistrate sent a recommendation to the home office that Kemp should be deported after he had served his term of imprisonment.

WOODRUFF'S ILLNESS TAKES SERIOUS TURN

All Visitors Are Barred; Unconscious Thirty Hours.

New York, Oct. 7.—The illness of former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff, who has been confined at his apartments at the Carlton House since he was stricken with apoplexy at the Cooper Union meeting last Monday night, was said to have taken a serious turn.

Reports that Mr. Woodruff has had a relapse and had been in a comatose state for forty-eight hours, beginning on Sunday afternoon, were denied by his physicians. They said that he had been unconscious for some hours, but had fully revived. From an authoritative source it was learned that he was unconscious for thirty hours and became unconscious early last evening.

A significant fact in connection with his condition is the fact that the apartment was closed to all visitors. It was said that Colonel Roosevelt, who called Saturday before sailing for South America, was refused admittance because of his condition.

Dr. Norman E. Ditman, the Carlton House physician, and Dr. Walter B. James, who have been attending Mr. Woodruff, have been in constant attendance for the last forty-eight hours, it was said at the hotel. Dr. Ditman admitted that his patient's condition was serious, but would not discuss the matter at length.

Several Bellevue physicians who were asked as to the indications of a thirty hours' coma, such as was reported in Mr. Woodruff's case, said that complications would most likely follow, causing a most serious turn.

GAYNOR WILL PROBATED.

No Contest Over Its Provisions Is Anticipated.

New York, Oct. 7.—The will of the late Mayor William J. Gaynor was admitted for probate by Surrogate Ketcham in the surrogate's court, Brooklyn. No member of the Gaynor family was present and no contest instituted.

Although a contest over the provisions may be started any time within two years by an application to the supreme court, the fact that admission of the document was unchallenged seems to indicate that no contest may be expected at any future time.

The application for probate was made by George V. Brower, counsel for the Kings County Trust company, executor under the provisions of the will.

FIRE LAID TO PRISONERS.

Persons Jailed For Contempt Are Accused by Seattle Judge.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 7.—That persons he sentenced to jail for contempt were responsible for a fire which partially destroyed the plant of the Seattle Times Sunday was the declaration by Superior Judge Humphreys. Eight firemen were injured and $75,000 damage done to the pressroom. The fire officials say leaky gas pipes caused the fire and resultant explosions.

Humphreys urged the prosecutor to file informal charges against the persons he sentenced last week, declaring they could be convicted of arson.

Ambassador Gerard In Berlin.

Berlin, Oct. 7. — The new United States ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard of New York, arrived here and at once informally assumed the duties of his office. He is not qualified to act officially with the German authorities until the presentation of his letters of credence.

JACK COOMBS WILL GET RETURNS WHILE IN BED

Philadelphia, Oct. 7. — While his teammates of the Athletics are fighting for the championship, Jack Coombs, "iron man" and their idol, will be lying in a hospital with fourteen pounds of lead on each foot and an eight pound weight on his head, dragging his vertebrae apart. By his bedside will sit the pitcher's wife, telephone in hand, and she will detail to him the great battles, play by play.

"Go to see at least one or two of the games," Coombs urged his wife. "Your being here can't help to drain typhoid poison out of my system."

"I can't do it, Jack," was her reply. "The team wouldn't look like the Athletics to me unless you were there."

Friends of Mack's great pitcher, who told of his condition, said his relapse had punctured one of the Athletics' most cherished plans. When the team was in a slump, it was said, Mack had his "iron man," then partially recovered from his typhoid attack, get into a uniform for the moral effect on his teammates, every one of whom is his chum.

The plan worked and the Athletics started to win. Taught by this, it is said, Mack planned to make Coombs the dark horse of the championship fight, but just as all arrangements were completed to have him secretly round into form again the relapse came and the plan was off.

BASEBALL NOTES

President McAleer, of the Boston Red Sox, will make the trip around the world with the Giants and the White Sox.

Pitcher Larry Cheney, of the Cubs, has planned an auto trip to Florida after the close of the Chicago city series.

Jim Thorpe and several other rookies got a chance to get into the game after the Giants had the pennant cinched.

Manager Stallings says that the Boston Nationals have paid out more money for new players this year than any other club in the major leagues.

"MAC" SAYS

THE UMPIRE.

Who stands like granite on the dirt
When some one's sore because he's hurt?
The umpire.
Who faces foes and baseball crooks
No matter how or where he looks?
The umpire.
Who is the butt of joke and jest,
Who always does as he thinks best?
The umpire.
Who bears others' fault, tho', just the same:
But then—who knows the mighty game?
Who's got 'em all beat out for fame?
The umpire.
For all he has his petty foes,
Who is it says the thing that goes?
The umpire.
Who is it gives the words, "Play ball!"
Who is it makes the squealer crawl;
Who is the biggest man of all?
The umpire.

Umpires take the brunt of the responsibility and receive the minus end of the attention accorded to those interested in the big series. One fan was heard to aver: "They see the game gratis any how." But think of the chances they take.

Doesn't it seem strange to you that Philadelphia dopesters figure that the Athletics lead the Giants in batting, fielding, umpire baiting, coaching and everything else, while the Gotham statisticians figure that the Giantlets are leaders in the same departments? There is a remarkable contrast between the mathematicians in the Quaker Town and those in Greater New York.

With McGraw, Mack and Rigler on the program, the world's series is back in its old time form. Remember this trio of stars two years ago?

It seems strange that two such rivals as the Y. M. C. A. Ajax and Hope Chapel should organize their basketball teams on the same night, but nevertheless 'tis true and there was no conspiracy entered into at that.

Many fans have been led to believe that Jack Martin was violating a great truce when he consented to write baseball for the Daily Press exclusively, but the National Commission's ruling applied only to those players eligible to compete in the big series. Jack is eligible to act as a scribe therefore.

Y. M. C. A. AJAX TO ORGANIZE FOR THE 1913 COURT SEASON

Members of the Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball team will meet in the association rooms tonight to organize for the coming court season under the direction of Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman, who has taken an active interest in the aggregation since its organization. At that time plans will be discussed for the season and a captain and manager selected to start the schedule going.

It is expected that several new candidates will be considered in forming the team as several of last year's men are missing because of scholastic activities. These former members will still continue to support the team, however, and will be present at the first meeting tonight.

WON'T LET PLAYERS WRITE FOR PAPERS

National Commission's Ruling, However, Will Not Interfere With Present Series.

The National Baseball Commission yesterday afternoon handed down a ruling that hereafter no baseball player shall be allowed to write articles or have them appear under his name at any time during the playing season or during the world's series.

It decided that no attempt would be made to interfere with players who have signed contracts with newspapers to cover the world's series this year. The ruling of the commission cuts off a lucrative source of revenue for such players as Cobb, Mathewson, McGraw, Meyers and Collins.

BOUND BROOK EASY FOR HEAVY ELEVEN

Trenton Opponents Pile up a Score of 46 to 0 on the Capitol City Gridiron.

Trenton High School opened its football season Saturday afternoon on the Trenton field, defeating the Bound Brook High School team by the score of 46 to 0.

Trenton outweighed their opponents and plunged through their line at will. The forward pass was the play which Trenton could not execute and lost several yards through these failures.

The lineup:

TRENTON.		BOUND BROOK.
Terradelly	L. E.	Frezza
Ketterer	L. T.	Brokaw
Klinkowstien	L. G.	McCullough
Duch	C.	Shea
Groop	R. G.	N. Hearney

Kearney	F.	Mason

Touchdowns—Hackett, 2; Walsh, 3; McLaughlin, 1; Kearney, 1. Goals from touchdowns—Hackett, 4. Referee—Mr. Roache, Trenton High Umpire, Mr. Casterlin, Bound Brook Head linesman—Harry Knoeble.

HOPE BASKETBALL MEN IN FIRST PRACTISE TONIGHT

Hope Chapel will start the basketball season on its 1913 trip tonight, when Captain Doig will put his candidates through their first practice of the season on the Chapel court. Many players have signified their intention of trying out for the quintet and Doig will have his hands full selecting a representative quintet.

All of the veterans of last year are back on hand and many new men have made their appearance. It is likely that Doig will put the men through a light preliminary drill tonight and the five will get down to real practice next week.

WORLD'S SERIES TICKETS NOW BRINGING A PREMIUM OF $25.

Now that the entire supply of reserved seats for the world's series has been disposed of to a favored few, including newspapermen and those players eligible to take part in the series, fans who want to be assured of reservations before making the trip to Gotham are offering as high as twenty-five dollars per ticket to the lucky possessors. The speculation is particularly noticeable in the suburban sections and those who had counted on purchasing seats at the advance sale yesterday were sadly disappointed for the box office doors were kept closed all day.

Many Plainfield fans were scouring New York for tickets yesterday and even on the local streets last night any one holding reserved seats for any of the three contests could get as much as fifteen dollars for his pasteboards. Few Plainfielders held the passports, however, and the half dozen that did were reluctant to relinquish their claim to the seats in the upper tier, even for the fabulous sum flashed upon them by those to whom money was no object.

MANY LOCAL FANS TO "TAKE A CHANCE"

With all Reserved Seats Sold Plainfielders Want to Witness the Opener.

It was estimated here this morning that as many as 200 baseball followers left on the outgoing trains for New York to get a peep at the opening clash of the world's series which will be played on the Polo Grounds this afternoon between the Giants and Athletics. Despite the fact that every reserved seat has been disposed of, the fans were willing to go to the metropolis and take a chance on standing in line and being able to purchase one of the one dollar or two dollar seats. The fact that the upper tier of the immense stadium at the Polo Grounds was the only portion reserved, and that these seats sold for three dollars each, quickly drained the supply and when the time came for the public sale, not a single reservation had been left, all of the numbered seats having been sent by registered mail to newspaper correspondents in various portions of the country.

Some fans even went to New York as late as the 10.20 o'clock train and were able to purchase the one dollar seats in the bleachers, but there was a wild scramble for these tickets and a clear view of the contest was practically out of the question. Not only have the seats been disposed of for the initial contest but all of the others scheduled to be played in New York are sold out.

JACK TORPEY HELPS TEAM TO WIN P. S. C. PENNANT

In a game of baseball played in Newark yesterday afternoon to decide the baseball championship of the Public Service Corporation, the Electrics won out in a ten inning struggle over the Railway department by a score of 3 to 2. Jack Torpey, captain and manager of the Somerville Central New Jersey League outfit, caught for the victorious ballists and helped materially in bringing about a win.

The winners will be awarded a banner symbolic of the championship of the corporation. Up to yesterday afternoon each aggregation had won a contest and the final struggle was watched with interest by about 400 spectators.

ART STUDENT LURED AWAY AND MURDERED

Strangled With Cord, Body Stripped of Clothing.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Detectives are at work on Chicago's newest murder mystery, the finding of the body of Miss Leegson, student at the Art Institute, in a lonely clump of willows near Argo, at the south border of the city.

A purple line around the girl's throat showed the work of a strangler's cord. Physicians who examined the body are positive that she was assaulted. But so meager is the information obtained by the police that an inquest called probably will be postponed.

Search is being made for a mysterious Mr. Wilson, who lured the art pupil to her death by a telephone message, but the police have no description of the man. Mrs. James P. Burnett, with whom the girl roomed, said that "Wilson" called Miss Leegson over the telephone and asked her to take a position as nurse. She accepted because she needed money to complete her course in sculpture and went to meet "Wilson."

Two deputy game wardens crossing a prairie found the body. The strangler's cord of silk lay in two pieces a few feet away. On the right side of the throat were finger marks and more discolorations.

All the clothing had been stripped from the woman's body from the waist down. The skirt and other apparel were found on the prairie 250 feet away from the body.

William Selvage, a railroad flagman, told the police that an automobile carrying two men and a woman passed his station in the direction of the prairie. Two hours later when it returned he failed to hear the woman's voice.

Miss Leegson was a native of Oshkosh, Wis. She attended the University of Chicago and later became a pupil at the Art institute.

WALL STREET FOR 3 DAY REST

Stock Exchange Men Would Like to Go to the Ball Game.

New York, Oct. 7.—In view of the fact that the Giants and Athletics are to play at the Polo grounds on Saturday, a majority of the members of the Stock Exchange signed a petition addressed to the board of governors requesting that Saturday, Oct. 11, be declared a holiday, as well as Monday, Oct. 13, on which Columbus day will legally be celebrated.

A party in opposition to the holiday started another petition, but met with little success. It is probable that the governors will act on the two petitions on Wednesday. The general opinion is that the extra holiday will be granted.

ARREST THREE IN DEATH MYSTERY

Two Men and Woman Held Pending Investigation.

BELIEVED TO BE MURDER

According to Police, Victim Was In a Hut When Quarrel Was Started—He Was Hit on Head With Frying Pan. Died Several Days Later.

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 7.—Two men and a woman were arrested at Pompton Lakes and committed to jail in connection with what is believed to be the murder of Charles Jacobson.

The two male prisoners are George and Peter Gray, and the woman, held as a material witness, is Mrs. George Gray.

According to the authorities, Jacobson was in a hut belonging to the Grays near Pompton Lakes when a row broke out among the party. Jacobson was hit on the head with a frying pan. Several days later he died in the hut.

The hut is on the summit of a hill, and his body, according to the authorities, was hurled over the cliff. It landed in a swamp below and would perhaps have remained there for months had not a party searching for watercress found it.

The authorities say that the first intimation of murder came from the mother of the two men when she told her friends that her daughter-in-law and her children had sought selter at her home because of a row in the hut. The authorities also have heard that one of the two men admitted while he was intoxicated that he had killed Jacobson.

TOO SCARED TO WHISTLE.

Revolver Shocks Hotel Keeper Who Plotted to Catch Highwaymen.

Passaic, N. J., Oct. 7.—It was learned that a police plot to catch two bold blackmailers failed on Saturday night because the victim, George Knetz, a hotel keeper of Lodi, near here, was too badly scared to carry out his part of the plot.

Knetz got a letter on Saturday telling him to pass by the United Piece Dye works in Passaic and at a certain point to hand over $250 to two men who would be there.

Knetz arranged with Policeman Panta and Sergeant Davis to blow a whistle when the two men came up to him so that the officers might spring out from their hiding place near by and catch the men.

When one of the highwaymen stuck a revolver under Knetz's nose, however, he forgot about the whistle and passed over $50, all he had. The policemen watched and wondered.

DYING, WRITES FEELINGS.

Man Falsely Accused of Burglary Could Not Get Work.

Passaic, N. J., Oct. 7.—In killing himself by inhaling gas at his home in this city, Chester Pierson, thirty years, sat at a table in the sitting room and set down his dying sensations. The writing ended in a meaningless scrawl.

"I am tired of life," he wrote. "Life is not worth living. I have turned on the gas. I can feel it getting into my lungs. I am getting weak"—

Then came the illegible markings.

The body was discovered by Pierson's young widow on her return from work at a factory. Pierson had been out of employment a long time and took it much to heart that his wife had been forced to become the bread winner. He had been accused of burglary and, though his innocence had been shown plainly, his wife said, the stigma of arrest had kept him out of employment ever since.

POLE BREAKS, KILLS BOY.

It Snaps as He Climbs It, Pursued by Sister.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 7.—John Tremper, aged thirteen, of this city, was killed in the rear of his home by the collapse of a thirty foot pulley line clothes pole which he was climbing.

The boy and his sister Florence, eight, were playing in the yard and when she chased John he started up the pole with her in pursuit. He had reached a height of about fifteen feet and she was only a few feet below when she felt the pole sway.

She shouted a warning as she quickly slid down and jumped. John followed, but the pole snapped off at the ground before he was able to reach it and crushed him beneath it.

SILK MILL QUITS PATERSON

Follows Rival Concerns In Leaving "Center of Labor Trouble."

Franklin, N. J., Oct. 7.—Following the example of other silk concerns in withdrawing from Paterson, "the center of labor trouble," the Frost-Van Riper company of Paterson has leased the large abandoned brick building of the New Jersey Zinc company, near the Susquehanna railroad station. The concern will manufacture hard silk and will employ more than 100 men and women.

The same company has leased a row of buildings on Franklin pond and will remodel them for another silk mill.

PRESIDENT OF URSINUS FORMALLY INAUGURATED

Collegeville, Pa., Oct. 7.—In the presence of many distinguished educators, representing nearly all the prominent institutions of learning in the East, Prof. George Leslie Omwake was today inaugurated president of Ursinus College, succeeding Rev. A. E. Keigwin, D. D.

President Omwake was born at Greencastle, Pa., July 13, 1871; and received an excellent education, preparing himself for a pedagogical career. He graduated from the State Normal School at Shippensburg, Pa., in 1893, and then continued his studies at the Mercersburg Academy, Ursinus College and Yale University. After having graduated from Yale with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity, in 1901, he became lecturer on education at Ursinus College. In 1903 he became dean and professor of history and philosophy of education and six years later vice-president of Ursinus College.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The members of the basketball squad will take to their indoor court for the first time on October 15. Sangerbund has been secured from that time until March 12, 1914. Captain Burner made his first call for candidates last Friday, but only about seven responded, including four of last year's team.

At the chapel exercises next Friday morning Mary Martin, '14, will recite a very funny and humorous monolgue entitled, "How to Care for Babies." This will be the first of a series of public speaking by the students that is being arranged by Principal Earley.

Owing to delays the tennis trophies will not be presented until next Friday morning.

Captain Burner and his squad of basketball players set up the baskets in the rear of the school building for the girls.

No report cards were given out for the month of September. These marks will be put with those for October.

At a meeting of the Sigma Gamma Kappa yesterday it was decided to hold a Hallowe'en party on the night of Oct. 30, at the Y. W. C. A. Several committees were appointed and these committees have already thought up some very original plans.

Ashley Burner, '14, and Roy Love, '14, are working at Stout's chicken farm near Watchung during this short vacation.

Then members of the Sigma Gamma Kappa met at the home of Marjorie Burtis last night and enjoyed a pleasant evening. Games and candy pulling were the features of the evening and at a late hour a light luncheon was served by the hostess' mother. Those who were present were Marjorie Burtis, Ann Hull, Edna Green, Marion Avery, Amelia Brizzie, Margaret Brizzie, Margaret Ewart, Jubilee Rowley, Lillian Spencer and Edith Dalley.

LOCAL DELEGATES TO GO TO CAMDEN

Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman Arranging for Annual Convention.

COMPLETE PROGRAM

Plainfielders Have Important Parts to Take During the Three Days the Conference Will Be in Session —Speakers Known Locally.

C. William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., is now engaged in making final preparations for the local representation at the annual State convention of boys' departments which will be held in Camden, October 24, 25 and 26. The convention will be divided into numerous departments this year and the local delegation will take an active part in each of the branches of work outlined in a preliminary program. Mr. Bingeman plans to have the local churches, high schools, Y. M. C. A., private schools and other bodies or factions in which young men are interested, represented at the New Jersey gathering and the list of delegates is now being compiled for registration. Howard McWilliams, of this city, chairman of the State student committee, will have charge of the group on high and preparatory schools and papers are being prepared on different phases of this work by boys from Plainfield, Camden, Paterson, Peddie Institute and Lawrenceville.

One of the most interesting events connected with this conference will be the celebration of the twentieth anniversary of Charles R. Scott's connection with boys' work in this State. Mr. Scott, who is State secretary, is well known to many Plainfield boys, having appeared on many occasions and is director of the State camp at Lake Wawayanda. Many of the erstwhile boys who have served under his direction during these two decades, and who are now holding responsible positions in the business world or in other associations will speak to the delegates, those active at present in the boys' departments.

Among the other speakers at the conference well known to Plainfield boys will be Henri R. Ferger, a graduate of Princeton University, and who has recently returned from India, where he has taught for two years in the college at Rawa Pendi. Mr. Ferger will be best remembered by the local boys who attended the camp at Wawayanda in 1910, when he had charge of the manual training and woodwork department at the camp. He came to the camp at the completion of his course in the New Jersey university and left for India immediately after the close of the summer, where he has been until the present time.

It is expected that Christy Mathewson, the well-known "Big Six" of the New York Giants, will also give a brief talk to the boy delegates. Charles R. Scott will sketch the work that has been done in the association since he has been engaged in the work and will illustrate his talk by means of stereopticon views.

SCHOOLBOY WARRIOR BROKE COLLAR BONE

Peyton Schenck Injured on Parker Field in Trying to Recover Fumble.

Playing with the Plainfield High School football team in a practice scrimmage on Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, Peyton Schenck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew R. Parkhurst, of Grant avenue, broke his collar-bone and will be out of the game for the rest of the season, if not permanently. Young Schenck made an attempt to fall on the ball which was fumbled by a member of the opposite side and landed with great force on one shoulder.

He was taken to his home by fellow players and was reported as resting comportably today after a bad night. Schenck was a candidate for a line position on the eleven and had shone up particularly bright during the preliminary drills.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Little Miss Hazel Margaret McVoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, entertained about twenty friends yesterday afternoon at her home in West Front street, the event being in observance of her eighth birthday anniversary. The guests played games at the conclusion of which, favors were distributed. Autumn foliage figured prominently in the house decorations and a large birthday cake, with the traditional candles, made an appropriate table centre-piece. Among the gifts to the celebrant was a violin from her parents.

DID NEW YORK BUY AN ENGINE CHEAPER?

Question Asked in Council Session Whether Nott Bid is Higher Here.

During the executive session of the Common Council, Monday night, when there was a lively discussion regarding the automobile fire engine matter, the relative merits of various engines were argued in vigorous fashion by Fire Chief T. O. Doane, Councilman Fred Endress and others. One of the members asked the question, it is reported, how it was that the Nott Fire Engine Company submitted a bid for $7,850 for a four-cylinder engine to Plainfield, when New York city is alleged to have purchased these engines for $6,500 each. No one present, it is said, was able to explain the difference.

It was pointed out, according to report, that it would be a decided advantage to have an engine made near Plainfield, where in case of accident, parts could be secured easily. Reports on tests made recently in New York were presented and other data to show the possibilities of the various engines. It was then decided to invite those concerns presenting bids to submit their engines for an official test at a time to be fixed by the Mayor and fire committee.

HOPE CHAPEL PEOPLE ENJOYED A SOCIAL

Sunday School Class Entertains and Souvenirs Are Distributed.

The Loyal Daughters' Sunday-school class of Hope chapel gave a social at the chapel, last night, to celebrate the attendance of all its members at the rally day services of the school on September 28. The class has an active membership of twenty-four with a reserve toll of probably a half-dozen. The program entirely informal, comprised chiefly with the hearty singing of patriotic songs by the class and guests, Rev. Frederic L. Greene, the pastor, officiating as leader with Miss Elizabeth Marsh presiding very acceptably at the piano.

Mr. Greene said grace after which refreshments were served, covers being laid for thirty-five. The decorations were artistic in design, embracing flags and the national colors. Remarks appropriate to the occasion were made by Mr. Greene, G. Herbert Condict, Miss Mary N. Mortimer, William Doig and others.

Small silk flags were distributed as souvenirs. During the evening the daughters unanimously voted to change the date of their official year from January to April first to conform to that of the main school. The officers elected for the ensuing six months will name committee membership in full at an early date. Arrangements are well under way by the class for a pre-Hallowe'en reception to be given to the parents of members on the evening of October 30. The gathering closed with the singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the class hymn, "Jesus Is Calling."

MISS RANDOLPH DIES IN HER 85TH YEAR

Venerable Member of the Society of Friends Succumbs to Complications.

Miss Catharine F. Randolph, aged 84 years, a life-long member of the Society of Friends, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 251 East Front street, of a complication of diseases, following a long illness. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Randolph, and was born at the Randolph homestead, Greenbrook, where she lived until about twenty-six years ago when she removed to this city. She continued her residence here until her death.

Miss Randolph was a member of the Plainfield meeting, Religious Society of Friends and a regular attendant at the services until ill-health prevented. She is survived by a sister, Miss Hannah Randolph, of Greenbrook; a number of nephews and nieces among whom are James Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth, and Mrs. Thomas J. Beetham, of Newark. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE WOMEN ACTIVE

Mrs. E. Yarde Breeze Tells An Encouraging Story to Local Organization.

MRS. JOOST PRESIDES

Elizabeth and Westfield Represented at Enthusiastic Session at the Plainfield Public Library, Where Many Gathered.

An enthusiastic address by Mrs. E. Yarde Breese, of Trenton, president of the State association, together with encouraging reports of the work were the features of the meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage held at the Public Library, yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the work. Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, president, was in the chair.

Among those present were delegations from Elizabeth and Westfield, including Miss Versin, of Elizabeth, who told in an interesting way how she secured four hundred members in the association during the summer months. She emphasized the fact that she had received a great deal of help from the men of her city.

Mrs. Breese in her address said that she had attended thirty-eight grange meetings throughout the State and the majority of those present had signed cards favoring the work of the association. There was only one master who had refused to sign a card. Mrs. Breese said that the State grange master was with the association in its work. Reports of the work along the Jersey coast were also given. It was stated that as yet no house to house canvas had been made as was the case with the suffragists.

It was announced that the local association will give a musical at the home of Mrs. Pierre Mali on East Front street, Tuesday afternoon, October 21, at which time Miss Chittendent, president of the New York association, will be present and make an address. There will be other interesting features. The antis are planning for other meetings to be held during the winter months.

MISS POUND BRIDE OF EDGAR D. FOWLER

Many Witness Marriage of Popular Young Couple Here.

Miss Elizabeth Pound, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. McClurg, and Edgar Daniel Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler, both of West Seventh street, were married at 8 o'clock last evening, by Rev. Harry R. Bodley, of New Britain, Conn., in the presence of about one hundred relatives and friends.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse, trimmed with duchess lace and pearl ornaments and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor was Miss Eleanor S. Bodley, who wore a gown of pale blue satin, trimmed with figured chiffon. She carried Killarney roses. The best man was Arthur H. Fowler, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were George H. Pound, brother of the bride, and Walter Merrill Fowler, cousin of the bridegroom.

The Lohengrin Wedding March was played by an orchestra, as the bridal party descended the stairway and entered the parlor, and the orchestra also played during the reception which followed. The rooms were attractively decorated with cosmos and white roses, while in the dining-room pink roses were used. The bride received a large number of gifts. After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside at Richmond Hall, S. I.

The bride was formerly domestic science teacher for three years in the North Plainfield High School. Mr. Fowler is an architect and is engaged in business in Brooklyn.

MRS. DRUCILLA GRIGG.

Mrs. Drucilla Grigg died Tuesday night at her home, 630 West Fourth street, after a long illness. She is survived by one daughter, Miss Anita Burnett. The funeral will be held at the late residence tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

DAILY PRESS LED WITH BALL NEWS

As was promised the "fans," the Daily Press led yesterday in giving them the story of the first of the games in the world's series yesterday afternoon, play by play being announced by megaphone as speedily as received over the wire from the Polo Grounds. The newspaper was an easy winner at all stages of the game and the "fans" were quick to show their appreciation. Fully 600 people were packed in front of the Daily Press building, about ten times the size of the crowd elsewhere.

At intervals, between the innings, molasses kisses, a present of the Ritz Company, were distributed among the assembled fans, fully 2,000 of them being given away. Tickets for Proctor's Theatre and souvenir statuettes of "Scoop, the Cub Reporter," advertising the great cartoon feature of the Daily Press sporting page were also distributed.

Hardly had the crowd started to disperse when the game was ended than the Complete Baseball Extra of the Daily Press was on the streets. In fact it was just nine minutes after the last play had been made when the sporting extra was being read by the "fans" and was on sale at the newsstands. It beat any other local paper on the street by twenty-five minutes. The story of the game included the detailed plays, inning by inning, the features of the contest and the box score.

In this issue, Jack Martin, of the Boston Nationals, who is covering the world's series exclusively for the Daily Press gives a graphic account of yesterday's battle. He will report each game in this fashion.

FORMALLY ANNOUNCE THEIR ENGAGEMENT

Mrs. Charles W. Holland Gives a "Bridge" to Announce the Betrothal.

Mrs. Charles Wesley Holland, of 704 West Seventh street, gave a "bridge" party at her home, yesterday afternoon, at which time there was the formal anouncement of the engagement of her daughter, Miss Alverda M. Holland, to John F. Fisk, 3rd, of Wyoming, Ohio. A feature was the novel way in which the engagement was announced. There were cupids dressed up as newsboys and each carried a bundle of newspapers upon which appeared the word "Extra" in large letters. Upon opening the newspaper there appeared the announcement. Congratulations followed.

The rooms were elaborately decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being pink and green in the reception room, pink roses and yellow leaves and chrysanthemums in the dining room, while in the conservatory there were weeping willows and autumn leaves.

Mrs. Holland and Miss Holland were assisted in receiving by Mrs. A. G. Hooley, Miss Gabrielle McQuaide and Miss Alice Smith. At the conclusion of the game, prizes were awarded to the winners at the different tables. Mr. Fisk is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fisk, Jr., of Wyoming, and is a graduate of Yale, class '13.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ALFRED J. EVERITT HELD

The funeral of Alfred J. Everitt was held at his late home, Fairview avenue, yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including representatives of Freedom Castle, K. G. E., and the Order of Owls. Rev. J. O. McKelvey officiated, assisted by Rev. George Bolsterle, of New York.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, including set pieces from the Knights of the Golden Eagles and the Owls and relatives. The burial took place in Hillside cemetery, where the Knights of the Golden Eagle conducted the service. The bearers comprised two members of the Knights of the Golden Eagle, two from the Owls and two from the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel.

HEAR COMPLAINT ABOUT NEW BLDG.

Five Alleged Violations in Construction of Astor Theatre Are Aired.

BEFORE THE MAYOR

Opinion Seems to Be That Grievances Are Not Sustained—Fire Chief Doane Showed That He Had Been on the Job.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart and representatives of the Master Builders' Association, the Building Trades Council, Fire Chief T. O. Doane, building inspector; Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and Benjamin Neiberg, with his counsel, Harry C. Runyon, together with other representative citizens, held a conference in the Common Council rooms, last night, to discuss alleged violations of the building code in the construction of the Astor Theatre building, which is being built by Mr. Neiberg.

The Building Trades Council, through William H. Lunger, the agent, presented five specific alleged violations to Mayor Stewart, and each one was taken up in order, thoroughly discussed, and at the conclusion of the conference it seemed to be the opinion that in the main the so-called violations do not exist, and Mr. Neiberg, through his counsel, informed the Mayor that he had tried to conform strictly to the building code and furthermore he stood willing to comply with any reasonable request made by the city.

Contrary to expectations, the representatives of the Master Builders' Association approved of practically all the details of the construction work with a few minor exceptions, leaving the representatives of the Building Trades Council unsupported in its contentions. This was taken as a vindication of Building Inspector T. O. Doane, who it is said, has been the object of considerable criticism throughout the controversy.

Mayor Stewart in opening the conference said that the question to be determined was whether the code had been violated, that at present he had no intention of granting a permit to the theatre until such time as the building is completed and passed upon. He suggested that for expediency and order it would be wise to hear two representatives of the Building Trades Council, and a like number representing the Astor Theatre and the city. Mr. Stewart added, that he took it for granted that all interested parties were acting in good faith.

Alexander Milne, John Abbott, Albert Pangborn, Michael Rimmer and C. W. Krausse represented the Master Builders' Association; W. H. Lunger, agent, and W. H. Harding, the Building Trades Council. Mr. Lunger presented a communication containing the five specific alleged violations, which in effect were: non-fireproof doors, exits to the outside court that are less than eight feet as required by the code; coils and radiators on the walls instead of in recesses as provided by the code; steam boiler for heating the theatre on the premises instead of outside as provided by the code; owners intention to use West Front street exit as an entrance, it being eight or ten feet in width, whereas the code provides for a twenty-five foot entrance.

As to the first charge, Councilman Fred Endress said that he had inspected the building and in his opinion the doors were not fireproof, and in reply the master builders declared that they considered the doors to be fireproof and that there were plenty of exits. Chief Doane presented a map of the building and this was used to further enlighten the interested parties.

It was also the opinion of the Master Builders that the exits to the court were eight feet, and as for the radiators being hung on the walls, it was shown that this was no violation as the code does not prohibit this. The question about the steam boiler being on the premises involved considerable discussion. It was finally decided that the boiler is outside of the theatre building proper and that if the separating wall is run to the roof there can be no danger. The masters considered it fireproof at present, in fact all of the other alleged violations were groundless in their opinion, with the exception of the arrangement whereby water is allowed to run over the building from Front street to Second. It was the opinion that in cold weather water would freeze and prevent the opening of doors on the court, making it dangerous.

Frank Linke, who owns and occupies a property nearby, said that he considered the theatre building a disgrace to the neighborhood and the city. He did not think it was fit to look at, nor fit to go into, and he spoke especially of the danger of water freezing in the winter and making it impossible to open the exit doors. There was considerable ar-

Summary—Hit by pitcher—by Plank, (Doyle). Wild throws—Baker, Doyle, Collins. Struck out—By Plank, 6; by Matty, 5. Bases on balls—Off Plank, 2; off Matty, 1.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—The New York Giants took the second game of the World's Series today by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics in a close contest.

Matty won his own game with a hit in the tenth.

Soon after Plank pitched the first ball out the contest resolved itself into pitcher's battle and upon the cunning and experience of two veterans hinged the final result. Many were the holes that each of the moundsmen became tangled up in but each showed rare control and both had everything on the ball. Matty had his famous fadeaway working with clocklike regularity and Plank's cross fire was equally as effective.

The mob of fans, although smaller than yesterday's, found many causes for cheering and every time the pitchers left the diamond after an inning they were accorded a big ovation. Unlike the hitting fest of yesterday, the second contest of the big series was directly the reverse, heavy clouts being as rare as roses in the artic circle. The McGraw outfit presented a crippled appearance when it took the field with Snodgrass in Merkle's shoes at first but the Giant stock sunk still lower when Snodgrass drew up at the difficult corner with a lame leg and was replaced by "Hooks" Wiltse who later took over the first base job.

Effective though the hurling was, players managed to get telling licks now and then which started rallies and added the necessary spice and interest to the struggle. Despite the fact that the Giants were smarting under the initial lacing they possessed a world of confidence throughout the entire game, and exhibited a decided reversal of form from yesterday, showing much of the old time ginger and snap.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—Although weather conditions looked exceedingly dubious for baseball all during the morning, the heavy clouds began to lift shortly before noon and the fans who had stood in line since midnight burst into a sudden cheer when a bulletin was posted stating that the four umpires had gotten together at 11:30 o'clock and decided to call the second battle for the championship of the world at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon. When the announcement was sent broadcast throughout the Quaker City, fans left their hotels in all parts of the city and made a grand rush for the ball park, forming a line that was ever five blocks in length.

A majority of the fans spent the forenoon in their hotels, resigned to await the umpires' decision but when the good news was heralded forth card games and other forms of indoor amusement were abandoned and everyone took the shortest course to the field. Conditions continued to improve as the game time approached and although it was still cloudy at 12:30 o'clock, the sun was trying hard to make its appearance, and the crowd, upon seeing the rays of Old Sol, let forth another cheer that echoed and re-echoed.

When the gates of the Philadelphia park were thrown open a little after 12:30 o'clock the fans waded through at a rate of one hundred a minute and at 12.45 o'clock it was estimated that several thousand fans had entered the field. The grounds are in excellent condition and all that is needed is sunshine to make it an excellent day for the National pastime.

When the Giants left their hotel for the grounds shortly after 1 o'clock, Fred Merkle took a cab to the field and went along. He was limping badly and used a cane in going from the hotel to the cab. He will be out of the game for several days and it is expected that Snodgrass will take his place at the initial corner.

All of the big hotels in Philadelphia were fairly reeking with baseball talk this morning and many of the more reckless predicted that the big attendance figures registered in New York yesterday would be smashed this afternoon. The Giants were on hand early this morning and looked very little damaged and there was an air of calm serenity about them despite their lacing of yesterday.

The attendance at game time was 28,000 people and the weather was cloudy with threatening rain. The umpires are Connolly behind the bat, Rigler on the bases, Egan in right field, Klem in left field.

FIRST INNING.

Giants—Herzog flied out to Barry on a pop fly; Doyle flied out to Oldring in left field; Fletcher fanned out. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—E. Murphy singled; Oldring followed with another single to left field, Murphy going to second base; Collins sacrificed, Snodgrass to Doyle, who covered first base; Murphy went to third base on the hit, and Oldring went to the keystone bag; Baker, the home run artist, came to bat amid a thunderous applause and it was several minutes before play was resumed and Matty wound up; Baker was fanned and Matty was the object of a similar ovation; McInnis flied out to Murray. Three out. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Giants—Burns took three healthy swings and returned to the players' bench. Shafer flied out to Murphy in right field; Murray fanned out. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Strunk went out, Doyle to Snodgrass; Barry flied out to Burns in left field; Lapp took the count on three whiffs. Three out. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Giants—McLean flied out to Barry, who made a sensational catch in short centre field; Snodgrass singled to left field, getting the Giants' first hit of the afternoon. The sun appeared on the Philadelphia field at this time and was the cause for another shout from the fans. Mathewson took his place at the gutta percha, getting another big hand from the bleacherites, and responded with a pretty single to centre field, sending Snodgrass to third base; Matty followed his hit up by legging it for second base on the play in; Snodgrass did some fast sprinting from first to third despite the fact that he was

ACCUSED PASTOR AT CONFERENCE

Rev. Hallock F. Schenck Presents Affidavits at M. E. Ministers' Meeting.

ASKS ANOTHER CHARGE

Alleged He Was Too Friendly With Young Girl Member of His Flock—He Depends Upon Influence of His Father.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 8.—Although ministers of the Methodist church assert that the annual conference which opened here cannot take any action in regard to the charges made against the Rev. Hallock F. Schenck, former pastor of the First Methodist church at Manasquan, N. J., it is believed that Schenck will endeavor to present affidavits to show his innocence before the conference and in that way try to secure an assignment to another pulpit.

It was said that the conference was powerless to consider the case because the official board of the church had refused to take any action toward hearing his defense of the charges made against him by Joel Parker, Austin Newbury, Harry Mount and Thomas Rankin, who said they saw him strolling with sixteen-year-old Sara Foreman, a member of his church, along the lonely roads between Manasquan and Sea Girt on the night of Sept. 26. They also say that they found him and the girl sitting on the steps of a deserted railroad car. Two of the men, Austin Newbury and Harry Mount, made affidavit to their stories to offset the affidavits of Schenck and his wife, in which they stated that the pastor spent the entire night in question in his home.

Schenck's father is a leader of the eastern district and a pastor of prominence. The accused minister had planned to secure his return to the Manasquan church or another in the conference at the hands of the assignment committee of the conference. He had depended greatly upon the influence of his father to bring this about.

Schenck and his wife with their two-year-old baby left for their former home in Vineland, where his father is a minister. His father accompanied them. Among the last persons upon whom they called before leaving town were Mr. and Mrs. John Foreman, parents of the girl with whom he is alleged to have been indiscreet, but who believe the minister tells the truth.

TWICE TRIES TO DIE.

But Jersey City Man Will Live Despite Gas and High Leap.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 8.—Louis Averina of 107 Hague street tried twice to die, the second attempt being a jump from the second story window of the hospital where he had been taken for treatment after the failure of the first. He survived even the second chance at death and will recover, the doctors of the City hospital say.

Averina first turned on the gas in his rooms on Hague street, but he was discovered unconscious and rushed to the hospital. There he lay on his cot, and he saw another opportunity. The nurses of the ward retired to cook a midnight meal. The orderly, who is over seventy, nodded in his chair. Averina stole cautiously from his cot, opened one of the windows and leaped into space.

JILTED GIRL KILLS HERSELF.

Was Inspired by Reading of a Similar Suicide.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 8.—Because she had been jilted by the man she expected to marry next Sunday and reading of how Miss Clara Courter of Belleville shot herself because she was disappointed by her fiance, Miss Stella Trolarok, eighteen years old, of Harrison, swallowed carbolic acid and died two days later.

The pretty clothes she had prepared for the wedding she placed carefully away in a clothespress before taking the fatal dose. She was discovered weeping bitterly while reading of the suicide of the Courter girl.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

The general public is invited to an autmunal musical serivce to be given Friday night, at 8 o'clock, by the choir of the Grace M. E. church in that edifice. The choir of twenty voices will be assisted by Mrs. Kendall Mason, contralto, and E. D. Young, tenor, who are soloists of unusual ability. One of the feature numbers that will be rendered is Schtuecker's harvest cantata. The anthems, "He Sendeth the Spring unto the Valley(" by Warenig, and "Praise the Lord O Jerusalem," by Mannder, will also be sung.

UP TO HIS OLD TRICKS.

Lawrence Wallace, of Scotch Plains, was fined $8 by City Judge DeMeza this morning, when found guilty on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred against him by Jacob Kriney, of Rahway road. The latter claimed that the defendant tried to steal a gallon of cider from his wagon and when accused of the alleged theft assaulted him. Wallace paid the fine and thereby avoided the serving of a sentence of 40 days in the county jail.

The Baraca Junior Class of the Temple Baptist church held a social meeting last night at the home of the teacher, Clarence B. LaRue, Essex street, when it was decided to form a choral society.

FACT.

Fact is what we want

Opinion is not enough.

Opinions differ.

Here's a Plainfield fact.

You can test it.

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I endured much misery from backache which was caused by my kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and when I got up in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain on my back always made the aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians but their medicine did not help me and it was not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's drug store that I had any hope of getting rid of the trouble. They made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since."

ALL-DAY SEWING SESSION HELD BY CHURCH WORKERS

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held an all-day sewing meeting at the church yesterday. The women gathered at 9 o'clock and spent most of the day in sewing. At noon an autumn luncheon was served by members of the society, under the direction of the refreshment committee. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the church, was present as guest of the society.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock a paper on the "Historical View of Christian Evangelization," prepared by Miss Lyndon, was read. Mrs. Martin I. Cooley had charge of the devotional exercises in the absence of Mrs. Middledith. The subject was "My Deliverer."

BASEBALL GAME

reported to be in a cripple condition, but pulled up lame at third base and "Hooks" Wiltse took his place at the bag; Snodgrass was helped off the field by two of his teammates, being unable to step on his injured leg with his full weight; Herzog hit to Plank and Wiltse was run down for the second out, Lapp making the putout. While this play was being puled off Matty went to the third corner and Captain Larry Doyle took his place at the plate. Herzog made second on the same play. Doyle, after getting three balls, took two healthy swings at the pellet and with the count two and three he flied out to Oldring, ending a great rally. Three out. NO RUNS.

Wiltse was sent in by McGraw to play first base in Snodgrass' place, who could not return to the fray because of his lame leg.

Athletics—Plank hit to Doyle, who threw him out at first; Murphy hit to Matty, who threw to Wiltse, easily getting him at the first corner; Oldring out, Herzog to Wiltse. Mathewson only pitched three balls. Three out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Giants—Fletcher out, Barry to McInnis on a very fast play; Burns struck out; Shafer, hit to Baker, whose low throw to McInnis gave the Giant a berth at the first cushion, Shafer took a chance on stealing second when Lapp threw to Collins, nipping him by three feet. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Collins hit to Matty and he threw to Wiltse, getting the runner; Wiltse got credit for every putout since he was put in the game up to this time. Baker singled through second base; McInnis out, Doyle to Wiltse, Baker taking second base on the play. Matty threw several balls trying to catch Baker napping at the mid station and then threw three balls to Strunk in quick succession. Strunk with two and three on him, drew another ball and walked to first; Barry came to the plate with a man on first and second and hit a short one to Doyle, forcing Strunk at second; Doyle made the putout unassisted. Three out. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Giants—Murray flied out to Oldring; McLean singled along the left field foul line; Wiltse fanned and Matty replaced him at the bat and drew four balls, Plank showing some wildness; McLean went to second when Matty was placed on first; Herzog ended another rally by grounding to Collins, who threw to first base. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Lapp out, Doyle to Wiltse; Plank singled to right field; Murphy flied out to Burns, Plank was held at first base; Oldring forced Plank at second on an infield tap, Fletcher to Doyle. Three out. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING.

Giants—Doyle out, Plank to McInnis; Fletcher foul flied out to McInnis on first base. Burns flied out to Murphy in right field. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Collins struck out; Baker lined one to Fletcher, who threw to Wiltse in time to catch the "home run" man; McInnis struck out. Three out. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Giants—Shafer flied out to Strunk; Murray flied out to Barry; McLean flied out to Strunk. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Strunk flied out to Burns; Barry out, Herzog to Wiltse, Lapp singled past first; Plank lined out to Fletcher. Three out. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Giants—Wiltse out, Collins to McInnis; Matty walked to the plate swinging two bats and was accorded a great ovation from the stands; Matty flied out to Murphy, who made a shoestring catch, Herzog flied out. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—Murphy out, Wiltse unassisted; Oldring out, Fletcher to Wiltse; Collins singled to left field; "Goodnight" Baker came to the bat in another pinch and singled to centre field, sending Collins to second base; McInnis forced Collins at third base. Three out. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

Giants—Doyle flied out to Strunk, Fletcher singled to centre field, Burns drew four balls and forced Fletcher to the keystone sack, "Tilly" Shafer was sent to the bat with instructions to bunt but flied out to Oldring; "Red" Murray faced Plank with two men on the cushions, but ended another of the numerous rallies by flying out to Murphy. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics Strunk singled to centre; Barry beat out a hit to first base and Doyle threw wild to first base, letting Strunk go to third and Barry went to second; Lapp hit to Wiltse, and Strunk was out at the plate; Barry went to third base and Lapp was safe on first base; Plank hit to Wiltse and Barry was run down, Wiltse to McLean; Lapp went to third and Plank to second; Murphy out, Mathewson to Wiltse. Three out. NO RUNS.

TENTH INNING.

Giants—McLean singled to left field; Grant was put on first to run for McLean; Wiltse out, Plank unassisted, and Grant went to second on the play. Matty came to the bat while all the spectators rose in their seats and waved arms and hats, Philadelphia supporters as well as Giant cohorts taking a hand in the demonstration for "Big Six." Matty responded with a hit to centre field, Grant scoring the first run of the game by some fast running; Herzog hit to Collins, who threw into left field trying to catch Mathewson and Matty went to the third corner; Herzog took second on the same play; Captain Larry Doyle was hit by pitched ball and the bases were choked with Fletcher at the bat; Fletcher singled to left field, scoring Matty and Herzog, Doyle going to second; Burns fanned out; Shafer flied out. Three out. THREE RUNS.

Athletics—Oldring out, Herzog to Wiltse. Collins struck out. Baker out, Doyle to Wiltse.

COLLEGE CLUB ARRANGES TO GIVE A PANTOMIME

The College Club yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Hydewood Park, discussed plans for annual play to be given this year, which will take the form of a Christmas Pantomime. The Plainfield Theatre will be engaged for the performance. Yesterday's meeting, being the first of the fall and winter season took on the aspect of a social affair, but all were enthusiastic regarding the plans for the future. Miss Margaret Goddard presided.

BOROUGH G. O. P. CLUB PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

L. Smalley and Daniel Hulick; secretary, Horace Conover, and treasurer, Allan Cowperthwaite. The committee on meetings is comprised of E. P. T. Smith, Theodore Martin, Edward Rushmore and W. L. Smalley. Mr. Stahl, Mr. Hulick, Winfield Conover, Joseph Rutledge and Joseph Flack compose the rooms committee.

The next meeting will be held Tuesday night, when arrangements will be made for a reception to former Governor E. C. Stokes in Sangerbund Hall.

EDUCATIONAL RALLY.

Over 185 members of the Y. W. C. A. enjoyed an "Educational Raily" last night, one of the features of the occasion being addresses on interesting subjects by Miss Louise Connelly, of the Newark Association, and Miss Farrer, of the National Board of New York city. Mrs. Bordman Tyler, chairman of the Educational Committee, and Mrs. Lewis Williams, chairman of the Social Committee, were in charge.

COLUMBUS CLUB DANCE.

Invitations have been sent to the members of the Columbus Club and their friends for the opening reception to be held Monday night, Oct. 13. It will be the first dance in the new addition to the club house under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, and elaborate arrangements have been made for the event. The occasion will also celebrate Columbus Day, which occurs on the Sunday previous.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' MEETING.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE.

The Brightside Circle of the King's Daughters will hold its first fall meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert W. Barnes, 22 Mountain avenue, the borough, this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Members are requested to note the place of meeting.

REPUBLICAN CITY COMMITTEE IS BUSY

Committees Named and Plans Being Made for a Mass Meeting.

Plans for holding a ratification meeting in this city, probably on Monday night at Reform Hall, were discussed at the weekly meeting of the City Republican Executive Committee, last night. The details were left with Chairman John J. Carroll. At the ratification meeting all of the local and county candidates will be present.

The following members were elected to serve on the respective committees: Financial, Duncan W. Taylor, J. F. Buckle, Howard H. Williams and Herbert Buxton; halls and speakers, William N. Newcorn, George S. Clay, Thad. Doane, Jr., and H. C. Hicks; publicity committee, J. J. Carty and Charles L. Kling.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Tuesday night in the Frost building. Representatives of the First, Third and Fourth ward clubs will be present and aid in the work.

HEAR COMPLAINT ON THEATRE

gument as to these doors being flush with the court, which is according to code, and in the opinion of Mr. Milne under the present arrangement water is sure to run from the court into the theatre.

Various other questions were raised including that of twelve foot exit doors, which Mr. Harding did not think sufficient in case of a fire or panic. Mr. Milne thought that one of the worst features of the building was the partition within the twenty-five foot lobby or vestibule.

Speaking for his client, Mr. Runyon said that he was not responsible for the building code, but that Mr. Neiberg was willing to comply with it in every detail and he stood ready to meet any reasonable requirement. He said that there is not a building in the city that had been more thoroughly inspected and it was the opinion that it is fireproof and that there is not a violation of the code to be found.

Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed said that Mr. Krausse wants the code enforced, and when a man goes beyond the code objections are raised. The code permits certain things and prohibits others, but as corporation counsel, Mr. Reed said that he took the code to mean what it says and everyone should stand by it.

Fire Chief Doane said that he had required Mr. Nieberg to do extra things and he would be further required to make changes in order that the building may be absolutely safe. He said that the building had not yet been accepted and would not be until the final inspection is made. In conclusion Mayor Stewart said that he would take the matter under advisement and give a decision later.

HENRY WINDHAM'S BIRTHDAY BANQUET

Hotel Waldorf Entertains Lavishly to Mark his Fifty-eighth Birthday.

Henry Windham, the popular proprietor of the Hotel Waldorf, was fifty-eight years old yesterday and to mark the event he gave a sumptuous dinner last night, at which were gathered almost all the members of the old Get-Together Club and some other friends. The function was an elaborate affair and was fully in keeping with the reputation Mr. Windham enjoys as being a host who leaves nothing undone for the entertainment of his guests. The dinner itself was probably one of the finest ever served at an event of the sort in this city.

Former Mayor James F. Buckle acted as toastmaster and his characteristic sayings served to enliven the occasion. By seniority of years, he called upon most of the thirty-five or more guests to say a few words and each paid a tribute to the honored guest. Among those who responded in this way were Ralph I. Tolles, former president of the Common Council; B. Frank Cortell, former sheriff; Andrew McCardell, of the County Elections Board; former District Judge William Newcorn, District Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Sheriff William H. Wright, Councilman Gloak, Police Chief P. S. Kiely, Councilman Cornelius van Herwerden, Councilman Francis J. Blatz, Councilmanic candidate John Cose, former Overseer-of-the-Poor Alexander D. Ayers, Tax Collector William R. Townsend, Ralph L. Morrow, editor Daily Press, former Councilman Frank Randolph, George J. Tobin, Joseph Harrigan, Chief Mac Duff and Fletcher Fritz.

During the dinner a large orchestralla was played.

A FOOLISH EXPERIMENT.

The results of the experiment in Auburn prison by Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the New York State commission on prison reform, as was foreseen when he began, has brought nothing new, nothing worth while. When a man of high standing, as a citizen and an official dealing directly with prisons; becomes a voluntary inmate of a State prison, to be released the minute he gives the word, it is childish to expect that any of his experiences can give an accurate reflection of the killing effects of convict life.

Mr. Osborne says his short experience in the dungeon was a taste of the inferno. If that is true in his case, what must be the taste of the inferno given the poor, helpless, rule-breaker of a State prison, who has nothing to say as to how long he must stay in the black hole or what degrading punishments are added to the simple confinement, as in Osborne's case?

Osborne had all his mental and physical makeup could resist in a few hours. He became free at his command. Can he even imagine what must be the effect upon men who are held there for days instead of hours, with the horrors of hunger, and, in many cases, physical torture in the form of corporal punishments added? Hardly.

The man who can inspect the results of our so-called criminal reform system, which is just another angle of the exploitation that is so common outside prisons, and remain unsatisfied that it is all wrong until he gets a light taste of it in his own experience, is a hard man to satisfy. The rule of reason is lost upon him.

The Jersey Central Railroad increased its anthracite shipments in September about 45,000 tons. Bituminous shipments, which are usually about half the anthracite in quantity, also increased in September. September shipments of anthracite by the Jersey Central were 61,253 tons in 1912, and 760,329 in 1911. This year the gain was partly the result of an extra day's work at the mines.

Every Saturday afternoon and all Sunday, a crap game is in full blast in the woods in West Dunellen. Many young men who earn but a few dollars a week by hard work mingle with disorderly characters and gamble away their money. This is notorious, but somehow the men sworn to enforce the law seem to be both deaf and blind about it.

Where art thou, Prosecutor Silzer?

That fellow who danced about the pavement and threw his hat into the air and that other fellow who tore his hair and said something not nice had not escaped from a lunatic asylum. Bless your heart, they were typical "fans."

President Wilson seems to carry his point every time without initiating his opponents as members of an Ananias club.

That man who is out of town on business today is comfortably seated at Shibe Park, Philadelphia.

There'll be a rattling good contributed editorial in Saturday's issue.

Sulzer is a German and he certainly is "in Dutch."

Do It For Plainfield.

THE FORUM.

QUESTIONS BY AN ANTI.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press.

Dear Sir: Permit me the use of your valued columns to point out what seems rather incomprehensible to some people.

Some little time ago Mr. Everett Colby said that "no corrupt man is a Suffragist." Some little time ago, too; there hung in the window of the Suffrage Headquarters in New York, a picture of N. Y. Senator Stillwell bearing the inscription, "Our Friend."

What volumes in those two words to all who know their full import, who have ever had a friend to whom they would do such signal honor, as to publicly and proudly proclaim him "My Friend!"

The mutual affection which those words express! Since this touching tribute was paid to Senator Stillwell, he has been convicted of bribery, and sentenced to serve five years in Sing Sing.

Will Mr. Everett Colby please enlighten us, as to what in his judgment constitutes "a corrupt man."

There was a naive conceit in his declaration—that "no corrupt man is a Suffragist"—in the face of three facts:

1st. That the Suffragists never tire of preaching the general corruption and unfitness of all men.

2nd. That all Socialists are Suffragists.

3rd. (Last, but not least), That all Mormons are Suffragists; in fact, they have declared themselves proud—through Robert E. Pratt, in the N. Y. Times, May 20, 1913,—to "accept the credit of the origin of the votes-for-women movement in this country."

Yours very truly,
R. A. LAWRENCE.

SAFE BREAKER SHOT WHILE PLYING TRADE

Village Postmaster Fires at Random; Makes Bullseye.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Frank Stumpf, postmaster at Stillwater, Saratoga county, aroused early by the sound of an explosion in the postoffice, about 100 feet east of his residence, took his rifle and fired at random through a window of the postoffice by the side of the safe, instantly killing a man who was attempting to rob the safe.

One of the burglars stationed outside the postoffice was armed with a repeating rifle and fired three shots at Stumpf, one of which just missed the postmaster. Two men ran away from the building and made their escape.

The third man was found dead by the safe, a bullet having entered just behind the left ear. A partial identification of the dead man was made later. He is thought to be Philip Powers, alias Philip Winn, forty years old, who resided at Cohoes and who has served several terms in Clinton prison.

DOWIE'S VOICE HEARD AGAIN.

Lost Phonographic Records of Zion City's Former Ruler Found.

Zion City, Ill., Oct. 8.—The voice of John Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, who has been dead for several years, again spoke to those of his followers who filled Shiloh temple. The voice was preserved in sixty phonographic records which were recovered in the wilds of Australia after a long search.

The records were sent to Wilbur Glenn Voliva, present overseer of the city, who then was in Melbourne. He left the records there when Dr. Dowie became ill. They afterwards were sold by a former elder of the church. The search covered three years.

At the meeting of the Board of Commissioners, on Monday night, application was made by Chief of the Fire Department Williard Henry for a new fire apparatus, and this matter was referred to a committee, together with the heads of the department for a recommendation as to what is best for the town. Some of the members of the fire department are in hopes of securing an auto fire truck. For some years the department has been handicapped because of not having horses to draw its apparatus to fires, and as each new apparatus has been purchased, and being heavier than its predecessor, it was found much harder to be drawn by hand to fires. If a horse drawn apparatus is purchased it will be necessary to install horses in the fire house in order to get the machine to fires.

Philip Todd was taken to Somerset Hospital on Saturday to undergo an operation for appendicitis, which was successfully performed and he is now doing nicely.

Somerville

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund G. Kraft have returned from their honeymoon trip, and are making their home in this place.

Repairs are being made to the cupalo of the new court house, and a gutter will be added in order to carry off the rain water, which has been a source of annoyance in the past by leaking through into the rotunda.

Archie Belton has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Belton, at Peapack.

Kenneth Gaston, who is attending school in Morristown, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Gaston, of West High street.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders journeyed to Bernardsville and Bedminster townships yesterday, in order to view several bridges. At a meeting held in the latter place, it was decided to rebuild the Hamilton bridge in Bedminster, the Gedney bridge in Bernards township, and also the Flammer bridge in Warren township, and the county engineer was directed to draw up specifications and advertisements.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will have its annual supper in the chapel on Thursday evening, November 13, from 5 to 8 o'clock.

There will be special rally day services at the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon at 2:30, when Dr. Francis MacConaughy, of this place, will deliver an address. Miss Clark will be the soloist, and there will be violin selections by Leslie Kershaw.

Tomorrow is to be a big day for the Somerville merchants, the occasion being the free excursion to this place from points along the South Branch and Central Railroads. The Merchants' Association will have a meeting this evening to perfect final arrangements.

EPISCOPALIANS IN CONVENTION

Impressive Gathering of Distinguished Bishops and Priests.

EVENTS OF THE DAY

Great Crowd Throngs About Cathedra lof St. John the Divine, Morningside Heights, to Witness Opening Ceremonies.

New York, Oct. 8.—With most impressive ceremonies the forty-third triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States was formally opened today. Within the walls of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, situated on the heights from which Washington and his generals watched the movements of the British occupants of New York during the dark days of the American revolution, were assembled the greatest minds of the clergy and laity of the Episcopal denomination. The bishops, or fathers of the church, were there in greater number than at any previous council. The clergy were represented by theologians of eminence and orators of renown, the laity by financiers whose influence is international, lawyers than whom there are none more able and men of other professions who have reached the top round of the ladder of fame.

The opening ceremony was set to begin at 11 o'clock, but fully two hours before that the hundreds of people had collected and eagerly awaited the moment when the doors should be thrown open to that small portion of the multitude that possessed the ticket of admission. Those for more than two hours crowded the thoroughfares leading up to the great pile of gray stone that crowns Morningside Heights presenting an animated scene. Bishops, clergymen, deacons and presbyters moved up and down or stopped and discussed church matters.

A few minutes before 11 o'clock the bishops, nearly one hundred in number, formed in the Old Synod Hall for the processional into the cathedral, in which they were preceded by the full cathedral choir, one of the most noted organizations of church singers in America. The members of the choir were full surplices, and as they marched along singing the processional hymn, "Forward Be Our Watchword," they presented a most imposing appearance.

The bishops proceeded in the reverse order of their rank, carrying out the Divine command that "the last shall be first and the first shall be last." The last man in the procession was the venerable Bishop Tuttle, of Missouri, the senior bishop of the church and the presiding officer of the house of bishops.

The bishops were clother in the full vestments of their office, including, beside the customary gown of the bishop, the degree hood, as it is called. Arriving at the entrance to the cathedral, the procession moved down the main aisle, where the choir filed off to either side and took the customary seats in the chancel. Then the bishops fell back into two lines, between which Bishop Tuttle advanced to the chancel and the others took the seats provided for them according to seniority.

The service, which did not differ from the regular communion service of the denomination, was fully choral. Bishop Tuttle officiated and administered the sacrament. The sermon was preached by the Right Rev. William Lawrence, the eloquent bisnop of Massachusetts.

At the close of the opening ceremonies in the cathedral the bishoos returned to Old Synod Hall, and, on being called to order by Bishop Tuttle, the interesting formality of welcoming and introducing the bishops consecrated since the last triennial convention was carried out. A brief memorial service also was conducted in honor of the prelates who have passed away since the last triennial, foremost among whom was the Right Rev. William C. Doane, the famous bishop of Albany.

This afternoon the convention proper assembled for business, the house of bishops meeting in the Old Synod Hall and the house of deputies in the more spacious New Synod Hall. The first work, of course, was organization, and that occupied practically the whole of the afternoon, the houses notifying each other of such organization, as is customary in Congress.

The convention will continue for at least three weeks, during which time there will be considered and acted upon many questions of a momentous nature, including some important changes in the present law and government of the church. The proceedings of the house of deputies, for the most part, will be open to the public. But, following the custom of the past, the sessions of the house of bishops will be strictly executive and will be carried on with great form and dignity.

The convention is expected to elect half a dozen missionary bisnops. One of the new bishops will be, it is said, for the Canal Zone, and a somewhat larger territory which is to be transferred from the Church of England.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 16.

NO sir; you "wouldn't have taken a thousand dollars for that dog."

But he has strayed away—goodness knows where.

And you are "all up in the air" about it, aren't you?

Feeling blue. Wondering if "somebody is kickin' your dawg around."

Well, wishing for him isn't going to do any good. You've got to take steps to let people know that your dog is lost, and then, if the dog wanders into somebody's back yard, they'll know to whom it belongs.

How can you let people know? Why, in the "LOST AND FOUND" column of this newspaper's Classified page.

Get busy—quick, man! Get to a telephone and call up this office. Say you want to dictate an ad. for the "LOST AND FOUND" column. Then describe that dog of yours and tell the clerk to insert the ad.

Within a little while your message will have gone out all over town.

And if the man who found your dog is honest, you'll get the dog back.

The same thing refers to cats and horses and—well, to any of the "dumb friends" that one does not like to lose.

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

The Usefulness of Cotton Crepe.

Now that cotton crepe has been developed to such a high degree of usefulness every economical woman should make use of it.

Cotton crepe underwear is a boon. It is durable, dainty and economical, because it needs no ironing. When it is trimmed with lace or embroidery the trimming should be carefully and daintily ironed, but the crepe should not be ironed, as ironing takes away its character and stretches it out of shape.

Heavy lace is the best sort of trimming to go with cotton crepe. Imitation torchon—machine made, of linen thread, if you wish to pay the price for it—is a good choice. Of course, real Irish lace is good, but it is expensive. It outwears any other sort, however, and will outwear two garments of crepe or almost any other underwear material.

Nightgowns, like underwear, can be made of cotton crepe in such a way that they will be dainty and at the same time durable.

So much for the plain white crinkled cotton crepe. The various sorts of figured crepes can be used to advantage for negligees of all sorts, and so can form another laundry-saving addition to the wardrobe.

For Children's Rompers.

Striped blue and white or pink and white cotton crepe is a serviceable material for children's rompers. It can be made with plain blue or pink gingham, for cuffs and collars and belts, and with white pearl buttons into very attractive garments.

This colored crepe fades readily, and so the material should be soaked for a couple of hours in cold water to which turpentine has been added—in the proportion of a cupful of turpentine to four quarts of water. Then it should be dried and then cut. This soaking serves for a shrinking as well as a color setting process.

For Household Uses.

And why not use cotton crepe for household purposes? Cotton crepe dust cloths would always be neat without ironing. Covers to spread over furniture and drapery on sweeping days also could be made of this material and so could slip covers to put over clothes hanging in storerooms or closets.

Some Cookery Suggestions

MACARONI IN COMBINATIONS.

WHOLESOME and nutritious foods may be prepared by combining macaroni with other viands. Many of them make fine meat substitutes.

Macaroni Loaf With Cheese Balls.—Take a sufficient quantity of Italian macaroni and wipe with a clean, dry cloth; then cook until soft, but not broken, in boiling salted water. Drain in a colander and blanch in cold water; then cut into half inch lengths and pack in a buttered mold in alternate layers with grated cheese slightly moistened with milk. Cover closely and steam two hours. Unmold on a hot dish, garnish with cheese balls and serve with tomato sauce.

To make the cheese balls mix one-half cupful of grated cheese with half the quantity of breadcrumbs. Beat the whipped white of one egg into the mixture, season with salt and cayenne, shape into small balls, dredge with breadcrumbs and fry a golden brown in deep, hot fat.

Meat Substitutes.

Macaroni and Minced Meat.—Take half a pound of cooked minced meat, half a pound of cooked macaroni, quarter of a pint of white sauce, browned breadcrumbs and salt and pepper. Boil the macaroni and prepare the minced meat. Butter a pie dish and place on it alternate layers of macaroni and mince, letting the top layer be macaroni. Pour over it the white sauce, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and slightly brown the surface in a hot oven.

Macaroni With Eggs.—Take half a pound cooked macaroni, four hard boiled eggs, an ounce of butter, half pint of sauce and two ounces of grated cheese. Cook the macaroni and eggs. Place the macaroni in the saucepan with the butter and cheese and stir it about over the fire. Place this in a hot shallow dish. Shell the eggs and arrange these on top. Pour some hot white sauce over it. Sprinkle with a little cheese and serve at once.

Nutritious Diet.

Macaroni and Tomatoes.—Take one pound of tomatoes, one small onion, an ounce of butter, two or three peppercorns, an ounce of flour, half a pound of macaroni and salt and pepper. Melt the butter and fry the chopped onion. Add the tomatoes and peppercorns. Cook until tender and then rub through a sieve. Add the flour and reheat until until thickened. Boil the macaroni, drain and stir in the tomato puree and seasonings. Serve all hot in a dish.

Macaroni and Fish.—Boil half a pound of macaroni in well salted water until tender; then chop it into small pieces and mix with it two pounds of any boiled fish, freed from skin and bone. Take three ounces of dry cheese (grated) and mix in half of it. Then put the whole of the mixture into a pie dish and spread the remaining cheese on the top of it with a few bits of butter. Brown the pie in a quick oven.

They Were Glad to Be Rid of Him.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—When Billy Had to Start To School.

THEY were talking about school. "Ah," said daddy, "it's a pity all little boys and girls do not like to go to school. It's a fine place." Then he looked very hard at Jack. Jack does not care as much about school as Evelyn.

The children knew just what daddy meant, and they laughed.

"Never mind," daddy went on. "I'll tell you about Billy, who was that kind of a boy.

"Billy lived in the country and he could have such a good time roaming about in the woods in vacation time. He and Towser went about together, although there were times when he was too mischievous for even Towser.

"Mrs. Puss had no use for either dog or boy. When vacation time came she went out to the barn to stay, only visiting the house for her meals. She climbed way up in the haymow, where the boy seldom came.

"Mrs. Bossy didn't care for Billy, either. Sometimes, when no one was around to stop him, he would go out to her field, get on her back and try to ride her around the field. Of course Mrs. Bossy kicked up her heels and bellowed as she ran about, but Billy held on to her horns and, my, how that boy could stick!

"Old Dobbin disliked Billy just as much as Bossy did, for when the horse was standing browsing on the nice green grass the boy would slip up and tickle him with a long straw. He was a most annoying little boy.

"In the afternoons Billy would be off to the woods, and there wasn't a woodchuck or chipmunk or rabbit hole that he didn't know. It was most distressing to their little owners to have Towser and Billy making a noise at their doors just when they wished to take a nap.

"One day a bell rang very loudly. Mr. Owl, who lived in the hollow tree, where also dwelt Mr. Coon and Mr. Squirrel, heard it.

"'Hoot, hoot!' he called. 'Now we shall have peace. The other animals wondered what he meant and peered out to see why the bell rang.

"Presently out of the house in which he lived came Billy. In one hand he carried several books strapped together, which he swung by one end of the strap. In the other hand he carried a small lunch basket.

"The dog followed the boy down the road, and Mrs. Puss got up and arched her back with satisfaction as she walked back to her old place on the porch rocker, which had been left vacant all summer.

"'It's school!' the owl hooted. 'Ha, ha! The boy has to go to school every day now, and we'll have peace.' And I wish you could have heard all the animals laughing, they were so pleased."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

VOTES FOR WOMEN: THE OTHER SIDE OF THE MILITANT SHIELD.

There is only one attitude that is not noticeable in the minds of the men and women of the United States at the prospect of Mrs. Pankhurst's approaching arrival here—that is the attitude of indifference. The suffrage movement is world wide, and Great Britain is the only corner of the globe where militant tactics have ever been used; the suffrage movement in Great Britain numbers its adherents by scores of thousands while the militants include but a handful of that host, and their leader who is no new figure on this side of the water, is a little old lady with the traditional English voice and English bonnet, but if she were Atilla himself her coming could not be of more public concern. The Antis of course and many persons who are heartily friendly to Votes for Women declare that the only right thing to do in this case is to deport so dangerous an alien, or if the government admits her for the public to boycott her, otherwise the whole suffrage movement in America puts itself on record as espousing everything that the English militants have done and becomes in short militant by proxy. Also there is the fear in some quarters that under Mrs. Pankhurst's influence we shall be led into actually using militant methods, which is a most foolish fear inasmuch as practically every suffragist in this country frankly disapproves of those methods, and furthermore Mrs. Pankhurst herself has declared them utterly needless here and has repeatedly congratulated us on the fact that we are not driven to any such measures. As to Mrs. Pankhurst's purpose in coming she states it as follows:

"I intend to describe and explain the position and aims of our movement in order that American women may understand what we are doing and why and where we stand. They cannot learn that from the English newspapers, which, as if by a preconcerted agreement, limit their reports to militancy only, passing over all our other work, ignoring our crowded meetings like those which are held every week at the London Pavilion Music Hall, never reporting the speeches made, even by men like Israel Zangwill, and never recognizing our work on the two great questions of the day, white slavery and contagious diseases."

Why among all the kingdoms and principalities under the sun Great Britain should be the only one where violence has figured for the cause, and why the reserved English gentlewoman should resort to firebrands seems to be explicable on just one count: the British heir. We American women cannot be too thankful that American men are not as other men are, when those other men are Englishmen. One of our Plainfield teachers, a young woman as far removed as possible from any suggestion of the militant type, who has recently spent much time in England, said to me with her cheeks blazing:

"The men over there are saying, 'Why the dogs and horses will be wanting to vote next, don't you know!' That is the way the Britisher talks about his countrywomen."

At a gathering of women not long since the topic of militancy was being discussed, when the quietest, most feminine bit of a woman that one could hope to see sat suddenly upright in her corner of the sofa.

"Did any of you ever live in England?" she demanded. "I don't mean merely as a tourist, but did you ever really live there for a series of years? I have, and oh, those Englishmen! Why I can't express to anyone how they made me feel. I would like to throw rocks at every one of them."

The current issue of Good Housekeeping contains a most enlightening article on The Measure of the Militants. Here are some of its statements:

"But few of us realize how much more rapidly we of the United States have progressed toward a basis of general human equality between the sexes than have the people of England. There, under the ancient legal doctrine of coverture (which has been modified, but by no means abolished during the past century), a wife's civic existence was practically suspended during marriage, and she was prevented from taking any legal action on her own behalf except through her husband, or with his consent. 'Husband and wife were one, and the husband was that one.' Today, under this ancient doctrine, the husband has, by the common law, the custody and control of his wife. She must live where he desires, and must arrange their joint domestic life in accordance with his commands. Though she is now permitted to have separate property, if the husband embezzles and spends that property she has no redress; nor can she punish the husband for the wrong done to her by malicious libel.

"In case the wife and husband are acting as partners in a shop or a farm, sharing the labor, and even the direction of the work, all profits go to the husband. The law makes no allowance for the wife's industry.

"Under the old common law of England the wife, in case of the husband's death, had the right of dower out of the husband's property. This right has gradually been removed, until today the husband is free under the law to leave the whole of his real and personal property away from his wife and his children. He can, if he chooses, leave them destitute, to become public charges, no matter what his own wealth.

"The old theory that the wife is the chattel of her husband is responsible for much brutality toward wives in England today. Under the old law a husband who killed his wife was treated with some leniency by male judges and juries, but if a wife killed her husband her crime was treason, and the punishment was burning alive at the stake. Which accounts for the attitude, common today in ordinary lower-class British life, that a man has a right to beat his wife.

"In the matter of divorce, a man in England is granted his freedom on proof of the unfaithfulness of his wife. The wife cannot obtain a divorce merely on that ground.

"These few examples are typical, the list covers nearly the whole range of human life. Particularly in the field of industry the woman finds the law against her at every turn. As in our own country, throughout the public service a woman receives hardly more than half what a man is paid for the same work. And on every hand, intelligent women, looking about them at the sort of civilization which men, and men alone, have ordered and devised, and the administration of which the men have been astute enough to keep entirely in their own hands, find themselves at a disadvantage.

"The superior wisdom it has traditionally been assumed, was man's. The power and the glory were man's. The making of laws, the theories and the administration of justice, were man's. The policies of government were such as best suited man's tastes, and emphasized his points of strength. The rewards, of every sort, were man's. In all the three main lines of life open to woman—marriage, industry, prostitution—woman was subject to man's caprice, used or cast aside, almost literally, at his pleasure. He had even arranged matters so that he was free to revel in immorality—free to degrade dependent, helpless girls—while she was held strictly accountable, and by him. He had actually gone so far as to embody this fact of life in his laws!

* * * * * * * *

"Soberly, each of us knows that whatever we enjoy today of liberty and equality and the right to live has been won for us by our rebels. If ever-widening classes of human beings had not protested, and fought to make their protest good, civilization would not now be what it is. Our own nation was founded on the theory that the right to revolt is an inherent right. A fact it is well to remember in these different times when some of us find ourselves caught quite unexpectedly on the conservative side; when we find our own personal comfort and security threatened in some new and alarming way which we perhaps don't quite understand.

* * * * * * * *

"Considering the fact that the history of the growth of the English ideal of liberty is the history of a long series of bloody revolts; considering the fact that the suffrage movement, militant and constitutional, is numerically the greatest of them all, and is perhaps the most deeply significant of them all (when one realizes the subtlety and magnitude of the changes implied by the expressed intention to introduce the women's point of view, so long country"); considering these things, country"); considering these things, and considering also what the women who have borne the brunt of the fighting have had to endure, it is easily the most extraordinarily patient, long-suffering, bloodless revolution that England has ever seen—or is likely to see until a much higher development of civilization and human brotherhood than anything we know now shall have been evolved."

7990 8000

SHOWING A GRACEFUL PLAITED TUNIC OF CHIFFON

Many gowns this season show the Japanese influence. It may be noticed in the dropped shoulders, the wide soft sash and the drapery on the skirt.

At the moment it seems as if no dress were complete without some sort of tunic. Those of tulle and chiffon are favored and may be plaited or gathered with a hoop at the bottom on the order of the Poiret minaret, which is causing an unusual stir at the moment. 7990 is in figured crepe de chine, shouldered and tuniced in contrasting chiffon. A frill of the plaited chiffon comes above the wide satin girdle, giving a novel, pretty effect. To make 7990 in size 36 it requires 5½ yards of 36 inch material.

8000 shows an attractive model for a girl's blouse dress. It may be developed in serge, a novelty fabric or a figured silk with good results. A dark serge or satin with the revers on blouse and skirt of white is most effective.

To make in size 12 it requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 7990—sizes 34 to 44.
No. 8000—sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14.

Two Practical Designs for Embroidering Corset Covers.

Embroidery is quite the most satisfactory trimming for corset covers, as it wears much better than lace and even outwears the material of the garment itself. Batiste, nainsook and fine long cloth are the standard materials for making underwear, but of late cross-barred muslin, cotton crepon, dotted swiss and China silk are being used, and even crepe de chine is often made into most practical garments. A corset cover may be made from any one of these materials at very little expense.

These two designs for embroidering corset covers may be carried out in solid work and eyelets, in white, and narrow valenciennes lace may be added to the scalloped edge, as is shown in the illustration.

The cornflower sprays may be adapted to nightgowns, chemises or lingerie waists. If a less elaborate design is preferred, some of the sprays and dots may be omitted.

Embroidery patterns numbers 14074 and 14077 will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents each.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., on Watson Avenue and Cameron Avenue the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said bluestone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. On West Sixth Street, the construction of a curb, said curb to be either (1) of bluestone, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface; or (2) of concrete, constructed in conformity with specifications for curbs as set forth in the above mentioned specifications, and laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length. On East Second Street and Madison Avenue, the repair of sidewalk.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 8, 1913.

SCOOP DOESN'T LIKE TO WALK ALONE

IN THE SPORTING SPOTLIGHT

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

CROSS SCORES K. O.

Leach Cross put his East Side rival, Young Brown, to sleep in the sixth round of their scheduled ten-round bout at the Atlantic Garden Athletic Club last night with a terrific right hook to the point of the jaw. Brown fell flat on his face, and although he tried to get up at the count of nine his efforts was too feeble. He had taken a lot of punishment, but this was too much. Brown had taken a terrific beating in the third round, but hung on gamely. He was near to being put down for the count then. Leach had him against the ropes and was raining blows at his face, but the latter covered up and then recuperated.

FOOTBALL TEAM VACCINATED.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—The football team of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, which held Lafayette to a 7 to 7 tie and defeated New York University by a score of 54 to 0 this season, has volunteered to take Swarthmore's place in the University of Pennsylvania schedule in case Swarthmore is unable to play next Saturday. The Swarthmore authorities are hopeful, however, that the vaccine administered to the members of the football team of that institution will not prevent them from appearing on the gridiron Saturday. A special student at the institution and his wife recently were found to be suffering from smallpox in a mild form, which resulted in the vaccination of every member of the student body.

BRITONS WIN.

Baltimore, Oct. 8—Harry Vardron and Edward Ray, the British golfers, defeated B. Warren Cockran, local amateur champion, and George Sargent, professional of the Chevy Chase Club, Washington, in a 36-hole best ball foursome by the score of 6 up and 5 to play at the Baltimore Country Club yesterday. The Britons clinched the match at the thirteenth hole of the afternoon play. The morning round resulted 5 up for Vardon and Ray, whose play throughout the day was phenomenal over a course with which neither was acquainted. Vardon equalled the course record in the afternoon round.

MRS. VANDERBEEK WINS.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8.—Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeek won the Mary Thayer Farnum memorial cup in the golf tournament on the links of the Philadelphia Cricket Club yesterday, when she completed the second round in 86 strokes, making her total score for the thirty-six holes 182. Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, who made the first round in 89 Monday, took 98 yesterday and finished in second place, with a total of 189. This is the second time Mrs. Vanderbeck has won possession of the cup, naving been a victor in the tournament of 1907, when she was Miss Condon.

KILBANE IS READY.

Johny Kilbane, the featherweight champion of the world, and "Kid" Julian, of Syracuse, will meet in a ten-round contest at the St. Nicholas Athletic Club tonight. Julian is a tough, free hitting fighter, with some skill in addition to his aggressiveness. He has done well with all his opponents and is confident that he will not only hold his own with Kilbane, but beat him. Of course, the champion has no doubt of the outcome. He is one of the cleverest, craftiest boxers in the world. He depends so much upon his speed that he has been called a looking glass champion.

RACE FOR $15,000.

Louisville, Oct. 8.—With the $15,000 Endurance Stake as the feature, the ten-day meeting of the Churchill Downs Racing Association will begin this afternoon at Churchill Downs course. The field that will go to the post for the rich stake in the four-mile race will comprise the pick of long distance runners in this country.

"MAC" SAYS

"Good Nght Home Run" Baker, that's all. Again the nemesis of McGraw's clan.

McGraw's chances took another toboggan last night, when it was announced that Fred Merkle had been seriously injured and would not be able to get into the next couple of games. This leaves an opening for another youngster, probably Snodgrass.

How could any twirler, besides an Indian, pitch steady and winning ball after running a gauntlet of cameras and being "shot to pieces?" Marquard's iron nerves were plainly unstrung and he is to be pitied rather than scorned.

Something else to worry about—District Attorney Whitman sent a subpoena out after Jack Foster, the Giants' secretary. He is charged with disposing of tickets illegally. You may have one of those pasteboards that are wanted for evidence. Keep it under cover.

Marquard, Meyers and Crandall are all willing to shoulder the blame for the defeat. Wonder who that fan who lost $1,000 simoleons will hand it out to? We say, blame it on Collins and Baker.

McGraw expects to win the next game. "We always did have luck in Philadelphia," he said, "and we are going into the game with the expectation of winning." That's what they all say.

Dreaming that he was playing in the world's series and trying desperately to catch a long drive from Chief Meyers' bat, a New York fan dove out of the window of his home this morning and was taken to the hospital rooting for the New York nine. Strange effects that the game has on some people are being brought to the surface.

Just before the Giants and Athletics took the field yesterday afternoon, a large solid silver basket was presented to John J. McGraw filled with American beauty roses by Frank Chance as a gift coming from the Yankees. Some thought it was a basket for Snodgrass to catch flies in.

Jake Daubert, of the Brooklyn Superbas, was called to the plate just before the series opened and presented with an auto touring car, having been voted the most valuable man in a National League outfit.

Local sentiment was pretty evenly divided if the crowd that gathered in front of the Daily Press office may be taken as a criterion. When "Home Run" Baker tapped the ball into the Jewish gentleman's lap in the right field bleachers he was accorded an ovation by Plainfield fans that could be heard at the Polo Grounds.

Did you hear the echo coming from the West everytime Bill Nash shouted out a play? It didn't come from the mountains either.

New York club's share	13,546
Philadelphia club's share	13,546
Players' share	40,638

Last year the total attendance, including non-paid admissions, for the first game was 35,750 and the total receipts $75,127.

The National Commission receives 10 per cent. of gross receipts. Players receive 60 per cent. of the balance left, and stockholders divide the remainder.

BAKER CANTERS HOME.

Collins Meeting Great Hitter After He Made the Circuit.

In the fifth inning of yesterday's game at the New York Polo grounds Baker repeated his famous performance of two years ago by smashing a drive into the right field stands for a home run, scoring Collins ahead of him and practically sewing up the game. The Athletics rushed out from their dugout and tossed dozens of bats in the air in a general jubilation. Collins is seen (on left) greeting Baker as he crossed the home station.

JACK MARTIN'S VIEWS ON THE OPENING GAME OF THE SERIES

By JACK MARTIN
(Of the Boston Nationals).

Twenty-two trained athletes, assisted by a quartet of the best officials in the business, shifted the scene of the 1913 baseball series to decide the championship of the world, from the sporting columns of thousands of newspapers throughout the country to a little green nest resting in the cove of Coogan's Bluff yesterday afternoon and gave thousands of ardent fans their first real information concerning the relative fighting strength of the two teams battling for superiority and the coveted flag. The fact that there was not a vacant seat in the mammoth stadium at 157th street when the umpire shouted "Play Ball" and the initial tilt of the big series got underway, is evidence in itself of the grip the big show has taken on the public, and the cosmopolitan crowd of rooters present showed that the pastime was occupying the attention of the citizens of every rank and calibre.

Despite the fact that the big day was opened unceremoniously and the army of fans who had stood in line since an hour before midnight on Monday were greeted by a Scotch mist as thick as pea soup which later quickened into a shower accompanied by a stiff breeze from the north, fans continued to arrive from all parts and when the weather gave evidence of clearing shortly before 9 o'clock the regiment of policemen began to herd the mob into line to await the opening of the turnstiles. Twenty minutes after the ten gates were opened to allow ticket-buyers to enter, the lower portion of the grandstand behind home plate was filled and long lines of women as well as men made their way into the bleachers unhampered by the usual rays of Old Sol, well known to every bleacherite.

The attendance figures at game time were announced as 40,000 and the upper portion of the grandstand reserved for the three dollar aristocrats was entirely empty until one hour before the contest was called. Taking advantage of their license to remain away from the contest until play actually started, the reserved seat ticket-holders were the object of considerable envy and much dissatisfaction and grumbling was heard among those who had been unable to get on the favored list.

McGraw and his men were put on the defensive by stinging line drives of the Philadelphia team's heavy artillery that went for extra base hits, including Baker's home run smash and brought gloom to the "fans" of Gotham. "Good Night" Baker duplicated the stunt that classed him as a hero in two of the other contests played between the Giants and Athletics in 1911 and came into his own yesterday with a lick that spelled victory alone. The clever, Eddie Collins, slugging Jack McInnis and the cunning Chief Bender all assisted "Home Run" Baker in plunging the Giants into the chasm of defeat with a 6 to 4 count. The whole sad story is told in a pair of hits of rare substance and productiveness, a misjudged fly ball, a base on balls and a volley from Baker's heavy fire gun.

"Rube" Marquard had "everything" on the ball yesterday but was plainly unnerved and after five innings of connonading gave way to Crandall who later gave "Big Jeff" Tesrean a chance to do the firing. "Chief" Bender, on the other hand, was pounded hard, but valiantly held the opposition at bay and pulled away with the honors for the first time in three attempts at opening a series with McGraw's men.

Shang, a youngster whose debut into big league ball has been an auspicious one, was another whose wallop had the trio of Giant hurlers on their mettle all the time. His three-bagger drove in two of the runs, without which the Athletics would have been defeated. Baker, Collins and Bender are all heroes, but the work of the youngster outshone them all, for he was playing in his first world's series tilt and after the nervousness had worn off in the fourth inning he landed on the pellet for the long distance trip. Shang is bound to make his mark in the 1913 series and will be a terror to the Giant heavers before the series ends. Metropolitan dailies fail to recognize this youngster's work with the willow and the bulk of the credit goes to Collins and Baker, while without the backstop's lick the sporting columnrs would have been lauding the Giants instead of the Phillies today and the Connie Mack outfit would have been on the minus side of the ledger.

One thing is plainly evidenced in black and white, nowever, and that is that the trio of Giant pitchers who adorned the hillock yesterday did not live up to the claim that they were stronger than Mack's staff and the work of the dopesters' has gone for naught.

One of the cogs in the New York machine was sadly missed and this was the personnel of one Snodgrass. Shafer, an infielder, was sent to patrol the outfield beat at a moment's notice and although he did the best he could, which is equal to what any ordinary ball player could have done under the eleventh hour circumstances, had Snodgrass been in the same position in the fourth inning he would have probably bagged Shang's hit and prevented a brace of counters from leaking over the pan. Shafer ran in on the ball, plainly misjudging it by sticking up one hand for it, let it sail over his cranium to the outgarden while Shang scampered around the diamond to the third corner.

We are forced to admit that the Athletics are better hitters than the Giants, a thing that was so well brought out yesterday, but the McGraw outfit compares favorably with the Phillies in the fielding department. I think that the Giants, as a whole, have it on to the Athletics on the bases. They are faster when they get on the paths and get away with more chances to take an added cushion. There is no advantage in this feature when the Gothamites are trailing in the rear, however, and if McGraw's men want to make use of their base running prowess they will have to pull up into even terms with the opposition in order to make the good asset count for something. When on even terms with an opponent a team has an opportunity to "take chances" on the bases which would not be risked by any ball manager when his team is pulling up behind.

In a short series like this one, much depends upon the pitchers and in the games to come, the team having the best hurlers will set the pace. Much depends on the moundsmen in every game of ball, particularly the strenuous combats staged to decide the rightful claimant to the world's title. While in the big league, I found that the American League pitchers are much better than those in the National, this fact probably being accountable for the fact that dopesters have been able to figure out a slight advantage for the Giants along the hitting lines. I have batted against both American and National League twirlers and found that I, as well as my teammates, could do more with the delivery of an American artist. The Athletics have been pitting their batting strength against some stellar heavers all season in the race for the American League flag and for this reason the fact that they have to face such a trio as Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreau does not phase them in the least.

Baseball "luck" figured largely in yesterday's opener and the Athletics plainly got the "breaks," a thing that is feared by one and welcomed by the other. I think that the Athletics won the initial setto by playing "straightaway" baseball.

COLLEGE PLAYER FOR HOPE CHAPEL FIVE

Pratt Institute Man Out for the Pivot Job on Churchboys' Quintet.

Eight candidates reported to Captain Jim Doig, of the Hope Chapel five, last night, when he called for the initial practice of the season and every member of last year's speedy aggregation was on hand with the exception of Johnny Heron, the little forward. Heron will be out at the next drill, however, and then the veteran squad will be complete. It looks exceedingly dubious at the present time for some of the veterans, who will be extended to the limit by the sudden influx of new material.

Conspicuous among the new men is Winney, a Pratt Institute player, who is out for the centre position now held by Captain Doig. Jack Martin, the ball player, is once more coaching the Hope five and gave the youngsters many valuable pointers at last night's tryout.

Hunt For Congressmen.

Washington, Oct. 8.—With warrants for the arrest of enough congressmen to make a quorum in the house for consideration of the urgent deficiency bill, sergeants at arms scoured the town while the house settled down to a wait. Leaders thought the warrants could be served only at the New York Polo grounds.

ATHLETICS BEAT GIANTS IN FIRST

Heavy Hitting Marks Opener In World Series.

BAKER SMASHES A HOMER

Each Team Credited With Eleven Hits, but Mackmen Bunched Theirs. Giants Played Without an Error. Marquard Driven From Box.

New York, Oct. 8.—The Mackmen took the first game of the world series by a score of 6 to 4 before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a ball game and beneath gloomy, lowering skies.

For a championship game it was a heavy hitting contest, and to the surprise of every one the Giants batted Bender freely. They made as many hits as the Athletics, but the latter drove the ball farther and, as the result shows, made their wallops count for more.

For the fans the feature of the game was Baker's home run into the extreme corner of the right field stand, which scored Collins ahead of him and, as it afterward proved, won the game for the Philadelphians. Collins really did the best work in the contest, finishing the afternoon with a perfect batting average; scoring three of his team's six runs and getting the only stolen base secured by a player on either side.

Marquard went well enough until the fourth inning, when he allowed four hits, two of which were triples and one a double. One of the triples, however, was a misjudged long fly that got away from Shafer in center field. For all that Shafer played nice ball and made one very pretty catch. Considering the fact that he had no practice recently in the center garden, he put up a fine exhibition in this position.

Giants Miss Their Chance.

Beginning the sixth inning Crandall was on the mound for the Giants, and, although he was responsible for one run in the eighth, the game had already been lost.

The Mackmen could do nothing with Tesreau. In the seventh inning the Giants had two runners on the bags with one man out, and it looked as though they might yet pull out the game. A fast double play killed their chances here.

The only error of the game was made by Barry, whose wild throw to first resulted in at least one run for the Giants.

McGraw's men were able to solve the delivery of Bender much more easily than they did two years ago. In spite of the fact that the weather should have suited him, the tall Indian was hit hard.

Baker's Lucky Thirteen.

Baker's home run was the third he has made in a world's series game and his thirteenth circuit clout of the year. As he was born on the thirteenth day of the month, he regarded this as his lucky omen.

Fletcher, Doyle and Merkle were the best men at the bat for New York, and Herzog played his usual snappy, aggressive game at third. Both teams left for Philadelphia immediately after the game.

Following is the score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.
Philad'phia	0	0	0	3	2	0	0	1	0—	6	11	1
New York	0	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	0—	4	11	0

LARGE SUMS NOW IN NEW JERSEY'S BANKS

Commisioner George La Monte Issues Optimistic Statement at Trenton.

Trenton, Oct. 8.—Commissioner LaMonte, of the Department of Banking and Insurance, yesterday issued a statement showing the resources of the banking institutions of the State. At the close of business August 9, according to the statement, there were resources of $419,137,932.83 in the 150 financial institutions of New Jersey with deposits aggregating $342,387,177.74. There are returns from 102 trust companies, 25 savings banks and 23 State banks.

The resources of the trust companies amounted to $266,080,382.79 and their deposits $204,358,244.30, while the surplus funds aggregated $20,762,379.03, and their undivided profits $9,966,657.15.

The savings banks had aggregate resources of $130,184,714.58 and deposits of $120,101,087.29. The surplus amounted to $8,800,838.62.

The resources of the State banks reached a total of $22,872,535.46 and their deposits $17,927,846.15. The State banks had surplus funds amounting to $1,540,962.06 and undivided profits of $614,138.76.

FIELDER PLANS TOUR THROUGH THE STATE

Acting Governor Will Be in Somerset County on Monday, October 20.

Trenton, Oct. 8.—The members of the Democratic State Committee Monday afternoon outlined an itinerary for Acting Governor Fielder that will take him into nearly every county in the State in his fight to capture the Governorship. The meeting of the committee was held in State headquarters here and was attended by Governor Fielder. The committeemen suggested dates for Governor Fielder to invade their respective counties, which were referred to the executive committee of the State committee for final adjustment.

The itinerary already mapped out includes the following: Gloucester county, October 10; Mercer county, October 11. In Mercer county Acting Governor Fielder will be accompanied by Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of this city, who was defeated by Mr. Fielder for the Democratic nomination. October 16, Cumberland county will be toured; Atlantic county, October 18; Somerset county, October 20; Morris county, October 21; Salem, October 22; Hunterdon October 23; Burlington, October 24; Camden, October 25; Bergen, October 27; Essex, October 28, and Passaic county, October 29.

The remaining few days before November 4 will be devoted to Hudson county.

TURK CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

New York, Oct. 8.—Hussen Avin, who for some weeks has had the distinction of being the only Turk among the cosmopolitan population of the Tombs Prison, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields today in extradition proceedings on the complaint of the Ottoman vice consul here. It is charged that last summer Avin, while employed by the Department of Posts and Telegraphs at Constantinople, falsified a number of telegrams and cable dispatches, and appropriated the money paid by the recipients of the bogus messages.

ACCUSED OF WIFE MURDER.

Dallas, Texas, Oct. 8.—The case of Raymond Drouilhet, indicted on a charge of murdering his wife, was called in court today for trial. Mrs. Drouilhet met her death in her home on August 31 last. During a quarrel it is alleged Drouilhet hit his wife over the heart with his fist. She died almost instantly. The husband fled the city and was arrested several days later at Temple.

ACCEPT RESIGNATION.

Donald H. McLean, of Elizabeth, has received word from the State Republican Committee that his resignation as secretary of that body, tendered two weeks ago, had been accepted. Mr. McLean announced his intention of relinquishing the position prior to the primary election, so that the successful candidate could name a secretary of his own choice.

FAMILY HAS TYPHOID.

Flemington, Oct. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. George Brown and two children are suffering from typhoid fever at their home here. Mrs. Brown was stricken about three weeks ago, following an attack of ptomaine poisoning, which, it is thought, resulted from eating ice cream. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will be removed to a Trenton hospital for treatment.

CONVENT DEDICATED.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 8.—Archbishops, bishops and clergy of the Catholic church took part today in the formal dedication here of the Blessed Sacrament Academy and Perpetual Adoration Convent. The ceremonies were the most elaborate of the kind ever seen in this city. Bishop Allen, of Mobile, presided.

SOLAR GRAND HEATER FOR THE FIREPLACE.

The Solar Grand Heater is in a class by itself. It is different. It burns gas and heats a room as well as, and more cheaply than open grate fires of wood or coal without the inconveniences of the latter.

It is perfectly safe. No exposed flame. It is odorless. It is cheerful in appearance.

Solar Grand Heaters are just the thing for living or dining rooms in Fall or Spring. They can be made to save enough on the coal bills to pay for themselves in one season.

Styles to fit any fireplace. We also have other types of heating stoves.

JERSEY'S G. O. P. IS NOT HONEST

Roosevelt Writes Colby That Republican Party is Still Crooked.

MUST OUST BOSSES

The Colonel Flays Franklin Murphy and Politicians of His Type—Wishes Progressive Nominee Success at the Polls.

Newark, Oct. 9.—In a letter which flays the Republican party for its would-be progressivism, Colonel Roosevelt writes Everitt Colby that "until Mr. Franklin Murphy and all the men like him have definitely been retired from leadership, it is a mere absurdity to say that the Republican party of New Jrsey has returned to the cause of honesty or abandoned that system of crooked interrelationship between the bosses and big business."

Axel Beeken, Colby's campaign manager, in handing out Col. Roosevelt's letter made the following statement:

"Colby has put Stokes on the defensive from the very start. The best evidence that Stokes is the corporation candidate is found in the Republican platform, which contains a plank that is virtually an invitation to the corporations to come in and own New Jersey.

"Mr. Stokes claims to be a progressive and appeals to the young men of the State. With Mr. Stokes are associated such other well known Progressives as David Baird, Dory Strong, Dan Voorhees, Telephone Wakelee, etc. It is absolutely ridiculous for Mr. Stokes to say that a party controlled by such men will play fair with the people.

"Just before Colonel Roosevelt sailed for South America he sent a letter to Mr. Colby in which he made clear his position in reference to men like Mr. Stokes who claim to be Roosevelt Progressives. Colonel Roosevelt was fully aware of Mr. Stokes candidacy when he wrote the letter. The Public can draw its own conclusions as to the Colonel's opinion of Stokes and his humbug progressivism."

The letter from Colonel Roosevelt follows:

My dear Mr. Colby:—

I wish I were to be in the United States this fall so that I could take part in your campaign. You represent the sane and highminded radicalism which is real conservatism. I have recently been reading Brooks Adams' book "The Theory of Social Revolutions." In speaking of the great French statesman, Turgot, he quotes Turgot's remarks that "well timed reform alone averts revolution." Turgot was no revolutionist, and the revolution with all its horrors was brought on by the fact that the so-called conservatives refused to follow Turgot in his wise, fair and absolutely indispensable proposals for industrial reform. It seems to me that the Progressive attitude is peculiarly well set forth by you and the Progressives in New Jersey at this time. Every corrupt boss, every big corrupt financial magnate, and above all those who seek to perpetuate the rule of business through a combination of what is crooked in business and crooked in politics recognizes in the Progressive Party, and specifically in you and the New Jersey Progressives, their worst enemies. You are fighting the battle not only of the honest rank and file of both the old parties in your warfare against the machines of both the old parties. You are endeavoring to put the Government of this country abreast of the industrial and social needs of the country.

The effort is being made by your Republican opponents to say that they intend to re-organize the Republican Party of New Jersey. On this statement they appeal for the support of the young men. Until they prove their faith by their works, it is idle for them to make such a plea. The same bosses who wrecked the party a year ago as a sequel to swindling and cheating the rank and file out of their rights, are still in control of the party organization. They are seeking to come back into power by pushing forward men who are encouraged to make promises which the bosses have not the slightest intention of permitting them to keep. The rank and file of the Republicans of New Jersey were the men who were most scandalously and infamously betrayed by the bosses declining to allow the rank and file to name their own condidates or enunciate their own platform. Until the Republican organization has actually purged itself, and until it accepts in good faith every single plank of the Progressive platform, it is idle for them to make any protestations of good intentions. For instance, the Republican machine, after its crushing defeat in the primaries of last year, re-appointed Mr. Franklin Murphy as its titular no less than its de facto boss. Until

MISS ETHEL NEUMAN NOW MRS. JOHN GRAY

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Neuman is a Charming Bride.

Miss Ethel Neuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Neuman, of 323 East Seventh street, and John Gray, of West Fifth street, were married at 7.30 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of about seventy-five relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse, trimmed with point lace and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and bride roses. Miss Clara Neuman, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid and she wore a gown of pink charmeuse, brocaded velvet chiffon with shadow lace and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Blancnard E. Randolph, of this city.

The wedding march was played by Van Eps Brothers, who also furnished music for the reception The bride was given in marriage by her father. The ceremony was performed in the large parlor beneath a bower of flowers. The home was attractively decorated for the affair, the color scheme being green and white. This was very effective in the parlor and dining-room. After the ceremony congratulations were offered and supper was served.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Gray left on a wedding trip, and upon their return they will reside on Watchung avenue, this city. The bride received a large collection of gifts from relatives and friends. Both the bride and bridegroom are well-known here. Mr. Gray is a brother of James Dodd, of West Fifth street. He holds a responsible position with a New York brokerage firm.

GIRL ATHLETES WILL HOLD SALE FOR BASKETBALL FUND

Tomorrow afternoon and evening the Girls' Athletic Association of the North Plainfield High School will hold a cake and candy sale at Saengerbund Hall from 2 o'clock until 12 o'clock. The funds will go for the support of the basketball team throughout the coming season.

The girls will have on sale home-made cake, ice cream, pie, lemonade and candy at reasonable prices. There will be an opportunity for dancing both in the afternoon and evening and good music has been secured. Those who have charge of the various committees are Lucy Douglas, Bertha Keller, Elsie Debele, Dorothy Martin and Marjorie Burtis.

LOCAL DENTAL SOCIETY DINE AT HOMESTEAD

The Plainfield Dental Society began its seventh year last night, with a quarterly meeting and dinner at The Homestead on Washington avenue, the borough. Dr. Charles G. Davis, the president, was in the chair.

It was stated that Drs. W. E. Stelle and Guy Hillman are now busy with school inspection and the Muhlenberg Hospital dental clinic is filled to its capacity, last year's report showing that an average of eight people had received treatment each working day. The program for the coming season includes the names of the leading men in the profession.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR DAVID L. RANDOLPH

The funeral service of David L. Randolph was held at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at his late home in the Babcock building, where he had lived for the past two years. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mr. Randolph was a life-long member, officiated. He read the Scriptures, offered prayer and made a short address. There were many beautiful floral tribues.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall bearers were Dr Frank S. Wells, Thomas Titsworth, Fred Vallentine, Nathan Randolph, Edward TenEyck and James Clawson.

HELD A DANCE.

Many lovers of terpischore attended the dance given Tuesday night in Debele's Hall, by the Plainfield Dancing Association. Several new steps were taught in the class periods, held before the general dancing took place. An augumented orchestra furnished music.

—Fancy fresh vegetables of all kinds will be offered for tomorrow's trade at Neuman Brothers', Watchung avenue and Fifth street.—Adv. ***

BROKAW CONTENDING 2D ARREST ILLEGAL

He Asks for Writ of Review in Action Begun by Mrs. Noble R. Beatty.

Elizabeth, Oct. 9.—Contending that a second arrest on a charge of atrocious assault and battery was illegal when the original charge had been dismissed, John Hartpence, counsel for Clarence B. Brokaw, of North Plainfield, applied for writ of review before Supreme Court Justice Bergen. Brokaw is out on bail on a charge of running down Mrs. Noble R. Beatty, of Hillside road, this city, with his automobile in February of last year.

Should the writ be refused and Brokaw's case go before the grand jury, Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein, who before he became prosecutor was Mrs. Beatty's attorney in a suit against Brokaw, will have to act in a double capacity.

The case has resulted in much trouble for Brokaw since his car hit Mrs. Beatty while she was walking in Westfield avenue. She sued him in the Circuit Court and got a substantial verdict, after which Brokaw declared himself a voluntary insolvent debtor.

The hearing on the alleged insolvency took place before Judge James C. Connolly in the Common Pleas Court. Brokaw was finally declared solvent, and on leaving court after the hearing was arrested on the charge of atrocious assault and battery.

Nott Engines Not Sold Cheaper Than Offered Here Says Woodhouse.

The following self-explanatory letter has been received from Robert C. Woodhouse, agent for the Nott fire engine:

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

In your paper of last evening appears an article under the caption, "Did New York City Buy An Engine Cheaper?"

The writer is reluctantly drawn into a controversy which has waged in your paper off and on for a considerable time. The party who furnished the information for this article has persistently misstated facts regarding the Nott engine but always behind closed doors and not in the presence of the writer. So reluctantly I am drawn into writing to you against my will believing, as you do, that the proper solution of the engine question can be left to the Council with the knowledge that what they do will be right. But in this case certain statements have been made which the public is entitled to under stand.

New York city did purchase two Nott universal engines for $6,500 each, with the privilege of purchasing two more within a limited time at the same figure which they did. But, and here comes the misstatement of facts, the engines are not the same as bid on in Plainfield.

This matter was explained voluntarily by the writer to members of the Council and the Mayor some time ago.

The engines purchased by New York city have a different type of pump costing less to build. Further, they are absolutely without the equipment demanded by Plainfield. Also they were shipped without finish of any kind, only a priming coat of paint. They are without self-starter of any kind.

The difference between these engines and Plainfield's requirements amounts to much more than $1,000. Also the order is for four and not one.

But if Plainfield will purchase two engines identical with New York city I will gladly sign contract for the same price as New York.

It cost me just a railroad ticket to New York city to sell four engines while I have been put to large expense to maintain an engine in service in Plainfield for some six months, affording the city fire protection until such a time as the Council should decide to purchase an engine and obtain delivery. I have demonstrated three times in Plainfield and in each instance far exceeded all requirements of Plainfield's specifications.

The engine which I have bid on in Plainfield is an absolutely new engine built to Plainfield's specifications and has many special features not found in our other engines. Among these I might mention Rushmore self-starter, unusually large storage batteries and electric generator, special Rushmore lights, pumps built of bronze of a special grade, Eastman deluge set of the best ladders, axes, crow bars, extinguishers, etc. In fact it is the most thorough-

"BIG SIX"

Christopher Mathewson, A. B., the college man, conceded to be the greatest pitcher and the greatest all around baseball player the sport has ever known. "Matty," who is a brother-in-law of Dr. P. B. Cregar and is a frequent visitor in Plainfield, celebrated the ending of his thirteenth year with the Giants yesterday by vanquishing the Athletics 3 to 0 in the second game of the world's series and by winning the game himself in the tenth inning when he made the hit that told the story of the contest.

It was the eighth anniversay of his shutting out the Athletics in a similar world's series.

ALWAYS FIRST

Again yesterday, the Daily Press maintained its record for supremacy in the local newspaper field. The crowd of fans in front of the Daily Press building to receive the story of the Giants-Athletic game, play by play, as megaphoned as quickly as received over the wire from Shibe Park, Philadelphia, was ten times the size of any like gathering elsewhere. The fans had learned that the quickest and best reports were received by this paper. Despite the weather conditions, fully 800 fans had assembled to get the news from the Daily Press.

At intervals during the contest, the Daily Press messenger boy distributed thousands of molasses kisses made by the Ritz Company. Souvenirs in the shape of a statuette of "Scoop the Cub Reporter," the cartoon feature of the Daily Press sporting pages, and tickets for Proctor's theatre were also distributed free.

The Daily Press, nothing unusual, was first on the street with the complete box score and a detailed story of the game within nine minutes after the last ball was pitched at Shibe Park. It was nearly a half hour ahead of any other newspaper.

Jack Martin, of the Boston Nationals, writing exclusively for the Daily Press, makes his criticism of yesterday's contest today. It will be found on the sporting pages. Be sure to read it.

SAVINGS BANK TREAS. GRANTED ABSENCE LEAVE

At the regular meeting of the board of managers of the Plainfield Savings Bank, held yesterday, the board granted a leave of absence for six months to James C. Pope, the treasurer, on account of his severe illness. Howard A. Pope is assistant treasurer and secretary, and Harry B. MacDonald was appointed second assistant treasurer and secretary. Mr. MacDonald has been employed by the bank for over twenty years, serving them faithfully.

The bank has now over $1,200,000 deposits with a surplus of $85,000, and is one of the strongest and well-managed savings banks in the State.

JACK MARTIN

Jack Martin, Plainfield's baseball idol, who covers shortstop for the Boston Nationals, is reporting the world's series exclusively for the Plainfield Daily Press. See sporting page.

CANADIAN SOCIETY BOOKLET.

The Canadian Society of New York, of which Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton is president, has just issued its annual booklet, which is attractively printed and bound. Among other things it contains the speeches delivered by distinguished men at the society's last annual dinner and the remarks of the president, the gem of all of the talks. Several other Plainfielders are members of this organization.

SANITORIUM BLDG. CONTRACT AWARDED

New Addition at Bonnie Burn to Cost $65,840 and Heating, Etc., $7,887.

Contracts for the proposed new building at Bonnie Burn Sanitorium and for the heating of the same, were awarded at a meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth, yesterday. The Lincoln Steele Fleming Company, of New York, received the general contract for the construction of the new building, its bid being $65,840.00, while E. G. Woolfolk & Co., of New York, received the contract for heating, etc., bid being $7,887.00.

The Lincoln Steele Fleming Company, which is rated as one of the best concerns in the country, is all ready to begin work and it hopes to have the building completed by April 1 next. At the suggestion of the freeholders, the company will so far as possible employ residents of the county and wherever possible materials will be purchased in the county, thus being a direct benefit to the county.

The freeholders recently approved a bond issue of $125,000, which will cover all construction work, heating, as well as the entire equipment, changes to the main building and the erection of pig pens, chicken-coops and other things needed to carry on the work successfully at the sanitorium.

OLD LIBRARY BLDG. IS NOW RENOVATED

Report of Improvements Made to the Structure Facing Park Avenue.

The building committee of the Plainfield Public Library, of which L. V. F. Randolph is the chairman, has reported that at a cost of $3,035.96 the improvements and repairs in the old library building have been completed.

The appropriation for the improvements was $3,000, and when the work approached completion the committee gave three small orders. One was the change in the position of a radiator, $2.50; painting roof, $25, and extra shelf work for law collection, $27.20.

The improvements consist of transforming the old reading room into a law library and medical library, in particular for the installation of the generous gifts of Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Dr. A. E. M. Purdy and others, and (on the south side) into a children's room, the rebuilding in brick of the Park avenue porch, the erection of a flagpole, the laying of a new quartered oak floor throughout the entire lower story, the removal of the old bay windows at each end of the old reading room, the refinishing of the first story hall and stairs, the installation of ceiling sash and decoration of ceiling in art gallery and the installation of new electric fixtures throughout the principal rooms of the first story. These are the chief items; but the work has included incidental work and a general renovation, staining of floors, painting and repairing toilets, etc.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Frederick Bates, Edward Taft and Harold Prevast, all of Athol, Mass., arrested by detectives in the employ of the Jersey Central Railroad, were arraigned before City Judge DeMeza yesterday, charged with trespassing on railroad property. The men were caught riding on freight cars. The magistrate suspended sentence after warning the prisoners not to repeat the offense.

MISSIONARY TO SPEAK.

Miss Catherine Driscoll, who has spent several years in Africa as a missionary, will address the Christian and Missionary Alliance meeting in the German Reformed church, tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. This will be the last opportunity to hear Miss Driscoll as she will leave for Africa on Wednesday, October 15.

NOT JEM MACE.

Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire stated today that he was misinformed yesterday when he announced that Jem Mace, ex-prizefighter, would speak at the Park Avenue Baptist church. It is his son, Alfred Mace, an evangelist.

SMITH—CRITE.

Miss Mary Love Smith and Ernest Crite, colored, both of this city, were married last night at the home of the groom, 444 West Second street, by Rev. E. W. Roberts, of the Shiloh Baptist church.

—Fancy table peaches, pears and plums, Tokay and Cornish grapes will be offered for tomorrow's trade at Neuman Brothers', Watchung avenue and Fifth street.—Adv. ***

Two-base hit—Shafer. Three-base hit—Collins. Home run—Schang. Stolen bases—Collins, Baker, Oldring, Fletcher, Murray, Cooper. Wild throws—Fletcher, Schang. Hit by pitcher—By Bush, Fletcher. Double steal—Collins and Baker. Struck out—By Tesreau, 4; by Bush, 3. Bases on balls—Off Bush, 4.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 9.—On their home grounds the New York Giants this afternoon lost the third game of the World's Series to the Philadelphia Athletics before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a game of baseball. In fact those who follow sports cannot recall when such a crowd has been in attendance at any paid athletic event in the country, 48,000 being the number whom it was estimated were present today.

Big Jeff Tesreau was chosen by McGraw to do the slab work for the Giants, and during the first two innings he met a veritable Waterloo, but was kept at it gamely and pitched a fine article of ball until the seventh when McGraw took him out of the box. Bush, one of Mack's youngsters, started off for the Athletics, and the Giants found his curves hard to solve. He kept them runless until the fifth inning, when a combination of a base on balls, a stolen base, a wild throw and a hit by McLean scored Murray. The Athletics scored three in the first and two in the second by timely hitting, and two more in the seventh.

Crandall replaced Tesreau in the box in the seventh.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 9.—All the prognostications of the weather man regarding bad weather went awry today, and as a result another enormous crowd of fans were enabled to see the third game of the world's championship baseball started. The threatened rain held off during the early morning hours, and the skies looked so much like clearing that at 11 o'clock the grounds were thrown open for the thousands of waiting enthusiasts who had braved the weather and stood in line for hours. By noon there were few bare spots in the bleachers, and thousands had filed into the seats in the lower covered stand.

When the big canvas "pajamas" were taken off of the infield at 1:30 it was found that the field was in an exceptionally fine condition, being dry and fast, while the outfield was only soggy on the outskirts.

The Athletics were the first to appear on the field, shortly after 1:30, and they were closely followed by the Giants. The crowd let loose at the top of its lungs, cheering both teams with equal gusto, while the players tossed the ball around. The sale of tickets for the lower grandstand and bleachers was stopped at 12:30, the crowd being estimated at ten thousand more than on Tuesday, when the paid admissions were 38,000. This means that probably 48,000 witnessed this afternoon's battle. Fully ten thousand people were turned back at the turnstiles at 12:30, and probably 20,000 more who came later were unable to enter. All gates were closed at 1:30.

Some intimation as to who would pitch for the Athletics was given when Bush and Shawkey were put to warming up by Manager Mack.

FIRST INNING.

Athletics—E. Murphy went out, Fletcher to Merkle; Oldring sent a scorching single to short centre; Collins singled to centre field, advancing Oldring to third base, who slid hard to beat a quick return made by Shafer; Baker singled to left field, scoring Oldring, Collins went to the midway station on the hit; Collins and Baker negotiated a double steal, the former going to third and Baker to second. The play was made easy because McLean dropped one of Tesreau's shoots. McInnis hit at three wide ones; Strunk hit to Fletcher, who threw over Merkle's head and Collins and Baker galloped home for a pair of runs; Strunk traveled to second on the throw; Barry aeroplaned to Fletcher for an easy out. Three out. THREE RUNS.

Giants—Herzog hit to Barry and was thrown out at first base; Doyle banged one through the pitcher's box and was safe at first; Fletcher caught an in-shoot in the midway section and took first, Doyle going to second; Burns lined out to Collins and Doyle was doubled up, Collins to Barry. Three out. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Athletics—Schang fanned out, Bush flied out to Murray; E. Murphy beat out a bunt to short; Oldring singled to right field, Murphy taking third; while Tesreau was winding up, Oldring went to second; Collins singled to deep centre, scoring Murphy and Oldring and the fans loudly yelled to McGraw to take Big Jeff out of the box. Baker forced Collins at second by hitting to Doyle. Three out. TWO RUNS.

Giants—Shafer went out, Collins to McInnis; Murray popped out to Collins; McLean sent a foul fly to Schang for an out. Three out. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Athletics—McInnis flied out to Burns, who caught the sphere after a long chase; Strunk also flied out to Burns; Barry fouled out to McLean. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Merkle sent a high fly to Strunk for the first out; Tesreau received no applause when he stepped up to the plate with his bat; he fanned the breeze three times; Herzog lined out to Collins. Three out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Athletics—Schang struck out; Bush branched out into the role of a swatsmith by sending a single to left field; E. Murphy flied out to Shafer, who caught the ball after a long sprint; Oldring went out, Doyle to Merkle. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Doyle sent a foul fly to Baker for an out; Fletcher, after waiting for three, took a chance on a good one and singled to centre; he tried to stretch the hit to a double and had to slide to reach first again in safety; Burns was fooled on Bush's offerings and fanned; Fletcher brought the fans to their feet by stealing second, Schang making a poor throw; Shafer went out on a grounder to Collins, being thrown out easily at first. Three out. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Athletics—Collins hit a short fly to Murray in right field; the best Baker could do was a weak fly to Fletcher. Following the feats of his teammates McInnis also sent one soaring into the air the ball being captured with ease by Murray. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Murray waited and received a free pass to the initial sack; he later stole to second and when Schang made a wild throw to Collins, sped around to the difficult corner before the ball was returned to the

The first of the series of free entertainments under the auspices of the Plainfield Board of Education will be given this evening at 8 o'clock at the Washington School auditorium, where all of the entertainments will be given. Tonight's program will be furnished by the Apollo Male Quartet, which will present a refined interpretation of "The Songs that Touch the Heart."

This is a lecture song-recital in which the songs that will live forever are effectively sung after an appropriate setting has been given each song through explanatory remarks. The quartet which comes from Newark comprises J. Franklin Thomas, first tenor; Lester A. Palmer, second tenor; Roland F. Randolph, first bass; and A. G. Balcom, second bass. Admission is free to all persons over sixteen years of age. The program will be as follows:

Lead Kindly Light, Buck; The Lost Chord, Sullivan; March of Our Nation, Geibel; Ben Bolt, English-Kneass; Love's Old Sweet Song, Molloy; piano solo, Rondo Capriccioso, Mendelssohn; Silver Threads Among the Gold, Danks; Sweet Genevieve, Tucker; Then You'll Remember Me, Balfe; Knight's Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep, arranged by Buck; Rockin' in the Win', Neidlinger; Kentucky Babe, Gerbel; Old Folks at Home, Foster; Li'l Gal, Parks; What from Vengeance, arranged from the Lucia Sextette, Donizetti.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Members of the Choral Society of the First Presbyterian church at their meeting held Tuesday night, rehearsed for concerts that will be given this winter, under the direction of Thomas Daniel, of New York, who was in charge Tuesday night. About seventy-five members were present and heard H. W. Herrman discuss plans for the fall and winter social activities of the organization.

The Women's Missionary Society of Hope chapel will hold its monthly meeting in the chapel this afternoon. Plans for the winter will be discussed.

Mrs. Lewis Matlack's Sunday-school class of girls at the First Baptist church is planning to give a banquet in the near future.

Miss Nettie Beeching will address the Plainfield Graded Union of Sunday-school Teachers at the Y. W. C. A., Monday afternoon at 3.45 o'clock, on the subject of "Our Book." The public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Waring, of West Seventh street, who have been spending the summer at Camp Sandanona, Upper Saranac, N. Y., have returned home.

HER DEATH CLOSELY FOLLOWS SISTER'S

Miss Hannah Randolph, 80, and Miss Catharine Randolph 84, Die Same Week.

Closely following the death of Miss Catherine F. Randolph, aged 84 years, which occurred Tuesday afternoon at her home, 251 East Front street, following a long illness, her sister, Miss Hannah F. Randolph, aged 80 years, died this morning at her home at Greenbrook, after a lingering illness. The condition of the sisters was such that the death of either one was expected at any time, but the passing away of Miss Catherine Randolph doubtless indirectly hastened the demise of her sister.

It has been arranged to hold a double funeral service at the late residence of Miss Catherine Randolph, on East Front street, tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, and the burial will be in the Friends cemetery.

Miss Hannah F. Randolph was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Randolph, and like her sister was born at the Randolph homestead at Greenbrook, where she lived all her life. She was a member of the First Baptist church, and until ill health prevented attended the services there. She is survived by a number of nephews and nieces among whom are James Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth, Newark.

AT BANKERS' CONVENTION.

Among the Plainfielders attending the Bankers' convention at Boston are J. Herbert Case, vice president; DeWitt Hubbell, secrteary and treasurer, and H. H. Pound, a director, all of the Plainfield Trust Company, and Edward F. Feickert, vice president of the State Trust Company. Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert and other Plainfielders connected with New York banks, are also in attendance.

MRS EMMA GOBLE.

Mrs. Emma Goble, aged 61 years, a resident of this city for several years, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Prentiss, 1335 West Third street, after a lingering illness. She is survived by one son, Frank Kent, of Newton, Sussex county; Mrs. Edward Prentiss, of this city; Mrs. Ida Cook, of Bound Brook, and Mrs. Edna Kelly, of Newark. The notice of funeral will be given later.

JEANETTE AVIS BEERS.

Jeanette Avis Beers, the fifteen-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Beers, of New York, died Tuesday night following an attack of spinal meningitis. The funeral will be held at the residence of the parents, 1741 Amesterdam avenue, New York, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. The burial will probably be at Bridgeport, Conn. Mrs. Beers was formerly Miss Ethel Lorton, of this city.

HOPE COURT PRACTICE.

Captain Jim Doig will put his basketball men through their second practice of the season on the chapel court Saturday night. A full attendance of all candidates is desired at that time.

ROBERT H. DODGE AS A NEW "WHITE HOPE"

He Knocks out "Buck" and Nelse Anderson and Winds up in Police Court.

Robert Fitzsimmons, "Silent" Dan Morgan and other discoverers of "White Hopes," take notice! Although we never knew it, right in our midst we have a battler that would make Al Palzer, Carl Morris, et al., appear like selling-platers. At least, Nelse Anderson and "Buck" Anderson, two linemen believe so, and they ought to know. Read on:

Shortly before noon yesterday "Buck" Anderson became involved in an argument in Park avenue with one Robert H. Dodge, another lineman, living at 413 Central avenue, and it was suggested that they settle their differences in a nearby barn. After shedding of coats, hostilities began, Anderson advanced confidently with fists doubled, when suddenly something struck him that resembled the kick of a mule. He was whirled around and toppled over unconscious. In falling he broke one of his legs above the ankle.

Enraged at seeing his namesake beaten, Nelse Anderson sought to use his pugilistic powers on Dodge, but to his regrets he also was sent to the ground with a thud. He was able to regain his feet after restoratives had been administered. The Anderson with the broken leg was taken home in a cab.

In some way the police learned of the scrap and Nelse Anderson and Dodge were placed under arrest. This morning when brought before City Judge DeMeza, they were held in $100 bail each for a hearing on Wednesday morning, Oct. 15.

IRVING'S CIRCUS RUNS AMUCK IN PLAINFIELD

"Captain" John Irving's traveling animal circus, en route from Lincoln to Fanwood, was held up here today by Patrolman Arthur McGinley, who picked out three horses which in his opinion had been underfed for months. This was indicated by a display of ribs and the fact that they could hardly walk, while one animal was suffering from a sore on the hind leg.

Patrolman McGinley took the whole outfit to police headquarters, where Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, local agent for the S. P. C. A., made a complaint again Irving. He will be given a hearing later in the afternoon.

TO DEDICATE COLLEGE.

The Sisters of Mercy of Mt. St. Mary College have issued invitations to the dedication of the new college building on Sunday, October 19, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, D.D., LL.D., bishop of Trenton, will officiate. There will be an attractive program.

MIANTONOMO TRIBE IS 24 YEARS OLD

To Celebrate Red Men From Nearby Eat Corn and Venison at the Wigwam.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, celebrated its twenty-fourth anniversary last night, in its wigwam on West Front street, the affair being marked by many pleasing features. Representatives from other nearby tribes were present and joined in the festivities of the occasion, the chief feature of which was dancing. At midnight an elaborate supper, including venison and corn, was served under the direction of the good and welfare committee.

The tribe was instituted twenty-four years ago in Coward's Hall, on Park avenue, where the meetings were held for a number of years. Outgrowing the accommodations the tribe removed to the Stillman building on West Front street. Although there are a few charter members living, none were able to be present last night.

The officers of the tribe are: Sachem, George Ivins; senior sagamore, Edward F. Scheimer; junior sagamore, John Flynn; prophet, Michael O'Shea; chief of records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, John T. Green; trustees, Peter Sheridan, Thomas N. Parsons and Daniel Mundy. The committee in charge of the celebration comprised Charles Halliwell, Thomas N. Parsons, Charles Meyer, Jr., Daniel Mundy, John Flynn, Michael O'Shea, Peter Sheridan, Samuel Montross and Charles L. Holstein.

KETTENRING AND WOMAN HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Mrs. Annie Knight, wife of James H. Knight, a linikman, and Walter C. Kettenring, of 64 Race street, the borough, were arrested by Patrolmen Kelly and Flatley at 2.30 o'clock this morning at the home of Mrs. Knight, 1270 Park avenue, on a serious offense. The pair was held in $300 bail each for a hearing before Mayor Percy H. Stewart at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning. City Judge W. G. DeMeza, before whom the prisoners were first arraigned, referred the case to Mr. Stewart because he has represented Mr. Knight in legal matters.

SURPRISE FOR PASTOR.

Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of Grace M. E. church, was given a surprise at the mid-week prayer meeting last night, when the Sunday school orchestra and others to the number of eighty-seven, walked into the room. Mr. Cain while looking for a large attendance on the eve of the inauguration of evangelistic services, had no intimation of the planned surprise. The meeting was made of special interest through testimony, song and selections by the orchestra.

GAVE PARTY IN HONOR OF MISS CULBERTSON

Mrs. George DeWitt Herring, of Crescent avenue, gave a charming party and dance at her home last night in honor of her sister, Miss Josephine Culbertson, the occasion being the birthday of the latter. Forty guests were in attendance, principally from Plainfield and vicinity together with a number from New York and Brooklyn. Dancing was enjoyed until an early hour this morning a brief intermission at midnight permitting the serving of a delightful supper. Decorations of autumn leaves and yellow chrysanthemums added attractiveness to parlor and dining room.

Mrs. Herring was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Laura Culbertson, and the guest of honor.

MAXWELL EVARTS WILL BE BURIED TOMORROW

The funeral of Maxwell Evarts will be held at St. Paul's church, Windsor, Vt., tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Evarts, who was the brother of Mrs. Edward C. Perkins, formerly of this city, and an uncle to Mrs. Archibald Cox, of this city, and Maxwell E. Perkins, of North Plainfield. He was the son of the late United States Senator William M. Evarts, of New York.

Mr. Evarts was born at Windsor, educated at Yale, getting his degree of A. B. in 1884, after which he studied law and entered the legal department of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. He had a country home at Windsor and spent his summers there. He was officially connected with many financial concerns, steamship and railroad companies.

G. O. P. NOT HONEST

Mr. Murphy and all the men like him have definitely been retired from leadership, it is a mere absurdity to say that the Republican Party of New Jersey has returned to the cause of honesty, or abandoned that system of crooked interrelationship between the bosses and big business which resulted in depriving the rank and file of their power over the machine.

In closing, and wishing you the success which you so deserve, I cannot refrain from referring to your great fight of eight years ago, which first drew national attention to New Jersey as a Progressive State, and to the consistentl tireless fight which you have waged, in season and out of season, to keep her so. You are the pioneer Progressive of New Jersey.

Wishing you all success,
Faithfully yours,
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 68 degrees; 11 a. m., 73 degrees; 1 p. m., 72 degrees.

infield; McLean sent a mighty single to left field, scoring Murray with the Giants' first run; Cooper took McLean's place on first base; when the heavy-hitting catcher passed the stands he received an ovation. Merkle disappointed by sending one skyward to right field for an out. E. Murphy making the catch. Cooper reached second when Schang threw a high one over second. Tesreau went out, Baker to McInnis, Cooper advancing to third on the play; Herzog sent one rolling in front of the plate and Schang threw to McInnis for the third out. Three out. ONE RUN.

SIXTH INNING.

Athletics—When the Giants took the field, Wilson was behind the bat in place of McLean. Strunk flied out to Burns; Barry made his first hit of the game by sending a scorcher to right field; Schang hit at the second ball pitched to him but the sphere rolled over the right field foul line; he hit the next one to Wilson for an out; Bush flied out to Doyle. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Doyle was an easy out, McInnis, unassisted; Fletcher took his time and walked; Burns hit into a double play by sending the ball to Bush, who threw to Barry, who touched second, retiring Fletcher. Three out. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Athletics—Murphy singled to right; Oldring forced Murphy at the midway section, Fletcher to Doyle, but beat out the throw to Merkle, landing safe on the initial sack; Collins sent a hard one to right field, scoring Oldring, and raced around to second, beating the throw to the infield by a great slide. The crowd groaned as "Home-Run" Baker came to the bat and waved his bat to a crowd of Philadelphia rooters. He responded to the cheers by sending a single to deep centre, bringing Collins across the plate with the seventh run for the Athletics. "Muggsy" McGraw, scowles decorating his features, yanked "Big Jeff" from the box at this stage of the game, and placed "Old Doc" Crandall on the mound. McInnis flied out to Doyle, who made a quick throw to Merkle, doubling Baker on first. Three out. TWO RUNS.

Giants—Shafer sent a long one in the direction of right field, which was good for a double. Shafer scored when Murray poked out a single to left field; Bush fooled Wilson on three curves, and Murray in attempting to steal second, was thrown out, Schang to Barry. It was evidently a futile attempt to work the hit-and-run game; Merkle waited and received a free pass to the initial sack. The New York fans, despite their gloomy feelings, gave Wiltse a big reception when he took Merkle's place; Crandall went out, Collins to McInnis. Three out. ONE RUN.

EIGHTH INNING.

Athletics—Strunk went out, Crandall to Wiltse; Barry also went out, Crandall to Wiltse, the run column of the leaders was added to when Schang knocked a home-run into the left field bleachers, Bush fanned. Three out. ONE RUN.

Giants—Herzog lined out to Baker; Doyle sent one in McInnis' direction and was thrown out at first. Fletcher placed one in front of the plate and was thrown out at first on a peg by Schang. Three out. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

Athletics—Murphy flied out to Murray; Oldring fouled out to Herzog; Collins flied out to Shafer. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Burns knocked a fly to Murphy for the first out; Shafer walked; Murray forced Shafer at second base, Barry to Collins; Murray perched safely on first. Wilson fouled out to Baker. Three out. NO RUNS.

LINBARGER'S LATEST.

Walter Linbarger is very serious about this matter. He says that the published reports of the Somerset County Democratic Committee meeting to the effect that he had withdrawn from the party's county clerkship nomination in favor of Lewis A. Bellis are incorrect. Linbarger adds that he has no intention of quitting the contest for the nomination. It will be remembered in this connection that when he felt satisfied he was defeated at the primary he came out in a published interview formally announcing his retirement from politics. There appears a chance for him to land the honor of a nomination at least and so he is busy recalling his political oblivion announcements.

"F. M. 2" ENTERTAINED.

Miss Agnes Jackson entertained members of the "F. M.2" Club last night at her home in Somerset street, which was tastefully decorated in green and white, the club colors. Cards and other games were played and dancing was enjoyed. The Misses Mary L. Ayers, Agnes M. Jackson and Alice E. Greenwood, entertained with selections on the piano at various intervals and several talented vocalists rendered popular airs. Miss Helen E. Eaton again proved her ability as a recitationist. Mrs. S. Jackson served refreshments.

MAC ON THE JOB.

James MacNamee, sporting editor of the Plainfield Daily Press, acknowledged by all interested in sports to have the best sporting pages not only in Plainfield but in this section of the State, is comfortably seated at the Polo Grounds reporting the third game in the world's series between the Giants and the Athletics for the benefit of the Plainfield fans. See "What Mac Says" tomorrow.

ENGINE CONTROVERSY

ly equipped engine that could be turned out. In addition its pumping capacity is in considerable excess of the requirements of the specifications.

I cannot go into further details save to say that these facts are known to most of the Council and they, in their good judgment, will act for the best interests of the city.

In conclusion let me say that the Nott engine is built in the United States, it is not unique but is in service in many cities, that the writer is a taxpayer and not an outsider as some of your articles would infer. Also, and you can write this down in large letters, If the contract is awarded to the Nott Fire Engine Company the city of Plainfield will receive the best engine ever built and bear in mind that it is more to my interests to see that the city gets full value, than it is to the city itself.

At the proper time, should occasion require, I shall be glad to give to the public further facts, but as stated before I think that the matter can be safely left in the hands of the Council as a "Committee of the Whole."

I realize that newspapers are innocently misled at times by designing persons and i do not place any blame on the Daily Press in this instance.

The Nott company absolutely guarantee to fulfill Plainfield's specifications to the letter and stand ready to meet competitors at any and all times in competitive test under supervision of the National Board of Underwriters. The "proof of the pudding is in the eating," and the Nott company has furnished the proof.

THEY WILL NOT DECORATE.

A statement furnished the newspapers by local suffragists a few days ago to the effect that certain local business houses and institutions would be decorated on the occasion of the suffragists parade in Newark has proven erroneous. Several of the business houses in question have asked that this paper deny the report. Among others is Neuman Brothers, who say they remain entirely neutral.

ASTOR THEATRE OPENING.

Provided the Mayor grants the necessary license, the Astor Theatre, a moving picture house, will be opened either on Saturday or Monday. The owners say that the proceeds of the first performance will be divided among the Children's Home, the Day Nursery and Muhlenberg Hospital.

—There is no place in town where that next lot of envelopes can be so neatly printed as at the Daily Press office.

—Jacob Gernert, newsdealers, Somerville, sells the Daily Press or will deliver it to your home each day.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Wouldn't You, Mothers?

If you knew that by bringing your boys to Rothberg's for their clothes you could save from $1 to $3 on every suit—

If you knew that every suit we carry equals the best you can buy for style and workmanship—

If you knew that our clothing posseses the most essential feature of boys' clothing—the ability to resist wear—

If you knew these things wouldn't you bring that boy of yours in today for his new clothes?

If every mother who wants to dress her boy in clothes that combine style with durability, and still pay less than she would elsewhere, were to come to Rothberg's, she would never go to any other clothing store.

RED CROSS APPEALS FOR A MEMORIAL BUILDING

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Miss Mabel T. Boardman has made an appeal to Congress on behalf of the American Red Cross for a memorial to the heroic women of the Civil War. Miss Boardman proposes that the memorial be a building which shall remain the property of the U. S. government, but shall be occupied by the Red Cross Society for the transaction of their business.

Miss Boardman points out that in seven and a half years the American Red Cross has expended more than $7,500,000 and raised $1,400,000 for tuberculosis sufferers by the sale of Christmas stamps.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A picture of life in New England will be seen in the production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday night, October 14. This time we will have an opportunity to see the genial and lively life of the children who grow up under the shadow of Puritan influence. They are pretty much like children of other parts of the vast country; at least, as they are shown in the delightful story which Kate Douglas Wiggin fashioned about her sprite Rebecca, who is well called "of Sunnybrook Farm," for her nature is so sunshiny that she fills the whole being with cheer, whether we see her in odd doings on the stage or read of her in the printed pages of Mrs. Wiggin's book. Of course for contrast to the group of merry-hearted children who run riot through the four acts of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" there are the austere aunts of Rebecca, the Misses Miranda and Jane Sawyer and several other brisk New Englanders; but Rebecca's sunshine melts even the hearts of the grim old ladies who take her into their home that there may be one less mouth to feed at her home. A splendid company has been provided for the presentation. The cast includes Violet Mesereau, Jan McAlpine, May McManus, Alice Findley, Mary Diehl, Dorothy Keightly, Madge Orlamond, May Ingalls, Alice Mortlock, John Hogan, James T. Galloway, Fred Huxtable and Harry Buchanen.

The announcement that John Mason is to be presented by Charles Frohman in a new drama, "Indian Summer," by Augustus Thomas, at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night, October 16, is an event that will be one of the most interesting of Plainfield's theatrical season. The success won by Mr. Mason in his association as star of two former plays by Mr. Thomas, "The Witching Hour" and "As a Man Thinks," adds interest to his appearance in "Indian Summer," which promises to prove a worthy successor. The story of "Indian Summer" is woven about the life of an American artist, who, at the highest notch of fame in art, relinquishes his standing and allows himself to be made the principal in a scandal that involves the illegitimacy of a son born to a woman known as Jane Boutell in order that he may shield a prominent clergyman and keep his scandal from besmirching the church. After twenty years voluntary exile in France, during which time he has become only a memory in art, he returns to America where the action of the play begins in a studio he has rented at Southampton, Long Island. Here he has had as model for a portrait the daughter of the clergyman he shielded. He falls in love with the girl and by her is inspired into executing other paintings that win again for him the fame of his younger days. The girl returns his love, breaks her engagement with a young district attorney, who is prosecuting the illegitimate son concerned in the early scandal, held by the police on a charge of murder. The mother of the boy appeals to the artist for aid and, in his response by engaging counsel for the defense, the scandal is uncovered by the district attorney, who denounces the artist in the hope that he can regain the girl. The truth is told by the girl's mother, who relates that her husband, father of the artist's sweetheart, had confessed before he was the father of the illegitimate boy.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To Frederick Dornberger and Pauline Dornberger, his wife, and Augusta Mauersberger.

BY VIRTUE of an order of the Court of Chancery, made on the seventh day of October, 1913, wherein Margaret T. Richards is complainant, and you (and another) are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer or demur to the bill of said complainant on or before the eighth day of December next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by Dennett J. Galbraith and wife to said Margaret T. Richards, bearing date December 19th, 1911, on lands situate in the City of Plainfield, County of Union, and State of New Jersey; and you, said Frederick Dornberger are made a defendant because you claim to be the owner of said lands; and you, said Pauline Dornberger, are made defendant because you claim to have an inchoate right of dower, or some other right, title or interest in said lands; and you, said Augusta Mauersberger, are made defendant because you claim to hold a second mortgage covering said lands.

Dated, October 9th, 1913.

WILSON'S TRIUMPH.

However much they may disagree as to the wisdom of the measure, the press of the land is almost unanimous in paying tribute to the master work of President Wilson in having written upon the Federal statute books a tariff bill in accordance with his own political ideals and promises and without any undue loss of time. The utter absence of friction with the members of his party in Congress and celerity manifested in the passage of the bill are alike remarkable. But to Jerseymen, who have a more intimate knowledge of his executive capacity gained while "the schoolmaster" was our Governor, the whole thing is just what would be expected from the man who leaped into the statesmanship class in one bound.

The English and Continental newspapers are joining in a chorus of approval of what they term President Wilson's Triumph. The comments of the London press are particularly interesting. The London Daily News, for example, says:

"Since Sir Robert Peel abolished the corn laws there has been on free trade achievement at all comparable to this event.

"The truth is that the protectionist cause, which seemed invulnerable, was rotten; it had made the cost of living so intolerable, it had placed the consumer so completely at the mercy of the trusts that directly it was seriously challenged public opinion crushed it. It only needed a man of courage and resolute faith to give the lead ,and in President Wilson America has produced the most courageous as well as the most instructed statesman in the world today.

"Free competition has made British industry so triumphant that the same cause will have the same effect in America whose development has been checked by its self-imposed restrains. Its great shipping industry, for example, which was destroyed by protection cannot fail to revive under free trade."

Says the London Daily Mail: "What the American congress has done in adopting the Underwood bill amounts in reality to the rescue of the national fiscal policy from the grip of privilege." And along the same line of argument against high tariff, the London Daily Telegraph declares:

"What the passing of the new law does is to prove the emptiness of the argument that the tariff policy of a country which sets out to regulate imports in the public interest is sure to get into the hands of private interests and stay there. It only did so in the United States owing to peculiarly unhealthy political conditions which obtained there many years and which lately have shown a tendency to mend.

"It has ceased to do so now as a result of a determined national effort of will. The change will incidentally be very welcome in many departments of British trading enterprises.

"Canada in particular probably will benefit largely by the change, gaining without concession much of what was offered her by the reciprocity scheme."

YOM KIPPUR.

There is no greater and more generally observed holiday in the Jewish calendar than Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the observance of which will begin at sunset Friday and continue, with the orthodox, without interruption until the first stars become visible in the sky on Saturday. It is the tenth day of the month of tishri and ends the period of ten days of penitence which began with Rosh Hashona. No day is holier to the Jews than this, the most rigorously observed of all the days of fasting and penitence.

Beginning with sunset today all orthodox Jews suspend their work and congregate in their temples and synagogues where they will spend day and night, fasting and praying, until sundown tomorrow. From this rigorous fast are exempt only the sick, children of tender age and very old persons who would break down under the long fast. Before entering upon the fast a bountiful repast is partaken of. After this is disposed of all repair to the synagogue for the "Hol Nidre" service, which is the most beautiful and impressive in the Jewish ritual. The ultra orthodox remain in the synagogue through the night and the following day, while the less strict observers and those who by age or sickness are exempt from fasting return to their homes, where they remain quietly until the day of fasting is ended. One of the features of Yom Kippur is its general observance by Jews all over the world. Even the so-called reform Jews observe the day, although, as a rule, they do not abstain from food and do not spend the whole night and day in their houses of worship.

According to the Talmud, each man's conduct is judged and his destiny decided on New Year's Day, and the decree of Heaven is sealed on the Day of Atonement. The ten penitential days, beginning with Rosh Hashona and ending with Yom Kippur, are therefore devoted by orthodox Jews to prayer and to settling their accounts with one another, for is the ancient belief that all sins committed by Israel against the Divine commands are forgiven on the Day of Atonement, but the wrongs committed by man against man do not receive Divine forgiveness unless attempts have been made to right these wrongs.

As usual, the Daily Press furnished the first news as the game progressed and also got its sporting extra out on the street an easy first. The size of the crowd gathered to get the story from the ball field told the tale—the fans, like most people, seem to appreciate the "live wire" policy of this newspaper.

What do you care about such trifles as the tariff, currency bill, Mexican rebellion and the crops when a World's series is on?

UNION PETIT JURY NOT TO MEET COLUMBUS DAY

Elizabeth, Oct. 9.—Because Monday will be Columbus Day, and because there is doubt in the court's mind as to whether it is really a legal holiday, there will be no session of the petit jury on that day. Judge Vail yesterday communicated with Sheriff Wright and asked him to summon the jurors for next Tuesday.

The attorney-general has given an opinion that Columbus Day is not a legal holiday.

HUGHES' WIFE CAN'T MAKE HIM TALK ON SUFFRAGE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Senator William Hughes was asked yesterday if he had given an answer as yet to the suffragists who are trying to force him to say whether he is for or against the proposed amendment to the Constitution now pending in the Senate, which will give women the right to vote in national elections.

"I haven't seen any of the New Jersey suffragists," said Senator Hughes, "except my wife, and she hasn't succeeded in making me commit myself yet. If she can't do it I doubt if it's worth while for the others to try."

INSURANCE RATES GREATLY REDUCED

First Fruits of Ramsay Law Shown in Cut on Policies for Dwellings & Furniture.

There were filed with the State Banking and Insurance Commissioner at Trenton Saturday the first fixed rates compiled by the insurance expert engaged for the purpose, under the new Ramsay anti-discrimination insurance law passed by the last Legislature.

The rates thus far compiled are for dwelling houses of one or two families and household furnishings. They show a general reduction in practically every city in the State and fully justify the claim made by those who were urging the passage of the bill.

Senator W. E. Ramsay, the father of the measure is naturally well pleased with the first results of the law. It is apparent that it will be of far-reaching benefit to the great mass of citizens, particularly the owners of modest homes.

Equally well pleased is Assemblyman Burton, who did excellent work in getting the bill through the House.

Every person whose policy is renewed hereafter in this city will find that there is a deduction of 24½ per cent. on all three years policies on frame buildings occupied by not more than two families, where no specific rate has been applied. On brick dwellings under the same conditions, the reduction in this city is 17½ per cent.

The law under which the new rates are fixed is not retroactive, consequently these reductions will apply only to policies as they are renewed.

The greatest reduction is in the city of Trenton, where the insurance companies have charged higher rates than in any part of the State. In that city rates on dwellings and their contents will be decreased from forty-five to fifty-one per cent. In Newark the decrease is about twenty per cent., and in other parts of the State from fifteen to twenty per cent.

The new law went into effect July 4 and prevents insurance companies from favoring one person above another, when the physical hazard of their risk is essentially the same. Under the old system the man with the big pull could secure his insurance cheaper than the man without the pull, even though the two risks were of the same sort.

The Ramsay law seeks to prevent discrimination of this kind and forces all insurance companies to treat everyone alike.

Under the law the companies were given three months in which to file with the State commissioner their rates, schedules and all information relative to their causes for charge on each risk in the State. Should anyone feel that he is being discriminated against he may appeal to the commissioner at the State House who will cause all parties to appear before him for an investigation.

Westfield.

A special meeting of the Council was held Tuesday night when protests of citizens against the closing of the office of the Public Service Corporation in this town were considered. A notice has been posted in the window of that office that it will be closed October 15 and business transacted at the Elizabeth office. The patrons in town asked the Council to take the matter up with the company.

Steps are being taken to organize a local branch of the Knights of Columbus.

The Council has decided to take out $8,000 insurance to cover the employes of the town engineer's office and the road department.

BISHOP TALBOT'S BIRTHDAY.

The Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Bethlehem, Pa., was born in Fayette, Mo. Oct. 9, 1848. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1873 and at the General Theological Seminary three years later. He was ordained priest in the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, the same year and shortly afterward was made rector of a church in Macon, Mo. This post he held until his election to the episcopate. He opened a parish school in Macon in 1875, which afterward became St. James' Military Academy, a diocesan school for boys. In 1876 he was consecrated first missionary bishop of Wyoming and Idaho. In 1898 he was transferred to the diocese of Central Pennsylvania, which later became the diocese of Bethlehem.

REVOKES AUTO LICENSES.

Trenton, Oct. 9.—The touring licenses of Clifford West, of Branford, Conn., have been revoked by Commissioner Lippincott, of the department of motor vehicles. West was convicted of reckless driving in Connecticut and fined. His license was revoked in that State, and in accordance with the reciprocity regulations, hereafter he will be denied a tourist's privileges in this State. The commissioner has also revoked the license of George Lapp, of Jersey City, who was recently sentenced by Judge Klenert to six months in the Passaic county jail. Lapp was convicted of stealing a $6,000 car from the Homestead Hotel at Delawanna. The car was owned by William Cook, of Newark.

—Every day is "Election Day" with the shoppers of this city. Every day some store receives a vote of confidence, presaging continued support, from the housewives. The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. For such a store brings ACTUAL RELIEF to the people from the oppression of high prices, as is often true in politics.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 17.

SUPPOSE you were to buttonhole every man you meet and ask him if he wants to rent that house of yours.

You'd have an awful job, wouldn't you?

And some of the men you'd stop would resent the action because they did not happen to be at all interested in you or your proposition.

But suppose you were to insert a little WANT AD. in the "FOR RENT" column. You'd reach more people in twenty-four hours than you could hope to buttonhole in twenty-four days, wouldn't you?

And the people you would reach would be interested in renting a house, or they wouldn't be reading your ad.

Isn't that so?

The WANT AD. columns are used as a great catalog by newspaper readers.

They refer to that catalog—which is always up-to-the-minute—whenever they want anything—anything from domestic service to a completely furnished home, anything from a second-hand sewing machine to a Business Opportunity involving the investment of thousands of dollars.

You can sell what you do not need or buy what you do need through a WANT AD.

Try it some time.

CIRCUS IN PHOTO-PLAYS.

The famous pictures of the Hagenback-Wallace Circus will be the big feature at The Plainfield Theatre, today, tomorrow and Saturday. There will be five reels in which a complete circus will be shown without the attending confusion of peanut and pop-corn men. Those who have seen these pictures pronounce them to be the best of the kind ever produced, and they should attract capacity audiences for the rest of the week.

JACK MARTIN GIVES MATTY AND WILTSE CREDIT FOR TRIUMPH

By JACK MARTIN
(Of the BOSTON NATIONALS)

Two twentieth century gladiators battling with bullets of horsehide against an offense of wooden clubs, kept twenty-eight thousands fanatics of the thirty-second degree variety constantly on their mettle at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon. Lowering skies and spasmodic intervals of rain kept the baseball populace in a dubious mood, but when the turnstiles of the Quakertown park were thrown open at 12:30 o'clock fans swarmed into the grounds yelling with glee for they knew the game of games was on again in Philadelphia. Office boys who know that it is well nigh impossible to make grandmothers die more than once in a single week made one grand rush to the park as soon as it was opened to witness the opening struggle on the Quakertown sand lot.

Unlike the contest in New York the day previous, when a quartet of Phillie stars monopolized the center of the spotlight, one name tells the complete story of the second contest and that is none other than the heralded John Hancock of Christy Mathewson. The "Twentieth Century Limited," of the ball diamond, with his wonderfull steel nerve and sharpshooters' aim hurled the spheriods over the platter to the demon clouters of the opposition, and although many and intricate were the situations in which he found himself, he was always there with his wonderful mastery in the pinches. To say he was invincible, would class him as being effective, but the fact that he was occupying the pitchers' pulpit with a wrecked and shattered machine to support him in the field made his performance still more wonderful. Matty imposed his usual confidence in his fellow players but when the crisis came it was the "Big Six" who wielded the wagon tongue that sent the winning tally simmering across the rain soaked platter.

Beaten though he was, Plank was great in defeat and was by no means lost to view in the pace set by the peerless one. It was a clash between two great masters of the pitchers' craft and a pair of the rarest survivors of the series staged between these same combatants eight years ago. Eddie Plank was Titanic in defeat but gradually the strain told on him and the peer of American League hurlers, who has passed his fortieth milestone, began to lose his cunning, until for a moment he lost his grip on the situation and Mathewson had uncorked a spurt that meant victory for the New Yorkers.

Baker again had an opportunity to mount to the pinnacle of fame in the first stanza of yesterday's set to when he came to bat with Murphy and Oldring on third and second respectively. He was facing a different proposition this trip, however, and against the wiley and cunning of old Christie he took three healthy swings much to the amusement and disappointment of a breathless crowd of fans. A hit or outfield fly at this crucial interval would have meant victory and the Giants would have been pushed further into the background of the championship race. Unlike the first contest, McGraw's men got their share of the breaks yesterday and the first instance of this came in the very first round of play and from then on the pitchers' battle was the central attraction for the bleacherites and grandstand seat occupants, with honors about even until the ninth inning and then Giant chances took a loop downward as Matty suddenly lost control of the situation and the Athletics began their famous rapid fire work. A hit by Strunk and an error by Doyle in a quick play trying to retire Barry at first, put Matty in a deep trench but he came back with laurels flying and took a new grip on the whole affair. Once more he began to loll the pellet over the home rubber with accuracy and in a way that puzzled the anxious Philadelphians.

The peerless one was aided in the resucitation work in the ninth by a lightning stop pulled off by George Wiltse and the latter's lightning throw to McLean retiring Strunk at the home station shutting off a possible run and defeat. I consider Strunk one of the fastest men in the American League and "Hooks" Wiltse had to send his throw at a speedy clip to head off the wild man dashing for the scoring station with victory in his grasp. With one out Connie Mack sent Plank to the bat, but I think this was one time that the American League manager erred. With but one down a pinch hitter, landing on the ball for a long fly would have spilled the Gothamites' beans and there would be no further use for a twirler after that. I figure that Mack either didn't have a man warmed up to meet the crisis or that he did not want to take a chance on one of his youngsters.

Much of the credit of yesterday's triumph can be handed to "Big Six," the man who is serving his thirteenth year in the big show, and then we will split up the rest of the odds with McLean, whose single put the Giants in the running. Here's where "Muggsy" McGraw used his rare baseball discretion in yanking McLean out and sending the fleet Grant in to circle the sacks. Now to old "Hooks" Wiltse who has been the subject of much fanning both during the past season on the diamond and among the members of the hot stove league. Many a fan has wondered and asked why the veteran heaver was being retained by McGraw and the query was answered with an added flourish yesterday afternoon. "Hooks" laid down a beautiful sacrifice shifting Grant to the center of the diamond, and then the hero of the second contest of the 1913 flag fight, came through with a death dealing slap to the center field region.

It was the Giants first victory in the 1913 series and may be the means of paving the way to a world's title. We have to hand George Wiltse a portion of the applause, however, and in games to come his work will be watched with enthusiasm rather than with a view to adverse criticism as heretofore.

The New York victory was clean-cut, in other words, was won by means of the "old army" game, known to every veteran of the diamond sport.

In the third inning of the Giants-Athletic game yesterday Snodgrass hit safely for two bags, but made only one, owing to his troublesome "charley horse." Matty sent him to third with a two bagger. He hobbled so painfully that McGraw put Wiltse in to run for him, despite Snodgrass' vigorous protest. "Home Run" Baker is seen set to take the throw.

"MAC" SAYS

"Big Six," the aged gentleman of baseball, who is referred to as a "has-been" by many critics, was one of the youngest men on the diamond yesterday as far as baseball is concerned.

McGraw's men again take the vantage through the cunning of the veteran and with the wold's series a tie Mack must use a young pitcher if rain holds off today.

Fans who gathered around the ticker yesterday wanted to know what had become of Chief Meyers. The big Indian generally runs as a receiver to Matty but broke his thumb in practice yesterday and will be out for the rest of the series.

With Snodgrass, Merkle and Meyers on the hospital list, it is pretty near time for McGraw to call in some of his help from the bush leagues.

Good old "Hooks" Wiltse proved that he was much better as a first baseman than as a hurler yesterday. It is doubtful if Merkle or Snodgrass could have handled some of the shoots he got on the first corner.

The one possessing the crooked tabernacle cut off two runs in the ninth at the plate by brilliant pickups and lightning throws to McLean.

Burns also pulled a sensational stab in the seventh and this was the fielding marvel of the day.

It all happened in the extra period, Long Larry McLean whacked out a single, Grant ran for him and Matty brings him in with a single.

The ninth session was a trying one for the big fellow. Strunk was on second and Barry on third with none out, through a single and Doyle's error. A run, too, would have ended the game then and there, it being the Athletics' last regular turn at the bat. Lapp and Plank hit grounders to George Wiltse, and two runners were caught between third and home plate. Murphy's best was a bounder to Matty and the latter tossed him out at first.

Matty stated after the game that Umpire Connolly's honest ruling won the game. We can no longer class Matty as a ball player.

"My boy, you will surely make your mark in baseball," was the prophecy made by the Rev. D. R. Kiernan concerning Christy Mathewson after "Matty" made his first appearance on a diamond just fifteen years ago yesterday. Father Kiernan, now in charge of the parish at Ramseyville, N. Y., was then the "Home-Run" Baker of the Goshen team. Mathewson pitched for the Honesdale team and struck out the star batter three times.

Connie Mack was very reticent after the game yesterday. He had nothing to say about the defeat handed the Athletics by the Giants. "I never comment on baseball games, and more especially games of the world's series," said Mr. Mack. "We lost, and that is all there is to it. The pitching of both Mathewson and Plank was wonderful. They are great masters of the game." When asked why it was he did not send a pinch hitter to bat in place of Plank in the ninth inning when the Athletics had men on third and second and but one down, Connie merely replied: "I had reasons, of course, but I do not care to give them; let others criticise, that is their privilege; we lost the game and that is all there is to say. I expect the Athletics to win the series. While we would very much like to have had yesterday's game the defeat does not discourage us and we are out to win today and a couple of more games as well."

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—In the event of a world's series game being postponed by rain, would the teams remain in the same town until the contest was played or would they finish the regular schedule?—G. Y.

Answer—In the event of rain the teams would remain in the town where the rain occurred until the struggle was decided.

Sporting Editor:

Query—A says it is a new feature to have four umpires in a world's series. B says it is not. Who is correct?—S. E.

Answer—There is nothing new about this feature. B is correct.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are there any changes in the boys' basketball rules for 1913? N. J.

Answer—Yes; several. The rules this year require those jumping for the ball in centre to face each other when the ball is tossed up and in the direction of the basket in which they are shooting; a player is not allowed to catch the ball when it is thrown up by the referee this year but must hit it, or try to do so, and a player cannot touch the opponent's person or ball when the opponent is giving the ball out and trying to throw it in.

Query—Who is manager of the Hope Chapel basketball team? Has he any open dates?—H. L.

LOCAL WOMAN ENTERS FOR TITLE TOURNEY

Seventy-four Will Tee Off in Championship Match on Wilmington Links.

The names of seventy-four women golfers, sixty-four from various parts of the United States, six from Canada, three from England and one from Ireland, appear in the entry list of the women's national championship tournament which was announced last night by John Reid, Jr., secretary of the United States Golf Association.

Few fields have ever equalled this one in quality. While Great Britain had two famous players in the recent open championship, that nation was not represented by its title holders. In the tournament which begins next Monday at Wilmington, however, Great Britain will be represented by its woman champion, Miss Muriel Dodd, who recently added the Canadian title to her list, and Miss Gladys Ravenscroft, of Bromborough, the title holder of last year. Supplementing these will be Miss Mabel Harrison, champion of Ireland, and Miss J. S. Sponce, of Moreton.

The metropolitan entry is unusually good, for there will be nineteen representatives, including Miss Marion Hollins, the champion, and Miss Lillian B. Hyde, title holder on two occasions.

There are six New England representatives the most prominent of whom is Miss Margaret Curtis, of Essex county, United States champion and holder of the title twice before. There are twenty-nine entries from Pennsylvania and Delaware, eight from the West and two from the South.

From Jersey are to be noted Miss Bertha Stratton, of Cranford; Miss Grace Farrelly, Mrs. Lawrence Swift, Mrs. Frank Enos, of Englewood; Mrs. M. B. Rae, of Montclair; Mrs. C. L. Waterhouse, of Hackensack, and Mrs. H. R. Stockton, of Plainfield, and Miss Prudence Jamieson, of Spring Lake.

TRYING TO FORM BASKETBALL LEAGUE IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Manager Van Mater is trying to arrange a county basketball league. Somerville has already refused to enter any such organization and he still has to hear from Bound Brook and Bernardsville.

If the last two teams named agree to a league, one will be formed and the winning team will claim the Somerset county championship over the head of the Somerville team.

SUMMIT HIGH SCHOOL WILL NOT PLAY BOROUGH FIVE

Manager Van Mater, of the basketball team of the North Plainfield High School, is fast arranging games and his schedule is now nearing completion.

Summit High School, one of the High School's oldest rivals, will not appear on the schedule this season because they now have a full list of games. The city league games will be arranged in the near future.

JACK MARTIN WILL ANSWER QUESTIONS

Baseball Information Bureau at the Daily Press During the Series.

Local fans interested in the world's series fight now being waged in New York and Philadelphia have been confronted with numerous puzzling situations during the first pair of games and many are unable to fathom the plays to their own satisfaction. Jack Martin, who is at the helm of the Daily Press sporting department this week, has consented to open an information bureau in the Daily Press office and answer all questions sent in by the fans.

If you do not understand any phase or department of the sport send in your question and it will be answered in detail in these columns. Martin is an authority on the pastime and has run across all of the situations being brought to the surface in the big series to decide the world's title. Your question will be given careful consideration and the answer will clear up any haze that may envelope you.

N. P. H. S. MANAGER NOW ISSUING BALL CHALLENGES

Manager Beckman and Captain Smalley, of the N. P. H. S. baseball team, put their heads together yesterday and made out a list of the teams to be played next season.

Among those whom the manager has already challenged are Montclair, New Brunswick, Summit, Bernardsville, Westfield, Roselle and Somerville. Captain Smalley expects to put out one of the best teams the High School has ever had.

MONMOUTH POULTRY EXHIBIT AT ASBURY PARK NOV. 24-29

Asbury Park, Oct. 9.—The winter show of the Monmouth Poultry Club will be held in the Casino, on the Boardwalk at Asbury Park, November 24 to 29.

The judges are: Robert Seaman, F. V. L. Turner, Fred Huyler, A. B. Dalby, John C. Kremer, Jacob Applegate, James Ingram, W. W. Kennedy, William B. Patterson.

In conjunction with the show there will be an educational congress under the direction of Dr. Robert Dickson, a veterinarian, of Monmouth county. Addresses and instruction in poultry and pet stock care and breeding will be given. The annual banquet will be held the evening of November 25. Governor Fielder will open the show and preside at the banquet. Other speakers will be former Judge Robert Carey, George E. Cutley, both of Jersey City, and former Governor Edward C. Stokes, of Trenton. There also will be speeches from the judges and members of the club.

Special prizes of cups, cut glass and other trophies and money have been donated by people of Monmouth county. The judging will take place November 25 and will be completed before the banquet in the evening. Premium lists can be secured by mailing a postal card to Frank H. Hodges, secretary, Red Bank.

TOLD TO PROBE ALLEGED NEGLECT OF OFFICIALS

Freehold, Oct. 9.—The grand jury for the October term of court, sworn in before Justice Willard P. Voorhees here yesterday, were told to investigate reports that Long Branch officials had neglected to take steps to stop violations of the excise law on the part of wholesale liquor dealers after their attention had been called to the matter. If found that the officials had been negligent as to their duty in this regard, the jurymen were told it is their duty to return indictments against such negligent officials.

DAVID GRAHAM BAIRD, CHESS EXPERT, EXPIRES

Elizabeth, Oct. 9.—David Graham Baird, aged fifty-eight years, died yesterday at his home, 233 West Grand street, after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services will be private.

Mr. Baird was known all over the United States as a chess expert and at one time was a champion chess player of New York State. He played in Europe and participated in a chess tourney in Vienna.

Mr. Baird was born in New York and practiced law in that city until recently. He moved to this city seven years ago. A widow and six children survive him.

KIN ATTACK WILL OF MAN WHO LEFT ESTATE TO GIRL

Point Pleasant, Oct. 9.—Relatives of Benjamin H. Jones, who died here September 16, have begun a contest of his will. A caveat has been filed at Toms River by Mrs. Daisy V. Jones, of Wilmington, Del., who claims to be the widow, and George Greenly, of Philadelphia, a half brother.

Mr. Jones, who was a railroad employe of Newark, died here September [illegible], leaving his estate, consisting of a few hundred dollars, to Miss Leona Taylor, to whom he was engaged. Six half brothers and three half sisters are among the contestants. It is said that Mrs. Jones was divorced. The will was made two days prior to the man's death.

Among the claimants is Wiley S. Walker, a half brother, of Newark. Jonathan R. Taylor, father of the sole beneficiary, who was designated as executor in the will, has asked for the probate.

COATS for STYLE and COMFORT

7762

IF we follow the will-o'-the-wisp fashion this season from foreign style centers coats and wraps will concern us as much for their cut and character as for their protection from winter cold. Those intended for general utility combine both qualities, are noticeably plain in outline, but all the smarter on this account when made of the latest fabrics. Woolen cloakings are finer and softer than ever. The choice is bewildering when one comes to buy material or a ready-made garment. There are wide wall diagonals, boucles and wool velours among the less expensive grades, English and Scotch mixtures, heavy bengalines, wool jacquards and Bedford cords still higher in price and a large assortment of the pile fabrics imitating fur, whose popularity has been determined by leading couturiers of Paris. Scarcely any cloaking materials are woven less than fifty or fifty-four inches wide nowadays. With designs showing extremely narrow width in the skirt it is often possible to cut the body portion from one length of material, to which need be added only the extra length for sleeves. At most two breadths of cloaking will suffice for any new model.

Straight Lines and Narrow Effects

Wool velour in black and colors is one of several high class fabrics chosen for comfort and effect. An especially attractive coat for college and school girls is the model shown in the center of the page (7829). It is a black ribbed velour with a thread of dark red woven between the ribs and has set-in sleeves and a turn-over velvet collar of the new shade of Indian red so becoming to youthful faces. The deep belt is placed to give a long waisted effect and is virtually the feature which makes this coat different from some cuts of the past. Taupe corduroy, wide wall, black corded velour, plain plush and chinchilla cloakings are very popular in advanced importations and domestic fac-similes of this garment. As three yards of 54 inch material with a nap is sufficient to cut the pattern, one can make a coat like it of the finest materials at comparatively little outlay.

Corduroy coats fashioned by Paris designers, who introduced colors not often seen in outer garments, were worn by style leaders at the French races. Cheruit made for it one model in wine color, Beer showed a tailored corduroy in rich brown, while another model on the Russian blouse style with a very low belt with a small back piece of fur—a Chaumel model—was a particular favorite at Deauville.

So we see there are many unusual attractions in the line of practical coats as well as in the extravagant variety of evening wraps and dressy afternoon mantles that one is sure to want for their modish beauty.

Manufacturers have taken very kindly to the idea of winter coats of many styles made of imitation fur fabrics. Whereas formerly comparatively few of this type of outer garments were seen, and then plainly because of their cheapness, nowadays fashion makers and women of taste and means are taking them up because they add so much to a smart wardrobe.

Style In Three-quarter Coats

An illustration of the style, value and the good looks of a model which will be very popular this season in three-quarter length coats is the one at the bottom of this page (7983). I have selected it from a group of the same general character because of its simple lines and its suggestion for the woman who may be in doubt as to what to buy that she can successfully make at home. The fur fabrics scarcely show seams and are not too difficult to undertake. In the model imitation civet fur is used as the trimming, and there is a cord ornament with drop ends as a fastening on one side. Notice the effective placing of three buttons on the side. Ornamental buttons and those for use also as fasteners are very fashionable when made of fur.

Pattern for either coat may be had in all sizes for 15 cents.

TEA DANCE FROCK of TANGO SATIN

TO keep abreast of daytime fashions in dresses as Paris designers have ordered for the coming winter one must provide for several silk costumes. True it is that the elaborate evening gowns of silks and chiffons of a few seasons ago are only dressy enough nowadays for afternoon affairs. A favorite model spoken of as an "afternoon bridge frock" is of burgundy satin charmeuse with a cream Chantilly lace bodice and overdress arranged like the skirt of a Russian coat. Callot has sent to New York an afternoon gown of olive green satin having a pointed side plaited overdress of tango satin, showing two of the newest colors for the season.

Tango is the name of a pinkish mahogany shade which promises to be the popular color novelty in materials, millinery and trimmings. Judiciously used, it is as effective and becoming as the fashionable tobacco browns. In crepe de chine, silk broches and in velvet, the new color dominates the silk counters in many New York shops.

For a type of the new afternoon gown that will be correct for all formal occasions, such as tea, dances, luncheons, card parties, etc., the smart little coat dress (blouse 6947—skirt 7762) is one of the best. The skirt is made of beige taffeta, which, by the way, Paris says is returning to favor. It is narrow at the foot and full below the hip, with soft plaits folded in at the belt. The Russian hint in the peplum blouse is one worth copying and is made in soft tango satin, with ecru lace for the neck and inserted V. A crush girdle of satin matching the blouse and a rhinestone buckle are the finishing touches. Each pattern 15c.

This little coat dress could be made up in other combinations for about $10.

Emb. 14141. Hand Embroidered Sashes

EACH new season brings out some distinct novelties that are likely to help the home sewer in making or remodeling her clothes as much as the designer who has invented them for expensive models. This fall it is the vest and the sash which hold sway. When suits and dresses are of sombre colors you may brighten them up in a hundred ways with touches of ribbon, gay little buttons and dangles that cost no more than the effort to make them. Two charming sashes are shown with embroidered ends made from patterns which can be applied to any suitable material (Emb. 14141). These are worked in dull red, green and tan silks on black ribbon. 10c.

Practical Ideas and Aids For the Housewife

IF one is in doubt as to which is the right side of a piece of serge remember this advice: Whenever there are diagonal lines in the weave or in the pattern, as in some suitings, these lines will run from the upper right hand corner to the lower left corner on the right side of the fabric.

These diagonal lines may be seen on many other materials, such as merino and cashmere, though less easily noticed than on most other diagonal weaves.

The Kitchen Floor

Kitchen floors that are not covered become worn and splintered often with much scrubbing. Rather than suffer risk getting splinters from them have the floor planed smooth and the cracks filled with a wood filler. Then rub crude oil over it repeatedly at intervals. The oil hardens, and stains do not readily sink into the wood. Never wax or varnish a floor that must be washed with water. Water will quickly discolor polished hardwood floors.

TABLE covers, runners and pillow tops of craftsman's canvas may be quickly decorated with a design of conventional roses such as that herewith shown. The pattern has four transfers in sizes nine by nine inches. If a dainty effect is liked unbleached muslin will lend itself to this decoration in two shades of old blue or rose. Outline stitch or embroidery in rope silk may be used. Embroidery pattern 14450 requires six skeins of No. 16 working cotton or eight of rope silk for each corner.

Emb. 14450—Rose design for runner to embroider or [illegible]

Stencil designs for similar uses are appropriate for simple decorative art pieces. The design suggested for embroidery may easily be stenciled if preferred. Colors from artists' tubes of paint made thin with turpentine may be applied with a stiff bristle brush to the cut-out stencil pattern. Embroidery on the high lights adds an effective finish. Pattern 10c.

Minced Ham Toast

Chop a quarter of a pound of cooked ham, using small pieces if you have them left over; add a tablespoonful of anchovy paste, a dash of paprika, white pepper and ground mace. Mix a beaten egg with a quarter of a cupful of milk and heat it in a buttered pan, adding the ham. Serve on thin slices of toast.

Patterns for designs shown on this page can be obtained from any agency for the LADIES' HOME JOURNAL PATTERNS.

FRANCES MARSHALL

Don't Waste Energy.

There was a time, once long ago, when the railroads had their locomotives painted in brilliant colors—green and red and yellow—and decorated with brass trimmings. Between runs and between stops, too, the engineers were always busy polishing their engines with bits of waste. They took much pride in keeping their engines shining and bright and clean, so that their brass and their gay colors would always sparkle.

One day a railroad genius saw an engineer working away on the engine he was driving. He was struck with the fact that the engineer was more interested in keeping his engine bright than he was in running it steadily and straight.

The genius returned to his office—he was a high official in the road—and gave orders that thereafter his road should paint all its engines black and that the amount of brass trimming should be reduced to a minimum.

At first the engineers were angry. They liked their colored engines and they hated to give them up. But gradually they realized that they could put in their time to better advantage than in cleaning a dirt-catching engine. And other roads copied the example of the first one to change the fashion and gradually all engines were made black. Today the engine driver gives his whole thought, if he is a good driver, to the task before him—that of getting his engine to a given point safely at a given time.

The Housewife's Lesson.

The housewife is like the engine driver. She has no more right to waste time polishing than the engine driver had. Her day is limited. If she spends hours scouring zinc and copper sinks, blacking stoves, polishing boilers, cleaning white woodwork, and doing numerous other sorts of really unnecessary work, she is using her strength in the wrong way, and making herself unfit to meet emergencies when they come. As the engine driver might be too busy cleaning a bit of red paint to notice a changed signal, so the housewife who spends too much time in keeping her house spotless will not have strength left to meet the real tests of her ability.

It is impossible, of course, to give the inside and the outside of the house a good coat of black enamel or paint that will not need cleaning and scouring. But the house can be adjusted to the housewife's strength, and she can leave enough undone so that she will have energy left for something beside cleaning. It is her place to make her home a center of strength and energy for those who live in it—not to make it a shining, spotless realm dominated over by a tired and overworked mistress.

Some Cookery Suggestions

OYSTER NOVELTIES.

OYSTERS for the autumn luncheon or tea make light and delicious foods. They may be prepared in many different ways, a few of which are suggested here:

Casserole of Oysters.—Take small, square slices of bread, toast them and butter thickly on one side. Put the buttered side down into a casserole. Cover with oysters, dot with butter, sprinkle with red pepper and salt and bake in a quick oven until the edges of the oysters curl. Serve with quarters of lemon.

Piquant Foods.

Curried Oysters.—Take a tablespoonful of butter, place in a saucepan and when it is melted stir in one tablespoonful of flour and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Add one cupful of strained oyster liquor and when the sauce is cooked add one dozen oysters and season with salt. Cook about three minutes after the oysters are added. Serve with celery and rashers of bacon.

Virginia Fried Oysters.—Take two dozen large, plump oysters and dry them on a cloth. Stir together four tablespoonfuls of sifted flour, one tablespoonful of olive oil, a saltspoonful of salt, the beaten whites of two eggs and enough warm water to make a batter. Dust each oyster with salt and white pepper, dip into the batter and fry a golden brown in deep fat. Drain on brown paper. Serve immediately on a napkin laid on a hot dish and with sliced lemon.

Baked in Shells.

Scalloped Oysters.—Take some nice, plump oysters and sprinkle each with a pinch of finely minced parsley, salt, white pepper and fine breadcrumbs. Place each in a scallop or oyster shell, put a saltspoonful of butter on top and run the oysters into a hot oven for seven or eight minutes. Draw to the front of the oven, put a few drops of meat gravy on each, return to the oven for two or three minutes and serve as quickly as possible.

He Tried to Chase the Shadow Away.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Charlie Chased The Shadow Home Again.

WHAT makes the shadows on the wall had been talked over by Jack and Evelyn and daddy.

"Everybody has his own shadow, you know, that sticks to him always. It's only when you get way off into elf land that the shadow runs away and leaves you," daddy said.

"And I believe I'll tell you a story about a little boy that lost his shadow.

"Often he got tired of it. Now it would be bobbing along in front of him, then it would dodge behind him and stay there no matter how hard he tried to get away. Sometimes it would walk quietly along by his side.

"'Go 'way, old shadow,' he cried one day. 'Charlie's tired of you.'

"So after supper Charlie curled up on the big chair by the fire. And there was his shadow bobbing on the wall at his side.

"'Oh, aren't you ever going to go 'way?' Charlie wailed. And then he thought the shadow nodded to him.

"Presently Charlie began to feel sleepy, and when he looked again the shadow had really gone.

"'Oh, my!' chuckled Charlie. 'Now I can have fun.'

"So he hopped up out of the chair. He didn't stop to wonder why he felt so light, but skipped over two or three chairs and dodged into the hall, just as Bridget, who had been out spending the evening, came in.

"'The saints preserve us!' shrieked Bridget as he darted by her.

"The moon was shining, but Charlie was pleased to see that, as he floated along there was no shadow with him.

"'Got away from him that time,' he chuckled. And just then he got a glimpse of the shadow flitting away down the road ahead of him.

"Just then a little man in gray came out of the bushes and, nodding to Charlie, said: 'There he goes! He'll get away from you if you don't watch.'

"'Why, I got away from him!' Charlie replied.

"'No, you didn't,' contradicted the little man in gray. 'He gave you the slip, and if you aren't careful you'll lose him for good and all.'

"'Who are you and what do you know about it?' Charlie asked.

"'I'm the king of the shadows,' he replied. 'And if a shadow gets away from any one he has to be one of my shadows himself.'

"Charlie did run then. He chased his shadow for miles, and the faster he went the faster the shadow went.

"At last he chased it right into the door of his own house and down the hall into the library, and then he woke up in the chair by the fire.

"And since then Charlie is quite content to have his shadow."

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers will be held in New Brunswick on Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, when the State organization will be the guest of the eight Parent-Teacher Associations in New Brunswick and Highland Park. The central topic of the two days conference will be "Training for Citizenship," and several noted speakers have accepted places on the program. The subject will be studied from the points of view of the home, the kindergarten, self-government, character-building, play and industrial and vocational education. The complete program will be published later.

The executive committee of the High School Parent-Teacher Association held a meeting Monday, October 5. The program is well planned under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. H. P. Veysey. An afternoon tea for the purpose of meeting the teachers will be given at Mrs. Stephen Voorhees home, the last week in October by the officers of the association. In November an Acquaintance Party will be held at the High School, which will be the first regular meeting of the association. At this meeting the teachers will be in their class rooms part of the evening to meet the parents, an interesting program will be prepared and refreshments served in the library by the committee of which Mrs. H. R. Moyer is chairman.

Plans to attend the annual congress were discussed and the High School Association expects to send its full number of delegates. A literature committee will be appointed in the near future to obtain and distribute literature interesting to parents and teachers on the problems of the High School girl and boy. The cooking demonstrations planned for October was postponed on account of Mrs. Scott's illness and some other plan will be devised to raise the money needed for literature, cups and saucers and a contribution to the School Luncheon Committee. Much interest has been manifested in the plans of the association and this year no doubt will be most successful.

The Plainfield Association of Mothers is accomplishing very definite work in supplying lunches at cost prices to the pupils of the Bryant School. The problem confronting the committee in planning, was what to do with left-over food; the demand for lunches has been so great, this first week, that the problem now is how to make one kitchen do the work of two and supply twice as many lunches as expected. The committee is meeting this by requesting volunteer helpers. Mrs. O. H. Smith, Mrs. A. C. Penn, Mrs. Herbert Parker and Mrs. Samuel Clarke have been most efficient and have earned the gratitude and commendation expressed by all who have known the difficulties surmounted and wonderful success of the undertaking. The plan of the association, of which Mrs. C. G. Munro is president, is to place in each school of the city these penny lunches, that all pupils may have the opportunity of buying nourishing food at cost prices. Money is needed to furnish equipment such as cooking utensils, trays, spoons, bowls and cups, also to pay the cost of the cook and assistant, as these items are not included in the cost of the lunches. The actual cost of the food only can be realized by the pennies collected from the children. Jellies and canned fruit can be efficiently used in the preparation of the luncnes and the parents are urged to help by sharing their stock of these things, sending them to the Bryant School.

The Partnership.

"My father and I know everything
In the whole wide world, we do!"
My little son nodded his curls at me;
"Just everything, mother—true!"

"Then tell me, Sir Brag," I teasing said,
"Where, in the world so wide,
I can find the country of Yucatan?"
He answered with unmoved pride:

"That one is father's to tell—it's hard;
The easiest are mine; but we
Together know all that there is to know!—
Ask one that belongs to me?"

From the child's innocent lips I learned
A lesson of trust and rest;
What matters the mysteries yet unsolved?
The problems of life unguessed?

One knoweth—I have no need to know;
One careth who best can care;

Whitehouse.

The mission study class of the Presbyterian church at Lamington resumed its fall and winter sessions last evening at the manse, when the topic for study was "China." Sunday, Rev. Dr. John T. Scott, the pastor, will exchange pulpits with Rev. Charles E. Hoyt, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Fluckemin, in the morning. Tuesday, Mr. Scott and William C. Lane attended the meetings of the Presbytery of Elizabeth at Westfield.

Miss Elizabeth Aitken, of Lansford, Pa., is visiting Miss Elizabeth Derby at the manse of the Presbyterian church, Lamington.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Hoffman, of Whitehouse Station, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Morris J. Welsh, of New Germantown.

Mrs. Alvah L. Pickell, of the San Esther Farm, near Whitehouse Station, who was injured severely in an automobile accident near Lambertville, Sunday afternoon, is reported to be recovering.

Rev. William J. Lonsdale, pastor of the Reformed church at Lebanon, is arranging for a series of evangelical services, which will begin on Sunday evening, November 2, and continue for two weeks. On Sunday afternoon, October 19, he will lecture in the schoolhouse at Bissell. Oliver W. Hunt has been chosen as the elder to accompany Mr. Lonsdale to the meeting of the Classis of Raritan at Peapack, Tuesday, with H. A. Aller as alternate.

Ramsey Hoffman, of Lebanon, is able to be about again, after suffering from an attack of typhoid fever.

Hickory nuts are reported to be scarce in this section this fall.

Rev. B. V. D. Wyckoff, pastor of the Reformed church at Readington, will lecture in the schoolhouse at Centreville, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Burrell returned to High Bridge, Tuesday, after a visit to George G. McPherson, of Round Valley.

Miss Nellie Peterson returned to Newark yesterday, after a visit to her former home near Pottersville.

FRIENDS TO MEET.

The Young Friends' Association will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Williams, of Darrow avenue. Those who attended the Friends' Summer School at George School, Pa., will relate their experiences while at the institution.

THE RETURN OF THE POCKET

Nowadays the art of being well dressed lies chiefly in line, and the new costumes all show the loose easy grace that has marked the summer styles. Novelty and beauty of materials and colorings characterize the fall costume fashions rather than anything startling new in form. However, greater individuality is noticed than for some time past, as there are many little details about which the wearer can use her own good taste.

Moire is a great favorite and comes in all the new rich colors—tete de negre brown, brick red, prunelle, purple, green and taupe. A dark, deep copper is another wonderful shade and used with a design like 7973-7939 a charming gown would result. Small burnished buttons and a broad folded sash showing tones of yellow would complete the effect. For size 36 this design (7973-7939) requires 5⅝ yards of 36 inch moire with ⅞ yard of satin for the girdle.

Two-toned costumes, skirt of plaid with plain blouse, are novel and attractive. In less pronounced patterns dull blues and greens combine well, and a dark red and blue are often seen.

The return of the pocket is a thing for which we may be grateful this season, not the tiny apology tucked away in some corner or hidden by a seam, but an almost ample patch pocket stitched, one on each side of many of the new skirt models. An effective illustration is shown in 7942.

For a blouse like 7915 in size 36 it requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch material. 7942 may be made in size 18 with 3 yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Conventional Fruit and Flower Designs and Centerpieces.

The busy housewife looks forward to the long evenings of fall and winter, as this affords her time to do a bit of fancy work. Not only does the housewife spend her leisure moments in this profitable manner, but also the school and college girl. Many little circles of bright and happy faces are formed during these cool afternoons and evenings with the one intent—to embroider either Christmas gifts or fancy articles for fairs, which frequent the holiday seasons. One can always have a piece of embroidery near at hand, to pick up at leisure moments, as this puts to flight many a lonesome or dreary hour.

The two centerpieces, illustrated here, are quite unique and can be very easily and quickly embroidered. The pineapple design number 14162 is 20 inches in diameter and should be transferred to a piece of heavy round thread linen, either white or colored. It may be embroidered in buttonhole-stitch, solid work and outline stitch or in Kensington-stitch or long-and-short-stitch. This design may be developed entirely in white, or a combination of green and browns.

The wild rose centerpiece, number 14164, may be embroidered in solid work and outline-stitch on round thread linen, or it may be worked on handkerchief linen over net, in solid embroidery and buttonhole-stitch. In this case, after the embroidery is done, the linen is cut away in the background, giving the effect of applique, which is very effective. This centerpiece is 18 inches in diameter, and, if embroidered in colors, would make an attractive between-meals mat. The natural colorings may be used or two or more shades of rose or brown.

These patterns will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents each.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., on Watson Avenue and Cameron Avenue the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said bluestone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. On West Sixth Street, the construction of a curb, said curb to be either (1) of bluestone, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface; or (2) of concrete, constructed in conformity with specifications for curbs as set forth in the above mentioned specifications, and laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length. On East Second Street and Madison Avenue, the repair of sidewalk.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1898, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 8, 1913.

VENERABLE MAN PASSES AWAY

Abram L. Cadmus Dies of Complications Aged Eighty Years.

WELL KNOWN CITIZEN

Made Snug Fortune as a Miller—Retired Several Years Ago—Took Great Interest in First Presbyterian Church Work.

Abram L. Cadmus, aged 80 years, one of Plainfield's best known citizens, died of a complication of diseases this morning at his home, 112 Plainfield avenue. He had been detained at home a short time and his death was rather unexpected. Mr. Cadmus was born in the old homestead at West End and Myrtle avenues, the borough, being the son of Andrew Cadmus and Mary Deeds. He succeeded to his father's business, that of running a sawmill on West End avenue, and later branched out into the feed and grain business, using water power.

When the water power failed Mr. Cadmus erected what is now known as the Commercial Mills, on South Second street, which in recent years he sold to Otis Corbett, of West Seventh street, the present owner. Mr. Cadmus and his father sawed much of the virgin timber of this neighborhood.

Mr. Cadmus was a life-long member of the First Presbyterian church and an elder for a number of years. His parents were charter members of that church, and he was devoted to the religious life of that congregation and a liberal supporter of all the departments. He and Mrs. Cadmus attended all the services with unusual regularity. There survives a widow and one daughter, Mrs. George N. Karner, four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. The notice of funeral will be given later.

CIRCUS MAN FINED ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Irving, Guilty of Ill-treating His Horses, Pays $25—One Animal Shot.

"Captain" John Irving, a circus man, arrested yesterday on a charge of cruelty to animals preferred by Mrs. Stephen G. Van Hoesen, local agent of the S. P. C. A., was fined $25 by CiCty Judge DeMeza when arraigned yesterday afternoon. He paid the fine an avoided a 40 days' prison sentence. Three of the circus horses were held at the stable adjoining police headquarters for examination, after Patrolman McGinley had placed Irving under arrest. The animals exhibited a considerable display of bones and showed other evidence of being under-fed and otherwise ill-treated. One equine could not hardly walk and he was shot by Patrolman McCarty.

Irving promised not to use the other horses until they were cured of their ills, so the animals' lives were spared. The S. P. C. A. will keep posted on Irving's whereabouts while he remains in Union county and will prosecute him if he breaks his pledge to the local magistrate.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MISS CARRIE DEWEY

The funeral service of Miss Carrie Dewey was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. There was a very large attendance of friends including many members of the church and Sunday-school, where Miss Dewey had been an active member for years. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the church, was in charge of the service, and he was assisted by Rev. Boyd Edwards, of Brooklyn, a cousin of Miss Dewey. He read the Scriptures and offered prayer, while Dr. Zelie delivered an eulogy.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, coming from practically every department of the church as well as friends outside. During the service the church quartet, Miss Lillian Vernon Watt, soprano; Miss Grace Carroll, contralto; Paul Haskell, tenor, and Graham Reed, baritone, sang two selections, "The Sands of Time are Sinking," and "While With Ceaseless Course the Sun," while those present joined in singing "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go." The burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

TO MARK ONE YEAR OF ITS CIVIC WORK

West End Association to Observe Its First Aninversary on Monday Night.

The West End Civic Association, which was organized one year ago at the home of Thomas M. Muir on Grant avenue by a small company of public spirited citizens, will hold its first anniversary meeting at the Washington School on Monday night. The association now has a membership of about one hundred. Through the work of the officers and committees much has been accomplished and courteous treatment has been received from the city officials. The prospects of success for the coming year are bright.

Beginning with the October meeting all members are requested to bring in written suggestions as a means of securing additional information. Among matters that are to receive especial attention will be the disposal of leaves, systematic collection of garbage and ashes, uniformity of grades in sidewalks, crosswalks and curbing and storm sewers. The secretary in a written notice to members has requested them to bring at least one person with them to Monday night's meeting. As evidence of the interest taken in civic affairs there are five members of the association who are candidates for the Common Council, David L. Coleman, Richard A. Claybrook, John H. Cose, Charles Graves and Thomas F. Hylan.

It was through the efforts of the association that the privilege to use the public schools for public meetings was obtained, and the Board of Education has extended this privilege to social affairs which have proved popular with the people of the city.

BETHEL CHAPEL'S C. E. ENJOYED THE EVENING

Speeches were made and a delightful program of music was rendered last night at the social held at Bethel chapel under the auspices of its Christian Endeavor Society. J. E. Kimball, superintendent of the Sunday school, was in charge.

J. A. Williams, a local delegate to the exposition held several days ago in Atlantic City in observance of the anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation, gave a brief account of the celebration, which he said proved to be a great success and attracted many people to the popular Jersey resort. Mrs. John Lane and Charles E. Van Horn, rendered selections on the piano and Miss Mary Anderson and Clifford Tildon entertained with humorous recitations. Refreshments were served toward the conclusion of the evening. The Misses Davie Reid, Anna Fisher, Gertrude Edgar and Daisey Robinson made the arrangements for the social.

A business meeting of the society was held and these officers were elected:

President, Miss Bessie Baker; vice-president, Miss Maud Lambert; secretary, Clifford Tildon; corresponding secretary, Miss Davie Reid; treasurer, Mrs. William Davis; lookout committee, Ivam Shipley, Clifford Tildon and the Misses Gladys Sterns, Mary Anderson and Maud Lambert; prayer meeting committee, Misses Caroline Tildon, Davie Reid and Margaret Blue and Thomas Babbitt.

ST. JOSEPH'S LEAGUE TO GIVE MASQUERADE BALL

The Women's League of St. Joseph's church will hold its second annual masquerade and ball Friday night, October 31, in Debele's Auditorium. The event will be an elaborate one and many unique costumes will be worn by the guests, who will receive appropriate souvenirs for their efforts. The committee making arrangements for the event is composed of Mrs. Sutton, chairman; Mrs. Cooper, Miss Mamie Carney and Miss Florence Hogan.

The recently elected officers of the league are: President, Miss Mary O'Connor; vice president, Miss Agnes Fitzgerald; secretary, Miss Justina Smith, and treasurer, Mrs. Andrew E. Kenney.

PAIR OUT ON BAIL.

Mrs. Annie Knight, of Park avenue, and Walter C. Kettenring, of Race street, who were arrested early yesterday morning on serious charges, were released from the local jail last night, after furnishing $300 bail each for a hearing tomorrow morning. Kettenring has engaged Robert Newton Crane to defend him.

HUGHES TO BEGIN CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

Somerset Progressive Assembly Nominee to Tour Whole County.

George T. Hughes, of Watchung, Progressive candidate for the Assembly in Somerset, will open his campaign tonight with two meetings in the southern part of the county, one at Harlingen and one at Rocky Hill. He will be accompanied by Philip J. Roosevelt, a cousin of Col. Theodore Roosevelt and a personal friend and business associate of the Progressive candidate. Both Mr. Hughes and Mr. Roosevelt will speak.

Saturday Kingston and Franklin Park will be visited and Monday Pluckemin and North Branch are on the schedule. Wednesday Mr. Hughes will spend the entire day touring with Everett Colby, the candidate for Governor, beginning at Peapack in the morning and continuing by way of Bernardsville and Basking Ridge to Somerville and Bound Brook, where night meetings will be held.

Mr. Hughes expects to visit every borough and township in the county and his program calls for speeches nearly every week-day right up to the Monday before election. Besides Mr. Roosevelt those who will accompany the candidate include Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who wil make two addresses, one in Bernardsville and one probably in North Plainfield; Judge John B. Lander, of Orange, and Benjamin C. Marsh, of New York. The names of other speakers will be announced later as well as the complete list of meetings.

MISS LEONORA S. MILLER NOW MRS. C. W. BEITER

Mss Leonora S. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Miller, of Almont place, and Charles W. Beiter, of Somerset street, the borough, were married yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of Trinity Reformed church, by Rev. J. Y. Broek. The ceremony was witnessed by the members of the two families.

Miss Ella Miller, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Charles Lindsley the best man. The couple left immediately afterward on a wedding trip. They will reside at 912 West Sixth street. Mr. Beiter has been employed as a stenographer at the Pond Machine Tool Works, for several years. Both he and his wife are active members of Trinity Reformed church.

SON OF A PRIZEFIGHTER WILL BE HEARD HERE

Rev. J. C. Killian, of the Chapel Car Evangel, will preach in the Park Avenue Baptist church next Sunday morning. Alfred Mace, son of Jem Mace, the one time star of the ropes arena, who is a minister of the gospel, will preach at the evening service beginning at 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Mace's mother was a gypsy queen. Mr. Mace is expected to arrive in New York today, on board the Lusitania, of the Cunard Line. Mr. Mace will also deliver noontiour addresses every day next week at Jane Street church, New York city.

LINBARGER WITHDRAWS.

Walter C. Linbarger has formally withdrawn from the contest for the disputed nomination for the county clerkship in Somerset, his decision being announced last night at a meeting of the Somerset county Democratic executive committee. Mr. Linbarger said he was prompted by a desire to be just with his opponent, Lewis A. Bellis, whose majority at the primary was wiped out when it was discovered that some ballots cast for him had been incorrectly printed.

REV. E. G. KNAPP.

Word has been received here of the death of Rev. E. G. Knapp, which occurred at Oswego, N. Y., on Wednesday, following an acute attack of appendicitis. He was pastor of the M. E. church at Oswego for the past two years. Mr. Knapp's daughter, Mrs. John Anderson, now of Washington, was before her marriage a teacher in the Franklin Public School. He also leaves a wife and a son, Burge Knapp, of Oswego.

MINISTERS DID NOT MEET.

There being no quorum the Plainfield Ministers' Association did not meet yesterday afternoon. Rev. Frank Fletcher, the president; Rev. Lewis Bond, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring were the only members present and it was decided that Mr. Fletcher should fix another date and call a special meeting.

THE TEMPERATURE

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 68 degrees; 11 a. m., 76 degrees; 1 p. m., 76 degrees.

FINAL SCORE

Readers of the Daily Press receiving this edition can learn the final score of the game by phoning Plainfield 1300 at any time until eight o'clock.

The City edition of the Daily Press containing a full account of the game will be delivered to all who receive the paper through our own carriers. Others may secure copies at the principal newsdealers in Plainfield a few minutes after the game is completed. Papers with complete score will be despatched to dealers in Dunellen, Bound Brook and Somerville on the first train after the game ends.

Connie Mack audaciously stacked this stripling up against the seasoned Giants in the third game of the series, and Bush made good.

KEEPING IT UP

Keeping up with its record of being the first to megaphone the game yesterday in the world's series, play by play, and being first out on the street with an edition containing a complete box score and detailed story of the game, the Plainfield Daily Press scored as usual. Nine minutes after the last ball was pitched, the paper, with the features mentioned, was on the streets. It was the only daily in this section which supplied to all office subscribers a complete tale of the contest with the box score. This is being done each day.

Fully 700 fans gathered in front of the Daily Press building yesterday afternoon to listen to the megaphoned reports. Thousands of molasses kisses, supplied by the Ritz Company, some tickets for Proctor's Theatre and some coupons good for a statuette of "Scoop the Cub Reporter," the cartoon feature of our sporting pages, were distributed among the crowd. Over 400 telephone calls were received asking for the result of the game.

Tomorrow afternoon, there will be an added attraction. The Dutch Arms band has kindly consented to enliven the occasion. It will give a concert after the last ball is pitched and should there be any interruption during the progress of the game this fine musical organization, forty trained bandmen under the leadership of E. D. Young, will play catchy airs. Come around.

PRESIDENT COMMANDS TWO OCEANS TO MEET

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Washington, Oct. 10.—President Wilson at 2 o'clock this afternoon touched button at his desk and flashed signal for dynamiting of the Gamboa Dike.

Trenton, Oct. 10.—The State Board of Education announced today that the teachers' institute for the schools of Union county will be held in Westfield Friday, October 24.

WANT PAY OF TWO OFFICIALS REDUCED

Piscataway Twp. Taxpayers Ass'n Asks for Cut in Salaries.

The Piscataway Township Taxpayers' Association, through a committee comprising Charles E. Kelly, Sr., and John Evans, was represented at the meeting of the Township Committee at Hotel Nelson, Tuesday night, and requested the Committee to reduce the salaries of the assessor and collector. It was explained that the work of these officials had been reduced about one-third on account of the Borough of Middlesex being established out of the township. The Committee promised to take the matter under advisement.

The Committee, in response to a request, voted to place two cells in the fire-house at South Plainfield. The contract was awarded to William Hamilton, his bid being $225, payment to be made when the work is completed and accepted. It was explained by the Committee that this improvement had been delayed owing to the fact that its time had been taken up adjusting matters with the Borough of Middlesex, and it hoped to have this work completed during the month.

HOPE CHAPEL TEAM ENJOYED BANQUET

Church Women the Hosts of Ball Players at the Conclusion of Diamond Season.

Members of the Hope chapel baseball team and a few invited guests were treated to the annual baseball supper in the chapel rooms last night by the women of the church, this being the yearly custom at the completion of a successful season on the diamond. Thirty-five diners were present at the affair, and George T. Leighs who is the central figure in the promotion of athletics in Hope chapel, acted as toastmaster. Mr. Leighs has spent much of his time to make athletics what they are in the Sunday-school he represents and it was in recognizance of the work he has accomplished at the helm of the Boys' Club that he was accorded this honor by the athletes last night.

The affair added another chapter to the era of Hope chapel social gatherings and those present were treated to an excellent chicken dinner by the women. Speeches were made by Rev. Frederick L. Greene, Jack Martin, G. Herbert Condict, James Penny, Umpire James Brown and Captain Allen Snyder, of the baseball team. All of the speakers commented briefly of the season just closed and expressed a wish that the 1914 season would find the same group of fellows ready to play on the Hope colors.

OPOLLO QUARTETTE PLEASES BIG CROWD

First of Free Entertainments Proves to Be an Enjoyable One.

The Apollo Male Quartette, appearing at the Washington School auditorium last night at the attraction in the first of a series of free entertainments arranged by the Board of Education, won its way in the hearts of local music lovers in the rendition of "The Songs That Touch the Heart." The crowd taxed the auditorium to its capacity.

The program included new and old songs sung with a certainty and ease by the vocalists that won for them hearty applause. The variety of the selections and the pleasing personality of each artist made the recital unusually entertaining.

The next lecture will be held on Thursday night, Oct. 30, when A. S. Riggs, will give an illustrated discourse on "Egypt and the Nile."

MISS SHARRETTS ENGAGED.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus S. Sharretts, of 439 West Seventh street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bernice Sharretts, to Lieutenant Rollo Frederick Anderson, U. S. A. The wedding will take place the early part of December.

THE DUTCH ARMS BAND
(The band that Plainfield boasts about) will be an attraction for the "fans" who gather at the Daily Press building tomorrow to hear the story of the game, play by play, megaphoned as quickly as flashed by wire.

DEMAREE AND BENDER OPPOSING PITCHERS IN FOURTH BIG BATTLE

ATHLETICS SWAT GIANTS IN THIRD

Tesreau Buried In an Avalanche of Hits.

YOUNG BUSH A SENSATION

Mack Trots Out Unsung Twirler, Who With Five Run Lead and Coached by $100,000 Infield Lets Giants Down With Five Hits.

New York, Oct. 10.—When the Giants and Athletics came together at the Polo grounds yesterday a complete change in the nature of the world's series fighting took place. It was a change from two games which were close and even, as games go, to a landslide. The Giants were hit by an avalanche, the Athletics being the avalanche. They won by a score of 8 to 2.

The Mackian and Machiavellian strong men, to whom a bat is at once a rapier and a bludgeon, essentially a punishing instrument in either event, slashed and clubbed their way through the Giant lines. Not only did they show as much of that quality which is a much emphasized possession of the Giants, the quality of speed, as they have in all of the games thus far, but they used it to season their vivid and heavy hitting which gave them the overwhelming victory.

Nor did they waste time in doing it. Their unbridled hitting, with its complement of speedy daring begot by confidence, broke loose in the first inning. They were there from the drop of the flat. They beat their way to three runs in the first inning, slugging, scurrying, scoring, shredding the delivery of Jeff Tesreau and carrying the Giants off their feet.

Leslie Joe Bush Famous.

Leslie Joseph Bush, stocky and well knit, a fledgling member of Mack's pitching force, distinguished himself by a performance on the knob which compares favorably with any previous world's series exhibition and which advanced that youngster up the ranks of renown. While the Athletics were raking the field with thirteen hits Bush was holding the Giants to five. The difference in hitting was the great salient factor in the result. Bush was too much for the Giants and it was with great difficulty that they could score at all. Opposed was rampant batting, which brought runs in irregular flocks.

Seven of the eight Philadelphia runs were earned. That's how strongly the Athletics came back after being shut out the day before. So far they've been better in their gray suits than in their white, which also is true of the Giants. Each team has its first victory to win at home. Six of the runs were earned off Tesreau, one off Crandall.

Tesreau strove hard and conscientiously to hold the Athletics, but all that he could impart to the ball was nuts for them. Bush early checked a tendency to wildness and was splendidly handled and advised by his catcher, Schang. The latter threw to bases poorly, but that was a small matter compared to his good receivership. Bush had jumping speed and a nice repertoire, and with Schang's guidance he held up his hands by establishing a five run lead for him in the first two innings.

Batting Ability Passes On.

Tesreau is the second of McGraw's regulars of the box to be roughly handled by the Athletics. Only Matty has mastered them. Against the other two, against Tesreau and against Marquard, they employed a hitting formula by which a man who makes a hit passes on the ability to do so to his immediate successor, and the effectiveness of the co-operation does not die out until much damage is done. When they do raid they raid in squads, these Athletics.

The Giants didn't crumple at all in the face of the dynamic batting. There was no fielding slip of consequence by them, their one error, a wild throw by Fletcher, which was excusable, had slight bearing on the outcome. There is no way, except what develops upon the pitcher, by which a team can stop base hits, particularly the driving, cutting splenetic base hits made by the Athletics yesterday. Collins, who shambles to the plate and stands there limp and relaxed, was, with his trained bat, the chief rock on which the Giants split. He seemed to regard Tesreau as the biggest target he has faced in a long time and reversed the latter's service for three wicked line hits. He batted in four runs and made two for himself.

Down the line generally the Athletics batted Tesreau, McInnis being the only one who did not make a hit and also the only one who didn't get on base at all. Murphy, Oldring and Baker hit the most effectively next to Collins, and Schang took a leaf out of Baker's book by spilling a home run into the right field stand. Like Baker's of Tuesday

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—There was a free-for-all battle between about 1,000 baseball-mad fans at 7 o'clock this morning, who were waiting for the opening of the gates at Shibe Park. The trouble occurred during the change of police guards. The fans at the last end of the line tried to displace those occupying better places but a relief detail of coppers arrived and soon quelled the disturbance and had the mob in line in short order.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Old Sol flickered through the clouds and gave the first real prospects of fair weather to the crowd for the fourth game of the world's series. The early mob of fans at the gates was larger than on Wednesday at 11 o'clock and it was estimated that about 8,000 persons were in line awaiting the opening of the ten gates. The members of the New York team slept late this morning but all appeared cheerful and were still confident of winning the series. Christy Mathewson, when asked for an opinion, said, "We will even up the series this afternoon."

The weather was summerlike at 12 o'clock with the temperature hovering around the seventy-four mark. The infield was in the pink of condition and the stands were filled to their utmost capacity at noon. The house tops on the north and east sides of the field were again crowded and a band of seventy-five pieces are playing popular airs.

It was even money bet when the Giants left Philadelphia, Wednesday night, that not more than 12,000 persons would witness the second game in the Quakertown, but the inhabitants of that burg have become so worked up over yesterday's triumph that some 21,000 turned out today.

The Giants put in some good practice just before game time. Fromme pitched to the batters. The clouds began to separate just before the Giants started to warm up on the field.

The lineups:

Giants—Herzog, 3b; Doyle, 2b; Fletcher, ss; Burns, lf; Shafer, cf; Murray, rf; McLean, c; Merkle, 1b; Demaree, p.

Athletics—Murphy, rf; Oldring, lf; Collins, 2b; Baker, 3b; McInnis, 1b; Strunk, cf; Barry, ss; Schang, c; Bender, p.

FIRST INNING.

Giants. Snodgrass flied out to Baker; Doyle flied out to Strunk in centre field; Fletcher out, Barry to McInnis on a hot grounder. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—E. Murphy flied out to Snodgrass in centre field, the hit being a hard and long one; Oldring tripled to right field; Collins hit to Merkle and Oldring was out at the plate, Merkle to McLean; Collins was safe at first base on the play; Demaree tried to catch him napping at first and threw to Merkle but Collins made for second and in trying to run him down between second and first Merkle hit the runner in the back and Collins was safe on the keystone bag; Baker fouled out to Shafer. Three out. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Giants—Burns flied out to Murphy; Shafer proved easy prey for Bender, fanning out on three pitched balls; Murray stopped a swift one with his finger and went to first base; McLean singled to right field and Murray romped around to the far corner of the lot; Merkle fouled out to McInnis, leaving two men perched on the sacks. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—McInnis led off with a hot single over Captain Doyle's roof garden; Strunk laid down a sacrifice, sending McInnis to second and the batter was out, Demaree to Merkle; Barry hit a high foul fly back of first base but Merkle dropped the ball and the hitter doubled to centre field, scoring McInnis with the first counter of the game; Schang drew four balls and Chief Bender was the object of a burst of exuberance as he stepped to the plate with two men on the cushions, but his best was a high fly to Burns in left field; Murphy flied out to Snodgrass, leaving the two base runners stranded. Three out. ONE RUN.

THIRD INNING.

Giants—Demaree opened the Giants' half by flying out to Murphy in right field; Snodgrass grounded to Bender, who tossed the ball to first, catching him easily; Doyle flied out to Strunk. Three out. NO RUNS.

Herzog went to third base and Shafer to centre field; Snodgrass was taken out.

Athletics—Oldring went out, Demaree to Merkle, Collins flied out to Burns, who made a sensational running catch; Baker went out, Doyle to Merkle. Three out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Giants—Fletcher pop flied out to Collins just back of the pitcher's box; Burns flied out to Baker; Shafer struck out. Three out. NO RUNS.

Athletics—McInnis out, Doyle to Merkle; Strunk beat out a hot bounder to Herzog and was safe at first.

TODAY'S GAME

Barry hit to left field, Strunk galloping to third, and Barry raced to second on the throw made to catch Strunk at the difficult corner; Schang sent a hot liner to centre field, scoring Strunk and Barry; the later had to slide to reach the rubber in safety; on the throw Schang tore to the midway station; on a passed ball, Schang went to third; Bender beat out a slow grounder to the infield and reached the initial bag in safety, when Merkle made his second error of the game. Schang scored on the play; Murphy popped out to Doyle; Oldring tore off a Texas Leaguer over second, the Indian doing a dance down the paths to second; Collins ended the melee by going out, McLean to Merkle, on a bunt. Three out. THREE RUNS.

A Strenuous Statesman.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman and sport, had wagered something about a waistcoat which could only be obtained in Paris; went off to Dover by night, caught the mail packet, posted to Paris and back to Calais, and remembered he had a horse racing at Newmarket. He chartered a fishing boat bound for the eastern counties, just got to Newmarket in time for the race, took the post back to London and stopped on the way to dine. In the middle of the dinner he was caught by a special messenger who had been tearing over half of England in search of him and reminded that he had to move to bring in a marriage bill in the house of commons. He rushed to the stables, reached the house in time to make a brilliant speech in reply to North and Burke and defeated North on a division by a single vote.

Almost Recognized.

Dinah was a product of New Orleans, a big, plump "yaller gal" who could cook the finest dinners for miles around. One day a new butler appeared upon the scene, and Dinah's mistress noticed that she took a great interest in the man. At last her mistress could stand her curiosity no longer and asked:

"Dinah, do you know that new man?"

Dinah took another long and scrutinizing look and then slowly and reminiscently replied:

"Well, I dunno, Miss Alice, but I think he was ma fust husband!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Toboga Island.

Famed for its unfailing springs of pure, sparkling water, the island of Toboga lies about ten miles from the city of Panama, in the Pacific. Here the mail steamers plying between Balboa and San Francisco lie by for their supply of fresh water, as do also the steamers that sail southward from Panama. The island is also famous for its splendid pineapples.

Preoccupied.

The professor had fallen downstairs, and as he thoughtfully picked himself up he remarked, "I wonder what noise that was I just heard?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Just Rebuke.

"Is life worth living?"

"Not if you have nothing better to occupy your mind than such questions as that!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

EPWORTH LEAGUES HEAR ADDRESS BY A PASTOR

Epworth Leagues of the Monroe Avenue and Grace M. E. churches and the Westfield, Raritan, Bound Brook, Dunellen and Scotch Plains M. E. churches, were represented at an annual rally held last night at the Dunellen M. E. church. The chief speaker was Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of the Grace church, who likened the Epworth League members to any army of 600,000 soldiers, working for the spiritual welfare of the country. Other delegates also spoke on various subjects and a pleasing program of recitations and musical selections was enjoyed. The meeting concluded with the serving of refreshments.

THEODORE J. F. ZELLER.

After a short illness of a complication of diseases, Theodore J. F. Zeller, 49 years old, died this morning at his home in West Dunellen. He is survived by his widow and four children, the Misses Catherine, Mary and Elsie Zeller and Theodore Zeller, Jr. Four brothers and one sister also survive. They are Joseph Zeller, of New York; John Zeller, of this city, Frank Zeller, of Chicago; George Zeller and Mrs. William Burns, of Brooklyn Arrangements for the funeral have not been made.

MOSES DOMER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Moses Domer was held yesterday afternoon at 200 West Second street, there being a large attendanec of relatives and friends. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, officiated. There were a number of floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery. The bearers were R. H. Keenan, Donald McInnis, Thomas Cross, John Hackett, James Brown and William Banghart.

WORKED 4TH DEGREE.

A meeting for the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, was held last night in the clubhouse in West Front street, which proved unusually impressive. The new rituals were used in the ceremonies, which were in charge of Faithful Navigator H. P. Greenwood and Faithful Captain T. F. Carty.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

ATHLETICS WIN THIRD GAME

his whale of a hit went into the farthest section and was, if anything, a trifle longer than that of the home run specialist.

Young Bush Encouraged.

Probably the most important factor in the success of Bush was a double play by Collins and Barry in the first inning. Naturally Bush was a bit flurried when he faced the Giants for the first time and realized how much depended upon him. With more than 35,000 fans ready to cut bedlam loose in case he wabbled Bush heeded the advice of Schang and the infielders, who told him to shoot the ball over and see what would happen. Bush accordingly steamed the first ball over for Herzog, and it was a strike. Herzog fouled the second one—two strikes. The third was a curve that was just inside of the plate, and Rigler called it a ball. The fourth was beyond the outside corner—two balls. The fifth was a whizzer over the middle of the pan and looked like a third strike, but Rigler couldn't see it that way. Bush, however, cut the plate with another, and Herzog grounded to Barry, who threw him out.

Bush pitched the first two balls wide to Doyle and got the third over for a strike. Doyle hit the fourth one, and the ball bounded out of Bush's glove as he reached high for it, Captain Larry receiving credit for a scratch hit. The yelling of the crowd was enough to rattle any young pitcher, and when Fletcher came to the plate the Athletics were urging the youngster to keep cool. He had two strikes and a ball on Fletcher when a fast inshoot struck Fletcher on the wrist, and he took his base.

A fearful racket dinned in Bush's ears as Burns walked up to the scratch, and the youngster delivered two wide balls, one of which was marvelously dug out of the earth by Schang, who probably prevented a wild pitch. Burns fouled the third ball and hit the fourth on a line to Collins, who caught it and then tossed it to Barry for a double play that retired the Giants. Bush looked relieved as he went to the bench, where Mack and the other players complimented him for his steadiness, a form of jollying which produced disastrous results for the Giants later on.

When Bush finished the game Collins grabbed him around the waist and hugged him. Barry, Baker, Schang and McInnis surrounded the youngster near the visitors' bench and patted him on the back Mack congratulated him heartily, and then a mob of Quaker fans fairly hid him from view as they escorted him in triumph off the field.

Following is the score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.
Philad'phia	3	2	0	0	0	0	2	1	0—	8	12	1
New York	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	0—	2	6	1

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Catcher Schang of the Athletics did the Baker stunt in the eighth, hitting Crandall for a homer.

Oldring nicked Tesreau for the first single of the game in the opening inning. Collins and Baker followed in order with singles, Oldring coming home with the first run.

McInnis was Tesreau's first strike out victim, but McLean dropped the ball and had to throw him out at first.

Fletcher's wild throw over Merkle's head of Strunk's roller let both Collins and Baker tally, thus giving the Athletics a good start of three runs in their first attempt.

Larry Doyle got the Giants' first hit, a single that bounded off Bush's wrist After Bush hit Fletcher, Burns had a chance to clean up, but lined right into Collins' hands, and Doyle was doubled up

Bush showed signs of wildness in the opening inning for the Giants.

Following the double steal of Collins and Baker in the first Oldring stole cleanly on McLean in the second.

Collins' single in the second scored Murphy and Oldring and seemed to sew up the game.

Bush seemed to get his nerve back in the Giants' half of the second, and Shafer, Murray and McLean tapped out in order.

Up to the third inning Collins seemed to be the block in the Giants' path, catching two line drives that had started like long hits.

Tesreau seemed to have Schang's number. He struck him out for the second time in the fourth.

Fletcher gets the credit of stealing the first base for the Giants during the series when he pilfered second in the fourth inning.

Murray worked Bush for the first free pass of the game in the fifth. After stealing and going to third on Schang's bad throw "Red Jack" tallied the Giants' first run on McLean's single past Baker.

Cooper got into the game in the fifth, running for McLean, and promptly stole second on Schang.

Fletcher got a "walk" from Bush in the sixth. Up to this stage he had reached first every time up.

In the last of the seventh Wiltse went to run for Merkle after the latter got a base on balls.

UP FOR NON-SUPPORT TELLS OF HIS TROUBLES

Arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, Alfred Gudgeon, of 1341 West Third street, declared his spouse to be "unreasonable." "There are certain things," he said, "in which a man wants to have his own way, but my wife continually prohibits me to enjoy this liberty." The magistrate directed the overseer of the poor to see that Mr. Gudgeon pays his wife a reasonable sum of money each week toward the support of herself and three children, and directed the defendant to live peaceably with his mate if possible.

A MASQUERADE.

A masquerade ball will be held on Friday night, Oct. 31, in Sangerbund Hall, by the "Him, Her and I Social Club." Music will be furnished by an orchestra and attractive souvenirs will be given to those wearing the most original costumes.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Some men are born lucky, others have luck thrust upon them and still others are regular wearers of Rothberg Clothes.

But it's more than "luck" on our part to be able to give more solid goodness for, let us say,

$10, $12, $15, $18, $20 to $25

than you can hope to get elsewhere in men's garments. It's a combination of the WILL-TO-DO and the HOW-TO-DO, to these two elements that when united usually do their work better than it's ever been done before.

Suits & O'coats

for Fall, "architectured" as only the Rothberg Clothes are, and "fabrickt" with a degree of exclusiveness hardly ever seen in garments priced $3 to $5 higher than ours.

On account of holiday, Rothberg's will be closed until 6 o'clock on Saturday.

Store will close tonight at 4:30 and open tomorrow night at 6 o'clock.

A TRIBE OF TRAMPS.

East African Outcasts That Won't Work and Will Steal.

While on a hunting expedition to British East Africa in quest of pictures of wild horses Paul J. Rainey discovered that even among savages there is a tribe which closely resembles our own "knights of the road." They are the Wandorobo. They are found along the Guaso Nyiro and Guaso Narok rivers and are regarded as outcasts by the other native tribes.

The Wandorobo most closely resembles his American brother, the tramp, in that he refuses to work. He is a hunter and is exceedingly expert with the poisoned arrow, which he uses exclusively. A large club he carries is used to ward off and to scare wild beasts that may come too near.

Although the Wandorobo has settlements in some places, he wanders far from home and usually makes his bed in the top of a tree to be safe from wild animals. He is a notorious thief, and whenever he approaches an encampment the askari, or policeman, who is the only native permitted by the government to wear arms, watches the Wandorobo very carefully, for there is nothing too hot or too heavy for him to try to make off with.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

CUTTING THE BASES.

Mike Kelly Once Scored From Second Through the Pitcher's Box.

Writing on "Take a Chance Versus Play It Safe" in baseball in the American Magazine, Hugh S. Fullerton tells the following story about Mike Kelly, the great Chicago ball player of a generation ago:

"The chances Kelly took were the marvels of his era. I have seen him again and again cut straight across the diamond from first to third base or from second to the home plate and land in safety because the umpire failed to see his reckless move.

"One day Kelly cut from first to third on a slow infield bounder. He ran past the umpire who was racing toward first, screaming at him to watch the play, and, swinging straight across, he tore for third. Gaffney called the runner out at first and whirled just in time to catch 'Kel' going into third, then called him out. Kelly walked to the umpire, protested an instant; then, knowing Gaffney had caught him in the act, he remarked, 'All right, Mr. Umpire; I've never been on these grounds before and didn't know which was second base.'

"Two innings later he scored from second base through the pitcher's box and was not seen."

Curious Ear of the Catfish.

The catfish uses his lungs as an organ of hearing. The needless lung becomes a closed sac filled with air and commonly known as the swim bladder. In the catfish, as in the suckers, chubs and most brook fish, the air bladder is large and is connected by a slender tube, the remains of the trachead, to the esophagus. At its front it fits closely to the vertebral column. The anterior vertebrae are much enlarged, twisted together, and through them passes a chain of bones, which connects with the hidden cavity of the air. The bladder therefore assists the ear of the catfish as the tympanum and its bones assist the ear of the higher animals. An ear of this sort can carry little range of variety in sound. It probably gives only the impression of jars or disturbances in the water.

A Singer's Avarice.

We hear a great deal about the enormous salaries paid to famous prima donnas nowadays, and we also hear a great deal about their charity and good nature. In the reign of Queen Anne one of the most celebrated singers was Mrs. Tofts, who had a veritable craze for money making as well as a great deal of personal conceit. Pope, who never spared any persons or objects that he satirized, wrote an epigram that must have greatly annoyed the avaricious singer:

So bright is thy beauty, so charming thy song,
As had drawn both the beasts and their Orpheus along.
But such is thy avarice and such is thy pride
That the beasts must have starved and the poet have died.

—London Standard.

A Doubtful Transaction.

"I don't know whether my older boy is treating me right or not," said Mr. Bliggins, rather gloomily. "I told him that if he wouldn't smoke until he was twenty-one years old I would give him a thousand dollars."

"Did he keep his part of the agreement?"

"Yes, but he took the thousand dollars and bought an interest in a cigar store."—Washington Star.

All In a Bunch.

Father (looking up from his book after a volley of questions from eight-year-old son)—The answer to the first five questions is yes, to the next four no, and to the last question, I don't know.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Cheer Up.

"I sometimes wonder if life is worth living," mused the pessimist.

"It is," replied the optimist. "It is worth living much better than most of us live it."—Lippincott's.

Blinding the Idols.

While repairing a temple the Chinese cover up the eyes of the idols in order that the deities may not be offended at the sight of the disorder.

After all, there is nothing in this world but character.—Bishop Fowler.

PASTOR WILL TELL WHO IS SPOTSWOOD'S MEANEST MAN

Spotswood, Oct. 10.—"The Meanest Man in Spotswood" will be the subject of a sermon November 16 by Rev. Dr. Thomas Chalmers Easton, pastor of the Reformed church of this place. Dr. Easton, who recently celebrated his golden wedding anniversary and his fiftieth anniversary as a minister, sprang into public notice a few years ago when, as pastor of a church in Washington, D. C., he denounced Olga Nethersole, then appearing in "Sappho." The doctor was made defendant in a $25,000 suit for slander, which the actress lost.

Just who will be "The Meanest Man in Spotswood" is left open to conjecture. This sermon will be the last of a series.

REVOLUTION ANNIVERSARY.

Havana, Oct. 10—All public buildings were closed today and business to a great extent suspended in honor of the forty-fifth anniversary of the beginning of the great struggle for independence which was begun by the Cubans in 1868 and which continued without interruption until 1878. Many buildings are handsomely decorated with Cuban flags and the public squares and the principal streets are crowded with crowds in festive attire. Band concerts and speechmaking constitutes the features of the public celebration.

GIFT SHOP REMOVED.

Miss Minnie Serrell has removed her gift shop from the Babcock building to the first floor of the Stephenson's building, opposite, where she has more room for the display of her hand-made leather work, and sterling silver jewelry and other novelties, and in addition she announces that she has taken over the gift department of Miss Naomi Markley, which includes pottery and cards.

AMERICAN PRISON CONGRESS.

The prison riots and strikes which have occurred in New York, Michigan and other States the past year will form a leading topic of discussion at the annual convention of the American Prison Association about to assemble in Indianapolis, Indiana. Friends of the prison reform movement will endeavor to prove in papers and addresses before the convention that the riots and insubordination were not due to too much leniety within the prison.

The convention opens its sessions tomorrow night with addresses of welcome by Governor Ralston and former Vice President Fairbanks, followed by the annual address of the association president, James A. Leonard, of Mansfield, Ohio. Among the persons of prominence who are scheduled to speak at the mass meeting tomorrow and the sessions of the coming week are Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, Miss Julia Lathrop, Prof. Charles R. Henderson, of the University of Chicago, Dr. J. T. Gilmour, of Toronto; and Governors Foss, of Massachusetts; Cox, of Ohio; Eberhart, of Minnesota; Blease, of South Carolina, and McCreary, of Kentucky.

The American Prison Association was founded in Cincinnati in 1870, and at first included only those connected with the ordinary penal institutions of the United States. The organization has gradually grown to include those interested in almost every kind of reform or social work, and in the last few years has extended to Canada, Mexico and Cuba.

'FRISCO CELEBRATES.

San Francisco, which expects to reap immeasurable benefits from the opening of the Panama Canal, today will indulge in a joyous celebration of the blowing up of the Gamboa dike, which marks the practical completion of the great waterway connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. The celebration will begin upon the receipt of a telegraphic signal from the canal zone announcing the destruction of the dike. Flags will be thrown to the breeze, salutes will be fired by the warships and the harbor forts, whistles will be blown throughout the city and public ceremonies will be held in Union Square. Late this afternoon a large crowd will gather at the exposition grounds, where the site for the Republic of Panama building will be dedicated by Joseph Lefevre, first secretary of the Panama Legation at Washington.

CORRECT GRAMMAR.

There is a great diversity of opinion among very well educated people as to the use of "correct" phraseology or grammar. The newspapers are often criticised for using bad grammar, and when the critic proceeds to correct the "error" in a communication he is generally criticized by another egotistical grammarian. The English language is a puzzle. In Essex county there is a bitter feud over the grammar of "go slow" or "go slowly" on the road signs put up by the park commission and college experts have been appealed to. Prof. Phelps, of Yale, rules that "slow" is incorrect. Dr. Henry Van Dyke says that "slowly" is to be preferred. Both forms are indorsed by Prof. Kittredge, of Harvard, Prof. Manley, of Chicago, and Dr. Child, of the University of Pennsylvania, while Prof. Denman, of the University of Michigan, and Prof. McBride, of the University of the South, prefer "slow" on the ground that "slowly" is pedantic book English. The commissioners may find it as hard as ever to make up their minds, but all events they can not well go well go wrong.

MAY CLEAR MURDER MYSTERY

Mrs. Lynch Says Men In Auto Know How Lakewood Woman Was Killed.

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 10.—Mrs. Jasper Lynch, the Lakewood society leader and millionaire, who is furnishing the means to defend William J. Leahin, a former Lakewood stenographer from the charge of murdering Mrs. Carrie Turner at that place on April 26, 1913, has made a startling statement that some influential and wealthy men in a powerful automobile know all about how Mrs. Turner came to her death and that she knows the names of the men who were in the car.

"On the day that Leehan was apprehended," Mrs. Lynch said, "a young woman at a dinner party told of the automobile tale and of the flight of one young man because he had got into trouble with his automobile. The tale is a chilling one, and only an inkling of it came out at the time. Everybody was afraid to breathe a word of it, as the names of the persons who were in that car that night are known, and I know them."

Penalties of Genius.

Genius and ill health, it would seem, often go hand in hand. At any rate, many of the greatest deeds that the world has seen performed have been accomplished by men physically infirm.

Darwin suffered so acutely from nervous exhaustion that he could only work for two hours a day at the most. Thackeray was frequently ill; Johnson nearly always in poor health; Dickens at the age of fifty-five was an old man, with shattered nerves; while Sir Walter Scott, a subject of spasms, was a chronic invalid during the later years of his life and died at the age of fifty-nine.

Milton, William Morris and Charles Keane, the actor, all were slaves to gout, and Milton was further handicapped by being blind. The poet Keats died of consumption when still quite young. Elizabeth Barrett Browning was an invalid for the greater part of her life.

Insanity claimed Dean Swift, while Rousseau and Cowper were insane during periods of their lives.

Only One of a Kind.

"Why do you think he is such a remarkable man?"

"He's the only one I ever knew who had nerve enough to make the responses in the marriage service loud enough so that any one could hear him."—Chicago Post.

Looking Ahead.

A handsome young woman entered the office of a prominent lawyer. Immediately the legal one rose to greet her.

"I am glad to tell you, Miss Smith," he pleasantly remarked, "that your breach of promise suit has been settled. The defendant has expressed a desire to compromise the case by marrying you."

"I am very glad to hear that," was the smiling response of Miss Smith. "It is much better than taking a chance on losing the verdict. You have managed the case very well. How much do I owe you?"

"Let me see," thoughtfully mused the lawyer. "Shall we say $100?"

"We shall not," was the emphatic rejoinder of the fair plaintiff. "It is entirely too much."

"Well, then, I will tell you what I will do, Miss Smith," responded the lawyer. "I will just cut that bill in half if you will promise to retain me as your counsel when you sue for a divorce."—Philadelphia Ledger.

ROGER MURRAY AS A "MACHINE" BOSS

Newark News Gives Plainfield "Stand-pat" Republican a Spanking.

The Newark Evening News paid its editorial respects to Roger F. Murray in last night's issue. Its comment follows:

"IN THE ENEMY'S HANDS."

Accusing the News of misrepresenting the Republican State platform stand on the Geran election law, former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray has written a letter to this newspaper, in which he makes the following claims:

"It is far easier for false registration under the Geran law than under the old law."

"It is much harder for a man to get a transfer who happens to live twelve miles from the courthouse than it was before, and no safer."

"The present law discourages voting rather than encourages."

"One ballot-box is just as good as four and one pollbook just as good as four."

Furthermore, Mr. Murray says that "if the Republicans or Democrats control the next Legislature, I will have something to say about amendments to the election law."

Mr. Murray is the Republican machine boss of Plainfield. If he has anything to say about the amendment of the Geran law next winter, there is no doubt as to how that law will be treated. The amendments he wants are on record among the bills introduced at Trenton last winter. Mr. Murray was the author of eight or ten would-be amendments to the Geran act. Some of them were introducted by Senator Read, of Camden chairman of the Republican State convention this year. When these bills raised a storm of protest, Mr Read refused to father others prepared by Mr. Murray, and they were introduced by Senator Leavitt, Candidate Stokes' right-hand man, "by request." They tell the story very clearly how the Plainfield boss would "improve" the Geran law.

He would make registration easier by removing many of the present restrictions, by permitting registration by affidavit, and doing away with personal registration in all municipalities of 10,000 inhabitants and under. See Senate 37 of last winter's session.

He would "encourage voting" by giving police judges and District Court judges the right to transfer voters, thus dividing the responsibility for preventing the "floater" fraud. See Senate 63.

He would do away with pollbooks and substitute separate "personal registration affidavits," the blanks for which could be purchased by anybody desiring them from the secretary of State. See Senate 37.

That is not all he would do. He would make legal the counting of marked ballots if not marked "so as to be identified as the ballot of any particular voter." See Senate 67.

He would prevent independent candidates from being nominated after the primaries—a plan, according to Woodrow Wilson, which "strikes at the very heart of the Geran law." See Senate 95.

He would have members of the State committees, instead of being elected as at present, appointed by county committees. See Senate 66.

He would do away with the necessity for petitions for primary candidates favored by the party machines. He would bring this about by giving party committees the right to "certify" as candidates all who filed applications to run at the primaries. Under his plan, the committees could refuse to "certify" aspirants they do not like. See Senate 241.

If Mr. Roger F. Murray should have his way, what would there be left of the safeguards of the Geran law, and how many more advantages would the machine have than they have now?

And, Mr. Murray, machine-Republican, how do you explain that you are going to have something to say "if the Republicans or Democrats control the next Legislature?" Your confidence demands explanation. Are you in "cahoots" with Somebody? Is the machine-Republican-machine-Democrat "sympathy" State-wide? Why are you so sure of your "say" with the Democrats? How far has this business of "cahoots" and sympathetic understandings gone? Come out with it, Mr. Murray.

PROCTOR'S BIG BILL.

Proctor's bill this week affords many pleasant surprises; each act being presented by all-stars of the highest talent. The Maxinoff Troupe of Imperial Russian dancers head the bill. They are received with rounds of applause. The Bootblack Four make a big hit in its program of melody and mirth. The boys all have good voices and their selections are popular. "The Song Dream," a beautiful scenic singing spectacular sketch is delightful. The scene is an old-fashioned southern garden, the seven men and women being dressed in costumes of the '60's. Their program is a fine one. Miss Lydia Yeamans, daughter of the late Annie Yeamans, in an act of songs, received a rousing welcome. Sevon and Jullene offer a cute singing and talking skit.

REAR ADMIRAL RETIRES.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—Having reached the age limit for active service, Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, one of the best known officers of the navy, was placed on the retired list today. Rear Admiral Ward is a native of Philadelphia and a graduate of the United States Naval Academy of the class of '71. He commanded the Wasp in the war with Spain and was advanced in grade for conspicuous service in battle. Last year he was in command of the dreadnought division of the Atlantic fleet, from which command he was transferred to the post of supervisor of the harbor of New York.

STUDEBAKER CELEBRATES HIS EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 10.—John Mohler Studebaker, the sole survivor of the famous Studebaker brothers who developed the great business which annually builds and markets more automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles than any manufacturer in the world, celebrated his eightieth birthday today. He is still enjoying fairly good health and, although he retired from the active management of the business several years ago, he is still taking an active interest in the work and keeps in close touch with all its departments.

John M. Studebaker was born in Gettysburg, Pa., October 10, 1833, the son of John and Rebecca (Mohler) Studebaker. He was only two years of age when his parents removed to Ashland county, Ohio. There he received a common education and in 1851 removed with his parents and the other children to South Bend, Ind. During the following winter John made the woodwork for a wagon, for which his brothers Henry and Clem made the iron work. In this wagon the three brothers and several other young men went to California in search of gold. The company was disbanded in Hangtown, Cal., on August 31, 1853. John found employment with a blacksmith whose partner he became. Five years later he returned to South Bend, bought his brother Henry's interest in the firm of Studebaker Brothers, which then became C. & J. M. Studebaker. Later two other brothers joined the firm, which was changed into the Studebaker Brothers Manufacturing Company and gradually developed into the largest works for the manufacture of all kinds of horse-drawn vehicles in the world. When automobiles were first introduced the company took up their manufacture and became one of the largest producers in the world.

TRENTON BASEBALL POOLS CAUSE THIRTEEN ARRESTS

Trenton, Oct. 10—Thirteen arrests have been made in connction with the alleged extensive operation of pools on baseball games. All the men were released in $300 bail each.

Among those seized are Charles G. Fink, a barber, of 551 Centre street; Lawrence Swetham, a saloon keeper, of East State and Chambers streets, Harry Morgan, a saloon keeper, of 165 South Broad street; Arthur Bray, Jr., of 54 Washington street, David Cantwell, of 112 Fountain avenue; Louis Levine, Harry Shaw, Frank Avery, John Brady, Walter Cody, Herman Bastian and Fred Coutier.

The departure of the cook or maid does not prostrate the lady who knows the efficiency of Press want ads.

And want ad-reading servants are of the desirable class.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 17.

SUPPOSE you were to buttonhole every man you meet and ask him if he wants to rent that house of yours.

You'd have an awful job, wouldn't you?

And some of the men you'd stop would resent the action because they did not happen to be at all interested in you or your proposition.

But suppose you were to insert a little WANT AD. in the "FOR RENT" column. You'd reach more people in twenty-four hours than you could hope to buttonhole in twenty-four days, wouldn't you?

And the people you would reach would be interested in renting a house, or they wouldn't be reading your ad.

Isn't that so?

The WANT AD. columns are used as a great catalog by newspaper readers.

They refer to that catalog—which is always up-to-the-minute—whenever they want anything—anything from domestic service to a completely furnished home, anything from a second-hand sewing machine to a Business Opportunity involving the investment of thousands of dollars.

You can sell what you do not need or buy what you do need through a WANT AD.

Try it some time.

HIS PROPHETIC DREAM.

Curious Story of a Warning That Came From Slumberland.

The following prophetic dream was related by the president of a theological seminary:

It had been the custom of one of the professors to invite all the students, with members of the faculty, to dinner at a hotel on the annual Thanksgiving day. On the morning of that day the wife of this professor suddenly fell dead in her dressing room at 8 o'clock.

That morning at 7 o'clock one of the students woke up from a bad dream. He had dreamed that he sat down with the usual company at the Thanksgiving dinner and that immediately one of his fellow students rose in his place, saying that it was his painful duty to announce to the company that the wife of their host had suddenly died at 8 o'clock that morning.

This dream, however, he had instantly banished from his mind as an uncanny probability and had thought no more about it. But on going to the dinner and taking his seat with the company he was unspeakably amazed to see the student seen in the dream rise and to hear him make the announcement made in the dream.—Exchange.

SYMBOLS IN ARITHMETIC.

Origin of the Plus, Minus, Multiplication and Division Signs.

When you make the sign of + in a problem of addition, perhaps you do not know that you are really using the first letter of the word "plus" in a somewhat altered form. At first the capital letter P was used, but as it was made more and more quickly and carelessly the top part of the letter became merely a horizontal line drawn across the edge of the vertical.

The sign used in subtraction has even a stranger history. The word minus was first shortened into "mns," with a horizontal line above to indicate the contraction; after awhile only the letter m, with the line above it, was used, and finally the letter was dropped, and now we have only the hastily made horizontal line.

As multiplication is but a short form of addition, the plus sign was turned sidewise into a character resembling the letter X.

Division was formerly indicated by placing the dividend above a horizontal line and the divisor below. In order to save space in printing the dividend was placed to the left and the divisor to the right, with a simple lot in place of each.—Youth's Companion.

"Either" and "Neither."

There are two or three things about these two words that one should remember. In the first place, they should never be used in connection with more than two things—as: "It was either Tuesday or Wednesday," not "either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday;" "It was neither Tuesday nor Wednesday," not "neither Tuesday, Wednesday nor Thursday." Then, either should not be used in the sense of each, as "they walked on, one on either side of the road." It should be one on "each" side of the road. The third caution is about the pronunciation. Some persons insist that they should be pronounced "i-ther" and "ni-ther," with the "i" long. But this is more an affectation perhaps than anything else. The best authorities agree that the right pronunciation is "e-ther" and "ne-ther."—New York World.

Sly Old Commodore.

"When Commodore Vanderbilt was alive," says a New York Central official, "the board of directors of the New York Central used to find their work all cut out for them when they met. All they had to do was to ratify his plans and adjourn. Yet they had their uses. Occasionally a man would come to him with some scheme which he did not care to refuse outright.

"'My directors are a difficult body of men to handle,' he would say. 'I'll submit it to 'em, but I warn you that they are hard to manage.'

"The matter would be submitted to the board when it assembled and promptly rejected.

"'There,' the commodore would say when his visitor came to learn the result. 'I did the best I could, but I told you in advance that my directors were an obstinate lot.'"

It Is Obtainable.

He was young, though of a serious turn of mind. Conversation was lagging, and she was earnestly hoping he would take his leave. Her musings were interrupted, however, by him asking:

"Do you think perfection is ever actually attained in this life, Miss Alice?"

"Yes," she answered quickly, "some people become perfect bores."—Denver Republican.

The Worried Widower.

"He says his poor children need another mother."

"Then why doesn't he take one home to them?"

"It seems that the children pay the rent, and they are very hard to convince."—Exchange.

Her Raven Hair.

"Some novelists don't know what they're talking about. Here's one who speaks of a girl's 'raven hair.'"

"What's wrong with it?"

"All wrong. Ravens don't wear hair. They wear feathers!"—Liverpool Mercury.

GIANTS' MANAGER HAS LED HIS TRUMP CARD AND END IS NEAR

By JAMES J. McNAMEE

(Sporting Editor of the Plainfield Daily Press)

Nothing remains to be staged in the 1913 World's Series program but to hand the strip of bunting to the Athletics and award the Connie Mack crew the lion's share of the melon. As far as the Giants are concerned the series is ancient history and Johnny McGraw has lost another opportunity to add to his laurels as a manager of baseball artists. The series has resolved itself into a mere formality in cmopleting the schedule as outlined two weeks ago and draws thousands of dollars a day from the innocent baseball-mad public. Until yesterday, I was a Giant rooter and anticipated a turn of tide in favor of McGraw and held high hopes of seeing the 1913 title flag quaffed by the breezes that creep into the bluff beneath Coogan's, but yesterday's struggle obliterated my last fond hope and I look upon Connie Mack's crew as the likely and deserving winners. Pitted against McGillicuddy's well-oiled and smooth-working infield, the Giants made a sorrowful appearance and resembled some great piece of machinery that had become clogged with waste and grit. The pep and ginger that has made the Gothamites the terror of National League opponents was a thing of the past and as rare as a seven-dollar bill. The Giants' playing was cold and listless and compared favorably with the climatic conditions that have surrounded this series up to the present time. If the winner of the first contest is acknowledged to have the jump on the other nine, the team that comes out with colors floating in the breeze after the count has been tied up and wins the third contest, must be acknowledged to have a hop, step and jump.

Of course, both contenders pull for clear weather, but I, for one, think that Johnny McGraw has dealt his last trump card and is resigned to await the ultimate outcome. It may be prolonged for one game or three games, but the Athletics will snatch the pennant in the end and have another good time at the expense of the New York delegation.

Any team is likely to have an off day during a crucial series and go up in smoke before a hostile crowd of rooters, but the McGraw clan had everything in its favor yesterday afternoon, including home grounds, home supporters and a veteran to pit against an untried youngster who has only recently cut his second teeth. Individualism continues to sway the issue of this series and the battery of the Athletic machine must this time be elevated to the Hall of the Select with such notables for companions as "Big Six" Mathewson, "Home-Run" Baker, "Eddie" Collins and Plank.

Leslie J. (Bullet Joe) Bush was the choice of the shrewd and wiley Connie Mack and the youngster, yet in his 'teens, delivered the goods and in the short interval of two hours was hoisted to the loftiest shelf of baseball immortals. Handling his shoots was another youngster, two years his senior, and besides pulling in the lightning-like bullets from the gattling gun's cross fire, Schang pounded out a clout that landed in an artificial menagerie in the right field bleachers and he trotted around the bases while the hostile mob let forth the first real exuberance of the contest, acknowledging the rival player the hero of the day and the idol of Gotham fans for the time being.

In effectiveness, Bush rivaled Plank and Mathewson of the day previous. Coupling great speed with a sharp breaking curve, and remarkable change of pace, he held the McGraw proteges to five scattered hits, two of which were clean-cut smashes. Schang is a second Archer. The youngster stood on the tips of his toes from the minute the contest started until the final out was registered and although his throw to bases was wild on two occasions this could be accounted for in some measure to the fact that Bush let a hard ball fly at the critical moment and it was hard for the backstop to get his poise to hurl the pellet.

On the other hand, "Big Jeff" Tesreau, the renowned descendant of Charlemagne, had nothing on his spitter, and the slavia pill was all that he attempted to put over the rubber. Every time he wound up for the moist throw, the motion was followed a second later by a resounding whack from the batter's willow. It just wouldn't break and his slow ball was N. G. against the heavy artillery of the opposition.

As a further means of holding up the struggle and turning a World's Series fight into a funeral procession, McGraw's men tried the waiting stunt, but were foiled by the cunning of Bush. Their bats needed soldering for they were full of holes and the Giants knew this, and knowing, tried to appear as big game hunters by beating around the Bush. Time after time they worked the wiley Leslie J. for a trio of balls before the first strike had been recorded only to have the little boy groove two in quick succession and let the third fly in the spot where it had to be spoiled by the batter without bearing fruit.

Summed up and balanced, the Giants are an inferior club when pitted against the Athletics and this series will prove the superiority of the Mack regiment over the team that has made the Metropolis famous throughout the country. Conditions, of course, alter the circumstances, but the odds were not great enough yesterday to atone for any deficiency on the part of the McGraw herd. Little by little the Giants are losing their grasp on the bunting and within the next two days the climax will be reached and the baseball public satisfied or dissatisfied.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is meant by a "Spitball?" O. B.

Answer—That's a baseball with a little moisture on it, Olive. When the pitcher gets ready to throw the ball he moistens the sphere so that there is a wet place on it about the size of a half dollar and when he throws it he gives it a twist on the wet spot, making it jump as it reaches the batter.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any premium on an 1841 dime? M. S.

Answer—Nothing doing, old scout.

C. R. E.—You had better consult a lawyer.—Sporting Ed.

Answer—They certainly do.

Sporting Editor:

Query—If I went to New York as late as 11.52 o'clock Saturday morning would I have any chance of getting into the Polo Grounds to see the game? C. A. R.

Answer—Your chances would be exceedingly slim, Taxie, old top.

C.L.S.—Your query is too personal. This is the twentieth century and people still have to keep under cover when walking on the street to escape criticism.

SCORE AGAINST THE GIANTS DRIVES FAN TO "ALIMONY CLUB."

New York, Oct. 10.—"When I saw the score was 5 to 0 against the Giants in the fifth inning I said to myself, Me for Ludlow street jail.' I might just as well be there as outside. So here's my grip with two suits of underwear and some baseball dope. I figure that I can stay over at Ludlow hotel for six months, wipe away that $2,150 of alimony, and came out in April in time for the opening game. Me for jail."

So spoke Henry A. Ludlam yesterday as he stood before Sheriff Harburger, suit case in hand. He owes his wife, Mary Ludlam, alimony awarded her after separation from her husband. She had him declared in contempt of court and he voluntarily declared himself ready for the Alimony Club.

Ludlam is a former Brooklyn real estate dealer. In company of two deputy sheriffs, as his guests, he rolled over to the Ludlow street "Club House" in a taxicab.

The Consistory of Trinity Reformed church held its monthly meeting, last night, and transacted routine business.

SUPERIOR TWIRLING BEAT M'GRAW IN THE THIRD BIG GAME—MARTIN

By JACK MARTIN

(Of the BOSTON NATIONALS)

When Leslie J. Bush grows into a tree he will be a great help to Connie Mack's Athletics, if his work of yesterday afternoon is a fair sample of what the youngster has in him and what is yet to come. Plucked for the big show by the veteran Mack, who sent him to the mound as a last resort, the boy put the Philadelphia club in the running and as a result of his stellar twirling the Quakertown stock soared several points during the afternoon. The world's champions of 1908 now look like a two to one shot and little short of a miracle will head them off in their wild dash for the coveted flag. Mack had to stretch his managerial ability to a breaking point yesterday afternoon, but out of his pack of hurlers he drew one who should have been returned an ace, for the pair of tallies that the Giants got were little short of gifts.

In Wednesday's resume of the initial game I stated that the American League pitchers were better than those in the senior circuit and the batting of the Giants in the first trio of battles has substantiated my statement. Pitted against the cream of American League talent, the Giants have proven woefully deficient with the wagon tongue, and have found the pitching they have to bat against in a world's series is far superior to the best in the National League race. Even the untried Joe Bush was a puzzle to the New York sluggers and but two clean-cut bingles were plucked from his offerings yesterday.

Many were the harsh words hurled at the head of Arthur Fletcher for giving the pill an aerial ride to the bleachers, letting in two markers in the first time up, but an infielder playing the game behind a spit-ball artist finds the ball illusive at times. When a ball is hard hit like those of yesterday, the infielder, in his anxiety to make a putout, will place his index finger on the moist portion of the spheriod and as a consequence heave it wildly. A ball coated with saliva is a terror to infielders and no matter how accurate they may be under ordinary and normal circumstances they are bound to be in the chasm of danger in handling the pill. There is nothing to do but cut it loose and let it take its course whether the route be a putout via first base or a lost ball in the stands. Tesreau was hurling the spitter almost entirely yesterday and I do not lay the brunt of the blame on Fletcher's shoulders as so many dopesters have already done. It was plainly an Athletic day and the two runs that simmered across the gutta percha in the first frame did not win the game.

Statistics comparing the base hit column credited to the New Yorkers with that of the Athletics, show that the team now holding the upper hand is far in the front and as a pace setter the Athletics are running away from McGraw's men who are in a slump. Credit for yesterday's victory should be accorded to the juvenile battery, Bush and Schang, and to the hitting of Collins and Baker. Poor pitching on the part of the New York gunners had much to do with the outcome and the Athletics got to them from the start, hammering the horsehide whenever they felt so inclined.

I think that the Athletics, measured up in all departments, outclass the Giants, which the series up to this time has shown with much emphasis. Many of the skeptical fans were wont to criticize and rake over young Schang for a couple of his poor heaves to the keystone bag, which were plainly off color. Schang, however, got the ball while in an unpoised position and had some difficulty in righting himself before letting the ball loose. This backstop has had to put up with the cross-fire slants of two right handers during the present series and had either one of these twirlers been left handers it is probable that he would have caught his base pilferers standing up and cold. A catcher is throwing at a disadvantage with a postsider on the hillock and with a southpaw doing the honors he is always assured of good support in holding the runner to the base at the initial corner. Personally, I think Schang is just making his auspicious debut and this new star will lead the American League during the season of 1914. He has the goods and everything that goes to make a ball player, including ability to hit, field and throw.

Many have been the queries ventured by ardent rooters concerning the reasons for the Athletics' spectacular showing during the big series. In answering this question there is but one named that needs mention and that is the one hinged to and fostered by Eddie Murphy, the lead-off man. Murphy, a good hitter, a good base runner and a man possessing remarkable ability as a base getter, cannot be over-estimated in value by the critics and is largely responsible for the present good showing. With Murphy on the cushions, and with such hit garnerers as Collins, Baker and McInnis ready to wield the willow, a counter is almost assured.

With the Giants matters are different. McGraw lacks a lead-off man and such hitters as Collins, Baker and McInnis are unknown in Gotham.

I pick either Bender or Shawkey as Mack's choice for the Athletics today and either Marquard or Demaree for the Giants. Shawkey or Demaree have yet to make their first appearance in a world's series and some fans are awaiting their appearance with interest, either being capable of springing something phenomenal. Shawkey is a better pitcher now that he has been garbed in American League regalia because he has a chance to rest up between appearances, which he did not get in the International circuit. Timely hitting won the game for Philadelphia yesterday in another hazy atmosphere and we await results at a time when the sun shines as it promises to do this afternoon.

"MAC" SAYS

McGraw's men were poor hunters because they couldn't beat around the Bush. Another name added to our Hall of Fame. Wonder who will make his debut this afternoon?

When pitted against the Athletics, McGraw's men appear like a group of cattle grazing in a stone quarry. It might have been an off day for the New Yorkers but it wasn't necessary to rub it in to the fans so hard.

One of the most discouraging stunts of the afternoon was pulled off by no other personage than Larry Doyle, Captain of the Giants. His stunt was worse than the schoolboy article and any other player getting away with a similar act in a world's series would be shot at sunrise. After hitting the ball in the ninth the New York leader failed to run out the hit but stood yawning at the home station. That's organized baseball all right.

We predict that if the Giant crew doesn't come through with a win this afternoon it will be all over by tomorrow night.

Young Mr. Bush won his game yesterday afternoon because he had lots of nerve and when the Giant's conspired to try his mettle by waiting him out, he made them look like so many novices.

Eddie Collins failed to enter the home run circle yesterday, although he clouted the horsehide to the right field bleachers three different times.

Wally Schang was some catcher when he was in the International League but he has improved 1,000 per cent since that time. Yesterday's performance is proof enough.

Dopesters have been praying for dark days for the Giant's pitchers. The Athletics clout the ball in a misty atmosphere to the four corners of the field, what will they do when the sun opens their eyes

Bill Penn knew a thing or two when he founded the little old Quakertown and picked it as a resting place. Bill might have had some dope about the Athletics and Connie Mack's wonderful array of sluggers.

Can Demaree stop the Athletics? It hardly seems possible after the treatment we have seen the other stars undergo. Mack will probably come back with Bender to lay.

Wonder how it feels to make a home run? Have you ever thought of the player's innermost feelings as he leisurely trots around the sacks after hiding the ball in a cozy nook in the grandstand?

The Athletics let Jeff Tesreau's fast ball go by and slugged his spitter. This was a new one that we were not looking for.

They told us the Athletics couldn't hit the slavia pill but they certainly got to Jeff.

FIGHTS SCHEDULED TONIGHT.

Mike Gibbons vs. "Spike" Kelly, 10 rounds, at Kenosha, Wis.

Eddie Campi vs. Frankie Burns, 10 rounds, at Denver, Colo.

HOLY CROSS DRILL.

Coach Percy V. Martin, of the Holy Cross baseball team, has issued a call for practice tonight and all candidates are requested to be on hand for the final workout for tomorrow's game. The second contest of the season is expected to be a hot one and team will be given a hard drill tonight.

MACK PICKED BUSH WHEN ONLY A RECRUIT FOR SECOND BENDER.

Leslie Joseph Bush, pitching hero of yesterday's victory for the Athletics over the Giants, furnishes another illustration of Connie Mack's marvelous intuition when it comes to seeing a real ballplayer in unpromising material.

Bush is now serving his first full year in the big leagues. He made his debut with the Athletics late in September 1912, coming from the Missoula (Montana) Club, of the Union Association. In Bush's first game, against the Detroit Tigers, the visitors made a bushel of hits. The day previous Crabb, another pitching recruit for the Athletics, held the Tigers to one run.

"I suppose Bush won't do; but Crabb looks like a wonder," remarked a critic to Connie Mack.

"No; you've get it wrong," said Mack.

"Bush will make another Bender, but I am afraid this company is too fast for Crabb."

Bush comes from the same locality as does Bender, having been born in Brainerd, Minn., on November 27, 1893.

Unofficial figures of this year's work in the American League indicate that Bush took part in 38 games. He won 13 and lost 7, for a percentage of .650.

HOLY CROSS WILL PLAY NEWARKERS

Franklin A. A. Due Here Tomorrow to Lineup Against the Borough Warriors.

Holy Cross will play its second gridiron battle of the season on Cricket Field tomorrow afternoon when Manager Doyle pits his regiment of warriors against the Franklin A. A. crew of Newark. Encouraged by the victory of last Saturday, when the whitewash brush was wielded with telling effect by the boroughites over the Pearl A. C. eleven of Elizabeth, the Holy Cross crew will tackle the speedy Franklins with an idea to keeping their goal line uncrossed and the visitors will have to play some superhuman football in order to keep in the running.

The Franklin eleven is one of the strongest aggregations in Newark and since its organization in 1909 has twenty-five victories to its credit with five defeats and four ties.

The lineup:

FRANKLIN A. A.	HOLY CROSS.
Judge Wuensch	Webster, Bremble
	Left End.
Graham	Hamilton, Ruttledge
	Left Tackle.
Judge Coburn	Glover, Payne
	Left Guard.
Banks	Carty
	Center.
Leslie Noll	Harrigan, Moor
	Right Guard.
Engelke	Caulfield, Bellows
	Right Tackle.
Struble (Capt)	Manning, Mulford, Cumming
	Right End.
Kiefer	Coyle
	Quarterback.
Sonn Hadfield	J. Ricketts
	Left Half.
Hollweg	T. Ricketts, Lee
	Right Half.
Gillin	Wilson
	Full Back.

THREE NEW PLAYERS ON SOCCER ELEVEN

When the Plainfield Association Football Club's eleven takes the field tomorrow against the strong Irish-American players, of Harrison, three new faces will be seen in the local line-up. The contest will start at 3 o'clock and will be played on the Clinton avenue grounds, known as Soccer Field.

This will be the third game on the Plainfield team's schedule and it has yet to be humbled in defeat. The first game, played against the Alley Boys, of Newark, champions of the Inter-City Soccer League, resulted in a tie, the score being 2 to 2. Last Saturday the home boys won by a comfortable majority from an Elizabeth aggregation. Brown and Black are two new half backs that have been signed up by Manager Kenny, and Alton, another new comer, will play one of the forwards. The addition of these men to the local's lineup should increase the Plainfielders' playing strength considerably, as all are said to be fast men.

The probable lineup: J. McNiece, goal; F. Craig, W. Braidwood, backs; F. Buckland, Black and Brown, half backs; F. Kenny, centre; W. Spalding and W. Johnson, right wings; T. Gardner and Alton, left wings; J. Gardner, C. Carberry, J. McCrea, reserves. J. Henderson, referee.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

A woman is chief factory inspector of Switzerland.

Pittsburgh municipal laborers have been unionized.

An occupational disease law is now in effect in Missouri.

Labor temples are to be erected in Springfield, O., and Bellingham, Wash.

The International Hodcarriers' Union pays its president $4,500 per year.

Hanover, Germany, employs more than twenty-one thousand persons in its rubber industry.

The American Federation of Labor meets in annual convention at Seattle, Wash., on November 10.

The latest reports show that more than 50,000 men are employed as coal miners in the Pacific Northwest.

The United Textile Workers of America will hold their convention at Philadelphia, Pa., the week beginning October 20.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, with about 5,000 delegates, will meet in Calgary, Alta., in 1914.

The Virginia State Federation of Labor will make a strong fight in the Legislature next winter to pass a minimum wage law for women.

Detroit, Mich., has been made the permanent headquarters of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America.

The strike of the granite cutters of Greater New York, which began on May 1, has ended, the strikers returning to work with a wage increase of 50 cents a day.

The report of the fishery board for Scotland for 1913 shows that the number of persons employed in the fisheries and the various industries subsidiary thereto was 90,040.

According to official statistics covering the whole of the German Empire, the employers' organizations now numbering 132,458 members, covering 4,378,275 workers of both sexes.

Under a new law in New York the Industrial Commission may, at its discretion, permit the construction of factories of six stories or under, which are not provided with fireproof stairways.

Members of the Northwestern Cooks' Association will be able hereafter to obtain cooking utensils at headquarters. The plan will be tried for the purpose of sending all members to work thoroughly equipped.

Postal employes in St. Paul, Minn., have organized a co-operative company and opened a store with a view of reducing for themselves the cost of living. Membership is not altogether limited to postal employes.

The directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition are issuing term passes to business agents of trade unions and central councils, admitting them to the grounds in the pursuit of their duties and see that only union men are employed.

CASES DISPOSED OF.

Trenton, Oct. 10.—A complaint against Clarence De Hart, of Newton, who ran down a small boy in that city, was dismissed Wednesday by Commissioner Lippincott, of the department of motor vehicles. Mr. DeHart denied that his car was running fast at the time, and asserted that the accident was unavoidable. The boy was dragged for a short distance before the car came to a standstill. Frank E. Stillman, of Paterson, was reprimanded for driving without a license. He promised to take out a license not later than today. In the event of his failure to do so the proceedings against him will be continued. James E. Prescott, of Passaic, was reprimanded for speeding. The Grace Auto Company, of Asbury Park, was reprimanded for operating several cars on one registration marker. The commissioner dismissed a complaint against William Massopust, of Perth Amboy, who was charged with driving while intoxicated and running into a gutter and damaging a car. The defendant denied the charge of intoxication.

AUTO CASES DROPPED.

Trenton, Oct. 10.—With the understanding that in the future he would comply with the law, the complaint against L. D. Hull, of Weehawken, for permitting his car to be driven by an unlicensed driver, was dismissed by Commissioner Lippincott, of the motor vehicle department. Another case dismissed was that against C. A. De Goll, of Elizabeth, who was charged with using markers on machines issued to other cars. Sentence was suspended in the case of Jacob E. Koellisch, of Jersey City. He was charged with driving a car without a license. William Stites, of Plainfield, who was before the commissioner on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated, denied the allegation. Mr. Lippincott dismissed the complaint.

Edward Baker has removed from 120 Plainfield avenue to 116 Central avenue.

STOKES WANTS BANKS TO OBSERVE COLUMBUS DAY

Trenton, Oct. 10.—Former Governor E. C. Stokes, as president of the Mechanics Bank, has sent a letter to W. J. Field, secretary of the New Jersey State Banking Association, asking that an effort be made at once to get the banks to observe "Columbus Day" as a holiday on Monday, October 13.

PROHIBITION CANDIDATE ADDRESSES PRESBYTERY

The resignation of Rev. J. B. Dare, as pastor of the Lower Valley and the Cokesbury Presbyterian churches, was accepted at the fall session of the Presbytery of Elizabeth at Westfield. Mr. Dare will retire from these churches. Rev. John T. Kerr and Elias D. Smith were re-elected trustees of Presbytery to serve for five years. Rev. Orin L. Pride was dismissed to the Presbytery of Duluth.

Rev. Dr. J. G. Mason, who is the Prohibition candidate for Governor, made a brief and humorous talk in introducing the Rev. E. I. Stearns, the superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League. The latter, in a forceful address, stated that on Friday, October 10, at Columbus, Ohio, the formal move would be made for the securing of nation-wide prohibition by an amendment to the Constitution. He characterized New Jersey as the worst rum-ridden State in the Union.

CHARGES PREFERRED AGAINST HACKENSACK POLICE CHIEF

Hackensack, Oct. 10.—Charges against Chief of Police Jacob Dunn have been made before the Hackensack Improvement Commission, by Alexander H. G. Maidment, a lawyer, of this city.

The charges are the outcome of a damage suit brought against Dunn on a charge of false arrest. John Ruffo, of this city, seeks to recover $500 damages from the chief. The case was tried in the Third Judicial District Court before Judge Doremus, October 3, judgment being reserved.

Other charges may be preferred against the chief at the next meeting of the commission, November 3. The chief was arrested Friday on a charge of assault and battery on Mitt Curry, colored. It is said Dunn assaulted Curry because he said "Hello, Jake."

Other charges are that a policeman was detailed by the chief to guard the house of a town official, who was out of town; that Dunn, in violation of the police ordinance, is frequenty seen on duty without his uniform; that he discharged a prisoner arrested on a warrant issued by a justice of the peace; that he held a person arrested on suspicion of having committed a crime in another State for a week until officers arrived to take the man away; that the chief, not a deputy sheriff, turned the prisoner over, and that no receipt of the man's delivery ever was filed at the county offices or at Trenton.

PRINCETON GLEE CLUB PICKED.

Princeton, Oct. 10.—Princeton's 1913 Glee Club will be composed of men selected after trials by Charles Egbert Burnham, director of the university choir, in consultation with Wendell Speers Kuhn, 1914, of Pittsburgh, who leads the glee club this year. The club will be made up as follows: First tenors—William F. Orbison, 1915; Edwin M. Roberts, 1915; E. B. Wood, 1915; James Russell, 1916; Benjamin Bush, 1917; W. G. Heyward, 1917. SISTERS HAVE DOUBLE WEDDING

Asbury Park, Oct. 10.—A double wedding took place Wednesday in the parsonage of the Wall Methodist Episcopal church, when the Misses Lila and Margaret Morton, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Morton of McCabe avenue, Bradley Beach, were married, respectively, to David W. Newman, of Belmar, and Walter G. Smith, of Englishtown. The Rev. George F. Smith officiated. The Misses Morton wore traveling gowns, and immediately after the ceremony started with their husbands in automobiles for Haines Falls, N. Y., where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Newman will reside in Belmar, and Mr. and Mrs. Smith will live in Freehold. Mr. Newman is engaged in the coal business, and Mr. Smith in the lumber trade.

Mrs. S. R. McCracken, of Middlebush, was admitted to St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, yesterday, for treatment. She was formerly Miss Katie Hepner, of this city.

CONGRESS PROBE FOR BEEF TRUST

House Members Promise Kinkead Searching Inquiry.

HAS EVIDENCE, HE SAYS

Mr. Kinkead Declares That if Investigation Is Made There Would Be No Question of Startling Exposures That Would Develop—Knows of Operations in New Jersey.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 10.—Congressman Kinkead of New Jersey, representing the Jersey City district, who recently introduced in the house at Washington a resolution for an investigation of the beef trust, has been assured by leading members of the house judiciary committee that the committee will make a sweeping investigation the coming winter.

Mr. Kinkead declared that if the investigation was made there would be no question of the startling exposures that would develop. He believes it inevitable that it will open the way to criminal prosecutions. He said he had evidences regarding the operations of the trust in New Jersey that alone would reveal abuses of a grave character which ought to be punished by sending the men responsible to jail.

"If the attorney general wants to better conditions in this country," said Mr. Kinkead, "my advice is to devote nine-tenths of his time to the beef trust and the other one-tenth to the tobacco and other trusts. The 5 cents a day which may be exacted from consumers of tobacco or the 5½ cents which is asked by the sugar trust for a pound of sugar do not cause any serious complaint that purchasers are not getting their money's worth, but everybody knows that he housekeeper who buys steak, chops and other kinds of meats at present prices is not getting the value for which she pays and is compeled to pay prices that are indefensibly exorbitant."

TORREON CAPTURED BY MEXICAN REBELS

Send Expedition to Relieve Stranded Americans.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Confirmation of the reported capture of the city of Torreon by Mexican rebel forces was received at the state department.

The department also was informed that a special train bearing American and other foreigners from Torreon which left just before the capture of the city was stranded at Pomona on account of a congestion of traffic, eleven military trains being ahead of it. The death of one infant and also a birth were reported from the refugee train. A relief expedition has been sent from Monterey to give all aid possible to the refugees.

From Eagle Pass it was reported yesterday that about 10,000 Mexican refugees have come into that city from Piedras Negras, just across the border, in the last few days. The Mexicans are under guard and will be sent back in a few days. They say their lives are in danger in Piedras Negras because of the occupation of the former rebel capital by the federal forces.

Weather Forecast.

Cloudy today; tomorrow unsettled, probably rain; light to moderate variable winds.

A Graceful Wrap-Like Coat By Buzenet Reproduced in Imported "Radyne" at $25

A versatile Coat is what it might be called—for it is just as appropriate for evening wear or for motoring as it is for pedestrian wear.

And although it is a loose and comfy Coat, its remarkable lines give the figure the new Turkish silhouette.

Considering the fine quality of the "Radyne," its large collar of taupe-dyed moufflon (looks like gray fox) and its peau de cygne lining, this Coat should be at least $40. In Another wrap-like Coat of the new Scotch plaid-back Chinchilla, bound all around with braid, is $17.50.

A $45 English Coat Reproduced in Boucle at $15

This is the clever model that recently arrived from London—the one with the Japanese back and drooping shoulders. In blue and black, with plush collar.

Two other new models in boucle at $15—one is lined with satin, the other is half-lined.

Coats of a New Curled Worsted at $15

In a new three-quarters length style, with collars and cuffs of plush. Lined with satin, also interlined. Third Floor

Mme. Reboux's Petite Chapeau With the Dashing Bow

Reproduced for the First Time at $10

The Era of the Bow has just begun!

Indeed, the ribbon bow will be one of the dominant features of millinery since the Government has prohibited the importation of certain plumages that also have the faculty of giving that dashing touch.

This Reboux model, which we shall present tomorrow, is a fine hand-made hat of black velvet, with large bow of black moire silk of the best quality. Tres chic!

The John Wanamaker Store

The Three Largest Days in Domestic Rug Selling

was the result of our extraordinary offering of Whittall rugs. Not all the duplicate rugs, however, arrived in time to share in the selling. A carload arrived Wednesday night, and the hundreds of rugs in it are being placed on the floor today.

So That For Saturday

please note that we began the sale with 11,539 rugs in 109 sizes and 359 selections; we can promise

A Larger Selection of WHITTALL Rugs Than in All Other Stores in New York Combined

—regular Whittall stocks purchased under the extraordinary circumstances following the explosion of August 25, at the Whittall mill.

Every Rug Carries the full Regular Wanamaker Guarantee

During the week many business men availed themselves of the low prices and large assortment in this extraordinary sale; because—

(1) Whittall designs and colorings are Oriental; each rug is in itself the ground-work of a color scheme.

(2) Whittall wool is Oriental, long-stapled; firm, resilient; "where the wear is hardest Whittall rugs wear best."

There will be more than one hundred sizes and almost 300 selections in the sale Saturday. The following are examples of the choice:

CRITICISM SURPRISE TO MRS. PANKHURST

Can't Believe That She Will Not Be Welcome.

Paris, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, preparing to sail next week for New York, said that she thinks it proper for her to take money for her American speeches and that she does not believe that Dr. Anna Shaw and other American suffragists seriously criticised her for her intention to do so.

"I cannot believe that Dr. Shaw expressed disapproval of my speaking for money or that she was correctly quoted as saying she regrets my coming," Mrs. Pankhurst said. "There must be some mistake. I chose this time for an American trip because the British parliament is not sitting, and I am fully recovered from the ravages of my dreadful prison experiences.

"I believe that my contract with Americans will encourage both them and me. I will not get the money that I collect. It will go to the British suffragists. They are doing splendidly. I shall not advise militancy in America. I shall only explain our own fight and our attitude on the social evil questions. Militancy is not necessary in America. In England we could not obtain the ballot without it."

SOUNDS PEACE NOTE.

Yuan Shih Kai to Deliver First Message to Parliament.

Peking, Oct. 10.—The friendly intentions of the Chinese government toward foreign interests will be strongly emphasized in President Yuan Shi Kai's message to parliament on the occasion of his inauguration. On this subject he says:

"I hereby declare that all treaties, conventions and other engagements entered into by the former Manchu and provisional republican governments with foreign governments shall be strictly observed and that all contracts duly concluded by former Chinese governments with foreign companies and individuals shall also be strictly observed.

"All rights, privileges and immunities enjoyed by foreigners in China by virtue of international engagements, national enactments and established usages are hereby confirmed.

"This declaration I make with a view of maintaining international amity and peace."

BRITISH RIVAL FOR PANAMA

Sea Level Canal Through Colombia Said to Be Considered.

New Orleans, Oct. 10.—Reports of a British financed and British built sea to sea canal in Colombia as a rival to the Panama was revived here when Ernest Vlepetko, an engineer, who has lately been at the isthmus, told that it was commonly believed by the canal commission that Great Britain is about to build such a canal.

Mr. Bunau-Varilla is said to be on his way to Colombia to inspect plans for a canal by the Atrato river route. The scheme intends a sea level canal, avoiding the use of locks.

MRS. O'LEARY'S COW'S DAY

Forty-two Years Ago Famous Milker Kicked Lamp That Fired Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Forty-two years ago Mrs. O'Leary's famous cow kicked over a lamp, according to tradition, setting off the blaze that started the great Chicago fire of 1871.

The anniversary was marked in Chicago and throughout Illinois yesterday as "fire prevention" day by Governor Dunne's proclamation.

EXACT SIZE OF THE HANDY ATLAS IS 6x8 INCHES

CONTAINS 90 BEAUTIFULLY COLORED MAP PLATES

An absolutely reliable, up-to-date work, containing a NEW SERIES OF MAPS, printed IN COLORS; superior in construction to, and more complete in detail than any other of similar size and price.

It contains a separate RAILROAD MAP OF EACH STATE AND TERRITORY; maps of each of our insular possessions, and of every other portion of the globe, printed in colors from new plates. In the maps of our states and territories and of the provinces of Canada, RAILROADS ARE NAMED, and stations are shown, in a very complete manner. These, and all other details, are brought down to as recent date as in any of the more expensive atlases.

Alphabetically arranged lists of cities give the LATEST POPULATION STATISTICS.

1910 CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Giving new population figures of all States, Territories and the Principal Cities. Also the latest population figures of foreign countries and cities.

AMONG THE MANY INSTRUCTIVE AND ATTRACTIVE FEATURES OF THIS NEW WORK ARE THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL MAPS AND DIAGRAMS:

THE COMMERCIAL LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD—Showing, in separate colors, the languages common to the commerce of each country.

STATE ORGANIZATIONS—Showing, in colors, the form of government of each country and colony.

TIMBER SUPPLY OF THE WORLD—Showing, in color, the principal and minor sources of supply.

THE WORLD ON THE EQUIVALENT PROJECTION—On this map all areas appear in their true proportion.

ARTIC REGIONS—Showing the route of all explorers, including the recent expedition of Peary. The newly chartered coast of northeast Greenland, as determined by the Mylius Erichsen expedition, is shown.

ANTARTIC REGIONS—Showing the routes of all explorers, including the expeditions of Scott and Shackleton.

OUR ISLANDS IN THE PACIFIC—Showing islands prominently, with cables, steamship routes, etc.

PARKER HAMMERS SULZER DEFENSE

No Answer to Any Material Facts, He Says.

SARECKY AN APT SCHOLAR

Governor Must Have Been Proud of His Pupil For His Cleverness, Parker Said In Characterizing Them as Master and Man.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Louis Marshall's defense of William Sulzer, based on the grounds that the governor's offense, even if proved, were not criminal and could not justify conviction, was replied to by Alton B. Parker for the impeachment managers, who asserted that no answer had been given to any material facts put in by the managers.

"If there is an answer in existence," said Mr. Parker, "the respondent's side has not presented any evidence of it. Hence we must rely almost solely upon the evidence presented by the managers."

Mr. Parker went back to the time it was the practice to nominate a man who had a big bank account, in the hope, he said, that the candidate would not only carry himself, but his associates through.

"The time came, though, when the check book was not the measure of the availability of a candidate," declared the lawyer.

Mr. Parker took up the testimony of Sarecky and called the attention of the court to the omission by him from the sworn statement of the campaign contributions.

Sarecky Pupil of Sulzer.

"William Sulzer must have been proud of his pupil for his cleverness, for it was he who took Sarecky out of high school and the only practical education the boy received was in the office of William Sulzer.

"He knew enough to keep out of the statement the Ryan, the Schiff or the Morgenthau contributions. It did not help William Sulzer to have this boy say that he did the best he could in making out the statement. William Sulzer was his master and he knew it was a lie."

Calling attention to the testimony of Allan A. Ryan to the effect that Governor Sulzer had told him over the telephone to "Tell your father I'm the same old Bill," Mr. Parker declared that this suggested that the defendant had been friendly and serviceable to the elder Ryan in the past and was ready to be friendly and serviceable again.

Mr. Parker then took up the contribution of Jacob H. Schiff.

Schiff's Contribution.

"Mr. Schiff knew William Sulzery" he declared. "They had long been friends. But a few days before the nomination at Syracuse Mr. Sulzer called at the banking office of Mr Schiff to express his appreciation of the congratulatory note he had received. Mr. Schiff, a man of affairs and discernment, knew that it was unusual for a candidate for governor to call in person on a man who had tendered his congratulations. He said promptly: 'Is there anything to do?' The answer came quickly from Mr. Sulzer, 'Are you going to contribute to my campaign?' Schiff replied, 'Yes, how much?' Then the check for $2,500 was sent to Sarecky."

Mr. Parker declared that the total amount of contributions made to Governor Sulzer during his campaign was $37,400 in cash and checks. This amount, he declared, was not accounted for in the ante-election sworn statement.

Mr. Marshall early in his address made it plain that the defense is fighting for acquittal almost solely on legal grounds. While practically admitting that the governor had used campaign contributions for his own purpose, he quoted law and precedent to prove that this act does not substantiate the charge of larceny.

EVIDENCE IN SCHMIDT CASE

Papers Sent From Germany Relate to His Sanity.

New York, Oct. 10.—Father Luke J. Evers received from Munich from the father of Hans Schmidt, confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller and discredited priest, this cablegram:

"Papers now on way to New York with full reports of matters relating to court proceeding in Schmidt case. Please hold up proceedings if you can until papers reach you."

These papers relate to the proceedings in which Schmidt was declared insane in Germany.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The dramatization of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson, which comes to the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday night, October 14, was produced under the management of Klaw and Erlanger, whose massive and elaborate productions of "Ben Hur," "The Prince of India" and "The Round Up," are familiar to the theatregoers of this city. The "Rebecca" production while just as elaborate as the three mentioned, contains none of the spectacular features of those plays and does not depend upon sensations to carry it through to success. The scenery of the "Rebecca" production was painted from models and drawings made on the ground to be illustrated. Klaw and Erlanger had their staff of artists on and around and absorbing the atmosphere of the place and it is safe to say that any one familiar with the town of Hollis, Maine, will recognize every scene of the play. There are four acts and five scenes in "Rebecca." The first act shows the brick house, the second scene of the first act is laid in the Cobb's kitchen. It is a new invention of theatrical artisans and is an improvement on anything of the kind ever attempted. The second act is laid in Ladd's dooryard; the third act in the Sawyer's barn, and the fourth act shows another view of the brick house.

Charles Frohman offers a new American drama, "Indian Summer," with John Mason its star and Augustus Thomas its author, to the theatregoers of Plainfield for one performance, Thursday, October 16, at the Plainfield theatre. Such a combination, presenting a trio of such prominence as Mr. Frohman, Mr. Mason and Mr. Thomas, and offering a new American play is a matter of distinct record in the amusement field and their offering will be watched with eager interest. "Indian Summer" is a thoroughly Thomas play. It shows Frank Whitney, once the most famous American painter, returned to his native country after twenty years self exile in France, after being mixed in a scandal that alleged him to be the father of an illegitimate boy. He is shown in a studio at Southampton, Long Island, where he has been working all summer. His ambition has been aroused and his interest in Katherine Harvey, who has been his model for a portrait. Her association and his latent pride being stirred has spurned him to other efforts and three marines painted during this period have brought to him again the fame of former days. Whitney's love finds response from Katherine and she breaks the engagement she had before Whitney's coming with Forrest Grahame, a young district attorney. In his official capacity Grahame is prosecuting Jack Boutell on a charge of murder and discovers that the boy is the one supposed to have been Whitney's illegitimate child. The boy's mother appeals to Whitney for aid and he arranged for the boy's defense. Grahame, believing he has the power to turn Katherine from Whitney attempts to denounce the painter but Mrs. Harvey clears his name and confesses that just before his death her husband, who had been prominent in the ministry, told the truth and that he, Katherine's father, and not Whitney was the father of Jane Boutell's boy. In this denoument Katherine finds that she has found also in the man she loves one who had suffered years of disgrace to shield her and her family in a noble effort to keep scandal from besmirching the church.

High Bridge-Califon.

Mrs. Elizabeth Neighbour and Miss Mary Neighbour, of Lower Valley, are spending a fortnight with Rev. and Mrs. Thomas M. Simonton, of Gladstone.

David Parker, of Califon, recently harvested more than 1,200 pounds of honey from eighteen bee hives.

After a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Laws, of High Bridge, Henry Laws, of San Francisco, left recently for Philadelphia, where he will visit the family of his brother, Thomas Laws, before returning to the West.

Miss Ada M. Hildebrant, of High Bridge, is in Newark. She will visit Roselle before returning.

John Potts is suffering from an injured hand, sustained while at work at the Taylor-Wharton Steel Company's plant at High Bridge. Dr. Edmund Eastwood dressed the injury.

CONVENTION DELEGATES NAMED

Orderliness and Room.

Disorderliness is often an outgrowth of cramped surroundings. The poor, young and overworked wife who must make a home of two or three rooms, take care of three or four children at the same time, and sew and cook and wash and iron, soon gives up the attempt to keep her belongings from overrunning their accommodations. And the woman in a small apartment, who has to keep some of her clothes under the beds in boxes, and the barrel of flour in the linen closet and the carpet sweeper and washboard behind the kitchen door loses, sometimes, much of her instinct to be orderly. If you have not enough places to put things, you simply cannot keep things nicely.

One Woman's Method.

One apartment house dweller once decided that if she could build a house of her own she would have it composed of a broad veranda built about a big open fireplace and a roomy closet for clothes. Another such woman actually had a house built with one room given up for a storeroom—a big, roomy, airy room which would otherwise have made a fourth bedroom on the second floor. She needed the bedoom, but she preferred the storeroom. In it she had an ironing board and an electric iron for pressing clothes, running water and a small clothes bars so that she could wash neckwear and gloves and other finery, shelves along one wall for storing linen and other household supplies, and closets along another wall for the clothes of the family. Each bedroom was equipped with a small closet, just big enough to hold the clothes that were worn each day, and dressing gowns, petticoats and shoes. The storeroom was equipped with a good shoe-cleaning outfit and plenty of clothes brushes and such cleaning agents as gasoline, ammonia and castile soap.

Shelves.

Shelves could be much more made use of than they generally are. Often one clothes closet could be advantageously filled with shelves, which could be divided among several persons. A shelf for shoes, one for hat boxes, one for shirt-waist boxes, one for boxes to hold veils, gloves and other accessories, and even one for lingerie would prove useful.

Shelves that let down from the wall are also useful. They are made and then fastened to a board nailed two or three feet above the floor. They are useful for sewing and cutting, for pastry making and, in a small size, for writing.

Some Cookery Suggestions

APPLE NOVELTIES.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Spaghetti With Tomato Sauce.
Coleslaw.
Surprise Apples.
Milk or Cocoa.

APPLES may be used in many novel and attractive ways by the cook.

An adept in the culinary art uses the following puree as the basis of many attractive dishes:

Making the Puree.

Served alone the puree makes a nice dessert. To prepare it put one pound of peeled and sliced cooking apples into a saucepan with four ounces of leaf sugar, three-quarters of a pint of water and two bay leaves. Cook the fruit to a pulp, then dissolve in it half an ounce of gelatin, rub the puree through a fine sieve, and when cooking mix with it a quarter of a pint of cream, a teaspoonful of vanilla essence or any other liquid flavoring to taste. Now pour the mixture on a clean dish. Then when beginning to set sprinkle with a few drops of green coloring. When this puree is quite set stamp out with a diamond cutter and use.

Surprise Apples.—Take eight apples, peel and core them. Put them into a pan with a little sirup. Cover the pan and let them simmer until tender, turning them from time to time so that they will be cooked through. Have a dish lined with puff paste. Bake this. Then put in a layer of the apple puree mentioned above. Arrange the cored apples in this, filling the centers of each with glace cherries. Warm in the oven, then cover with whites of six eggs beaten to a froth. Sift sugar over them. Replace in the oven till the meringue is set.

Dainty Preparations.

Imperial Apples.—Take a plain charlotte mold, line it with lemon jelly about an eighth of an inch thick and garnish it down the sides and on the top in lines about a quarter of an inch apart with diamond shaped blocks of apple puree, prepared as above, setting them to the shape with a little more of the jelly. Fill up the center with whipped cream.

Apple Snow. — Take two or three large apples, the whites of two eggs and two heaping teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar. Make a stiff puree of the apples and allow it to cool. Whip the white of the egg quite firm, then put into it a dessertspoonful of sugar. Next add a spoonful of puree, and so on alternately until all the ingredients are mixed. Then continue to beat the whole until its bulk is almost doubled and heap it in a pretty dish.

She Liked to Hear About the Tree.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Story Of the Old Willow Tree

DOWN by the brook there grew a big willow tree. Jack and Evelyn loved to go down and play beside it.

"It's a beautiful tree," daddy said. "I don't wonder the Japanese love the willow and have a pretty story about it."

"Once on a time in a certain village of Japan there grew a very beautiful willow tree. The people were all proud of it, but there was a young farmer named Heitaro who especially loved it.

"As a baby he had been carried under its sweeping branches, as a boy he had played under it and as a young man he liked to go there in the evening and rest while he looked out over the beautiful country.

"And one day as he sat thus he noticed a beautiful young girl a short distance away from him.

"He would have left for fear of being in the way, but the young lady did not seem to mind, so he stayed. And every evening after that she was there. In time he became acquainted with her, and when they had talked together he liked her so much that he asked her to be his wife. And always when they talked she seemed most pleased when he praised the old willow tree. She said her name was Higo, which is Japanese for willow.

"By and by they were married and went to live in the little farmhouse which Heitaro owned. They were very happy together.

"One day it was told in the village that the emperor wished to build a fine bridge over the river. The people were asked to give their best tree for the bridge.

"The villagers said there was no tree more beautiful than their tall willow and that it was the tree which ought to go to the emperor.

"When Heitaro heard this he was much grieved. He offered to give the best tree off his own farm if they would let the old willow stand. But they would not have it.

"So Heitaro went home and told Higo that in spite of all he could do the villagers meant to chop down the old willow tree to help build the bridge.

"When she heard this, Higo began to cry and ring her hands.

"'Oh, my, dear husband,' she wept, 'I am the spirit of the old willow tree, and when it is chopped down I must leave you, for I can no longer wear this human form.'

"Poor Heitaro knew not what to do. He held his weeping wife in his arms until gradually she faded away. As the tree fell to the ground she vanished and was seen no more."

THE FORUM.

Editors, The Daily Press.

Dear Sir: As the daughter of an Englishman, who passed some years of my own life in England, I am impelled to answer some of the wholesale accusations in "Votes for Women" in your issue of Wednesday, against Englishmen in general and some laws.

With one statement regarding the suffragists in this country I beg to take exception, viz: "that practically every suffragist in this country disapproves of those militant methods."

A majority does, but there is a minority ready for it and as your correspondent herself tells us that in Great Britain "the militants include but a handful of the host" who are suffragists, we might readily believe that, given the same instruction, encouragement and inspiration, the minority here might become equally lawless and inflammatory.

I want to state in connection with these riotous, unsexed creatures that if Englishmen were all they are painted, a vast host of those women would long ago—their leader among them—have been incapacitated for their activities.

An ardent English suffragist writes to a member of my family recently: "A suffragist, yes, but one who would rather see everything just as it always has been, than the womanhood of her country lowered and disgraced by a section of its women, as it has been. How can any of your women welcome Mrs. Pankhurst."

I should not think that a member of a party which terms as "One of our noble women, not a few," the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, who designates a large majority of her own sex "Vultures looking for carrion," need have been so unspeakably shocked at the remark (which she probably heard from but one man), "Why the dogs and horses will be wanting to vote next, don't you know."

So far as "the feminine bit of a woman" is concerned who "would like to throw rocks at every one of them!" (Englishmen), I would like to express my sympathy for her choice of acquaintances.

With a large family circle and a large circle of friends among these wretches of Englishmen, I cannot think of one deserving of quite such severe treatment, and as gentlemen of that nationality, my family and friends are in no way exceptional.

So far as the law giving the husband the choice of residence is concerned, the "right of the choice of domicile" belonging to the husband, is a law which holds in some of our own States, New York for one.

But there is one most wickedly unjust law in Great Britain, regarding a husband's power to select a wife's abode. That is the law which will not allow a husband to place an insane wife in even a private institution unless she has been seen in a paroxysm by two specialists and two reputable witnesses, not members of his family.

This law was impressed most strongly upon our family, through the case of a friend, who for fifteen years lived in danger of his own life, and fear for that of his children, through hereditary insanity having developed in his wife, after the birth of the second of their two children. She was one of the cunningly insane who was always gentle and quiet in the presence of strangers.

He was powerless to do anything, even after attacks upon him, in one of which his head was broken open, and in another his life only saved by his wife's mother coming into the room behind her daughter just in time to wrest a knife from her hand as she crept up behind her husband. Even this testimony from her mother did not gain him the right to "select" for her a "place of abode" other than under his roof.

Her mother took her to Paris with an attendant, in the guise of a maid, and as they were French, she was able to place her in a private asylum, merely getting the husband's consent.

Wherein does this law "give the husband custody and control of his wife?"

It would be interesting to know from what authority Good Housekeeping derives the information that "A husband is free under the law to leave the whole of his real and personal property away from his wife and children, etc."

It not only is not the case, but if the husband dies intestate the property is, under the law, divided as in New York State, one-third to the widow and two-thirds to the children, with the exception of the real estate which—under the law of entail—goes to the eldest son.

I think the article in Good Housekeeping would have carried a little more weight among its readers—suffragists excepted—had it been a little more accurate. Not quite so evidently a bid to a certain faction.

But in this too, it fails of its purpose in one point, viz: according to its showing the women of this country—by comparison—can have nothing to desire more than the superior position, privileges and justice already theirs.

Thanking you for so much of your space,

Yours very truly,
REINA A. LAWRENCE.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

Scraggy Necks Avoided if Little Trouble Is Taken.

A CURE FOR "SALT CELLARS."

Love of the Picturesque Makes Medici Collars Both Popular and Scarce in the Shops—They Are Easy to Fashion at Home.

Dear Elsa—Ever since every woman has been displaying her throat swan like and otherwise, I have been swathed in high collars unfashionable and uncomfortable, particularly during the hot weather. I couldn't tempt the funny man who loves to disport pictorially upon feminine "salt cellars" to have one more insane joke at my expense—hence my martyrdom in the just and good cause of appearances.

Well, my dear, I'm happy now and throat free. Now don't misinterpret this remark as Dick did, and look for my head on the couch, but be sensible and listen to what I've got to say on the subject.

To start out in real, advertising fashion. "Nobody need have a scraggy neck if they will take the trouble." What I say is, that I leave subdued my salt cellars and my scraggy neck is a thing of the near past. You know that I am nothing, but "a rag and a bone and a hank of hair," and never could wear a decollete frock with any degree of becomingness.

Now all my friends in sight envy my full, firm throat; I've no loose skin under my chin and not a single sign of a salt cellar.

And the remedies I used were so simple.

An acquaintance who has studied physical culture in Sweden taught me three head and neck exercises which have had such good results that I feel it would be the height of selfishness not to share with you who are of the lean kind too.

When doing the exercises the neck should be quite bare. The best place is to do them in one's kimono, night and morning, and to undo one's blouse at the throat during the day.

Now for the exercises:

First, stand erect, look straight in front of you, then, keeping the body quite still, let the chin sink slowly till it reaches the chest. Raise the chin and move the head backward as far as it will go without strain. Repeat these movements from five to ten times. The great thing to remember is that all head and neck exercises must be done slowly and evenly. Quick, jerky movements are useless and dangerous.

Second, raise the chin, hold your head rather in the position of a hen drinking and then turn the head, first to the right as far as it will go, then to the left. Do this five or ten times.

Third, hold the head quite straight and take a series of short, quick breaths, puffing out the base of the throat with each breath. In addition to these exercises you can if you like massage the neck thoroughly with benzonated lard every night; it makes the skin smooth and white, I have found.

While I'm prating of myself I know, Elsa, honey, that you are just dying to learn why I have not sent via parcel post the Medici collars you wanted. Well, here's the reason: they're tremendously hard to find, for you must know that these picturesque neck addenda are having a wonderful popularity this season and it's almost impossible to get a Medici at a reasonable price at this late day. The dressmakers are therefore reaping a harvest, for a well shaped Medici collar of fine lace or embroidered batiste has become the stamp of an exclusive costume turned out by a private dressmaker.

Yet they are so easy to make that you, Elsa, could turn one out in an hour or so. All they require is skilful wiring, for the effect must be soft and the flare just right.

Plaited frills and shaped lingerie materials can be bought as cheaply as 25 cents a yard. They are to be basted inside a coat collar or a dressy blouse waist. Such a finish is dainty and becoming particularly on a coat, as it keeps the unbecoming collar from close contact with the skin.

Until you hear from your very negligent friend use one of these frilly expedients and bless yours devotedly,

MABEL.

A CATHOLIC GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 10.—Under the auspices of the Gonzaga University of this city an interesting celebration was held today in honor of the golden jubilee of the planting of the Catholic faith in this section of the country. The central figure in the celebration was the venerable Father Joseph Caruana, the first Catholic missionary among the Indians of the Pacific Northwest, and recognized as the founder of the Catholic faith in what was then known as Oregon. It was fifty years ago today that Father Caruana baptized seventy-five Indian children, members of the Coeur d' Alene tribe, the baptism being held on the site now occupied by the Northern Pacific Railway's passenger station in this city.

FIRE MARSHALS' CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 10.—Many of the leading cities of the United States and Canada were represented here today at the opening of the annual convention of the Fire Marshals' Association of North America. The sessions will continue several days and will be devoted to the consideration of numerous matters relating to fire prevention and fire fighting. A. A. Lindbach, of Winnipeg, is the president of the association and the presiding officer of the convention.

THE LURE OF ORIENTAL-LIKE FABRICS AND ACCESSORIES

From the top of her head to her dainty foot the modish woman aims to look as Oriental as possible. Everything tends toward this—trimmings, fabrics, accessories and even the outlines of the figure. The closely dressed hair with perhaps just an upstanding feather frond or a jeweled comb, such as Cleopatra might have worn, harmonizes with the loosely draped gown of oddly patterned silk and its accompanying wide hip sash.

New ways of draping these sashes are being shown daily. The large bow in the back after the Japanese manner is becoming to many, but the sash that swathes the waist, giving the new broad line, crosses in back and is draped low over the hip, is most becoming, lending, as it does, the distinction of height and grace to the figure.

Canary color crepe de chine used with 7986 would make a stunning frock. The broad, deep yoke could be of lace, veiled in the palest yellow chiffon, and the sash of figured silk duvetyn in a shade or shades harmonizing with the crepe de chine.

In 7984 the overblouse offers an attractive way of introducing contrast. Here a quaintly figured Futurist silk is used with an underblouse of figured net and a foundation skirt of plain satin lame. The result is charming.

Simple Scalloped Borders For Embroidering Household Linens.

Often one wishes for just a plain scalloped border or even one with a simple figure, with which to decorate a piece of household linen. Linens decorated in this way are useful and durable as well as attractive for a substantial scallop will often outwear the article itself.

These two scalloped borders, illustrated on towels, are also suitable for use on sheets, pillow cases, bureau scarfs, tea and luncheon cloths.

The scallops should be padded, to keep the threads of the materials from fraying and to make a firm edge. The Fleur-de-lis should be developed in solid work or outline and seed stitch, which is done by scattering tiny back stitches evenly over the surface of the design. This design may be developed in a color either blue or brown but the scallops should be done in white. An initial or monogram may be placed about two inches above the plain scallops using 14068, which includes one initial in several sizes, if desired. These may be enclosed by a wreath.

Pattern number 14287 is a border 3½ inches wide, while pattern number 14153 is 1¾ inches wide, each scallop being 2½ inches long, 3 yards of each border are contained in each pattern.

The initials are taken from pattern number 14068, which contains forty-two letters, in ½, 1, 2, 3 and 4 inch sizes, five sizes of any one letter in one pattern.

These patterns will be supplied to readers for ten cents each.

as directed and required by the Ordinance of the City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance Concerning the Construction and Repair of Sidewalks and Curbs," approved July 15, 1910, as amended, not having been completed, the Common Council of said City has directed such improvement to be made under the direction and supervision of the Street Commissioner, and further directed notice of such contemplated improvement to be given to the owner or owners of any lands thereby affected, and further directed that if such improvement shall not be completed within the time and in the manner directed in this notice, the Street Commissioner shall thereupon forthwith proceed to cause such improvement to be made by the city under his direction, as authorized by said Ordinance and the Act of the Legislature hereinafter referred to. The foregoing is a description of your property affected, sufficiently definite in terms to identify the same and the following is a description of the required improvement, viz., on Watson Avenue and Cameron Avenue the construction, adjoining said property, of a sidewalk to be laid as directed in said Ordinance (to which ordinance and the record thereof in the City Clerk's Office reference is hereby made for greater certainty), at the expense of the abutting land owners, composed either (1) of bluestone flagging, smooth and even on the surface, and properly laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner, said bluestone flags to be not less than four feet long transversely to the length of the street, not less than two feet wide lengthwise of said street and not less than one and one-half inches thick in the thinnest part; or (2) of concrete to be laid in conformity with the specifications for cement sidewalks as set forth in "Standard Specifications for Portland Cement Sidewalks and Curbs," filed in the office of the City Clerk, April 11th, 1910. On West Sixth Street, the construction of a curb, said curb to be either (1) of bluestone, not less than four inches thick in the thinnest part and sixteen inches in depth, smooth and even on the surface; or (2) of concrete, constructed in conformity with specifications for curbs as set forth in the above mentioned specifications, and laid under the direction of the Street Commissioner. That all return curbs shall have a radius of six feet, no piece to be less than three feet two inches in length. On East Second Street and Madison Avenue, the repair of sidewalk.

The Street Commissioner shall give the correct lines and grades in all cases.

Notice is further given that unless said improvement shall be completed within thirty days after the publication of this notice, it is the intention of said City to make said improvement or cause the same to be made, pursuant to the authority of the Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, entitled, "An Act to authorize cities to construct and repair sidewalks and curbs, and to provide for the payment of the cost thereof," approved April 13, 1908, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Proof under oath of the publication or service of this notice will be filed within two days thereafter in the Office of the City Collector, being the officer charged with the duty of making official searches for liens.

Said Act of the Legislature provides that in case of non-payment of the charges authorized thereby, the land and real estate subject to the liens of such charges may be sold in the manner provided for the sale of lands for the non-payment of assessments.

HOW THEY VIEW MRS. PANKHURST

Head of Local Suffragist As-s'n Says Americans Should Give Her a Hearing.

OPPOSED TO MILITIASM

But the Right Thing for the Government to Do, Says Mrs. Riley, is to Allow English Woman to Land Here.

As to what view the American suffragist takes of Mrs. Pankhurst's invasion of the United States to collect money to continue her campaign of militiasm in England, was the question put by the Daily Press this morning to Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, president of the Plainfield Equal Suffrage League, and one of the most prominent advocates of "the cause" in New Jersey. In reply to the query, Mrs. Riley made the folowing statement:

"Mrs. Pankhurst is the leader in a remarkable warfare. It behooves us to try to understand the meaning of that warfare, in which, be it noted, the only lives lost were those of two women.

"Samuel Merwin pointed out in October Good Housekeeping that the English laws in regard to marriage and morality, property and industry are distinctly hard on women, and yet the women were not allowed to present their grievances to their rulers. In November, 1910, the suffragists marched in orderly fashion demanding that a small delegation be admitted to present their case to the Prime Minister. The police, evidently acting under orders, were so brutal that a Parliamentary Committee called the Conciliation Committee, reported: 'There emerges from the evidence before us a much graver charge. We cannot resist the impression that the police as a whole were under the impression that their duty was not merely to frustrate the attempts of the women to reach the House, but also to terrorize them in the process. They used, in numerous instances, excessive violence, which was at once deliberate and aggressive, and was intended to inflict injury and pain. Many of them resorted to certain forms of torture. They frequently handled the women with gross indecency.'

"Perhaps we, in America, have not fully understood the situation. Perhaps we have not comprehended fully why women should be ready to do and to die to secure better conditions in England for the women of the future.

"The right action on the part of the United States Government is to admit Mrs. Pankhurst, who, however, dangerous to the short-sighted English Government, is in no manner dangerous in this country.

"The right thing for Americans to do is to hear Mrs. Pankhurst explain the extraordinary situation, which in England alone of all the countries of the world, produced militancy in the Woman Suffrage Movement. It is extremely necessary, however, that some one in authority, like the Rev. Anna Shaw, should explain to the public that Americans are unalterably opposed to militancy.

"Mrs. Catt has also explained that American suffragists are opposed to militant methods, and Mrs. Pankhurst herself advises against violence in this more chivalous land.

"It is simply a bugaboo—the idea of American women becoming militant!

"If Mrs. Pankhurst can enlighten us, let us listen to her. But let me repeat that violence is absolutely abhorrent to American women and it would be as useless as it is abhorrent."

MUST SUPPORT CHILD.

Walter Smalley, of Stebbins place, was brought before City Judge DeMeza this morning, and reprimanded for failing to pay $2.50 each week to the Overseer of the Poor, in compliance with a court order to that effect, for the support of one of his three children. Smalley's wife lives in North avenue and is supporting herself and two other children.

FUNERAL OF T. J. F. ZELLER.

The funeral of Theodore J. F. Zeller will be held at the late residence, Centre street, West Dunellen, Monday morning at 9:15 o'clock, and at St. John's R. C. church, Dunellen, at 10 o'clock, where a requiem mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

TO VISIT NATIVE HOME.

Gus Fatouras, brother of Nicholas Fatouras, fruit dealers in this city, left this afternoon on the steamer Kaiser Franz Joseph I. for his native home in Athens, Greece. He will remain there for five months. This will be his first visit home in six years.

COURT DISMISSES NON-SUPPORT CHARGE

Testimony Reveals Aged Couple Own Valuable Real Estate.

For the second time within several years, Mrs. John H. Stevens, of 123 Church street, had her husband arrested today for alleged non-support and told the Overseer of the Poor that she was liable to become a public charge, despite the fact that testimony given in the City Court before Judge DeMeza this morning, showed that she owned over $10,000 worth of property. The complaint against Mr. Stevens, who is 73 years old, and a blacksmith, was dismissed. He was represented by District Court Judge Walter L. Hetfield. Harry C. Runyon was counsel for Overseer of the Poor Henry L. DeForest, who made the complaint, on Mrs. Stevens' application. Recently the couple raised a mortgage of $1,000 on a property and purchased a $600 automobile, putting the balance of the money in the bank.

D. A. R. CONFERENCE ON AT BOUND BROOK

Mrs. Story, President-General of the Society, Makes An Address.

Bound Brook, Oct. 11.—The State conference of the D. A. R., is being held with Camp Midlebrook, here today, the session beginning at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the Presbyterian church, with an organ prelude by Miss Adella LaLure, followed with a "Salute to the Flag," and prayer.

The address of welcome was given by Miss Anna C. Todd, regent of Camp Middlebrook, with a response by Mrs. Charles B. Yardley, State regent of the New Jersey D. A. R. The address of the morning was given by Mrs. William Cummings Story, President-General of the National Society, D. A. R. There will also be a business session. Luncheon was served at noon.

Features of the afternoon session will include an address by Mrs. William Libby, vice-president General; greeting by John L. Merrill, president of the New Jersey Sons of the American Revolution; historical paper by Mrs. Charles Bossett, historian-general.

BAPTIST WOMEN TO GATHER AT NEWARK

Mrs. G. R. Maguire Will Preside at One Session on Friday.

Mrs. Lewis, daughter of the famous Dr. Clough, of the Telegu Missions, will be the chief speaker at the fourth union meeting of the Woman's Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the East Association of New Jersey, at the Fifth Baptist church, Prospect and Lafayette streets, Newark, Friday, Oct. 17. There will be morning and afternoon sessions, Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire will preside at the latter session.

Mrs. A. W. Palmer will preside at the morning session which opens at 10.30 with devotional service by Mrs. Walter R. Smith, followed with greetings from Circle, Mrs. S. Alden Perrine and response by Mrs. A. W. Palmer. At 11 o'clock there will be an installation service in charge of Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. C. P. Hairhouse. Miss Thorne, Jr., will present "Our Junior Work," at 11.30 o'clock Miss Edna C. Kidd, of Mexico City, will give an address.

The afternoon session will begin at 1.30 with a song service, followed by roll call. Mrs. Maguire will speak of the "Every Member Canvas"; Miss Nora L. Foster will speak on "The New Study Books," and the address will be given by Mrs. Lewis.

MISS MILLAR'S WEDDING SET FOR SATURDAY, NOV. 1

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Millar, of Madison avenue, have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Jeanie Louise Millar, and Franklin Thompson Towle, of Boston. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Saturday evening, November 1, at 8 o'clock, by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church.

SILVER WEDDING DATE CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Besler Entertain at Dinner to Mark Event.

TEN IN THE PARTY

Silver Shoe Buckles as Favors—Mr. Besler Vice-President and General Manager of the Jersey Central Railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Besler, of West Seventh street, were married twenty-five years ago yesterday, and last evening they gave a small dinner party at their home in honor of the occasion. Covers were laid for ten, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Besler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Holland, Mr. and Mrs. David T. Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hooley.

The table was lavishly decorated for the affair with a profusion of roses. The women received favors of silver shoe buckles, while the men received silver belt buckles. Mrs. Besler received a number of gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Besler have been residents here for several years, first living in North Plainfield and more recently removing to West Seventh street. They formerly lived in Reading, Pa. Mr. Besler is first vice-president and general manager of the New Jersey Central.

MEET MISSIONARIES AT DELIGHTFUL TEA

Mrs. Rapalje and Daughter Entertained in Honor of Guests From China.

Mrs. Daniel Rapalje and her daughter, Miss Winifred Rapalje, of Carlton avenue, gave a tea yesterday afternoon to which they invited the women of Trinity Reformed church to meet their guests, the Misses Talmadge, who are home on a six months' furlough from their mission work in China. They went to China with their parents when children and this is the first time they have been home in twelve years.

The Misses Talmadge have been excused from speaking by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed church in America, and in consequence yesterday's affair was of an informal character. All the women were delighted in meeting the missionaries.

Mrs. Rapalje, Miss Rapalje and the Misses Talmadge received the guests. Miss Lillian A. Force poured tea and she was assisted by Mrs. Arthur B. Cole and Miss Helen Smith.

HOOD'S TRIAL IS SET FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 23

Elizabeth, Oct. 11—Richard Haden Hood, of Plainfield, who has had much matrimonial difficulty and who was arraigned in Quarter Sessions Court Thursday and held to await the action of the grand jury for alleged assault on his wife when he went to their home to get his personal belongings, was arraigned yesterday afternoon on an indictment by the October grand jury and pleaded not guilty before Judge James C. Connolly. His bail of $500 was continued and his trial date was set for October 23.

MACHINISTS' LEG BROKEN, A CASTING FELL ON IT

Leo Long, aged 26 years, of South Bound Brook, employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works as a machinist, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, suffering from a broken leg, the result of a heavy casting falling on it. He received "first aid" treatment from Dr. P. B. Cregar, and was then sent to the hospital for treatment. The break is above the knee.

The injured man is married and has been employed at Pond's for some time.

RALLY DAY SERVICES.

Rally day services of the Sunday school of the Congregational church will be held in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, directly following the morning preaching service, and an especially interesting program may be expected. In appreciation of the courtesy of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, the pastor, desires that there shall be a rally of all the church members.

—Jacob Gernert, newsdealers, Somerville, sells the Daily Press or will deliver it to your home each day.

HELD AT QUARANTINE; THOUGHT HE HAD FEVER

Robert Binning, who with his wife, returned a few days ago from Lima, Peru, and who had considerable difficulty in passing Quarantine, New York, beause he was thought to be ill with yellow fever, succeeded yesterday in reaching his home in New York, the health authorities passing him.

Mr. Binning who was the first engineer at the Plainfield Electric Light Company station here, was for a time superintendent of motive power of the Union City Railway in New York. Seven years ago he with Mrs. Binning went to Lima, where he became superintendent of the Lima Heat and Power Company. Before leaving there for home he contracted a local fever and when he arrived in New York was quite ill. He is a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir of Grant avenue. His wife was formerly miss Emma Martin, of the borough.

FIRE CHIEF ADDRESSED Y. M. C. A. BOYS AT RALLY

Fire Chief T. O. Doane, of the local department addressed the members of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. boys' department in the association auditorium this morning, in connection with the series of rallies being conducted by Boys' Secretary C. William Bingemain, and rehearsed many war tales to his juvenile listeners. The chief is a veteran of the war and used many illustrations from the battle-field, his talk being particularly adapted to the audience of youngsters he was addressing.

The speaker described in a graphic way the lessons taught by the war and urged the young Americans to always harbor a fighting spirit in every walk of life.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

Tomorrow being the second Sunday in the month, there will be special music at the 11 o'clock service at Grace church. Udo C. Gossweiler, the noted solo 'cellist, will play before and during the service. The rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, will make a short address giving a resume of the deliberations of the General Convention so far as they have progressed. He will outline briefly the proceedings of the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE.

Miss Mae Kiederling and George W. Smith will be married next Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Wheeler, of Watchung. The couple are both residents of that place and are well known to a large circles of acquaintances.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER.

Returned After Flight to Argentine Republic.

New York, Oct. 11.—Charles Capuna, twenty-two years old, a carpenter living at 18 Prince street, was arrested on a charge of murder. Immediately after Salvatore Guardatti, a young local prize fighter, who was better known as "Big Hurley," had been shot dead at the corner of Stanton and Christopher streets on July 19, Capuna disappeared. The police learned that the two men had had a serious quarrel a few weeks before and that Capuna had fled to the Argentine Republic. He returned recently and his arrest followed.

CHURCHMEN TO DEDICATE BLDG.

Ceremony at College of Mt. St. Mary on Oct. 19 to Be An Imposing One.

BISHOP WILL SPEAK

Rev. Mgr. Mackel Also to Make Address—Colleges and Universities to Be Represented at Exercises a Week From Tomorrow.

Many universities and colleges will have a prominent part in the dedicatory exercises of the new College of Mt. St. Mary, on Sunday, Oct. 19. They will be represented by delegates who will come for the purpose of participating in the ceremonies.

Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, D. D., LL.D., Bishop of Trenton, will dedicate the new college and he will be assisted by the vicar-general of the diocese, Rt. Rev. Monsignor John H. Fox, and the other leading clergymen of Trenton and Newark Diocses.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop will deliver the principal address and Rt. Rev. Monsignor Charles H. Mackel, of St. Patrick's Elizabeth, will deliver an address on "Catholic Education in the United States." Monsignor Mackel was for a number of years professor of dogmatic theology in Seton Hall College and is an eloquent and pleasing orator.

Invitations have been issued to the leading Catholic Societies of New Jersey and New York to send delegates to the celebration.

SISTERS ARE BURIED AT DOUBLE FUNERAL

Misses Catharine F. and Hannah F. Randolph Are Laid at Rest.

Double funeral services were held for the Misses Catherine F. Randolph and Hannah F. Randolph, sisters, at the late home of the former on East Front street, at 3 o'clock, yesterday afternoon. It was a Friends' service. The only speaker was Miss Margaret F. Vail, a member of the Plainfield meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, who read the Scriptures and made a few remarks of an impersonal nature. At the grave in the Friends' cemetery, where the burial took place, Mrs. Clarence B. Vail offered a short prayer.

The services were largely attended by relatives and friends, who had known the Misses Randolph for many years. Miss Catherine Randolph died at her home on East Front street, Tuesday afternoon, and Miss Hannah Randolph passed away at her home in Greenbrook the following day. Both had been critically ill. The pall-bearers, all relatives, were James Duer Randolph, of Elizabeth; Clarence B. Vail, Charles E. Vail and Randolph Vail, of this city.

FREEHOLDERS DODGE COURT SERVICE VOTE

Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—Republican members of the Board of Freeholders again failed to get a quorum and the meeting called for the purpose of taking action on the county civil service referendum did not materialize. But nine members were present—the same number as attended each of the other two sessions. It was decided to make another attempt to meet Monday morning, so as to forestall the plan of the Essex County Civil Service Association to mandamus the Board and compel action. The Essex Association has already secured a temporary rule to show cause from Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen.

The Freeholders thought that the matter was finally disposed of last Saturday but they have since been advised that there is still time to take action. A few of the Republican members are standing with the Democrats in opposition to the referendum.

MAYOR MOY'S FIND.

While enjoying a ramble along a brook back of the Watchung mountains a short time ago, former Mayor Moy picked up some glittering stones from the bed of a brook. Yesterday he took them to a lapidary in New York for examination. They proved to be chalcedony and were cut into various shapes and highly polished. The stones are said to be valuable.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 11.—Connie Mack's Athletics won the baseball championship of the world here this afternoon by defeating the New York Giants in the fifth game of the series. McGraw's men won the second game of the series which went ten innings, the Athletics winning the other four in easy fashion.

McGraw's New York club went after the Philadelphia herd with a vim at the very outset of the fifth battle and despite the fact that the Athletics got an early lead the Giants put up a stubborn uphill fight and kept Mack's ment constantly on the defensive trying to ward off the ripping attack.

Neither Mathewson nor Plank, who were again selected to face each other, were as effective as they were in the second game played in Philadelphia and "Big Six" was hit hard at times. Plank appeared to be laboring under a severe strain and frequent conferences among the Philadelphia players in an effort to steady Plank caused much delay. Matty was steady but yielded several hard bingles that started rallies going.

Over-anxiousness was apparent from the start and both sides appeared to be playing under a nervous strain. Balls were fumbled and several throws went wide of their marks. The dark and gloomy atmosphere that over hung the Polo Grounds did not effect the batting of either team noticeably and some of the best and most consistent clouting of the series was staged this afternoon.

Eddie Murphy led the Philadelphia attack and was ably assisted by Wally Schang, the sensational little catcher, while Larry McLean and Matty were the most conspicuous of the Giants.

New York, Oct. 11.—Returning to their headquarters here last night, the Giants went directly to their hotel, where they remained until after 9 o'clock this morning, and then left for various parts of the city with strict orders to be on hand for a talk by Manager McGraw at 11 o'clock.

Early indications pointed to the prospects of another record crowd. In spite of the overcast sky and water in the wind the usual crowd of morning-glories waited patiently hour after hour for the turnstiles to open. At 9:42 o'clock orders were issued for the opening of the grounds and the flood poured in. Exactly one hour after the first person had passed through the open gates there were fully 10,000 people in the grandstand and bleachers and more were coming in by the hundreds. Every train brought an additional mob to the field and everyone was in a gleeful state despite the Giants' fallings.

The grounds were in fair condition this morning in spite of last night's rain. The diamond was covered with canvas during the storm and when the Seventh Regiment band opened up its ragtime music the canvas was covered with pools of water. At 9 o'clock the sun broke through the clouds and the wrappings were taken off the playing field. Groundkeeper Fabian reported the outfield as somewhat soft but not enough to interfere materially with the players.

Ten thousand fans were clamoring for tickets when the sale was shut off shortly after 1 o'clock. Ticket-holders had to fight their way through the crowd. At 1:30 o'clock it was estimated that there were 37,000 in the enclosure, the largest crowd of the series. The weather toward game time was variable and looked dubious as game time approached. The Giants were the first to take the field and were greeted with the usual round of applause, starting immediately upon a snappy drill. The Athletics came on the field and received a similar ovation. Grounds were in nearly perfect condition when the teams took the field.

FIRST INNING.

Athletics—Murphy led off with a single to short left field on the first ball pitched; Oldring forced Murphy at second base, Mathewson to Fletcher; Collins singled to right field, Oldring taking third base; Baker lined out to Burns, Oldring scoring after the catch and Collins going to second base; Burns' throw to the plate went over McLean's head; McInnis hit to Herzog and Collins was run down, Herzog to Fletcher. Three out. ONE RUN.

Giants—Herzog lined out to Murphy; Doyle went out, Barry to McInnis on a fast play, Fletcher flied out to Oldring in centre field. Three out. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Athletics—Strunk went out Doyle to Merkle; Barry flied out to Murray; Schang beat out a hit off Mathewson's glove; Plank pop flied out to Herzog. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Burns knocked a swift grounder to Baker and was thrown out at first; Shafer, after allowing three wide ones to pass, flied out to McInnis, who ran to the grandstand back of the initial sack to make the catch; Murray was an easy out, Plank to McInnis. Three out. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Athletics—Murphy singled to left field; Oldring hit to Doyle, who fumbled the ball, Murphy taking second and Oldring getting a berth at the first corner; Collins sacrificed to Merkle, each of the base occupants advancing a cushion; Baker hit to Merkle, who hesitated whether to touch Baker or to throw to McLean, Murphy scoring and Baker taking first in safety; McInnis sacrificed out to Burns, Oldring scoring on the throw in; Strunk went out, Doyle to Merkle. Three out. TWO RUNS.

Giants—McLean flied out to Oldring in centre field; Merkle lined out to Collins, who jumped several feet in the air to get the sphere; Matty went out, Barry to McInnis. Three out. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Athletics—Barry was retired, Fletcher to Merkle; Schang flied out to Murray, who ran back to the right field wall to get the sphere; Plank popped out to Fletcher. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Herzog took three healthy swings at the pellet and made his way back to the bench; Doyle went out to McInnis, unassisted; Fletcher flied out to Strunk. Three out. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Athletics—Murphy took the count,

TODAY'S GAME

Doyle to Merkle; Oldring went out via the same route on the first ball pitched; Collins flied out to Murray in right field, who made another good catch. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Burns lined out to McInnis, the hit was a scorcher and McInnis made a sensational stab at it getting the ball in two fingers; Shafer drew three balls from the veteran Plank and after wasting another, which was a strike, he took first base via the free ticket route; Murray hit in front of the plate and too many players got in the way trying to get the pill and he was safe at first while Shafer went to second; McLean singled to left centre field, scoring Shafer and Murray went to second; Merkle hit into a double play, leaving his two teammates stranded on the bases. Three out. ONE RUN.

SIXTH INNING.

Athletics—Baker singled to right field; McInnis sacrificed, McLean to Merkle, Baker going to second. Strunk out, Doyle to Merkle, Baker going to third; Barry went out, Fletcher to Merkle. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Mathewson landed square on the nose of the ball with his willow and sent the pellet flying into right field; Herzog hit into a double play, Barry to Collins to McInnis. Doyle was next at the bat, but he flied out to Murphy in right field on the first ball pitched. Three out. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Athletics—Schang proved easy for Matty, striking out, one, two, three. Plank went out, Doyle to Merkle; Murphy waited for four wide ones, but Oldring, who followed, popped up a foul fly and McLean nabbed it. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Fletcher flied out to Strunk in deep centre field; Burns out, Barry to McInnis; Shafer went out, Murray to McInnis. Three out. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Athletics—Collins hit through pitcher's box to Doyle, who retired him at first; Baker smashed one to Matty, who fumbled the ball but recovered himself and put him out at first; McInnis ended the inning with a hit to Fletcher, who made a lightning heave to Merkle. Three out. NO RUNS.

Giants—Murray took the count. Baker to McInnis, McLean flied out to Oldring in left field; Merkle went out, Barry to McInnis. Three out. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

AUXILIARY OF A. O. H. HOLDS FINE RECEPTION.

Division No. 1, Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., held its annual reception and dance last night in Sebring's Auditorium, where 300 people flocked to enjoy the occasion. On the second floor of the building, Irish dances and lancers were enjoyed by lovers of this style of terpsichore.

Those who arranged the affair were Miss Ellen Beyrne, president of the society; Mrs. Louis Bimble, Mrs. Theodore Trendle, Miss Catherine Conshay, Miss Mollie Lyons and Mrs. James Caufield. Robert McCormack, assisted by James McCann and John Griffin, acted as floor manager. Thomas Cooney was chairman of the refreshment committee and James Buckley provided music for the Irish dances.

FIVE DUNBARS AT PROCTOR'S.

The Five Dunbars in a one-act musical comedietta, "Fun in a Candy Shop," will top the fine vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre on Monday. This act abounds in the sweet things of life. The girls are extremely attractive and good singers and the men are excellent comedians. Ed. De Corsia, supported by Miss Helen LeSage and Fred Lewis will present the comedical comedy playlet, "Red Ike." The scene is in Texas and the cast is composed of a schoolmarm, a sheriff, a parson and "Red Ike," a desperado. Bartell and Hanley, comedians, will offer new songs and jokes; Fentelle and Vallorie in a novel singing and talking act and Hunter's $2,000 marvelous posing dogs will complete the high-class bill.

REV. MR. EASTER TO PREACH.

Rev. Henry Easter, of El Paso, Texas, will preach at Holy Cross church, tomorrow morning, at the usual hour. He is one of the delegates to the General Episcopal Convention being held in New York, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Stevens, of this city.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

A chimney fire at the home of Henry Demarest, on Front street, Scotch Plains, this morning, resulted in damage to the amount of $25. Both fire companies were called out.

Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach tomorrow morning on the subject of "Is the Church Ashamed of the Gospel," and in the evening his topic will be "Christia nIntelligence; How to Cultivate It." The Sunday school will have a rally at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11.—President Wilson and several members of his cabinet will make a week-end cruise on board the naval yacht Mayflower to the southern drill grounds off the coast of Virginia to witness the raget practice and manoeuvres of the Atlantic fleet.

Political interest will center in the First Congressional district of West Virginia, where a special election is to be held Tuesday to choose a successor to Representative J. W. Davis, resigned. Democrats, Republicans and Progressives have named candidates for the seat.

The Tennessee legislature will begin another special session Monday to consider the prohibition law enforcement bills.

The Western Fuel cases in which are involved numerous officers and employes of the Western Fuel Company, charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government through manipulating weights, will come up for trial Monday in the United States District Court at San Francisco.

Mrs. Jennie May Eaton is to be placed on trial at Plymouth, Mass., Monday, on an indictment charging her with the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, U. S. N., retired.

The appeal in the case of Charles Becker and the four gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, in New York, is to be argued Monday before the Court of Appeals at Albany.

Arguments in the Government's anti-trust suit against the International Harvester Company are scheduled to begin Monday in St. Paul.

Leading events of the week abroad will be the celebration at Leipsic of the 100th anniversary of the "Battle of the Nations," and the weddings on Wednesday, of the young Duchess of Fife and Prince Arthur of Connaught, which is to take place in the Chapel Royal, St. James' Palace.

Mrs. S. S. Higgins and daughter, former teachers at Watchung, are spending a few days in Plainfield.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

Some men are born lucky, others have luck thrust upon them and still others are regular wearers of Rothberg Clothes.

But it's more than "luck" on our part to be able to give more solid goodness for, let us say,

$10, $12, $15, $18, $20 to $25

than you can hope to get elsewhere in men's garments. It's a combination of the WILL-TO-DO and the HOW-TO-DO, to these two elements that when united usually do their work better than it's ever been done before.

PLAINFIELD C. E. UNION TO MEET IN DUNELLEN

Final arrangements have been made for the fall rally of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union to be held Tuesday night at the First Presbyterian church in Dunellen. A feature of the program will be an address on "The Call of Duty," by Rev. Elliot Field, of Philadelphia.

The devotional services will be in charge of the pastor of the Dunellen church, Rev. Ernest E. Brown. Clifford A. Braider, of this city, will be the organist. Arnold Finkle, of the Netherwood Reformed church, president of the local union, will also speak.

ALFRED JARVIS CLEARED ON CHARGE OF ARSON

Somerville, Oct. 11.—Alfred Jarvis, a farmer formerly employed by J. F. and Theodore Cornell, and who was arrested a week ago, charged with setting fire to the barns of his former employers, has been released from custody, following a conference in which it developed that there was not sufficient evidence to hold him for the grand jury. Jarvis was employed by the Cornells at the time of the fire, and was only laid off because of lack of employment by reason of the blaze and his former employers speak in the highest terms of him. It was claimed that Jarvis could not give a proper account of his whereabouts on the night of the fire, but at the conference with representatives of the insurance companies responsible for his arrest, Jarvis complete exonerated himself.

TRINITY C. E. SOCIETY HAS SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The election of officers and annual reports of the secretary and treasurer, together with a social hour, combined to make the yearly meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, last night, an interest one. Miss Anna Bach, the retiring president, was in the chair.

These officers were elected: President, Russell C. Doeringer; first vice-president, Miss Marie Hahn; second vice-president, James Conklin; treasurer, Elmer French; recording secretary, Miss Myra Dunavan; corresponding secretary, Miss Lucie Corliell.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were given during the social hour, Miss May Randolph being chairman of that committee. The room was arranged to represent a gypsy camp, being attractively decorated. Interspersing the reports the young folks joined in singing old-time songs.

Miss Dunavan, the secretary, reported a membership of seventy-three, of which all but five are active. The others are associate. The report of the treasurer showed a balance on hand of $83. The fiscal year of the church ends in May and that amount will be largely increased by that time.

After the business and reading of reports the social features were continued and refreshments were served.

High Bridge-Califon.

The Hunterdon Electric and Power Company is extending its lines on Mountain avenue and Church street, High Bridge.

Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Eastwood, of High Bridge, have returned from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eastwood at East Orange.

Mrs. George Felmy, of Plainfield, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Seals, at Farmersville.

Arrangements are being made by the Ladies' Aid Society of the High Bridge Reformed church for holding a rummage sale the week of October 20 to 25.

IN TROUBLE IN ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—"The Troubles of a Stage Manager," or "Eleven A. M.," a playlet produced at a local theatre the latter part of this week, proved itself true to life, so far as Rube Welch, one of the leaders of the company, is concerned. Mr. Welch has owed $450 to Junie McCree since the time he purchased the rights of "The Happiest Night of His Life" from Junie some years ago, it is claimed. McCree lost track of Welch. A few days ago he heard he was in Elizabeth and had a writ of attachment sued out of the District Court, holding the effects of the "Eleven A. M." company. Nine of the performers appeared in the office of Judge Robert H. McAdams, in the District Court, and swore that they owned the attached goods. The writ was vacated.

PRETTY DEAR RABBIT.

An Italian from Plainfield was arrested at Scotch Plains, this morning, they Game Warden Hoblitz, for shooting a rabbit out of season. Justice Clark fined him $100. The Italian is still in jail.

"GREAT QUALITY SHOW."

Fifty-seven cups and sixty-five specials have been offered for the Plainfield show of the New Jersey Poultry Association, to be held at the City Market, November 17-21. This announcement was made at the meeting of the Association las tnight. The slogan adopted is "Great Quality Show."

A RECITAL.

The choir of the Grace M. E. church rendered a pleasing recital last night before a large gathering. E. D. Young, as tenor soloist again proved his ability as an entertainer before a local audience.

SAFE AT THIRD.

Strunk Making Hook Slide to Avoid Herzog With Ball.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

In the fourth, which proved the most productive inning for the Athletics in the fourth game of the series, Strunk opened the artillery practice with a hit to Herzog. Barry singled over Fletcher and Shafer made a fine recovery, but Strunk slid in to third ahead of the return. Herzog was snapped in midair, the photographer securing a really wonderful picture.

POLICE CAPTURE DESPERATE GANG

Fourteen Hard Characters Are Taken In General Raid.

New York, Oct. 11.—The desperate gang of bomb throwers, counterfeiters, horse poisoners and black handers which has terrorized New York and vicinity for years was rounded up in this city and Troy.

The police and United States secret service men have fourteen prisoners, thousands of dollars worth of counterfeit notes of the Irving National bank and confessions about more than 100 bomb explosions.

The confessions show that the gang hired men to set bombs, write extortion letters and do worse villainy. These desprate men went so far as to dynamite their employers' houses when the leaders held out some of the spoils.

Seven men and women counterfeiters, members of the gang, were arrested in Troy by secret service agents. An Italian, said to have been the gang's engraver, killed himself when arrested in Troy.

In the counterfeiting plant in Troy they found hundreds of finished and unfinished $5 notes and $1 silver certificates and the plates from which they were printed. Several hundred more of both kinds of counterfeits were uncovered in a house in Brooklyn.

..BOOMING PLAINFIELD..

THE DAILY PRESS WILL HELP THE BOARD OF TRADE AND CHAMBER OF COMMERCE EXPLOIT THE ADVANTAGES OF PLAINFIELD AS A MANUFACTURING CENTRE AND PLACE OF RESIDENCE.

Meets With Flattering Reception from Our Public-Spirited Citizens

The movement of the Daily Press to issue a splendid Historical and Industrial Edition has met with a gratifying reception from the various interests of our town. Plainfield's progressive merchants, manufacturers and professional men, keenly realizing the far-reaching and lasting benefit which will accrue from a complete and graphic exposition of the growth of this community, are according their hearty support to the plan, and the success of the undertaking is more than assured.

Our special staff of reporters, artists and solicitors, to whom this important work has been intrusted, is being most courteously received by the men of business whom they are daily interviewing, and from all sides comes assurance of unqualified aid and co-operation.

Let every public spirited man see to it that he is properly represented in this

SUPERB EDITION

Do not let your neighbor out-do you. Remember this when our representative calls to see you. The compiling of data concerning Plainfield activities and the reduction of this data to well and accurately written articles, descriptive of individual commercial enterprise, our schools of learning, churches, progressive life, etc., is progressing rapidly and most satisfactorily, and will be pushed with unabated vigor until the day of publication.

This Boom Edition

will embrace an exhaustive resume of every manner of Plainfield and Union county life. It will review the town and county history from its foundation to the present time. Every branch of industry will be thoroughly described. The bench and bar and municipal government will receive adequate attention, as befits the relatively important niches which they occupy in the life of this hustling town. In short, THE PRESS will set forth in glowing terms, in orderly and comprehensive detail and with resolute accuracy, the growth of grand old Plainfield, and the enterprise and high character of her representative and progressive sons who have made it the splendid town that it is today.

Thus for the FIRST TIME—in proper form—Plainfield and all that goes to constitute its healthy and active life, will be portrayed so that the outside world may know just what this town looks like and what our people are doing. You will be called upon in a day or so. Do your part then. Do not hide your light under a bushel. One and all pull together and the success will be ours and yours. If you have never done anything for the welfare and advancement of your home town you have a good chance to do it now.

Our line of heating stoves and ranges this fall is even better than in former years.

Ivy Canopy, Real Apollo, Othello and Penn Esther Ranges are ones we have sold for years and really cannot suggest anything better.

"Glen Oak" heating stoves are splendid heaters and ones we recommend to you.

A "Perfection" oil heater will take off the chill and make the room comfortable until cold weather really comes.

See that your heater or furnace is in order before it is time to build a fire.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Kate Douglas Wiggin, the author of the "Rebecca" books, which have been dramatized by Mrs. Wiggins and Charlotte Thompson as "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," the New England pastoral which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday night, October 14, has had much trouble in convincing people that her Rebecca is not an autobiographical study, but her emphatic denials that she and Rebecca are one and that the book and the play are merely transcripts of the early stages of her life are usually met with an unbelieving smile and polite assent of the person who is not convinced. Mrs. Wiggin declares that all her characters are purely imaginary. She said of course incidents that have come under her observation have been transferred to her books and to stage in "Rebecca," but that this is a purely unconscious process and that she has never deliberately put any of her acquaintances or friends into any of her books. Speaking to Jeanette Gilder, the brilliant literary critic in an interview intended for the Ladies' Home Journal, Mrs. Wiggin said: "There is no such person as Rebecca. She is purely a creation of my imagination. She is not myself nor any one child that I ever knew. But I do know children of that sort, and I know what a girl of that sort would say and do. What I would like to make plain to my friends and readers is this: I have never used a friend, an acquaintance or a neighbor as the foundation for any character in any book, not because I am so much more virtuous than other people but because that sort of thing doesn't appeal to me. I can only create in my own small way, from the inside. Therefore, Rebecca is not any person whom I ever met, and is certainly not myself."

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, OCTOBER 11, 1913.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is John Frederick Zerega.

"DO IT FOR PLAINFIELD."

I like the motto The Daily Press has chosen for boosting the city, "Do It For Plainfield," because when you eliminate personality from anything, you broaden your horizon, and you see with clearer vision and work with greater force. Then there is the pleasure of being able to do something for others, which in itself is an evidence of strength, for it shows that we are not only able to take care of ourselves, but that we have something to give to others. I believe we should all have a personal pride in seeing Plainfield improve, and make it our business to say a good word for the city, whenever we have the opportunity. We should be proud of the success of our citizens and encourage our young men to go into business in Plainfield and give them all the help we can to further their interest.

Commercial business and manufacturing are increasing so rapidly in Plainfield that I believe there are more opportunities for young men and women, who are starting out to make their way in the world to get ahead in Plainfield than is offered to the average young boy or girl, who starts to work in New York city, and begins business life as a commuter, and when our interests become more closely allied with the business as well as the social life of the city, our civic pride will be stimulated until Plainfield will stand out as being one of the finest cities in the East and the pride of New Jersey.

Now let us see why we should find it easy to fall in line with the "slogan" the Daily Press has given us, "Do It For Plainfield." First we have one of the most orderly and well governed cities in the country, with probably the least percentage of places where liquor is sold of any city its size that is not a prohibition or local option town. The purity and abundance of our water supply cannot be surpassed, and we should appreciate greatly the benefits that are derived from such an excellent supply of pure water. Our public schools are unquestionably of the highest standard, and Plainfield is doing more for the education of its youth than are many cities of greater wealth and influence, and when the new addition to the High School is completed it will probably be one of the best equipped schools in the country, and will no doubt create a stronger ambition in the minds of the children in the grammar schools to become members of the High School. The private schools both for boys and girls are increasing in size and importance and are sending splendidly prepared young men and women to the various colleges.

The new playground that was opened a few years ago at Parker Field has been a tremendous success and bids fair to become one of the important features of the town, as far as the children are concerned. Our beautiful churches situated in the most attractive and convenient parts of the city are exercising a strong religious influence throughout the community. Our trees, that are the admiration of everyone who visits Plainfield, spread their wonderful branches across many of our streets and avenues, and in summer make walking and driving a source of constant delight. Our beautiful modern homes, and stately old places with their broad lawns and pleasant gardens, gives to Plainfield an air of quiet dignity and refinement that reflects the high character of her people.

It would be an easy matter for me to go on and emphasize the advantages and attractions of Plainfield, but as I cannot mention them all I will leave the rest for you to think of. I hope I have shown that Plainfield is a mighty good place to live in, and the way to make it better is to do something ourselves towards making others realize that Plainfield is the "Queen City of the East."

JOHN FREDERICK ZEREGA.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

One of the most successful cake and candy sales that has ever been given was held last night in Saengerbund Hall by the Girls' Athletic Association. Fully three hundred people of the school and borough visited the hall during the afternoon and evening and purchased ice cream, cake, candy, lemonade and pie. As everything except the ice cream was donated, the girls realized about $35 clear.

Excellent music was furnished and about fifty couples danced between the hours of eight and twelve. At eleven o'clock the remainder of the cakes, pies and candy were auctioned from the stage by Messrs. Krewson and Chandler and not one thing was left. Those who had charge of the sale were Lucy Douglas, Marjorie Burtis, Edna Green, Bertha Keller, Elsie Debele, Dorothy Martin and Anna Hull.

At a meeting of the Senior Class yesterday it was decided to give a dance in Sangerbund Hall during the last week in October. About one hundred invitations will be given to the members of the lower classes and friends of the Seniors. The president appointed the following committee to take charge: Lucille Ewart, Anna Warnock, Elva Force, Roy Love, Ashley Burner and Charles Beckman.

A Penn State pennant was presented to Principal Earley yesterday by Edmund Kenney, '12, who is now a freshman at that institution.

The Junior Class rings have come and are very nifty in appearance. They are all gold with the letters N. P. H. S. running down the front and the 1915 on either side.

Warren Townley, '16, and Frank Dunning, '14, have challenged Duclos Van Mater and Hoyt Tomkinson, the doubles championship tennis team, to a post season tennis match to be played next week.

BROADWAY AT NINTH

"Has this room got special acoustic qualities?" asked a man who had been listening to the playing of the

Emerson-Angelus Player-Piano

No, he was assured; the room was just like any other ordinary room; but—

--the tone of the EMERSON was unlike that of any other piano: and the Angelus brings out the tone as no other player could; as only a very fine piano can.

• • •

Tone

is the jewel in the case of the piano.

Tones differ; all are not the same, any more than all jewels are rubies.

Who that might have a ruby would refuse it, and take a rhinestone?

The EMERSON tone is red, red ruby.

The Key of the Jewel Case

ANGELUS—the world's first and finest player; like the spirit of some master musicians that comes with the wind and fingers the strings, now passing over them ever so lightly, now grasping them with a force that, released, echoes back from the sounding board like thunder tones.

The ANGELUS is the substitute of the trained human touch on the keys. With it you, tho having but a limited knowledge of technique, can play as a master might play.

Have you ever known that pleasure?

• • •

The EMERSON piano was founded in 1849, and its construction has continued without interruption since. It is one of the five great pianos on the Wanamaker Roll of Honor.

The EMERSON-ANGELUS and the EMERSON piano may be seen and heard in the Wanamaker Piano Salons—where, today, is the finest assemblage of new time-honored instruments in all America—and may be acquired conveniently under the Wanamaker Educational Plan.

ANOTHER HONOR FOR LOCAL BOY SCOUTS

Will Be Made Members of State Fish and Game Patrol.

Added zest was given to the boy scout competition for local championship honors that will be held at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon, when the boys learned today that the State of New Jersey had virtually offered a prize to the patrol winning the championship pennant, as well as a consolation prize to the defeated patrols, in the form of official appointments as local officers of the State Game Warden's department at Trenton. Six beautiful gilt and enameled badges, bearing the official seal of the State and numbered in accordance with listings kept on file at the office of the Secretary of State were received by the commissioner, Allen E. Beals, this morning. The Commissioner and his Deputy, A. V. Searing, Jr., are given full power to take examinations for appointments to the Boy Scout Fish and Game Patrol that will serve with the sanction of Scout Headquarters in co-operation with the fish and game protectors of the State.

It was announced that the method of conferring these appointments would be as follows:

All first class scouts in the patrol winning the championship pennant at the field day at Parker Field, Saturday, would be eligible to take the examination in the order of their rating on file with the commissioner.

After all the first class scouts in the winning patrol have been supplied, the remainder will be distributed among the highest rated first class scouts in the remaining two patrols regardless of troops.

This makes three important prizes for the scout patrols to compete for at Parker Field, the three handsome prizes offered to the athletic section by Mayor Percy H. Stewart, the handsome silk championship pennant offered by Paul R. Collier and the honor of appointment to a State office to the scouts having the best all-around record.

One of the most exciting events of the day will be the bicycle polo game which has been substituted for the "Flag Raid," previously announced. Those who never have witnessed a polo match will find this one of the most thrilling and exciting contests possible to imagine. The scouts ride to play with the same reckless abandon that pony polo players employ and as the fight is waged for possession of the various goals the excitement reaches a very high pitch. Those who have watched the practice games at the practice field this week say the boys have achieved a rather remarkable state of efficiency in handling their bicycles and wielding their weighty mallets.

As another novelty the bicycle tilting match promises to afford a great deal of amusement. Two boys, or a team, start on bicycles from opposite sides of field and with tilting punts poised run full speed into one another and, guiding their wheels, circle and charge again. If one man falls he is counted out if the master of field counts ten before he gets on his wheel and is away again. The best three out of five rounds wins.

The arena master of the day will be W. A. W. Thompson, who has earned much of the credit for the success of the event. Thompson is one of the original boy scouts of America, having been a member of Seton Thompson's first patrol and many of the novelties to be presented on Saturday are not only of his own conception, but have been worked out to success by him.

The scouts have invited Dr. George T. Moore, secretary of the local scout council; Le Roy H. Gates, superintendent of the First Presbyterian Sunday-school (Scout Headquarters); Chief P. S. Kiely, of the Police Department; Chief T. O. Doane, of the Fire Department; Paul R. Collier, scoutmaster of Troop 8; Henry R. Hubbard, acting scoutmaster; Frederick A. Smith, of Troop 10, and Herman Schwed, to be guests of honor next Saturday.

The clerk of the course will be Scoutmaster E. W. Poinier; the scout starter will be Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr.; Scoutmaster Joseph A. Garner, of Troop 7, who was to have been drill master of the day, is confined to his home by a serious injury and will not be able to participate, although he expects to be present to oversee the work of his troop.

The exhibition begins sharp at 1.30 and will continue until about 5 o'clock.

ELIZABETH TRADE BOARD TO PROBE RAILROAD'S PROPOSAL

Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—The Board of Trade has decided to investigate the proposals of the Pennsylvania Railroad for widening its system through the city. A resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of ten to see that the city's interests are safeguarded was adopted unanimously.

The resolution was offered by Charles A. Trimble, who said the present ordinance before the Common Council did not guarantee the protection of the city's interests.

PLAINFIELDERS AMONG THOSE WHO QUALIFY AS FOREMEN

Trenton, Oct. 11.—Twelve candidates qualified in the civil service examinations for the position of foreman in service of the State road department. In order of merit they are as follows:

Emerson P. Gowdy, John J. Stanley, Norman C. Applegate, Nelson Housley, Trenton; Harry D. Robbins, Allentown; Julius J. Newmark, Plainfield; Melvin L. Vail, Rahway; John T. Carr, Trenton; John J. MacKenzie, Clifford B. Vail, Plainfield; Edward J. White, Jersey City; Richard J. Delaney, South Amboy.

The commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday, October 21, at the State house, in the matter of the exemption of the position of treasurer of the sinking fund of the city of Paterson. At this hearing any one may appear either in behalf of or in opposition to same.

MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY

AMERICAN POULTRY is a magazine devoted entirely to helping earnest men and women make a financial success of poultry raising. Its staff of writers is composed entirely of those who have made a practical, instead of theoretical, success of poultry farming, and who are glad to pass on the results of their hard earned experience to AMERICAN POULTRY readers.

There are many pit-falls in the path of the novice which may be entirely avoided by those who will follow the teachings set forth in this magazine. It fully explains how to make a start, how to construct houses, coops and other devices, how to get a large egg yield, how to cure and prevent disease, how to exhibit, how to get the top price for eggs, how to use incubators and hundreds of other points which everyone wishes to know. It explains the famous secret system through which poultrymen have become rich and afterwards sold for hundreds of dollars.

AMERICAN POULTRY is a large handsomely illustrated, monthly journal well printed on fine paper, and should be found on file in the home of every poultry lover. No beginner in the poultry business should think of being without it. It will save him many times the small subscription price. The advanced poultryman will also find it of great value; the articles being varied in their scope.

SPECIAL OFFER. The regular price of AMERICAN POULTRY is 50c per year, but in order to introduce it to several thousand new readers, we will, for a short time, give a large 200 page poultry book, which is a complete guide in the poultry business, absolutely free to everyone sending 50c for a yearly subscription or $1.00 for a three year subscription to AMERICAN POULTRY. A trial six months' subscription (without book) will be sent for 25c. Never has so much been offered for so small a sum. Advantage of this offer should be taken at once.

NOTICE TO VOTERS—Public notice is hereby given that the question of the adoption or rejection of the following mentioned act will be submitted to the legal voters of the State, in Union county, New Jersey, at a general election to be held November fourth, nineteen hundred and thirteen:

Special Session, Chapter No. 20, Laws of 1913, State of New Jersey. A supplement to an act entitled, "An act concerning juries" (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

1. In each county of this State there shall be appointed by the Chancellor of this State one citizen, resident therein, who shall not be a member of the same political party as the sheriff of such county, and who, together with the sheriff of such county, shall constitute and be designated as "Commissioners of Juries." The certificates of appointment shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county in and for which said commissioner is appointed. Such commissioners shall before they enter upon the discharge of their duties, take and subscribe an oath, faithfully and impartially to execute the duties of their office according to the best of their skill and understanding, which oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk of said county. No person holding any other public office, or licensed to practise law in this State, shall be appointed as a commissioner of juries except as herein otherwise provided.

2. The said appointed commissioner in said county shall hold office for the term of one year. The office of any appointed commissioner of juries shall become vacant immediately upon his assuming the duties of any other public office. Such appointed commissioner shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the justice of the Supreme Court holding the Circuit Court in such county, but not more than the sum of nine hundred dollars per annum in counties of the first class, seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum in counties of the second class, and five hundred dollars per annum in all other counties, to be paid semi-monthly by the board of chosen freeholders of such county, and such board of chosen freeholders shall provide each commissioner with such stationery and other equipment as may be required by such commission.

3. The Chancellor of the State may, at any time, remove the appointed commissioner in any county, and in case of a vacancy occurring by such removal, or by death, resignation, removal from the county, or because of disqualification by the assuming of the duties of any other public office, or for any other reason, shall appoint his successor for the balance of the term. The certificate of removal and of appointment to fill the vacancy shall be filed in the office of the clerk of such county.

4. The commissioners of juries may, upon the approval of the justices of the Supreme Court assigned to hold the Circuit Court in their county, employ a clerk at a salary to be fixed by such justice, not to exceed the sum fixed and to be paid to the appointed commissioner in such county, which salary shall be paid semi-monthly by the board of chosen freeholders of such county, and which said clerk shall hold office only at the pleasure of the said justice.

5. The commissioners of juries shall, at least thirty days prior to the commencement of each term of the Circuit Court, in their county, make two lists, alphabetically arranged, of persons liable to jury duty, having regard to the just distribution of jury service among those persons qualified therefor in the various wards and municipalities of such county, with their occupation and places of abode, and designating their respective municipalities and wards (if any) in municipalities, which lists shall be designated respectively "grand jury list" and "petit jury list." The number of persons named on the grand jury list shall at no time be less than three hundred, and the number of persons named on the petit jury list shall at no time be less than five hundred. The commissioners shall cause two copies to be made of each of said lists and shall certify the same under their hand as true and correct, and shall cause one copy of each to be filed in the office of the clerk of such county at least twenty-five days prior to the commencement of each term of the Circuit Court in their county, there to remain a public record, and shall cause the other copy to be delivered to the justice of the Supreme Court assigned to hold the Circuit Court in such county. Upon the filing of such list with the county clerk he shall cause a copy thereof to be made immediately and posted in his office in a conspicuous place. Said commissioners may, from time to time, before certifying such lists, revise, strike off and add thereto, and the said justice may at any time order said commissioners to revise, correct and certify a new jury list or lists which shall not contain any names theretofore stricken off within one year. Each name on the respective jury shall be numbered in consecutive order. Said commissioners shall have access to and may copy the assessment rolls and registry lists of the several municipalities and election districts of their county; and they may, before certifying any lists, send notices to all persons whose names they may propose placing on such lists, requesting such persons to present to the commissioners any claim they may have to exemption from jury duty and upon satisfactory reasons being given therefor they may be excused by the court.

6. On a day and time to be fixed by the justice of the Supreme Court, not more than fifteen days before the commencement of each term of the Circuit Court, the county clerk of the county, or his deputy, shall in open court, present to such justice, or, in his absence to the president judge of the Court of Common Pleas of such county, the jury lists for the term filed with such county clerk, and the jury commissioners shall at the same time and place, produce uniform pieces of metal, with numbers stamped or impressed thereon in consecutive order to correspond with the numbers set opposite the names on each of said jury lists, and said commissioners shall hand the said pieces of metal to said justice or judge, who shall examine the same and, if found correct, return them to said commissioners. The commissioners shall thereupon deposit the pieces of metal numbered for grand jurors in one box and the pieces of metal numbered for petit jurors in another box.

7. Immediately after the numbered pieces of metal have been so deposited the boxes shall be shaken and the pieces of metal deposited therein thoroughly mixed together, and the commissioners or one of them, shall forthwith, in the presence of such justice of judge, proceed to draw singly, from the grand jury box twenty-four pieces of metal, and the persons whose names are found on the said grand jury list opposite the numbers corresponding with those found upon the pieces of metal so drawn, shall be summoned to serve as grand jurors in and for such county at the next ensuing term of the courts thereof, and shall in like manner draw singly from the petit jury box a number of pieces of metal as the said judge or judge shall direct, and the persons whose names are found on said petit jury list opposite the numbers corresponding with those upon the pieces of metal so drawn shall constitute the panel of petit jurors to serve in and for said county during next ensuing term of the courts thereof, and shall be so summoned.

8. The names, occupations and places of abode both of grand jurors and petit jurors shall, as each number is drawn, be publicly announced by the commissioners, the metal pieces so drawn from the box handed to the justice or judge for inspection, and the clerk of the county or his deputy, shall transcribe the same as they are announced and shall make two lists thereof, both of which shall be certified by the justice or judge as true and correct, one of which said clerk shall file in his office and the other he shall forthwith transmit to the sheriff of the county, who shall thereupon cause the persons so drawn, constituting the grand jurors and panel of petit jurors for such county, to be summoned to serve as such according to law.

9. The justice of the Supreme Court may direct that the panel of petit jurors so drawn shall serve for a designated portion of the next ensuing term only, and in such event they shall be so summoned, and the said justice may direct said commissioners, at a time to be fixed by the justice, to draw a new panel or panels of petit jurors to serve for another designated part of such terms, and such new panel or panels shall be drawn and summoned from the list certified by the commissioners prior to the commencement of such term, in the same manner as hereinabove provided.

10. In case a grand jury shall be discharged before the end of the term for which it is drawn, the justice of the Supreme Court may direct the commissioners of juries to draw a new grand jury to serve for the balance of the term, and such new grand jury shall be drawn and summoned from the list certified by the commissioners prior to the commencement of the term, in the same manner as hereinabove provided.

11. The court in which the grand jurors shall be sworn in any county shall select and designate one of said grand jurors to act as foreman thereof, who shall be sworn to so act, and may excuse or discharge one of the said jurors if all shall appear when summoned.

12. Any person having served as a grand or petit juror at a term of court shall be ineligible to serve either as a grand or petit juror for the space of one year thereafter.

13. Nothing herein contained shall be held or construed in anywise to limit the powers of the court or any justice or judge as heretofore had or exercised in connection with the drawing or discharge of jurors or panels of jurors.

14. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed, and this act shall take effect immediately, but its provisions, except as to the referendum herein contained shall remain inoperative as a law of this State until the legal voters of the State voting at the next general election held after the approval of this act for the election of the members of the General Assembly have adopted the provisions of this act in the manner hereinafter provided. The county clerk in every county shall cause public notice of the submission of the question of the adoption of this act in the said general election to be given by advertisement signed by himself and set up in at least fifty different places in his county and published in one or more newspapers thereof for at least fifteen days before such election. The ballots used at the said election shall contain the words "For the adoption of an act approved (insert here the date of approval), and entitled, 'A supplement to an act entitled, "An Act concerning juries," (Revision), approved March twenty-seventh, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.'"

Below upon said ballot shall appear the phrase "I favor the adoption of said act," and the phrase "I oppose the adoption of said act," with a square to the left of each phrase, and below shall appear the words "Place a cross in one square."

The votes cast upon the question of the adoption of this act shall be canvassed in the manner now provided by law for the canvass of votes cast at the general election held for the election of the members of the General Assembly; and if the greater number of vots cast with reference to the adoption or rejection of this act favor the adoption of this act, the act shall become effective as a law of this State on the fourth Tuesday of November, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen; but if the greater number favor the rejection of this act, then this act shall be null and of no effect.

Approved May 29, 1913.

This notice is given in pursuance and under the direction of Section 14 of the foregoing mentioned supplement.

Dated September 25, 1913.

JAMES C. CALVERT,
10 11 3-s Clerk of the County of Union.

WRONG NAME IN LICENSE HALTS WEDDING AT ALTAR

Passaic, Oct. 11.—When Antonio Chemiel, of 122 Third street, led a young woman to the altar Thursday, unforeseen difficulty arose, which caused Rev. Emery Haitenger, pastor of St. Marie's Slavic Catholic church, to send the couple away with the knot still untied. It looked as if Antonio had brought the wrong girl.

According to the information in the marriage license, the name of the bride-to-be was Caroline Zak. In her native Slavonic, the girl was asked her name and to the priest's consternation, she answered, "Helen Janik."

That was the name given Father Haitenger's curate several weeks ago, when he was asked to publish the banns in the usual maner. Father Haitenger did not know the girl personally, and in the lively conversation that ensued, Antonio declared he was certain he had brought the right girl with him; that she was the same one who had called at the rectory and had asked the curate to publish the banns in church and then had gone with him to the city hall to obtain the license.

"And who is Caroline Zek?" asked Father Heitenger.

Antonio did not know. He had never heard of her. He said he would see the interpreter who had undertaken to help them get the license, as neither he nor his bride-elect could speak a word of English. The bride-elect was deeply moved, she wanted to know all about Caroline."

When the couple finally found the interpreter, he admitted that in a moment of abstraction he must have breathed the name of the object of his own affection. After reassuring Helena that she was not some one else, and satisfying the priest, the snarl was replaced by a knot.

A. J. Craig, of Philadelphia, who was removed from the Queen City Hotel to Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday for treatment, is much improved today and will probably return home on Monday.

James Evans, of this city, who was at the hospital under treatment, has returned to the institution.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 18.

IF YOU want to reach the grocer or the dressmaker, or Mrs. Jones, or Smith, the ice cream man, you step over to the telephone, give a number to Central—and there you are.

Your message has done its work, surely and quickly.

But if you want a cook, or want to sell that old piano, or want to buy a horse, or rent an apartment, or find boarders—

The telephone isn't the surest and quickest way.

The WANT ADS. ARE.

A little WANT AD. in the columns of this newspaper carries its message, not to one man or one woman, but to hundreds—some of whom are pretty sure to be the very people you want to reach.

It's a co-operative institution, is the Want Ad.

It's the connecting link bewteen your Supply and my Demand—or vice versa.

It's a "common carrier" of the little, everyday wants and needs of all of us.

And it's INEXPENSIVE, QUICK, CERTAIN.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Last Days In the Garden.

The last days in this year's garden are, in one sense, the most important days in next year's garden. For the work you do now all counts for next year.

This is the time to look to the bulbs. The gladiolus bulbs, and the canna bulbs and the dahlia bulbs or roots must all be taken up after the first frosts and stored in a cool, dark dry place. If you have such a place in your cellar, make use of it. But it must be a cool spot, not a dark hole behind the furnace. And it must also be dry.

This is almost the time to put in bulbs before the heavey frosts come. The bulbs must be put below the surface far enough so that they will not be forced out by frost. Tulip bulbs ought to be planted three inches below the surface at least, and the smaller bulbs not so far down.

Marking and Planning.

The winter is, of course, the time to plan next year's garden. Some evening when the snow and wind play havoc with the remains of this year's garden, plan next year's. But now is the time to make out charts of the garden, and to make notes of suggestions to work on. Look at your garden critically, and make a note of things that want to be transplanted in the early sprin, to give room to plants that are too crowded, or to improve the appearance of the garden.

Mark all the perrenials in your garden, if you do not feel sure that you will remember their location next spring. Write the names in indelible ink on narrow, long wooden slats, pointed at one end, that can be thrust six or eight inches below the surface, so that they cannot be blown away.

This is the time to weed, too. Pull up every weed you can lay your hands on, and burn them all with the seeds. Pull up all annuals, too, so that only perennials and other hardy plants are left standing. Then when spring comes you will know there are no remains of last year's annuals left, and no old weeds, so you can let every shoot that appears grow until it has proved whether it is a new weed or a shoot of a perennial.

As soon as the frosts are heavy mulch everything in the hardy garden. Don't mulch anything until after there are heavy frosts. Then mulch thickly or lightly according to the strength or delicacy of the plants. Everblooming roses, for instance, need a heavy mulch, but it should not be put on until late, and it should be taken off early in the spring. Wallflowers need a heavy mulch, and sweet Williams get along with a light one.

The best thing to mulch with is leaves. If you can, spread a thick layer of them over the entire garden, and weigh them down with brush. Never use cornstalks for a mulch, nor evergreen boughs, for both these attract the field mice, who eat them, and then turn to the bulbs and roots of flowers.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

One of the arguments which appeals strongly to men conscious of the oftentimes corrupt conditions of politics in this country is, that if women had the vote and exercised it they would exert a purifying effect on politics. Let Colorado answer. An editorial in the N. Y. Times says.

"The women of Colorado seem to be progressing toward the level of the men voters. Through their central organization in Denver the President of the United States has been informed that as the 'organization has rendered sterling service in the battles of Colorado Democracy, its members are entitled to something more than clerkships,' and that the women should have 'more dignified' positions in the Federal service."

The "organization" referred to is the Jane Jefferson Club, and is political in character and Democratic in affiliation. It is, perhaps worth remarking that the notification to the President was sent by telegraph, the mails being too slow and uncertain. It is doubtful whether the response will be correspondingly prompt.

This outbreak by the women politicians of Colorado is natural, and the spirit that impels it is inevitable; but it is not pleasant to contemplate. It is an indication, whatever other results there may be from votes for women, that the number of office seekers will be largely increased, will probably be doubled, and may be more than doubled. It will be seen that the women base their claim to patronage plainly on political "service," on the very old and very bad doctrine that "to the victors belong the spoils." In this they are certainly no worse than the men. But that doctrine has cost millions of wasted money and a vast amount of corruption and demoralization in the public service, and the check that finally has been administered to it is the fruit of years of patient effort. It is discouraging to think that the ranks of the place hunters are to be reinforced by the women voters.

An editorial in the Daily Press for Tuesday, October 7, seems to show some misunderstanding of the position of the women oppsed to woman suffrage as to voting when the vote is forced on us. While my experience is that we are very careful as a rule to give statistics only compiled from governmental sources, yet, were it true that all the women registered and voted it would not prove that all approved of the vote or found it a good thing. What is the use of being "hostile" to the law? Compliance with law does not imply approval.

ELIZABETH B. SYKES.

There is another reason for quiescence on the part of those worsted in the fight against suffrage. I was in New York just after the Tilden-Hayes election while the matter was still in dispute, and over and over again I heard the remark, "If we hadn't just been through a Civil War we'd fight rather than have our victory taken from us." And so, although almost all the Democrats and some of the Republicans felt that Tilden was the rightful President, they quietly acquiesced in the decision of the courts and showed no "hostility" to a government which they felt had been unjustly placed in power.

And the women who have been through the stress and strain of trying to ward off the misfortune of the vote feel too deeply now determinating such contests are to willingly reopen the issue.

ELIZABETH B. SYKES.

(From the New York Sun.)

The Suffragists claim that, given the ballot, they could stamp out that terrible evil known as the "white slave traffic." As it is flourishing like a green bay tree in Denver, Col., where women have had the ballot nineteen years, their arguments are not very convincing. However, as all men and women of any sensibility would be glad to see this evil mitigated, would the Suffragists be willing to tell us what they would do in New York State in regard to this matter if they had the vote?

Is there any law anywhere (in any woman suffrage State, for example) which is beter than the law of the State of New York in this matter? Is there any law upon our statute books that is wrong? If so, why not call the public's attention to it at once and permit us Antis to join in the agitation for a better law? Surely it is not necessary for the Suffragists to wait for an amendment to our State constitution giving the ballot to women before they point out the unjust law. It is cruel to wait. Why not state at once what is the matter with our laws on this point? It will be at least two years, you know, before these wretched women could be reached by "votes for women."

Is there any administration of the law which can be bettered? If so, in what particular instance? Surely all the laws that can be devised dealing with this matter have been placed on the statutes.

Then it must be a question of protection of girls from violation of the law. That brings up directly up to the question of evidence. The great difficulty, then, in checking this evil is getting the evidence. Woman does not need the ballot to get evidence on this subject and present it.

Is there no so-called white slavery in Colorado, in California, in Utah (the home of Mormonism, the greatest white slave traffic ever devised)? Yet Mrs. Pankhurst is coming here to tell us that women could abolish this evil if they had the vote!

Some Cookery Suggestions

VARIETY IN VEGETABLES.

ALMOST any canned vegetable may be served in the form of an omelet. Fresh ones may be baked, fried or cooked in the form of fritters or croquettes. Served en casserole or baked as puddings most of them are very acceptable. Soups and salads afford the housewife a means of using up cold vegetables.

Delicious Viands.

Broiled Mushrooms.—Take large, firm mushrooms and, after breaking off the stems, peel, wash, wipe dry and rub with melted butter. Broil over a clear fire, turn on a hot platter and serve with maitre d'hotel sauce. To make this cream four tablespoonfuls of butter with one of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one-tenth of a teaspoonful of salt and a dash each of cayenne and white pepper.

Beet and Lettuce Salad.—Take crisp leaves of lettuce heart, wash and wipe them dry. Then arrange in a salad bowl. Cut slices of boiled beets into hearts, diamonds, stars, crescents and other fancy shapes with vegetable cutters. Place in the salad bowl with the lettuce, dress with mayonnaise dressing and serve.

Appetizing Foods.

Asparagus Omelet.—Canned asparagus may be used for this. Take four eggs, break them into a bowl and beat until they are foamy. Then add four tablespoonfuls of cream, a dash of pepper and a saltspoonful of salt. Grease an omelet pan with a tablespoonful of melted butter. Set the pan where it will get hot, and when the butter is hissing pour in the eggs. Prick it to allow it to be cooked thoroughly. Take several spoonfuls of cooked asparagus points dressed with a little melted butter, a teaspoonful chopped parsley and a few drops of lemon juice. When the eggs are of a creamy consistency spread with the asparagus and double over the vegetable.

Glazed Carrots.—Take young carrots and boil them until tender in salted water. Drain, slice and fry in butter until delicately browned. Butter a baking pan, put in the carrots, sprinkle with one tablespoonful of sugar and one tablespoonful of butter cut in bits. Pour in about half a cupful of well seasoned stock. Bake until the carrots are browned and the stock reduced to a glaze.

He Took It In His Arms.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Gentle Francis And the Scared Baby Hare.

THE children had been talking about Frankie Green's pet rabbits.

"And we wish you would get us some rabbits, daddy," Jack and Evelyn begged.

"Rabbits? Would you be kind to them?" daddy inquired.

"Course we would," was the answer.

"Long ago," said daddy, "in the old town of Assisi, which nestles prettily among the hills of Italy, there lived a boy by the name of Francis. His father was quite well off, and the boy had everything that a boy of that time cared for.

"But better than any of the handsome toys which were given to him Francis loved the living creatures that he saw about him. The bees that hummed in the orchards, the birds that sang in the branches of the trees, the cattle that grazed in the fields, the great prancing horses on which the soldiers rode, the patient donkeys drawing their heavy loads through the steep, narrow streets, all interested the little boy.

"There was one thing that made him different from his many companions. It was his tender heart. He could not bear to see any living thing suffering. When still a boy his parents often had to talk to him about his habit of giving away whatever he had to any one who seemed to need it.

"When he grew to be a man Francis became a preacher, but he had ideas of his own about the way preachers should live. He thought they should be poor, as the Christ had been when he went about preaching and teaching.

"Francis was much loved by every one. So good and kind was he that people believed even the wild beasts would not harm him.

"One morning as the good man sat at his scanty breakfast some one brought in to him a little baby hare (which is a kind of a rabbit) and gave it to him.

"Francis took the tiny, trembling creature into his arms and petted it and spoke so softly and soothingly that at last it ceased to be afraid and nestled against his coarse robe, looking trustingly up at him.

"Then he put it down and told the hare it was free and might go back to its friends. But the hare hopped back—it did not wish to leave him.

"Then he took it up again and, giving it to one of his companions, told him to take it out into the woods and set it free, where it could join its own kind.

"And this was done as he ordered, and the little hare leaped off, perhaps, to tell its brother and sister hares of its wonderful escape and of the gentle man whose gentle deeds make him worthy to be called one of the finest gentlemen who have ever lived."

ELIZABETH POLICE CHANGES MAY BENEFIT REPUBLICANS

Elizabeth, Oct. 11.—Additions and promotions in the police department may be made by the City Council Wednesday night. This matter was discussed at a meeting of the police committee and the Mayor.

The councilmen are said to have agreed to give the Republicans better representation in the police department than they have at present. The committee is composed of two Democrats and one Republican. At least twenty men are needed in the department to fill vacancies and to bring the department up to the required strength.

The proposed changes may also include the naming of a chief of police to succeed John A. Peters, who, it is again reported, intends to resign. The report is that Captain Michael Mulcahey, a Democrat, may succeed him. Samuel Murphy, a detective-sergeant, who is a Republican, may be named captain to succeed Mulcahey.

PRISON BOARD OF OKLAHOMA SEES RAHWAY REFORMATORY

Rahway, Oct. 11.—Chairman J. H. Denton, A. K. Westwood and J. B. Cambron, of the newly appointed Oklahoma Prison Board, visited the reformatory Thursday on their tour of penal institutions of the United States. They will visit Sing Sing today and will then start for the prison congress at Indianapolis.

The visitors were interested in the institution's modern method of teaching foreign and backward inmates by use of an Edison kinetoscope, which has just been installed in one of the schoolrooms.

THE SMART TAILORED SUIT HAS A FIRST PLACE IN THE WARDROBE

Smart, simple, of good lines, there is nothing more becoming to the American woman than the tailored suit. This has always been true, and, despite its change this season from strictly tailored to semi-tailored lines, the suit continues to be indespensable to the smart wardrobe.

Many of the skirts are draped, many show the double or triple skirt, others again are perfectly plain. The coats are sashed and vested, and often there is a novel collar or attractive cuffs that add to the effect.

Materials are most attractive—velours de laine, plain or self figured; duvetyn, which is as supple and rich as velvet, and numerous novelty stuffs that are exceedingly smart.

Tweeds in almost invisible mixtures are modish for morning wear.

A smart suggestion for 7998-7994 is navy blue velours de laine striped in nattier blue with white collar and vest.

To copy 7998 in size 36 it requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material. In size 24 7994 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

7998—sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

7994—sizes 22 to 36 inches waist measure.

Each pattern 15 cents.

14432

An Attractive Daisy Design for Embroidering a Blouse in Colors.

The new blouses of chiffon cloth, crepe de chine, voile and net are made either front or back-closing, as well as those of linen, lawn, batiste or cotton crepe. A pretty design, embroidered by hand, would add greatly to the smartness of one of these blouses, for a touch of hand embroidery makes the plainest of garments, if made of fine material, dressy enough, to wear with the most elaborate suit, for afternoon or evening. White and colored embroidery are both used this season on blouses and dresses.

Pattern number 14432 is an exceptionally pretty design for embroidering one of these blouses. These sprays may be used on a front-closing or back-closing blouse and are also appropriate for use on negligee, aprons, evening wraps and dresses or may be cut apart and adapted to sofa-pillows, centerpieces, bureau scarfs or sideboard covers.

This design may be embroidered in well padded solid work, shadow embroidery or outline and seed-stitch, in white or colors. When embroidering blouses in colors, it is best to develop the design in the color of the material, while on the household articles the natural colorings may be used, if desired.

The embroidery on blouses of crepe should be done in filo silk, while on net or cotton fabrics it should be done with mercerized cotton. Articles which are to be frequently laundered should be embroidered in mercerized cotton, as it keeps its texture better than silk. These cottons come in a great variety of colors and shades and launder remarkably well.

Pattern number 14432, illustrated on waist number 6337, will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.
